“(2) RESULT OF ORDER UNDER PARAGRAPH (1).—Whenever an accused is prevented by an order under paragraph (1) from disclosing or causing the disclosure of classified information, the military judge shall dismiss the case; except that, when the military judge determines that the interests of justice would not be served by dismissal of the case, the military judge shall order such other action, in lieu of dismissing the charge or specification, as the military judge determines is appropriate. Such action may include, but need not be limited to, the following:

“(A) Dismissing specified charges or specifications.

“(B) Finding against the United States on any issue as to which the excluded classified information relates.

“(C) Striking or precluding all or part of the testimony of a witness.

“(3) TIME FOR THE UNITED STATES TO SEEK INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL.—An order under paragraph (2) shall not take effect until the military judge has afforded the United States—

“(A) an opportunity to appeal such order under section 950d of this title; and “(B) an opportunity thereafter to withdraw its objection to the disclosure of the classified information at issue.

“(g) RECIPROCITY.—

“(1) DISCLOSURE OF REBUTTAL INFORMATION.—Whenever the military judge determines that classified information may be disclosed in connection with a trial or pretrial proceeding, the military judge shall, unless the interests of fairness do not so require, order the United States to provide the accused with the information it expects to use to rebut the classified information. The military judge may place the United States under a continuing duty to disclose such rebuttal information.

“(2) SANCTION FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY.—If the United States fails to comply with its obligation under this subsection, the military judge—

“(A) may exclude any evidence not made the subject of a required disclosure; and “(B) may prohibit the examination by the United States of any witness with respect to such information.

“§949p–7. Introduction of classified information into evidence

“(a) PRESERVATION OF CLASSIFICATION STATUS.—Writings, recordings, and photographs containing classified information may be admitted into evidence in proceedings of military commissions under this chapter without change in their classification status.

“(b) PRECAUTIONS BY MILITARY JUDGES.—

“(1) PRECAUTIONS IN ADMITTING CLASSIFIED INFORMATION INTO EVIDENCE.—The military judge in a trial by military commission, in order to prevent unnecessary disclosure of classified information, may order admission into evidence of only part of a writing, recording, or photograph, or may order admission into evidence of the whole writing, recording, or photograph with excision of some or all of the classified information contained therein, unless the whole ought in fairness be considered.

“(2) CLASSIFIED INFORMATION KEPT UNDER SEAL.—The military judge shall allow classified information offered or accepted into evidence to remain under seal during the trial, even if such evidence is disclosed in the military commission, and may, upon motion by the Government, seal exhibits containing classified information for any period after trial as necessary to prevent a disclosure of classified information when a knowledgeable United States official possessing authority to classify information submits to the military judge a declaration setting forth the damage to the national security that the disclosure of such information reasonably could be expected to cause.

“(c) TAKING OF TESTIMONY.—

“(1) OBJECTION BY TRIAL COUNSEL.—During the examination of a witness, trial counsel may object to any question or line of inquiry that may require the witness to disclose classified information not previously found to be admissible.

“(2) ACTION BY MILITARY JUDGE.—Following an objection under paragraph (1), the military judge shall take such suitable action to determine whether the response is admissible as will safeguard against the compromise of any classified information. Such action may include requiring trial counsel to provide the military judge with a proffer of the witness’ response to the question or line of inquiry and requiring the accused to provide the military judge with a proffer of the nature of the information sought to be elicited by the accused. Upon request, the military judge may accept an ex parte proffer by trial counsel to the extent necessary to protect classified information from disclosure, in accordance with the practice of the Federal courts under the Classified Information Procedures Act (18 U.S.C. App.).

“(d) DISCLOSURE AT TRIAL OF CERTAIN STATEMENTS PREVIOUSLY MADE BY A WITNESS.—

“(1) MOTION FOR PRODUCTION OF STATEMENTS IN POSSESSION OF THE UNITED STATES.—After a witness called by the trial counsel has testified on direct examination, the military judge, on motion of the accused, may order production of statements of the witness in the possession of the United States which relate to the subject matter as to which the witness has testified. This paragraph does not preclude discovery or assertion of a privilege otherwise authorized.

“(2) INVOCATION OF PRIVILEGE BY THE UNITED STATES.—If the United States invokes a privilege, the trial counsel may provide the prior statements of the witness to the military judge during an ex parte presentation to the extent necessary to protect classified information from disclosure, in accordance with the practice of the Federal courts under the Classified Information Procedures Act (18 U.S.C. App.).

“(3) ACTION BY MILITARY JUDGE ON MOTION.—If the military judge finds that disclosure of any portion of the statement identified by the United States as classified would be detrimental to the national security in the degree to warrant classification under the applicable Executive Order, statute, or regulation, that such portion of the statement is consistent with the testimony of the witness, and that the disclosure of such portion is not necessary to afford the accused a fair trial, the military judge shall excise that portion from the statement. If the military judge finds that such portion of the statement is inconsistent with the testimony of the witness or that its disclosure is necessary to afford the accused a fair trial, the military judge, shall, upon the request of the trial counsel, review alternatives to disclosure in accordance with section 949p–6(d) of this title.

“SUBCHAPTER VI—SENTENCES

“Sec.

“949s. Cruel or unusual punishments prohibited.

“949t. Maximum limits.

“§949s. Cruel or unusual punishments prohibited

“Punishment by flogging, or by branding, marking, or tattooing on the body, or any other cruel or unusual punishment, may not be adjudged by a military commission under this chapter or inflicted under this chapter upon any person subject to this chapter. The use of irons, single or double, except for the purpose of safe custody, is prohibited under this chapter.

“§949t. Maximum limits

“The punishment which a military commission under this chapter may direct for an offense may not exceed such limits as the President or Secretary of Defense may prescribe for that offense.

“§949u. Execution of confinement

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Under such regulations as the Secretary of Defense may prescribe, a sentence of confinement adjudged by a military commission under this chapter may be carried into execution by confinement—

“(1) in any place of confinement under the control of any of the armed forces; or

“(2) in any penal or correctional institution under the control of the United States or its allies, or which the United States may be allowed to use.

“(b) TREATMENT DURING CONFINEMENT BY OTHER THAN THE ARMED FORCES.—Persons confined under subsection (a)(2) in a penal or correctional institution not under the control of an armed force are subject to the same discipline and treatment as persons confined or committed by the courts of the United States or of the State, District of Columbia, or place in which the institution is situated.

“SUBCHAPTER VII—POST-TRIAL PROCEDURE AND REVIEW OF MILITARY COMMISSIONS

“950a. Error of law; lesser included offense.

“950b. Review by the convening authority.

“950c. Appellate referral; waiver or withdrawal of appeal.

“950d. Interlocutory appeals by the United States.

“950e. Rehearings.

“950g. Appellate counsel.

“950h. Execution of sentence; suspension of sentence.

“950i. Finality of proceedings, findings, and sentences.

“§950a. Error of law; lesser included offense

“(a) ERROR OF LAW.—A finding or sentence of a military commission under this chapter may not be held incorrect on the ground of an error of law unless the error materially prejudices the substantial rights of the accused.

“(a) NOTICE TO CONVENING AUTHORITY OF FINDINGS AND SENTENCE.—The findings and sentence of a military commission under this chapter shall be reported in writing promptly to the convening authority after the announcement of the sentence.

“(b) SUBMITTAL OF MATTERS BY ACCUSED TO CONVENING AUTHORITY.—(1) The accused may submit to the convening authority matters for consideration by the convening authority with respect to the findings and the sentence of the military commission under this chapter.

“(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a submittal under paragraph (1) shall be made in writing within 20 days after accused has been given an authenticated record of trial under section 949o(c) of this title.

“(B) If the accused shows that additional time is required for the accused to make a submittal under paragraph (1), the convening authority may, for good cause, extend the applicable period under subparagraph (A) for not more than an additional 20 days.

“(3) The accused may waive his right to make a submittal to the convening authority under paragraph (1). Such a waiver shall be made in writing, and may not be revoked. For the purposes of subsection (c)(2), the time within which the accused may make a submittal under this subsection shall be deemed to have expired upon the submittal of a waiver under this paragraph to the convening authority.

“(c) ACTION BY CONVENING AUTHORITY.—(1) The authority under this subsection to modify the findings and sentence of a military commission under this chapter is a matter of the sole discretion and prerogative of the convening authority.

“(2) The convening authority is not required to take action on the findings of a military commission under this chapter. If the convening authority takes action on the findings, the convening authority may, in his sole discretion, only—

“(A) dismiss any charge or specification by setting aside a finding of guilty thereto; or “(B) change a finding of guilty to a charge to a finding of guilty to an offense that is a lesser included offense of the offense stated in the charge.

“(3)(A) The convening authority shall take action on the sentence of a military commission under this chapter.

“(B) Subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, action under this paragraph may be taken only after consideration of any matters submitted by the accused under subsection (b) or after the time for submitting such matters expires, whichever is earlier.

“(C) In taking action under this paragraph, the convening authority may, in his sole discretion, approve, disapprove, commute, or suspend the sentence in whole or in part. The convening authority may not increase a sentence beyond that which is found by the military commission.

“(4) The convening authority shall serve on the accused or on defense counsel notice of any action taken by the convening authority under this subsection.

“(d) ORDER OF REVISION OR REHEARING.—(1) Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the convening authority of a military commission under this chapter may, in his sole discretion, order a proceeding in revision or a rehearing.

“(2)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a proceeding in revision may be ordered by the convening authority if—

“(i) there is an apparent error or omission in the record; or “(ii) the record shows improper or inconsistent action by the military commission with respect to the findings or sentence that can be rectified without material prejudice to the substantial rights of the accused.

“(B) In no case may a proceeding in revision—

“(i) reconsider a finding of not guilty of a specification or a ruling which amounts to a finding of not guilty;

“(ii) reconsider a finding of not guilty of any charge, unless there has been a finding of guilty under a specification laid under that charge, which sufficiently alleges a violation; or

“(iii) increase the severity of the sentence unless the sentence prescribed for the offense is mandatory.

“(3) A rehearing may be ordered by the convening authority if the convening authority disapproves the findings and sentence and states the reasons for disapproval of the findings. If the convening authority disapproves the finding and sentence and does not order a rehearing, the convening authority shall dismiss the charges. A rehearing as to the findings may not be ordered by the convening authority when there is a lack of sufficient evidence in the record to support the findings. A rehearing as to the sentence may be ordered by the convening authority if the convening authority disapproves the sentence.

“(a) AUTOMATIC REFERRAL FOR APPELLATE REVIEW.—Except as provided in subsection (b), in each case in which the final decision of a military commission under this chapter (as approved by the convening authority) includes a finding of guilty, the convening authority shall refer the case to the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces. Any such referral shall be made in accordance with procedures prescribed under regulations of the Secretary.

“(b) WAIVER OF RIGHT OF REVIEW.—(1) Except in a case in which the sentence as approved under section 950b of this title extends to death, an accused may file with the convening authority a statement expressly waiving the right of the accused to appellate review by the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces under section 950f(a) of this title of the final decision of the military commission under this chapter.

“(2) A waiver under paragraph (1) shall be signed by both the accused and a defense counsel.

“(3) A waiver under paragraph (1) must be filed, if at all, within 10 days after notice of the action is served on the accused or on defense counsel under section 950b(c)(4) of this title. The convening authority, for good cause, may extend the period for such filing by not more than 30 days.

“(c) WITHDRAWAL OF APPEAL.—Except in a case in which the sentence as approved under section 950b of this title extends to death, the accused may withdraw an appeal at any time.

“(d) EFFECT OF WAIVER OR WITHDRAWAL.—A waiver of the right to appellate review or the withdrawal of an appeal under this section bars review under section 950f of this title.

“§950d. Interlocutory appeals by the United States

“(a) INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), in a trial by military commission under this chapter, the United States may take an interlocutory appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces under section 950f of this title of any order or ruling of the military judge—

“(1) that terminates proceedings of the military commission with respect to a charge or specification;

“(2) that excludes evidence that is substantial proof of a fact material in the proceeding;

“(3) that relates to a matter under subsection (c) or (d) of section 949d of this title; or

“(4) that, with respect to classified information—

“(A) authorizes the disclosure of such information;

“(B) imposes sanctions for nondisclosure of such information; or

“(C) refuses a protective order sought by the United States to prevent the disclosure of such information.

“(b) LIMITATION.—The United States may not appeal under subsection (a) an order or ruling that is, or amounts to, a finding of not guilty by the military commission with respect to a charge or specification.

“(c) SCOPE OF APPEAL RIGHT WITH RESPECT TO CLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—The United States has the right to appeal under paragraph (4) of subsection (a) whenever the military judge enters an order or ruling that would require the disclosure of classified information, without regard to whether the order or ruling appealed from was entered under this chapter, another provision of law, a rule, or otherwise. Any such appeal may embrace any preceding order, ruling, or reasoning constituting the basis of the order or ruling that would authorize such disclosure.

“(d) TIMING AND ACTION ON INTERLOCUTORY APPEALS RELATING TO CLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—

“(1) APPEAL TO BE EXPEDITED.—An appeal taken pursuant to paragraph (4) of subsection (a) shall be expedited by the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces.

“(2) APPEALS BEFORE TRIAL.—If such an appeal is taken before trial, the appeal shall be taken within 10 days after the order or ruling appealed from and the trial shall not commence until the appeal is decided.

“(3) APPEALS DURING TRIAL.—If such an appeal is taken during trial, the military judge shall adjourn the trial until the appeal is decided, and the court of appeals—

“(A) shall hear argument on such appeal within 4 days of the adjournment of the trial (excluding weekends and holidays);

“(B) may dispense with written briefs other than the supporting materials previously submitted to the military judge;

“(C) shall render its decision within four days of argument on appeal (excluding weekends and holidays); and “(D) may dispense with the issuance of a written opinion in rendering its decision.

“(e) NOTICE AND TIMING OF OTHER APPEALS.—The United States shall take an appeal of an order or ruling under subsection (a), other than an appeal under paragraph (4) of that subsection, by filing a notice of appeal with the military judge within 5 days after the date of the order or ruling.

“(f) METHOD OF APPEAL.—An appeal under this section shall be forwarded, by means specified in regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, directly to the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces.

“(g) APPEALS COURT TO ACT ONLY WITH RESPECT TO MATTER OF LAW.—In ruling on an appeal under paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (a), the appeals court may act only with respect to matters of law.

“(h) SUBSEQUENT APPEAL RIGHTS OF ACCUSED NOT AFFECTED.—An appeal under paragraph (4) of subsection (a), and a decision on such appeal, shall not affect the right of the accused, in a subsequent appeal from a judgment of conviction, to claim as error reversal by the military judge on remand of a ruling appealed from during trial.

“§950e. Rehearings

“(a) COMPOSITION OF MILITARY COMMISSION FOR REHEARING.—Each rehearing under this chapter shall take place before a military commission under this chapter composed of members who were not members of the military commission which first heard the case.

“(b) SCOPE OF REHEARING.—(1) Upon a rehearing—

“(A) the accused may not be tried for any offense of which he was found not guilty by the first military commission; and

“(B) no sentence in excess of or more than the original sentence may be imposed unless—

“(i) the sentence is based upon a finding of guilty of an offense not considered upon the merits in the original proceedings; or “(ii) the sentence prescribed for the offense is mandatory.

“(2) Upon a rehearing, if the sentence approved after the first military commission was in accordance with a pretrial agreement and the accused at the rehearing changes his plea with respect to the charges or specifications upon which the pretrial agreement was based, or otherwise does not comply with pretrial agreement, the sentence as to those charges or specifications may include any punishment not in excess of that lawfully adjudged at the first military commission.

“§950f. Review by United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces and Supreme Court

“(a) REVIEW BY UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this subsection, the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces shall have exclusive jurisdiction to determine the final validity of any judgment rendered by a military commission under this chapter.

“(2) In any case referred to it pursuant to section 950c(a) of this title, the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces may act only with respect to the findings and sentence as approved by the convening authority. It may affirm only such findings of guilty, and the sentence or such part or amount of the sentence, as it finds correct in law and fact and determines, on the basis of the entire record, should be approved. In considering the record, it may weigh the evidence, judge the credibility of witnesses, and determine controverted questions of fact, recognizing that the trial court saw and heard the witnesses.

“(3) If the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces sets aside the findings and sentence, it may, except where the setting aside is based on lack of sufficient evidence in the record to support the findings, order a rehearing. If it sets aside the findings and sentence and does not order a rehearing, it shall order that the charges be dismissed.

“(b) REVIEW BY SUPREME COURT.—The Supreme Court of the United States may review by writ of certiorari pursuant to section 1257 of title 28 the final judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces in a determination under subsection (a).

“§950g. Appellate counsel

“(a) APPOINTMENT.—The Secretary of Defense shall, by regulation, establish procedures for the appointment of appellate counsel for the United States and for the accused in military commissions under this chapter. Appellate counsel shall meet the qualifications of counsel for appearing before military commissions under this chapter.

“(b) REPRESENTATION OF UNITED STATES.—Appellate counsel may represent the United States in any appeal or review proceeding under this chapter. Appellate Government counsel may represent the United States before the Supreme Court in case arising under this chapter when requested to do so by the Attorney General.

“(c) REPRESENTATION OF ACCUSED.—The accused shall be represented before the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces or the Supreme Court by military appellate counsel, or by civilian counsel if retained by him.

“(a) EXECUTION OF SENTENCE OF DEATH ONLY UPON APPROVAL BY THE PRESIDENT.—If the sentence of a military commission under this chapter extends to death, that part of the sentence providing for death may not be executed until approved by the President. In such a case, the President may commute, remit, or suspend the sentence, or any part thereof, as he sees fit.

“(b) EXECUTION OF SENTENCE OF DEATH ONLY UPON FINAL JUDGMENT OF LEGALITY OF PROCEEDINGS.—(1) If the sentence of a military commission under this chapter extends to death, the sentence may not be executed until there is a final judgement as to the legality of the proceedings (and with respect to death, approval under subsection (a)).

“(2) A judgement as to legality of proceedings is final for purposes of paragraph (1) when review is completed in accordance with the judgement of the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces and (A) a petition for a writ of certiorari is not timely filed, (B) such a petition is denied by the Supreme Court, or (C) review is otherwise completed in accordance with the judgement of the Supreme Court.

“(c) SUSPENSION OF SENTENCE.—The Secretary of the Defense, or the convening authority acting on the case (if other than the Secretary), may suspend the execution of any sentence or part thereof in the case.

“§950i. Finality of proceedings, findings, and sentences

“The appellate review of records of trial provided by this chapter, and the proceedings, findings, and sentences of military commissions as approved, reviewed, or affirmed as required by this chapter, are final and conclusive. Orders publishing the proceedings of military commissions under this chapter are binding upon all departments, courts, agencies, and officers of the United States, subject only to action by the Secretary or the convening authority as provided in section 950h(c) of this title and the authority of the President.

“SUBCHAPTER VIII—PUNITIVE MATTERS

“§950p. Definitions; construction of certain offenses; common circumstances

“(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this subchapter:

“(1) The term ‘military objective’ means combatants and those objects during an armed conflict which, by their nature, location, purpose, or use, effectively contribute to the war-fighting or war-sustaining capability of an opposing force and whose total or partial destruction, capture, or neutralization would constitute a definite military advantage to the attacker under the circumstances at the time of an attack.

“(2) The term ‘protected person’ means any person entitled to protection under one or more of the Geneva Conventions, including civilians not taking an active part in hostilities, military personnel placed out of combat by sickness, wounds, or detention, and military medical or religious personnel.

“(3) The term ‘protected property’ means any property specifically protected by the law of war, including buildings dedicated to religion, education, art, science, or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals, and places where the sick and wounded are collected, but only if and to the extent such property is not being used for military purposes or is not otherwise a military objective. The term includes objects properly identified by one of the distinctive emblems of the Geneva Conventions, but does not include civilian property that is a military objective.

“(b) CONSTRUCTION OF CERTAIN OFFENSES.—The intent required for offenses under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), (4), and (12) of section 950w of this title precludes their applicability with regard to collateral damage or to death, damage, or injury incident to a lawful attack.

“(c) COMMON CIRCUMSTANCES.—An offense specified in this subchapter is triable by military commission under this chapter only if the offense is committed in the context of and associated with armed conflict.

“(d) OFFENSES ENCOMPASSED UNDER LAW OF WAR.—To the extent that the provisions of this subchapter codify offenses that have traditionally been triable under the law of war or otherwise triable by military commission, this subchapter does not preclude trial for offenses that occurred before the date of the enactment of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

“§950q. Principals

“Any person punishable under this chapter who—

“(1) commits an offense punishable by this chapter, or aids, abets, counsels, commands, or procures its commission;

“(2) causes an act to be done which if directly performed by him would be punishable by this chapter; or

“(3) is a superior commander who, with regard to acts punishable by this chapter, knew, had reason to know, or should have known, that a subordinate was about to commit such acts or had done so and who failed to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or to punish the perpetrators thereof, is a principal.

“§950r. Accessory after the fact

“Any person subject to this chapter who, knowing that an offense punishable by this chapter has been committed, receives, comforts, or assists the offender in order to hinder or prevent his apprehension, trial, or punishment shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“§950s. Conviction of lesser offenses

“An accused may be found guilty of an offense necessarily included in the offense charged or of an attempt to commit either the offense charged or an attempt to commit either the offense charged or an offense necessarily included therein.

“§950t. Attempts

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Any person subject to this chapter who attempts to commit any offense punishable by this chapter shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(b) SCOPE OF OFFENSE.—An act, done with specific intent to commit an offense under this chapter, amounting to more than mere preparation and tending, even though failing, to effect its commission, is an attempt to commit that offense.

“(c) EFFECT OF CONSUMMATION.—Any person subject to this chapter may be convicted of an attempt to commit an offense although it appears on the trial that the offense was consummated.

“§950u. Conspiracy

“Any person subject to this chapter who conspires to commit one or more substantive offenses triable by military commission under this subchapter, and who knowingly does any overt act to effect the object of the conspiracy, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“§950v. Solicitation

“Any person subject to this chapter who solicits or advises another or others to commit one or more substantive offenses triable by military commission under this chapter shall, if the offense solicited or advised is attempted or committed, be punished with the punishment provided for the commission of the offense, but, if the offense solicited or advised is not committed or attempted, he shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“§950w. Crimes triable by military commissions

“The following offenses shall be triable by military commission under this chapter at any time without limitation:

“(1) MURDER OF PROTECTED PERSONS.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally kills one or more protected persons shall be punished by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(2) ATTACKING CIVILIANS.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally engages in an attack upon a civilian population as such, or individual civilians not taking active part in hostilities, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(3) ATTACKING CIVILIAN OBJECTS.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally engages in an attack upon a civilian object that is not a military objective shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(4) ATTACKING PROTECTED PROPERTY.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally engages in an attack upon protected property shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(5) PILLAGING.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally and in the absence of military necessity appropriates or seizes property for private or personal use, without the consent of a person with authority to permit such appropriation or seizure, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(6) DENYING QUARTER.—Any person subject to this chapter who, with effective command or control over subordinate groups, declares, orders, or otherwise indicates to those groups that there shall be no survivors or surrender accepted, with the intent to threaten an adversary or to conduct hostilities such that there would be no survivors or surrender accepted, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(7) TAKING HOSTAGES.—Any person subject to this chapter who, having knowingly seized or detained one or more persons, threatens to kill, injure, or continue to detain such person or persons with the intent of compelling any nation, person other than the hostage, or group of persons to act or refrain from acting as an explicit or implicit condition for the safety or release of such person or persons, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(8) EMPLOYING POISON OR SIMILAR WEAPONS.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally, as a method of warfare, employs a substance or weapon that releases a substance that causes death or serious and lasting damage to health in the ordinary course of events, through its asphyxiating, bacteriological, or toxic properties, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(9) USING PROTECTED PERSONS AS A SHIELD.—Any person subject to this chapter who positions, or otherwise takes advantage of, a protected person with the intent to shield a military objective from attack, or to shield, favor, or impede military operations, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(10) USING PROTECTED PROPERTY AS A SHIELD.—Any person subject to this chapter who positions, or otherwise takes advantage of the location of, protected property with the intent to shield a military objective from attack, or to shield, favor, or impede military operations, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(A) OFFENSE.—Any person subject to this chapter who commits an act specifically intended to inflict severe physical or mental pain or suffering (other than pain or suffering incidental to lawful sanctions) upon another person within his custody or physical control for the purpose of obtaining information or a confession, punishment, intimidation, coercion, or any reason based on discrimination of any kind, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(B) SEVERE MENTAL PAIN OR SUFFERING DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term ‘severe mental pain or suffering’ has the meaning given that term in section 2340(2) of title 18.

“(12) CRUEL OR INHUMAN TREATMENT.—Any person subject to this chapter who subjects another person in their custody or under their physical control, regardless of nationality or physical location, to cruel or inhuman treatment that constitutes a grave breach of common Article 3 of the Geneva Conventions shall be punished, if death results to the victim, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to the victim, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(13) INTENTIONALLY CAUSING SERIOUS BODILY INJURY.—

“(A) OFFENSE.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally causes serious bodily injury to one or more persons, including privileged belligerents, in violation of the law of war shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(B) SERIOUS BODILY INJURY DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term ‘serious bodily injury’ means bodily injury which involves—

“(i) a substantial risk of death;

“(ii) extreme physical pain;

“(iii) protracted and obvious disfigurement; or

“(iv) protracted loss or impairment of the function of a bodily member, organ, or mental faculty.

“(14) MUTILATING OR MAIMING.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally injures one or more protected persons by disfiguring the person or persons by any mutilation of the person or persons, or by permanently disabling any member, limb, or organ of the body of the person or persons, without any legitimate medical or dental purpose, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(15) MURDER IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW OF WAR.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally kills one or more persons, including privileged belligerents, in violation of the law of war shall be punished by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(16) DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW OF WAR.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally destroys property belonging to another person in violation of the law of war shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(17) USING TREACHERY OR PERFDY.—Any person subject to this chapter who, after inviting the confidence or belief of one or more persons that they were entitled to, or obliged to accord, protection under the law of war, intentionally makes use of that confidence or belief in killing, injuring, or capturing such person or persons shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(18) IMPROPERLY USING A FLAG OF TRUCE.—Any person subject to this chapter who uses a flag of truce to feign an intention to negotiate, surrender, or otherwise suspend hostilities when there is no such intention shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(19) IMPROPERLY USING A DISTINCTIVE EMBLEM.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally uses a distinctive emblem recognized by the law of war for combatant purposes in a manner prohibited by the law of war shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(20) INTENTIONALLY MISTREATING A DEAD BODY.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally mistreats the body of a dead person, without justification by legitimate military necessity, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(21) RAPE.—Any person subject to this chapter who forcibly or with coercion or threat of force wrongfully invades the body of a person by penetrating, however slightly, the anal or genital opening of the victim with any part of the body of the accused, or with any foreign object, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(22) SEXUAL ASSAULT OR ABUSE.—Any person subject to this chapter who forcibly or with coercion or threat of force engages in sexual contact with one or more persons, or causes one or more persons to engage in sexual contact, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(23) HIJACKING OR HAZARDING A VESSEL OR AIRCRAFT.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally seizes, exercises unauthorized control over, or endangers the safe navigation of a vessel or aircraft that is not a legitimate military objective shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(24) TERRORISM.—Any person subject to this chapter who intentionally kills or inflicts great bodily harm on one or more protected persons, or intentionally engages in an act that evinces a wanton disregard for human life, in a manner calculated to influence or affect the conduct of government or civilian population by intimidation or coercion, or to retaliate against government conduct, shall be punished, if death results to one or more of the victims, by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct, and, if death does not result to any of the victims, by such punishment, other than death, as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(25) PROVIDING MATERIAL SUPPORT FOR TERRORISM.—

“(A) OFFENSE.—Any person subject to this chapter who provides material support or resources, knowing or intending that they are to be used in preparation for, or in carrying out, an act of terrorism (as set forth in paragraph (23) of this section), or who intentionally provides material support or resources to an international terrorist organization engaged in hostilities against the United States, knowing that such organization has engaged or engages in terrorism (as so set forth), shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(B) MATERIAL SUPPORT OR RESOURCES DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term ‘material support or resources’ has the meaning given that term in section 2339A(b) of title 18.

“(26) WRONGFULLY AIDING THE ENEMY.—Any person subject to this chapter who, in breach of an allegiance or duty to the United States, knowingly and intentionally aids an enemy of the United States, or one of the co-belligerents of the enemy, shall be punished as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(27) SPYING.—Any person subject to this chapter who, in violation of the law of war and with intent or reason to believe that it is to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign power, collects or attempts to collect information by clandestine means or while acting under false pretenses, for the purpose of conveying such information to an enemy of the United States, or one of the co-belligerents of the enemy, shall be punished by death or such other punishment as a military commission under this chapter may direct.

“(28) CONTEMPT.—A military commission under this chapter may punish for contempt any person who uses any menacing word, sign, or gesture in its presence, or who disturbs its proceedings by any riot or disorder.

“(29) PERJURY AND OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE.—A military commission under this chapter may try offenses and impose such punishment as the military commission may direct for perjury, false testimony, or obstruction of justice related to the military commission.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Paragraph (13) of section 802 of title 10, United States Code (article 2 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice), is amended to read as follows:

“(13) Privileged belligerents (as that term is defined section 948a(3) of this title) who violate the law of war.”.

(c) PROCEEDINGS UNDER PRIOR STATUTE.—

(1) PRIOR CONVICTIONS.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall have no effect on the validity of any conviction pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as such chapter was in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) COMPOSITION OF MILITARY COMMISSIONS.—Notwithstanding the amendments made by subsection (a)—

(A) any commission convened pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as such chapter was in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been convened pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a);

(B) any member of the Armed Forces detailed to serve on a commission pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been detailed pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended;

(C) any military judge detailed to a commission pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been detailed pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended;

(D) any trial counsel or defense counsel detailed for a commission pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been detailed pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended; and

(E) any court reporters detailed to or employed by a commission pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been detailed or employed pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended.

(3) CHARGES AND SPECIFICATIONS.—Notwithstanding the amendments made by subsection (a)—

(A) any charges or specifications sworn or referred pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as such chapter was in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be deemed to have been sworn or referred pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a); and

(B) any charges or specifications described in subparagraph (A) may be amended, without prejudice, as needed to properly allege jurisdiction under chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended, and crimes triable under such chapter.

(4) PROCEDURES AND REQUIREMENTS.—Except as provided in paragraphs (1) through (3), any commission convened pursuant to chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as such chapter was in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall be conducted after the date of the enactment of this Act in accordance with the procedures and requirements of chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a).

(d) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—

(1) INITIAL RULES.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report setting for the procedures for military commissions prescribed under chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as amended by subsection (a).

(2) CHANGES TO PROCEDURES.—Not later than 60 days before the date on which any proposed modification of the regulations in effect for military commissions under Chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as so amended, goes into effect, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report describing the modification.

SEC. 1032. TRIAL BY MILITARY COMMISSION OF ALIEN UNPRIVILEGED BELLIGERENTS FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW OF WAR.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter I of chapter 47A of title 10, United States Code, as amended by section 1031(a), is further amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“§948e. Trial by military commission of alien unprivileged belligerents for violations of the law of war

“(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the preferred forum for the trial of alien unprivileged enemy belligerents subject to this chapter for violations of the law of war and other offenses made punishable by this chapter is trial by military commission under this chapter.”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections of the beginning of such subchapter, as amended by section 1031(a), is further amended by adding after the item relating to section 948d the following new item:

SEC. 1033. NO MIRANDA WARNINGS FOR AL QAEDA TERRORISTS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) the term “foreign national” means an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States; and

(2) the term “enemy combatant” includes a privileged belligerent and an unprivileged enemy belligerent, as those terms are defined in section 948a of title 10, United States Code, as amended by section 1031 of this Act.

(b) NO MIRANDA WARNINGS.—Absent an unappealable court order requiring the reading of such statements, no military or intelligence agency or department of the United States shall read to a foreign national who is captured or detained as an enemy combatant by the United States the statement required by Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436 (1966), or otherwise inform such a prisoner of any rights that the prisoner may or may not have to counsel or to remain silent consistent with Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436 (1966). No Federal statute, regulation, or treaty shall be construed to require that a foreign national who is captured or detained as an enemy combatant by the United States be informed of any rights to counsel or remain silent consistent with Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436 (1966) that the prisoner may or may not have, except as required by the United States Constitution. No statement that is made by a foreign national who is captured or detained as an enemy combatant by the United States may be excluded from any proceeding on the basis that the prisoner was not informed of a right to counsel or to remain silent, that the prisoner may or may not have, unless required by the United States Constitution.

(c) IN GENERAL.—This section shall not apply to the Department of Justice.

Subtitle E—Medical Facility Matters

SEC. 1041. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center Act of 2009”.

SEC. 1042. EXECUTIVE AGREEMENT.

(a) EXECUTIVE AGREEMENT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall execute a signed executive agreement for the joint use by the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs of the following:

(1) A new Navy ambulatory care center (on which construction commenced in July 2008), parking structure, and supporting structures and facilities in North Chicago, Illinois, and Great Lakes, Illinois.

(2) Medical personal property and equipment relating to the center, structures, and facilities described in paragraph (1).

(b) SCOPE.—The agreement required by subsection (a) shall—

(1) be a binding operational agreement on matters under the areas specified in section 706 of the Duncan Hunter National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2009 (Public Law 110-417; 122 Stat. 4500); and

(2) contain additional terms and conditions as required by the provisions of this title.

SEC. 1043. TRANSFER OF PROPERTY.

(a) TRANSFER.—

(1) TRANSFER AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of Defense, acting through the Administrator of General Services, may transfer, without reimbursement, to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs jurisdiction over the center, structures, facilities, and property and equipment covered by the executive agreement under section 1042.

(2) DATE OF TRANSFER.—The transfer authorized by paragraph (1) may not occur before the earlier of—

(A) the date that is five years after the date of the execution under section 1042 of the executive agreement required by that section; or

(B) the date of the completion of such specific benchmarks relating to the joint use by the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs of the Navy ambulatory care center described in section 1042(a)(1) as the Secretary of Defense (in consultation with the Secretary of the Navy) and Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs shall jointly establish for purposes of this section not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(3) DELAY OF TRANSFER FOR COMPLETION OF CONSTRUCTION.—If construction on the center, structures, and facilities described in paragraph (1) is not complete as of the date specified in subparagraph (A) or (B) of that paragraph, as applicable, the transfer of the center, structures, and facilities under that paragraph may occur thereafter upon completion of the construction.

(4) DISCHARGE OF TRANSFER.—The Administrator of General Services shall effectuate and memorialize the transfer as authorized by this subsection not later than 30 days after receipt of the request for the transfer.

(5) DESIGNATION OF FACILITY.—The center, structures, facilities transferred under this subsection shall be designated and known after transfer under this subsection as the “Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center”.

(b) REVERSION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If any of the real and related personal property transferred pursuant to subsection (a) is subsequently used for purposes other than those specified in the executive agreement required by section 1042, or is otherwise jointly determined by the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to be excess to the needs of the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall offer to transfer jurisdiction over such property, without reimbursement, to the Secretary of Defense. Any such transfer shall be carried out by the Administrator of General Services not later than one year after the acceptance of the offer of such transfer, plus such additional time as the Administrator may require to effectuate and memorialize such transfer.

(2) REVERSION IN EVENT OF LACK OF FACILITIES INTEGRATION.—

(A) WITHIN INITIAL PERIOD.—During the five-year period beginning on the date of the transfer of real and related personal property pursuant to subsection (a), if the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, the Secretary of Defense, and the Secretary of Navy jointly determine that the integration of the facilities transferred pursuant to that subsection should not continue, jurisdiction over such real and related personal property shall be transferred, without reimbursement, to the Secretary of Defense. The transfer under this subparagraph shall be carried out by the Administrator of General Services not later than 180 days after the date of the determination by the Secretaries, plus such additional time as the Administrator may require to effectuate and memorialize such transfer.

(B) AFTER INITIAL PERIOD.—After the end of the five-year period described in subparagraph (A), if the Secretary of Veterans Affairs or the Secretary of Defense determines that the integration of the facilities transferred pursuant to subsection (a) should not continue, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall transfer, without reimbursement, to the Secretary of Defense jurisdiction over the real and related personal property described in subparagraph (A). Any transfer under this subparagraph shall be carried out by the Administrator of General Services not later than one year after the date of the determination by the applicable Secretary, plus such additional time as the Administrator may require to effectuate and memorialize such transfer.

(C) REVERSION PROCEDURES.—The executive agreement required by section 1042 shall provide the following:

(i) Specific procedures for the reversion of real and related personal property, as appropriate, transferred pursuant to subsection (a) to ensure the continuing accomplishment by the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs of their missions in the event that the integration of facilities described transferred pursuant to that subsection (a) is not completed or a reversion of property occurs under subparagraph (A) or (B).

(ii) In the event of a reversion under this paragraph, the transfer from the Department of Veterans Affairs to the Department of Defense of associated functions including appropriate resources, civilian positions, and personnel, in a manner that will not result in adverse impact to the missions of Department of Defense or the Department of Veterans Affairs.

SEC. 1044. TRANSFER OF CIVILIAN PERSONNEL OF THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS.—The Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Navy may transfer to the Secretary of Veterans Affairs functions necessary for the effective operation of the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center. The Secretary of Veterans Affairs may accept any functions so transferred.

(b) TERMS.—

(1) EXECUTIVE AGREEMENT.—Any transfer of functions under subsection (a) shall be carried out as provided in the executive agreement required by section 1042. The functions to be so transferred shall be identified utilizing the provisions of section 3503 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) ELEMENTS.—In providing for the transfer of functions under subsection (a), the executive agreement required by section 1042 shall provide for the following:

(A) The transfer of civilian employee positions of the Department of Defense identified in the executive agreement to the Department of Veterans Affairs, and of the incumbent civilian employees in such positions, and the transition of the employees so transferred to the pay, benefits, and personnel systems that apply to employees of the Department of Veterans Affairs (to the extent that different systems apply).

(B) The transition of employees so transferred to the pay systems of the Department of Veterans Affairs in a manner which will not result in any reduction in an employee's regular rate of compensation (including basic pay, locality pay, any physician comparability allowance, and any other fixed and recurring pay supplement) at the time of transition.

(C) The continuation after transfer of the same employment status for employees so transferred who have already successfully completed or are in the process of completing a one-year probationary period under title 5, United States Code, notwithstanding the provisions of section 7403(b)(1) of title 38, United States Code.

(D) The extension of collective bargaining rights under title 5, United States Code, to employees so transferred in positions listed in subsection 7421(b) of title 38, United States Code, notwithstanding the provisions of section 7422 of title 38, United States Code, for a two-year period beginning on the effective date of the executive agreement.

(E) At the end of the two-year period beginning on the effective date of the executive agreement, for the following actions by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs with respect to the extension of collective bargaining rights under subparagraph (D):

(i) Consideration of the impact of the extension of such rights.

(ii) Consultation with exclusive employee representatives of the transferred employees about such impact.

(iii) Determination, after consultation with the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of the Navy, whether the extension of such rights should be terminated, modified, or kept in effect.

(iv) Submittal to Congress of a notice regarding the determination made under clause (iii).

(F) The recognition after transfer of each transferred physician's and dentist's total number of years of service as a physician or dentist in the Department of Defense for purposes of calculating such employee's rate of base pay, notwithstanding the provisions of section 7431(b)(3) of title 38, United States Code.

(G) The preservation of the seniority of the employees so transferred for all pay purposes.

(c) RETENTION OF DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE EMPLOYMENT AUTHORITY.—Notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b), the Department of Defense may employ civilian personnel at the Captain James Lovell Federal Health Care Center if the Secretary of the Navy, or a designee of the Secretary, determines it is necessary and appropriate to meet mission requirements of the Department of the Navy.

SEC. 1045. JOINT FUNDING AUTHORITY FOR THE CAPTAIN JAMES A. LOVELL FEDERAL HEALTH CARE CENTER.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Department of Veterans Affairs/Department of Defense Health-Care Resources Sharing Committee under section 8111(b) of title 38, United States Code, may provide for the joint funding of the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(b) HEALTH CARE CENTER FUND.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established on the books of the Treasury under the Department of Veterans Affairs a fund to be known as the “Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center Fund” (in this section referred to as the “Fund”).

(2) ELEMENTS.—The Fund shall consist of the following:

(A) Amounts transferred to the Fund by the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of the Navy, from amounts authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Defense.

(B) Amounts transferred to the Fund by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs from amounts authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Veterans Affairs.

(C) Amounts transferred to the Fund from medical care collections under paragraph (4).

(3) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNTS TRANSFERRED GENERALLY.—The amount transferred to the Fund by each of the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs under subparagraphs (A) and (B), as applicable, of paragraph (2) each fiscal year shall be such amount, as determined by a methodology jointly established by the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs for purposes of this subsection, that reflects the mission-specific activities, workload, and costs of provision of health care at the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center of the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs, respectively.

(4) TRANSFERS FROM MEDICAL CARE COLLECTIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Amounts collected under the authorities specified in subparagraph (B) for health care provided at the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center may be transferred to the Fund under paragraph (2)(C).

(B) AUTHORITIES.—The authorities specified in this subparagraph are the following:

(i) Section 1095 of title 10, United States Code.
(ii) Section 1729 of title 38, United States Code.
(iii) Public Law 87-693, popularly known as the “Federal Medical Care Recovery Act” (42 U.S.C. 2651 et seq.).

(5) ADMINISTRATION.—The Fund shall be administered in accordance with such provisions of the executive agreement required by section 1042 as the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall jointly include in the executive agreement. Such provisions shall provide for an independent review of the methodology established under paragraph (3).

(c) AVAILABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Funds transferred to the Fund under subsection (b) shall be available to fund the operations of the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center, including capital equipment, real property maintenance, and minor construction projects that are not required to be specifically authorized by law under section 2805 of title 10, United States Code, or section 8104 of title 38, United States Code.

(2) LIMITATION.—The availability of funds transferred to the Fund under subsection (b)(2)(C) shall be subject to the provisions of section 1729A of title 38, United States Code.

(3) PERIOD OF AVAILABILITY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), funds transferred to the Fund under subsection (b) shall be available under paragraph (1) for one fiscal year after transfer.

(B) EXCEPTION.—Of an amount transferred to the Fund under subsection (b), an amount not to exceed two percent of such amount shall be available under paragraph (1) for two fiscal years after transfer.

(d) FINANCIAL RECONCILIATION.—The executive agreement required by section 1042 shall provide for the development and implementation of an integrated financial reconciliation process that meets the fiscal reconciliation requirements of the Department of Defense, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of Veterans Affairs. The process shall permit each of the Department of Defense, the Department of Navy, and the Department of Veterans Affairs to identify their fiscal contributions to the Fund, taking into consideration accounting, workload, and financial management differences.

(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall jointly provide for an annual independent review of the Fund for at least three years after the date of the enactment of this Act. Such review shall include detailed statements of the uses of amounts of the Fund and an evaluation of the adequacy of the proportional share contributed to the Fund by each of the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs.

(f) TERMINATION.—The authorities in this section shall terminate on September 30, 2015.

SEC. 1046. ELIGIBILITY OF MEMBERS OF THE UNIFORMED SERVICES FOR CARE AND SERVICES AT THE CAPTAIN JAMES A. LOVELL FEDERAL HEALTH CARE CENTER.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of eligibility for health care under chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code, the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center may be treated as a facility of the uniformed services to the extent provided under subsection (b) in the executive agreement required by section 1042.

(b) ADDITIONAL ELEMENTS.—The executive agreement required by section 1042 may include provisions as follows:

(1) To establish an integrated priority list for access to health care at the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center, which list shall—

(A) integrate the respective health care priority lists of the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs; and

(B) take into account categories of beneficiaries, enrollment program status, and such other matters as the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs jointly consider appropriate.

(2) To incorporate any resource-related limitations for access to health care at the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center that the Secretary of Defense may establish for purposes of administering space-available eligibility for care in facilities of the uniformed services under chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code.

(3) To allocate financial responsibility for care provided at the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center for individuals who are eligible for care under both chapter 55 of title 10, United States Code, and title 38, United States Code.

(4) To waive the applicability to the Captain James A. Lovell Federal Health Care Center of any provision of section 8111(e) of title 38, United States Code, that the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall jointly specify.

SEC. 1047. EXTENSION OF DOD-VA HEALTH CARE SHARING INCENTIVE FUND.

Section 8111(d)(3) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by striking “September 30, 2010” and inserting “September 30, 2015”.

Subtitle F—Miscellaneous Requirements, Authorities, and Limitations

SEC. 1051. CONGRESSIONAL EARMARKS RELATING TO THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) REPORT ON RECURRING EARMARKS.—

(1) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report setting forth a list of each congressional earmark that has been included in a national defense authorization Act for three or more consecutive fiscal years as of the national defense authorization Act for fiscal year 2010.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) A description of the extent to which competitive or merit-based procedures were used to award funding, or to enter into a contract, grant, or other agreement, pursuant to each congressional earmark listed in the report.

(B) An identification of the specific contracting vehicle used for each such earmark.

(C) In the case of any congressional earmark listed in the report for which competitive or merit-based procedures were not used to award funding, or to enter the contract, grant, or other agreement, a statement of the reasons competitive or merit-based procedures were not used.

(b) DOD INSPECTOR GENERAL AUDIT OF EARMARKS.—The Inspector General of the Department of Defense shall conduct an audit of contracts, grants, or other agreements pursuant to congressional earmarks of Department of Defense funds to determine whether or not the recipients of such earmarks are complying with requirements of Federal law on the use of appropriated funds to influence, whether directly or indirectly, congressional action on any legislation or appropriation matter pending before Congress.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term “congressional earmark” means any congressionally directed spending item (Senate) or congressional earmark (House of Representatives) on the list published in compliance with rule XLIV of the Standing Rules of the Senate or rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

(2) The term “national defense authorization Act” means an Act authorizing funds for a fiscal year for the military activities of the Department of Defense, and for other purposes.

SEC. 1052. NATIONAL STRATEGIC FIVE-YEAR PLAN FOR IMPROVING THE NUCLEAR FORENSIC AND ATTRIBUTION CAPABILITIES OF THE UNITED STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The President, with the participation of the officials specified in subsection (c), shall develop a national strategic plan for improving over a five-year period the nuclear forensic and attribution capabilities of the United States and the methods, capabilities, and capacity for nuclear materials forensics and attribution.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The plan required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An investment plan to support nuclear materials forensics and attribution.

(2) Recommendations with respect to—
(A) the allocation of roles and responsibilities for pre-detonation, detonation, and post-detonation activities; and

(B) methods for the attribution of nuclear or radiological material to the source when such material is intercepted by the United States, foreign governments, or international bodies or is dispersed in the course of a terrorist attack or other nuclear or radiological explosion.

(c) OFFICIALS.—The officials specified in this subsection are the following:

(1) The Secretary of Homeland Security.
(2) The Secretary of Defense.
(3) The Secretary of Energy.
(4) The Attorney General.
(5) The Secretary of State.
(6) The Director of National Intelligence.
(7) Such other officials as the President considers appropriate.

(d) SUBMITTAL TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to Congress the plan required under subsection (a).

“(D) In the case of a program of a Defense Agency, the Deputy Chief Management Officer of the Department of Defense.

“(E) In the case of a program that will support the business processes of more than one military department or Defense Agency, the Deputy Chief Management Officer of the Department of Defense.”.

(b) ONGOING PROGRAMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the appropriate chief management officer for each defense business system modernization approved by the Defense Business Systems Management Committee before the date of the enactment of this Act that will have a total cost in excess of $100,000,000 shall review such defense business system modernization to determine whether or not appropriate business process reengineering efforts have been undertaken to ensure that—

(A) the business process to be supported by such defense business system modernization will be as streamlined and efficient as practicable; and

(B) the need to tailor commercial-off-the-shelf systems to meet unique requirements or incorporate unique interfaces has been eliminated or reduced to the maximum extent practicable.

(2) ACTION ON FINDING OF LACK OF REENGINEERING EFFORTS.—If the appropriate chief management officer determines that appropriate business process reengineering efforts have not been undertaken with regard to a defense business system modernization as described in paragraph (1), that chief management officer—

(A) shall develop a plan to undertake business process reengineering efforts with respect to the defense business system modernization; and

(B) may direct that the defense business system modernization be restructured or terminated, if necessary to meet the requirements of paragraph (1).

(3) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection:

(A) The term “appropriate chief management officer”, with respect to a defense business system modernization, has the meaning given that term in paragraph (2) of subsection (f) of section 2222 of title 10, United States Code (as amended by subsection (a)(2) of this section).

(B) The term “defense business system modernization” has the meaning given that term in subsection (j)(3) of section 2222 of title 10, United States Code.

“(7) assess the adequacy of the process and methodology by which the Department of Defense establishes, maintains, and resources dedicated, special, and general purpose forces for conducting operations described in paragraph (1);

“(8) assess the adequacy of the resources planned and programmed by the Department of Defense to ensure the preparedness and capability of dedicated, special, and general purpose forces for conducting operations described in paragraph (1);”.

Subtitle G—Reports

SEC. 1071. NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE ESTIMATE ON NUCLEAR ASPIRATIONS OF NON-STATE ENTITIES AND NUCLEAR WEAPONS AND RELATED PROGRAMS IN NON-NUCLEAR-WEAPONS STATES AND COUNTRIES NOT PARTIES TO THE NUCLEAR NON-PROLIFERATION TREATY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director of National Intelligence shall prepare a national intelligence estimate (NIE) on the following:

(1) The nuclear weapons programs and any related programs of countries that are non-nuclear-weapons state parties to the Treaty on Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Washington, London, and Moscow July 1, 1968, and entered into force March 5, 1970 (commonly known as the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty”) and countries that are not parties to the Treaty.

(2) The nuclear weapons aspirations of such non-state entities as the Director considers appropriate to include in the estimate.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The national intelligence estimate required under subsection (a) shall include, with respect to each country described in subsection (a)(1) and each non-state entity referred to in subsection (a)(2), the following:

(1) A statement of the number of nuclear weapons possessed by such country or non-state entity.

(2) An estimate of the total number of nuclear weapons that such country or non-state entity seeks to obtain and, in the case of such non-state entity, an assessment of the extent to which such non-state entity is seeking to develop a nuclear weapon or device or radiological dispersion device.

(3) A description of the technical characteristics of any nuclear weapons possessed by such country or non-state entity.

(4) A description of nuclear weapons designs available to such country or non-state entity.

(5) A description of any sources of assistance with respect to nuclear weapons design provided to such country or non-state entity.

(6) An assessment of the annual capability of such country and non-state entity to produce new or newly designed nuclear weapons.

(7) A description of the type of fissile materials used in any nuclear weapons possessed by such country or non-state entity.

(8) An description of the location and production capability of any fissile materials production facilities in such country or controlled by such non-state entity, the current status of any such facilities, and any plans by such country or non-state entity to develop such facilities.

(9) An identification of the source of any fissile materials used by such country or non-state entity, if such materials are not produced in facilities referred to in paragraph (8).

(10) A description of any delivery systems available to such country or non-state entity and an assessment of whether nuclear warheads have been mated to any such delivery system.

(11) An assessment of the physical security of the storage facilities for nuclear weapons in such country or controlled by such non-state entity.

(12) An assessment of whether such country or non-state entity is modernizing or otherwise improving the safety, security, and reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile of such country or non-state entity.

(13) In the case of a country, an assessment of the policy of such country on the employment and use of nuclear weapons.

(c) SUBMITTAL TO CONGRESS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the Director of National Intelligence shall submit to the congressional defense committees, the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate, and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives the national intelligence estimate required under subsection (a) by not later than September 1, 2010.

(2) NOTIFICATION OF DELAY IN SUBMITTAL.—If the Director of National Intelligence determines that it will not be possible for the Director to submit the national intelligence estimate by September 1, 2010, the Director shall, not later than August 1, 2010, submit to the committees specified in paragraph (1) a notice—

(A) that the national intelligence estimate will not be submitted by September 1, 2010; and

(B) setting forth the date by which the Director will submit the national intelligence estimate.

SEC. 1072. COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES ASSESSMENT OF MILITARY WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTIONS.

(a) REVIEW.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a review of military whistleblower protections afforded to members of the Armed Services by the Department of Defense. The review shall include an analysis of the following:

(1) A sample of military whistleblower cases at the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Defense, as well as one or more Offices of the Inspector General of a military department (as selected by the Comptroller General for the purposes of this section).

(2) Department-wide efforts to educate and inform members of the Armed Forces about the protections provided to them under section 1034 of title 10, United States Code.

(3) A sample of military whistleblower reprisal appeals (as selected by the Comptroller General for the purposes of this section) heard by the Boards for the Correction of Military Records referred to in section 1552 of title 10, United States Code, of each military department.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than December 1, 2009, the Comptroller General shall submit a report on the review and analysis conducted under subsection (a) to the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of each of the following:

(1) The Committees on Armed Services, Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, and the Judiciary of the Senate.

(2) The Committees on Armed Services, Homeland Security, and the Judiciary of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 1073. REPORT ON RE-DETERMINATION PROCESS FOR PERMANENTLY INCAPACITATED DEPENDENTS OF RETIRED AND DECEASED MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress a report on the re-determination process of the Department of Defense used to determine the eligibility of permanently incapacitated dependents of retired and deceased members of the Armed Forces for benefits provided under laws administered by the Secretary. The report shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of the re-determination process, including the following:

(A) The rationale for requiring a quadrennial recertification of financial support after issuance of a permanent identification card to a permanently incapacitated dependent.

(B) The administrative and other burdens the quadrennial recertification imposes on the affected sponsor and dependents, especially after the sponsor becomes ill, incapacitated, or deceased.

(C) The extent to which the quadrennial recertification undermines the utility of issuing a permanent identification card.

(D) The extent of the consequences entailed in eliminating the requirement for quadrennial recertification.

(2) Specific recommendations for the following:

(A) Improving the efficiency of the recertification process.

(B) Minimizing the burden of such process on the sponsors of such dependents.

(C) Eliminating the requirement for quadrennial recertification.

SEC. 1074. COMPTROLLER GENERAL REVIEW OF SPENDING IN THE FINAL QUARTER OF FISCAL YEAR 2009 BY THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE.

(a) REVIEW OF SPENDING BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a review of the obligations and expenditures of the Department of Defense in the final quarter of fiscal year 2009, as compared to the obligations and expenditures of the Department in the first three quarters of that fiscal year, to determine if policies with respect to spending by the Department contribute to hastened year-end spending and poor use or waste of taxpayer dollars.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than the earlier of March 30, 2010, or the date that is 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to Congress a report containing—

(1) the results of the review conducted under subsection (a); and

(2) any recommendations of the Comptroller General with respect to improving the policies pursuant to which amounts appropriated to the Department of Defense are obligated and expended in the final quarter of the fiscal year.

SEC. 1075. REPORT ON AIR AMERICA.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) AIR AMERICA.—The term “Air America” means Air America, Incorporated.

(2) ASSOCIATED COMPANY.—The term “associated company” means any entity associated with, predecessor to, or subsidiary to Air America, including Air Asia Company Limited, CAT Incorporated, Civil Air Transport Company Limited, and the Pacific Division of Southern Air Transport during the period when such an entity was owned and controlled by the United States Government.

(b) REPORT ON RETIREMENT BENEFITS FOR FORMER EMPLOYEES OF AIR AMERICA.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director of National Intelligence shall submit to Congress a report on the advisability of providing Federal retirement benefits to United States citizens for the service of such citizens prior to 1977 as employees of Air America or an associated company during a period when Air America or the associated company was owned or controlled by the United States Government and operated or managed by the Central Intelligence Agency.

(2) REPORT ELEMENTS.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) The history of Air America and the associated companies prior to 1977, including a description of—

(i) the relationship between Air America and the associated companies and the Central Intelligence Agency or any other element of the United States Government;

(ii) the workforce of Air America and the associated companies;

(iii) the missions performed by Air America, the associated companies, and their employees for the United States; and

(iv) the casualties suffered by employees of Air America and the associated companies in the course of their employment.

(B) A description of—

(i) the retirement benefits contracted for or promised to the employees of Air America and the associated companies prior to 1977;

(ii) the contributions made by such employees for such benefits;

(iii) the retirement benefits actually paid such employees;

(iv) the entitlement of such employees to the payment of future retirement benefits; and

(v) the likelihood that such employees will receive any future retirement benefits.

(C) An assessment of the difference between—

(i) the retirement benefits that former employees of Air America and the associated companies have received or will receive by virtue of their employment with Air America and the associated companies; and

(ii) the retirement benefits that such employees would have received or be eligible to receive if such employment was deemed to be employment by the United States Government and their service during such employment was credited as Federal service for the purpose of Federal retirement benefits.

(D)(i) Any recommendations regarding the advisability of legislative action to treat such employment as Federal service for the purpose of Federal retirement benefits in light of the relationship between Air America and the associated companies and the United States Government and the services and sacrifices of such employees to and for the United States.

(ii) If legislative action is considered advisable under clause (i), a proposal for such action and an assessment of its costs.

(E) The opinions of the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, if any, on any matters covered by the report that the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency considers appropriate.

(3) ASSISTANCE OF COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall, upon the request of the Director of National Intelligence and in a manner consistent with the protection of classified information, assist the Director in the preparation of the report required by paragraph (1).

(4) FORM.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

SEC. 1076. REPORT ON CRITERIA FOR SELECTION OF STRATEGIC EMBARKATION PORTS AND SHIP LAYBERTHING LOCATIONS.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commander of the United States Transportation Command shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report with criteria for the selection of strategic embarkation ports and ship layberthing locations.

(b) DEVELOPMENT OF CRITERIA.—The criteria included in the report required under subsection (a) shall—

(1) prioritize the facilitation of strategic deployment and reduction of combatant commander force closure timelines;

(2) take into account—

(A) time required to crew, activate, and sail sealift vessels to embarkation ports;

(B) distance and travel times for the forces from assigned installation to embarkation ports;

(C) availability of adequate infrastructure to transport forces from assigned installation to embarkation ports; and

(D) time required to move forces from embarkation ports to likely areas of force deployment around the world; and

(3) inform the selection of strategic embarkation ports and the procurement of ship layberthing services.

SEC. 1077. REPORT ON DEFENSE TRAVEL SIMPLIFICATION.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report setting forth a comprehensive plan to simplify defense travel.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The report required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) A comprehensive discussion of aspects of the Department of Defense travel system that are most confusing, inefficient, and in need of revision.

(2) Critical review of opportunities to streamline and simplify defense travel policies and to reduce travel-related costs to the Department of Defense.

(3) Options to leverage industry capabilities that could enhance management responsiveness to changing markets.

(4) A discussion of pilot programs that could be undertaken to prove the merit of improvements identified in accomplishing actions specified in paragraphs (1) and (2), including recommendations for legislative authority.

(5) Such recommendations and an implementation plan for legislative or administrative action as the Secretary of Defense considers appropriate to improve defense travel.

SEC. 1078. REPORT ON MODELING AND SIMULATION ACTIVITIES OF UNITED STATES JOINT FORCES COMMAND.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense, working through the Director for Defense Research and Engineering, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manufacturing and Industrial Base, and the Commander of the United States Joint Forces Command, shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report that describes current and planned efforts to support and enhance the defense modeling and simulation technological and industrial base, including in academia, industry, and government.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The report required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of the current and future domestic defense modeling and simulation technological and industrial base and its ability to meet current and future defense requirements.

(2) A description of current and planned programs and activities of the Department of Defense to enhance the ability of the domestic defense modeling and simulation industrial base to meet current and future defense requirements.

(3) A description of current and planned Department of Defense activities in cooperation with Federal, State, and local government organizations that promote the enhancement of the ability of the domestic defense modeling and simulation industrial base to meet current and future defense requirements.

(4) A comparative assessment of current and future global modeling and simulation capabilities relative to those of the United States in areas related to defense applications of modeling and simulation.

(5) An identification of additional authorities or resources related to technology transfer, establishment of public-private partnerships, coordination with regional, State, or local initiatives, or other activities that would be required to enhance efforts to support the domestic defense modeling and simulation industrial base.

(6) Other matters as determined appropriate by the Secretary.

SEC. 1079. REPORT ON ENABLING CAPABILITIES FOR SPECIAL OPERATIONS FORCES.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 270 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commander of the United States Special Operations Command, jointly with the commanders of the combatant commands and the chiefs of the services, shall submit to the Secretary of Defense and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff a report on the availability of enabling capabilities to support special operations forces requirements.

(b) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED.—The report required under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An identification of the requirements for enabling capabilities for conventional forces and special operations forces globally, including current and projected needs in Iraq, Afghanistan, and other theaters of operation.

(2) A description of the processes used to prioritize and allocate enabling capabilities to meet the mission requirements of conventional forces and special operations forces.

(3) An identification and description of any shortfalls in enabling capabilities for special operations forces by function, region, and quantity, as determined by the Commander of the United States Special Operations Command and the commanders of the geographic combatant commands.

(4) An assessment of the current inventory of these enabling capabilities within the military departments and components and the United States Special Operations Command.

(5) An assessment of whether there is a need to create additional enabling capabilities by function and quantity.

(6) An assessment of the merits of creating additional enabling units, by type and quantity—

(A) within the military departments; and

(B) within the United States Special Operations Command.

(7) Recommendations for meeting the current and future enabling force requirements of the United States Special Operations Command, including an assessment of the increases in endstrength, equipment, funding, and military construction that would be required to support these recommendations.

(8) Any other matters the Commander of the United States Special Operations Command, the commanders of the combatant commands, and the chiefs of the services consider useful and relevant.

(c) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 30 days after receiving the report required under subsection (a), the Secretary of Defense shall forward the report to the congressional defense committees with any additional comments the Secretary considers appropriate.

Subtitle H—Other Matters

SEC. 1081. TRANSFER OF NAVY AIRCRAFT N40VT.

(a) AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER.—

(1) AUTHORITY.—Subject to all applicable Federal laws and regulations controlling the disposition of Federal property, the Secretary of the Navy may transfer to Piasecki Aircraft Corporation of Essington, Pennsylvania (in this section referred to as the “transferee”), Navy aircraft N40VT (Bureau Number 163283) and associated components, test equipment, and engines, previously specified as Government-furnished equipment in contract N00019-00-C-0284.

(2) WRITTEN AGREEMENT.—The transfer under this subsection shall be made by means of a written agreement.

(3) APPLICABLE LAW.—The transfer or use of military equipment is subject to all applicable United States laws and regulations, including, but not limited to, the Arms Export Control Act, the Export Administration Act of 1979, continued under Executive Order 12924, International Traffic in Arms Regulations (22 C.F.R. 120 et seq.), Export Administration Regulations (15 C.F.R. 730 et seq.), Foreign Assets Control Regulations (31 C.F.R. 500 et seq.), and the Espionage Act.

(b) CERTIFICATION REQUIRED FOR DISPOSAL OF COMBATANT MILITARY EQUIPMENT.—No military equipment described by subsection (a) that is military equipment of a combatant command may be transferred under subsection (a) unless the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Chief of Naval Operations, the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, or the Commandant of the Marine Corps, as applicable, certifies that such equipment is not essential to the defense of the United States.

(c) CONDITION OF EQUIPMENT TO BE TRANSFERRED.—The military equipment transferred under subsection (a) shall be transferred in its current "as is" condition. The Secretary is not required to repair or alter the condition of any military equipment before transferring any interest in such equipment under subsection (a).

(d) TRANSFER AT NO COST TO THE UNITED STATES.—The transfer of military equipment under subsection (a) shall be made at no cost to the United States. Any costs associated with the transfer shall be borne by the transferee.

(e) GOVERNMENT RIGHTS.—The Secretary shall include in the written agreement under subsection (a)(2) such terms and conditions as the Secretary considers appropriate—

(1) to permit the United States to use any future technologies derived from testing of military equipment transferred under subsection (a), including upon the transfer of such military equipment to a successor in interest of the transferee; and

(2) to retain for the Government all technical data rights associated with military equipment transferred under subsection (a).

(f) CONSIDERATION.—As consideration for the transfer of military equipment under subsection (a), the transferee shall provide compensation to the United States, the value of which is equal to the fair market value of such military equipment, as determined by the Secretary. The Secretary may not delegate the authority to make the determination required by the preceding sentence.

(g) NO LIABILITY FOR THE UNITED STATES.—Upon the transfer of military equipment under subsection (a), the United States shall not be liable for any death, injury, loss, or damage that results from the use of such military equipment by any person other than the United States.

(h) REVERTER UPON BREACH OF CONDITIONS.—The Secretary shall include in the written agreement under subsection (a)(2) the following:

(1) A condition that the transferee not transfer any interest in, or transfer possession of, the military equipment transferred under subsection (a) to any other party without the prior written approval of the Secretary.

(2) A condition that the transferee operate or maintain, as applicable, the military equipment transferred under subsection (a) in compliance with all applicable limitations and maintenance requirements under law.

(3) A condition that if the Secretary determines at any time that the transferee has failed to comply with a condition set forth in paragraph (1) or (2), all right, title, and interest in and to the military equipment transferred under subsection (a), including any repair or alteration of the military equipment by the transferee or otherwise, shall revert to the United States, and the United States shall have the right of immediate possession of the military equipment.

(i) LIMITATION ON TRANSFER PENDING NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—

(1) LIMITATION.—A transfer of military equipment under subsection (a) may not occur until—

(A) notice of the proposal to make the transfer is sent to Congress; and

(B) 60 days of continuous session of Congress have expired following the date on which such notice is sent to Congress.

(2) CALCULATION OF CONTINUOUS SESSION.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(B), the continuity of a session of Congress is broken only by an adjournment of the Congress sine die, and the days on which the either House is not in session because of adjournment of more than 3 days to a day certain are excluded in the computation of such 60-day period.

(j) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with a transfer under subsection (a) as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 1082. TRANSFER OF BIG CROW AIRCRAFT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Air Force may convey to an appropriate private entity the right, title, and interest of the United States in and to the Big Crow aircraft referred to in subsection (b) in order to permit the continuation of the purpose of such aircraft at the time of their retirement in and through such private entity after conveyance if the Secretary and the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics jointly determine that it is in the interests of the Department of Defense to do so.

(b) COVERED BIG CROW AIRCRAFT.—The Big Crow aircraft referred to in this subsection are the recently-retired aircraft as follows:

(1) Big Crow aircraft NC-135E, tail number 55-3132.

(2) Big Crow aircraft NC-135B, tail number 63-8050.

(c) CONDITIONS OF CONVEYANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any conveyance of Big Crow aircraft under subsection (a) shall be for such consideration as the Secretary considers appropriate. The Secretary shall provide for any aircraft so conveyed to be conveyed in "as-is" condition at the time of conveyance, with all classified and other sensitive equipment removed from such aircraft before conveyance.

(2) NO LIABILITY FOR THE UNITED STATES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, upon the conveyance of a Big Crow aircraft under subsection (a), the United States shall not be liable for any death, injury, loss, or damage that results from the use of the aircraft by any person other than the United States.

(d) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with a conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 1083. PLAN FOR SUSTAINMENT OF LAND-BASED SOLID ROCKET MOTOR INDUSTRIAL BASE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense shall review and establish a plan to sustain the solid rocket motor industrial base, including the ability to maintain and sustain currently deployed strategic and missile defense systems and to maintain an intellectual and engineering capacity to support next generation rocket motors, as needed.

(b) SUBMISSION OF PLAN.—Not later than March 1, 2010, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees the plan required under subsection (a), together with an explanation of how fiscal year 2010 funds will be used to sustain and support the plan and a description of the funding in the future years defense program plan to support the plan.

SEC. 1084. PILOT PROGRAM ON USE OF SERVICE DOGS FOR THE TREATMENT OR REHABILITATION OF VETERANS WITH PHYSICAL OR MENTAL INJURIES OR DISABILITIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The United States owes a profound debt to those who have served the United States honorably in the Armed Forces.

(2) Disabled veterans suffer from a range of physical and mental injuries and disabilities.

(3) In 2008, the Army reported the highest level of suicides among its soldiers since it began tracking the rate 28 years before 2009.

(4) A scientific study documented in the 2008 Rand Report entitled "Invisible Wounds of War" estimated that 300,000 veterans of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom currently suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder.

(5) Veterans have benefitted in multiple ways from the provision of service dogs.

(6) The Department of Veterans Affairs has been successfully placing guide dogs with the blind since 1961.

(7) Thousands of dogs around the country await adoption.

(b) PROGRAM REQUIRED.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall commence a three-year pilot program to assess the benefits, feasibility, and advisability of using service dogs for the treatment or rehabilitation of veterans with physical or mental injuries or disabilities, including post-traumatic stress disorder.

(c) PARTNERSHIPS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall carry out the pilot program by partnering with nonprofit organizations that—

(A) have experience providing service dogs to individuals with injuries or disabilities;

(B) do not charge fees for the dogs, services, or lodging that they provide; and

(C) are accredited by a generally accepted industry-standard accrediting institution.

(2) REIMBURSEMENT OF COSTS.—The Secretary shall reimburse partners for costs relating to the pilot program as follows:

(A) For the first 50 dogs provided under the pilot program, all costs relating to the provision of such dogs.

(B) For dogs provided under the pilot program after the first 50 dogs provided, all costs relating to the provision of every other dog.

(d) PARTICIPATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—As part of the pilot program, the Secretary shall provide a service dog to a number of veterans with physical or mental injuries or disabilities that is greater than or equal to the greater of—

(A) 200; and

(B) the minimum number of such veterans required to produce scientifically valid results with respect to assessing the benefits and costs of the use of such dogs for the treatment or rehabilitation of such veterans.

(2) COMPOSITION.—The Secretary shall ensure that—

(A) half of the participants in the pilot program are veterans who suffer primarily from a mental health injury or disability; and

(B) half of the participants in the pilot program are veterans who suffer primarily from a physical injury or disability.

(e) STUDY.—In carrying out the pilot program, the Secretary shall conduct a scientifically valid research study of the costs and benefits associated with the use of service dogs for the treatment or rehabilitation of veterans with physical or mental injuries or disabilities. The matters studied shall include the following:

(1) The therapeutic benefits to such veterans, including the quality of life benefits reported by the veterans partaking in the pilot program.

(2) The economic benefits of using service dogs for the treatment or rehabilitation of such veterans, including—

(A) savings on health care costs, including savings relating to reductions in hospitalization and reductions in the use of prescription drugs; and

(B) productivity and employment gains for the veterans.

(3) The effectiveness of using service dogs to prevent suicide.

(f) REPORTS.—

(1) ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY.—After each year of the pilot program, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the findings of the Secretary with respect to the pilot program.

(2) FINAL REPORT BY THE NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the completion of the pilot program, the National Academy of Sciences shall submit to Congress a report on the results of the pilot program.

SEC. 1085. EXPANSION OF STATE HOME CARE FOR PARENTS OF VETERANS WHO DIED WHILE SERVING IN ARMED FORCES.

TITLE XI—CIVILIAN PERSONNEL MATTERS

Subtitle A—Personnel

SEC. 1101. REPEAL OF NATIONAL SECURITY PERSONNEL SYSTEM; DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE PERSONNEL AUTHORITIES.

(a) REPEAL OF AUTHORITY TO ESTABLISH NATIONAL SECURITY PERSONNEL SYSTEM.—Section 9902 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (i), and (j); and

(2) by redesignating subsections (f), (g), and (h) as subsections (d), (e), and (f) respectively.

(b) PERIOD FOR TERMINATION OF NATIONAL SECURITY PERSONNEL SYSTEM.—

(1) APPLICABILITY OF PRIOR LAW TO UNITS IN NSPS.—Notwithstanding the amendments made by this section, the provisions of section 9902 of title 5, United States Code, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall apply to organizational and functional units included in the National Security Personnel System as of January 20, 2009, for a period of one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) TRANSITION OF UNITS FROM NSPS.—The Secretary of Defense shall ensure the orderly transition of all organizational and functional units covered by paragraph (1) from the National Security Personnel System by not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act. The Secretary shall ensure that no employee is subject to a reduction in pay as a result of such transition.

(3) REMOVAL OF LIMITATION ON PAY ADJUSTMENT.—Notwithstanding section 9902(e)(7) of title 5, United States Code (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act), at the time of any annual adjustment to pay schedules pursuant to section 5303 of such title during the transitional period provided in paragraph (1), the rate of basic pay for each employee described in section 9902(e)(7), as so in effect, shall be adjusted by 100 percent of the amount of such adjustment.

(4) CURRENT RULES INVALID.—Any rule or implementing issuance adopted before the date of the enactment of this Act to implement any provision of section 9902 of title 5, United States Code (other than subsections (d), (e), and (f) of such section (as redesignated by subsection (a)(2))), shall cease to be effective on the date that is one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) AUTHORITY RELATING TO PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT AND WORKFORCE INCENTIVES.—Section 9902 of such title is further amended by inserting before subsection (d), as redesignated by subsection (a)(2) of this section, the following new subsections:

“(a) PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT.—(1) The Secretary may waive the requirements of chapter 33, and the regulations implementing such chapter, to the extent the Secretary considers appropriate to establish and implement regulations providing for the following:

“(A) Fair, credible, and transparent methods of establishing qualification requirements for, recruitment for, and appointments to employment positions.

“(B) Fair, credible, and transparent methods of assigning, reassigning, detailing, transferring, or promoting employees.

“(2) In implementing this subsection, the Secretary shall comply with the provisions of section 2302(b)(11), regarding veterans’ preference requirements, in a manner comparable to that in which such provisions are applied under chapter 33.

“(3) Any action taken by the Secretary under this subsection, or to implement this subsection, shall be subject to the requirements subsection (c) and chapter 71.

“(b) PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT AND WORKFORCE INCENTIVES.—(1) The Secretary may waive the requirements of chapters 43 (other than sections 4302 and 4303(e)) and 45, and the regulations implementing such chapters, to the extent the Secretary considers appropriate to establish and implement regulations providing for the following:

“(A) A fair, credible, and transparent performance appraisal system for employees.

“(B) A fair, credible, and transparent system for linking employee bonuses and other performance-based actions to performance appraisals of employees.

“(C) A process for ensuring ongoing performance feedback and dialogue among supervisors, managers, and employees throughout the appraisal period and setting timetables for review.

“(2)(A) The Secretary may establish a fund to be known as the ‘Department of Defense Civilian Workforce Incentive Fund’ (in this paragraph referred to as the ‘Fund’).

“(B) The Fund shall consist of the following:

“(i) Amounts appropriated to the Fund.

“(ii) Amounts available for compensation of employees that are transferred to the Fund.

“(C) Amounts in the Fund shall be available as follows:

“(i) For incentive payments to employees based on individual or team performance.

“(ii) For incentive payments to employees for purposes of the employment and retention as employees of qualified individuals with particular competencies or qualifications.

“(3) Any action taken by the Secretary under this subsection, or to implement this subsection, shall be subject to the requirements of subsection (c) and chapter 71.

“(c) CRITERIA FOR USE OF NEW PERSONNEL AUTHORITIES.—In establishing any new personnel management system under subsection (a) or new performance management and workforce incentive system under subsection (b), the Secretary shall—

“(1) adhere to merit principles set forth in section 2301;

“(2) include a means for ensuring employee involvement in the design and implementation of such system;

“(3) provide for adequate training and retraining for supervisors, managers, and employees in the implementation and operation of such system;

“(4) include effective transparency and accountability measures and safeguards to ensure that the management of such system is fair, credible, and equitable, including appropriate independent reasonableness reviews, internal assessments, and employee surveys; and

“(5) ensure that adequate agency resources are allocated for the design, implementation, and administration of such system.”.

(d) CONFORMING CLERICAL AMENDMENTS.—

(1) HEADING AMENDMENT.—The heading of such section is amended to read as follows:

“§9902. Department of Defense personnel authorities”.

“(10) The Air Force Research Laboratory.”.

(g) WAIVER.—Subsection (a) through (f) of this section and the amendments made by such subsections shall not take effect if, not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense submits to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate, and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform of the House of Representatives a report that includes—

(1) a certification that—

(A) the termination of the National Security Personnel System would not be in the best interest of the Department of Defense;

(B) the Secretary intends to implement changes during fiscal year 2010 to improve the fairness, credibility, and transparency of the National Security Personnel System; and

(C) the Secretary has determined that the changes to be made pursuant to subparagraph (B) will result in improved employee acceptance of the National Security Personnel System; and

(2) a description of the changes that the Secretary intends to implement and the schedule for implementing such changes.

(h) EXPANSION PROHIBITED.—If the Secretary of Defense submits a report and certification under subsection (g) and the National Security Personnel System is not terminated, the National Security Personnel System may not be extended to organizational and functional units of the Department of Defense not included in such system as of June 1, 2009, unless specifically authorized by statute enacted after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 1102. EXTENSION AND MODIFICATION OF EXPERIMENTAL PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT PROGRAM FOR SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL PERSONNEL.

(a) THREE-YEAR EXTENSION.—Subsection (e)(1) of section 1101 of the Strom Thurmond National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1999 (5 U.S.C. 3104 note) is amended by striking “September 30, 2011” and inserting “September 30, 2014”.

(b) LIMITATIONS ON ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS.—Such section is further amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(3), by striking “under subsection (d)(1)” and inserting “under subsection (d)”;

(2) by striking subsection (d) and inserting the following new subsection (d):

“(d) LIMITATIONS ON ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS.—(1) Subject to paragraph (3), the total amount of additional payments paid to an employee under subsection (b)(3) for any 12-month period may not exceed the lesser of the amounts as follows:

“(A) $50,000 in fiscal year 2010, which may be adjusted annually thereafter by the Secretary, with a percentage increase equal to one-half of 1 percentage point less than the percentage by which the Employment Cost Index, published quarterly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, for the base quarter of the year before the preceding calendar year exceeds the Employment Cost Index for the base quarter of the second year before the preceding calendar year.

“(B) The amount equal to 50 percent of the employee's annual rate of basic pay.

“(2) In paragraph (1), the term ‘base quarter’ has the meaning given that term in section 5302(3) of title 5, United States Code.

“(3) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section or section 5307 of title 5, United States Code, no additional payments may be paid to an employee under subsection (b)(3) in any calendar year if, or to the extent that, the employee's total annual compensation in such calendar year will exceed the maximum amount of total annual compensation payable at the salary set in accordance with section 104 of title 3, United States Code.

“(4) An employee appointed under the program is not eligible for any bonus, monetary award, or other monetary incentive for service under the appointment other than payments authorized by this section.”.

(c) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—Paragraph (1) of subsection (g) of such section is amended to read as follows:

“(1)(A) Not later than December 31 each year in which the authority under this section is in effect, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the committees of Congress specified in subparagraph (B) a report on the program. Each report shall cover the 12-month period preceding the date of the submittal of such report.

“(B) The committees of Congress specified in this subparagraph are—

“(i) the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate; and

(a) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Defense that are available for the purchase of contract services to meet a requirement that is anticipated to continue for five years or more shall be available to provide compensation for civilian employees of the Department to meet the same requirement.

(b) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall prescribe regulations implementing the authority in subsection (a). Such regulations—

(1) shall ensure that the authority in subsection (a) is utilized to build government capabilities that are needed to perform inherently governmental functions, functions closely associated with inherently governmental functions, and other critical functions;

(2) shall include a mechanism to ensure that follow-on funding to provide compensation for civilian employees of the Department to perform functions described in paragraph (1) is provided from appropriate accounts; and

(3) may establish additional criteria and levels of approval within the Department for the utilization of funds to provide compensation for civilian employees of the Department pursuant to subsection (a).

(c) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than 60 days after the end of each fiscal year for which the authority in subsection (a) is in effect, the Secretary shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the use of such authority. Each report shall cover the preceding fiscal year and shall identify, at a minimum, the following:

(1) The amount of funds used under the authority in subsection (a) to provide compensation for civilian employees.

(2) The source or sources of the funds so used.

(3) The number of civilian employees employed through the use of such funds.

(4) The actions taken by the Secretary to ensure that follow-on funding for such civilian employees is provided through appropriate accounts.

(d) TEMPORARY AUTHORITY.—The authority in subsection (a) shall apply to funds authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Defense fiscal years 2010 through 2019.

SEC. 1105. DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE CIVILIAN LEADERSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) LEADERSHIP PROGRAM REQUIRED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall establish a program of leadership recruitment and development for civilian employees of the Department of Defense, to be known as the “Department of Defense Civilian Leadership Program” (in this section referred to as the “program”).

(2) OBJECTIVES.—The objectives of the program shall be as follows:

(A) To develop a new generation of civilian leaders for the Department of Defense.

(B) To recruit individuals with the academic merit, work experience, and demonstrated leadership skills to meet the future needs of the Department.

(C) To offer rapid advancement, competitive compensation, and leadership opportunities to highly-qualified civilian employees of the Department.

(3) AVAILABLE AUTHORITIES.—In carrying out the program, the Secretary may exercise any authority available to the Office of Personnel Management under section 4703 of title 5, United States Code, except that the Secretary shall not be bound by the limitations in subsection (d) of such section. Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the waiver of any part of chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, or any regulation implementing such chapter, in the carrying out of the program.

(b) ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUALS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The following individuals shall be eligible to participate in the program:

(A) Current employees of the Department of Defense.

(B) Appropriate individuals in the private sector.

(2) LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF ENTRANTS INTO PROGRAM.—The total number of individuals who may enter into the program in any fiscal year may not exceed 5,000.

(c) ELEMENTS OF PROGRAM.—

(1) COMPETITIVE ENTRY.—The selection of individuals for entry into the program shall be made on the basis of a competition conducted at least twice each year. In each competition, participants in the program shall be selected from among applicants determined by the Secretary to be the most highly qualified in terms of academic merit, work experience, and demonstrated leadership skills. Each competition shall provide for entry-level participants and midcareer participants in the program.

(2) ALLOCATION OF POSITIONS.—The Secretary shall allocate positions in the program among the components of the Department of Defense that—

(A) offer the most challenging assignments;

(B) provide the greatest level of responsibility; and

(C) demonstrate the greatest need for participants in the program.

(3) ASSIGNMENTS TO POSITIONS.—Participants in the program shall be assigned to components of the Department that best match their skills and qualifications. Participants in the program may be rotated among components of the Department of Defense at the discretion of the Secretary.

(4) INITIAL COMPENSATION.—The initial compensation of participants in the program shall be determined by the Secretary based on the qualifications of such participants and applicable market conditions.

(5) EDUCATION AND TRAINING.—The Secretary shall provide participants in the program with training, mentoring, and educational opportunities that are appropriate to facilitate the development of such participants into effective civilian leaders for the Department of Defense.

(6) OBJECTIVE, MERIT-BASED PRINCIPLES FOR PERSONNEL DECISIONS.—The Secretary shall make personnel decisions under the program in accordance with such objective, merit-based criteria as the Secretary shall prescribe in regulations for purposes of the program. Such criteria shall include, but not be limited to, criteria applicable to the following:

(A) The selection of individuals for entry into the program.

(B) The assignment of participants in the program to positions in the Department of Defense.

(C) The initial compensation of participants in the program.

(D) The access of participants in the program to training, mentoring, and educational opportunities under the program.

(E) The consideration of participants in the program for selection into the senior management, functional, and technical workforce of the Department.

(7) CONSIDERATION FOR SENIOR MANAGEMENT, FUNCTIONAL, AND TECHNICAL WORKFORCE.—Any participant in the program who, as determined by the Secretary, demonstrates outstanding performance shall be afforded priority in consideration for selection into the appropriate element of the senior management, functional, and technical workforce of the Department of Defense (as set forth in section 1102(b) of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 (Public Law 109-364; 120 Stat. 2407)).

SEC. 1106. REVIEW OF DEFENSE LABORATORIES FOR PARTICIPATION IN DEFENSE LABORATORY PERSONNEL DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS.

(a) REVIEW REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Defense shall undertake a review of defense laboratories not currently included in personnel demonstration projects authorized by section 342(b) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103-337; 108 Stat. 2721), as amended by section 1114 of the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001 (as enacted into law by Public Law 106-398; 114 Stat. 1654A-315), to determine whether or not any laboratory so reviewed would benefit from the extension to such laboratory of the personnel management flexibilities available under such section 342(b), as so amended.

(b) COVERED LABORATORIES.—The laboratories covered by the review required by subsection (a) shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

(1) Laboratories within the Army Research, Development, and Engineering Command.

(2) Army Tank and Automotive Research, Development, and Engineering Center.

(3) Army Armament Research, Development, and Engineering Center.

(4) Naval Air Warfare Center, Weapons Division.

(5) Naval Air Warfare Center, Aircraft Division.

(6) Space and Naval Warfare Systems Center, Pacific.

(7) Space and Naval Warfare Systems Center, Atlantic.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report setting forth the results of the review required by subsection (a).

(2) APPROPRIATE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term “appropriate committees of Congress” means—

(A) the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Armed Services, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, and the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

Subtitle B—Part-Time Reemployment of Annuitants

SEC. 1161. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Part-Time Reemployment of Annuitants Act of 2009”.

SEC. 1162. PART-TIME REEMPLOYMENT.

(a) CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT SYSTEM.—Section 8344 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (l) as subsection (m);

(2) by inserting after subsection (k) the following:

“(l)(1) For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) the term ‘head of an agency’ means—

“(i) the head of an Executive agency, other than the Department of Defense or the Government Accountability Office;

“(ii) the head of the United States Postal Service;

“(iii) the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, with respect to employees of the judicial branch; and

“(iv) any employing authority described under subsection (k)(2), other than the Government Accountability Office; and

“(B) the term ‘limited time appointee’ means an annuitant appointed under a temporary appointment limited to 1 year or less.

“(2) The head of an agency may waive the application of subsection (a) or (b) with respect to any annuitant who is employed in such agency as a limited time appointee, if the head of the agency determines that the employment of the annuitant is necessary to—

“(A) fulfill functions critical to the mission of the agency, or any component of that agency;

“(B) assist in the implementation or oversight of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) or the Troubled Asset Relief Program under title I of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5201 et seq.);

“(C) assist in the development, management, or oversight of agency procurement actions;

“(D) assist the Inspector General for that agency in the performance of the mission of that Inspector General;

“(E) promote appropriate training or mentoring programs of employees;

“(F) assist in the recruitment or retention of employees; or “(G) respond to an emergency involving a direct threat to life or property or other unusual circumstances.

“(3) The head of an agency may not waive the application of subsection (a) or (b) with respect to an annuitant—

“(A) for more than 520 hours of service performed by that annuitant during the period ending 6 months following the individual’s annuity commencing date;

“(B) for more than 1040 hours of service performed by that annuitant during any 12-month period; or

“(C) for more than a total of 3120 hours of service performed by that annuitant.

“(4)(A) The total number of annuitants to whom a waiver by the head of an agency under this subsection or section 8468(i) applies may not exceed 2.5 percent of the total number of full-time employees of that agency.

“(B) If the total number of annuitants to whom a waiver by the head of an agency under this subsection or section 8468(i) applies exceeds 1 percent of the total number of full-time employees of that agency, the head of that agency shall submit to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the Office of Personnel Management—

“(i) a report with an explanation that justifies the need for the waivers in excess of that percentage; and

“(ii) not later than 180 days after submitting the report under clause (i), a succession plan.

“(5)(A) The Director of the Office of Personnel Management may promulgate regulations providing for the administration of this subsection.

“(B) Any regulations promulgated under subparagraph (A) may—

“(i) provide standards for the maintenance and form of necessary records of employment under this subsection;

“(ii) to the extent not otherwise expressly prohibited by law, require employing agencies to provide records of such employment to the Office of Personnel Management or other employing agencies as necessary to ensure compliance with paragraph (3);

“(iii) authorize other administratively convenient periods substantially equivalent to 12 months, such as 26 pay periods, to be used in determining compliance with paragraph (3)(B);

“(iv) include such other administrative requirements as the Director of the Office of Personnel Management may find appropriate to provide for the effective operation of, or to ensure compliance with, this subsection; and

“(v) encourage the training and mentoring of employees by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection.

“(6)(A) Any hours of training or mentoring of employees by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection shall not be included in the hours of service performed for purposes of paragraph (3), but those hours of training or mentoring may not exceed 520 hours.

“(B) If the primary service performed by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection is training or mentoring of employees, the hours of that service shall be included in the hours of service performed for purposes of paragraph (3).

“(7) The authority of the head of an agency under this subsection to waive the application of subsection (a) or (b) shall terminate 5 years after the date of enactment of the Part-Time Reemployment of Annuitants Act of 2009.”; and

(3) in subsection (m) (as so redesignated)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “(k)” and inserting “(l)”; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “or (k)” and inserting “(k), or (l)”.

(b) FEDERAL EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT SYSTEM.—Section 8468 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (i) as subsection (j);

(2) by inserting after subsection (h) the following:

“(i)(1) For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) the term ‘head of an agency’ means—

“(i) the head of an Executive agency, other than the Department of Defense or the Government Accountability Office;

“(ii) the head of the United States Postal Service;

“(iii) the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, with respect to employees of the judicial branch; and

“(iv) any employing authority described under subsection (h)(2), other than the Government Accountability Office; and

“(B) the term ‘limited time appointee’ means an annuitant appointed under a temporary appointment limited to 1 year or less.

“(2) The head of an agency may waive the application of subsection (a) with respect to any annuitant who is employed in such agency as a limited time appointee, if the head of the agency determines that the employment of the annuitant is necessary to—

“(A) fulfill functions critical to the mission of the agency, or any component of that agency;

“(B) assist in the implementation or oversight of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) or the Troubled Asset Relief Program under title I of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5201 et seq.);

“(C) assist in the development, management, or oversight of agency procurement actions;

“(D) assist the Inspector General for that agency in the performance of the mission of that Inspector General;

“(E) promote appropriate training or mentoring programs of employees;

“(F) assist in the recruitment or retention of employees; or “(G) respond to an emergency involving a direct threat to life of property or other unusual circumstances.

“(3) The head of an agency may not waive the application of subsection (a) with respect to an annuitant—

“(A) for more than 520 hours of service performed by that annuitant during the period ending 6 months following the individual’s annuity commencing date;

“(B) for more than 1040 hours of service performed by that annuitant during any 12-month period; or

“(C) for more than a total of 3120 hours of service performed by that annuitant.

“(4)(A) The total number of annuitants to whom a waiver by the head of an agency under this subsection or section 8344(l) applies may not exceed 2.5 percent of the total number of full-time employees of that agency.

“(B) If the total number of annuitants to whom a waiver by the head of an agency under this subsection or section 8344(l) applies exceeds 1 percent of the total number of full-time employees of that agency, the head of that agency shall submit to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the Office of Personnel Management—

“(i) a report with an explanation that justifies the need for the waivers in excess of that percentage; and

“(ii) not later than 180 days after submitting the report under clause (i), a succession plan.

“(5)(A) The Director of the Office of Personnel Management may promulgate regulations providing for the administration of this subsection.

“(B) Any regulations promulgated under subparagraph (A) may—

“(i) provide standards for the maintenance and form of necessary records of employment under this subsection;

“(ii) to the extent not otherwise expressly prohibited by law, require employing agencies to provide records of such employment to the Office or other employing agencies as necessary to ensure compliance with paragraph (3);

“(iii) authorize other administratively convenient periods substantially equivalent to 12 months, such as 26 pay periods, to be used in determining compliance with paragraph (3)(B);

“(iv) include such other administrative requirements as the Director of the Office of Personnel Management may find appropriate to provide for effective operation of, or to ensure compliance with, this subsection; and

“(v) encourage the training and mentoring of employees by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection.

“(6)(A) Any hours of training or mentoring of employees by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection shall not be included in the hours of service performed for purposes of paragraph (3), but those hours of training or mentoring may not exceed 520 hours.

“(B) If the primary service performed by any limited time appointee employed under this subsection is training or mentoring of employees, the hours of that service shall be included in the hours of service performed for purposes of paragraph (3).

“(7) The authority of the head of an agency under this subsection to waive the application of subsection (a) shall terminate 5 years after the date of enactment of the Part-Time Reemployment of Annuitants Act of 2009.”; and

(3) in subsection (j) (as so redesignated)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “(h)” and inserting “(i)”; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “or (h)” and inserting “(h), or (i)”.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in the amendments made by this section may be construed to authorize the waiver of the hiring preferences under chapter 33 of title 5, United States Code in selecting annuitants to employ in an appointive or elective position.

(d) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 1005(d)(2) of title 39, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “(l)(2)” and inserting “(m)(2)”; and

(2) by striking “(i)(2)” and inserting “(j)(2)”.

SEC. 1163. GENERAL ACCOUNTABILITY OFFICE REPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform of the House of Representatives a report regarding the use of the authority under the amendments made by section 1162.

(b) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall—

(1) include the number of annuitants for whom a waiver was made under subsection (l) of section 8344 of title 5, United States Code, as amended by this subtitle, or subsection (i) of section 8468 of title 5, United States Code, as amended by this subtitle; and

(2) identify each agency that used the authority described in paragraph (1).

(c) AGENCY DATA.—Each head of an agency (as defined under sections 8344(l)(1) and 8468(i)(1)(A) of title 5, United States Code, as added by section 1162 of this subtitle) shall—

(1) collect and maintain data necessary for purposes of the Comptroller General report submitted under subsection (a); and

(2) submit to the Comptroller General that data as the Comptroller General requires in a timely fashion.

SEC. 1208. AUTHORITY FOR NON-RECIPROCAL EXCHANGES OF DEFENSE PERSONNEL BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

(a) AUTHORITY TO ENTER INTO NON-RECIPROCAL INTERNATIONAL EXCHANGE AGREEMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense may enter into non-reciprocal international defense personnel exchange agreements.

(2) INTERNATIONAL DEFENSE PERSONNEL EXCHANGE AGREEMENTS DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, an international defense personnel exchange agreement is an agreement with the government of an ally of the United States or another friendly foreign country for the exchange of military and civilian personnel of the defense ministry of that foreign government.

(b) ASSIGNMENT OF PERSONNEL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Pursuant to a non-reciprocal international defense personnel exchange agreement, personnel of the defense ministry of a foreign government may be assigned to positions in the Department of Defense.

(2) MUTUAL AGREEMENT REQUIRED.—An individual may not be assigned to a position pursuant to a non-reciprocal international defense personnel exchange agreement unless the assignment is acceptable to both governments.

(c) PAYMENT OF PERSONNEL COSTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The foreign government with which the United States has entered into a non-reciprocal international defense personnel exchange agreement shall pay the salary, per diem, cost of living, travel costs, cost of language or other training, and other costs for its personnel in accordance with the applicable laws and regulations of such government.

(2) EXCLUDED COSTS.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to the following costs:

(A) The cost of training programs conducted to familiarize, orient, or certify exchanged personnel regarding unique aspects of the assignments of the exchanged personnel.

(B) Costs incident to the use of facilities of the United States Government in the performance of assigned duties.

(d) PROHIBITED CONDITIONS.—No personnel exchanged pursuant to a non-reciprocal agreement under this section may take or be required to take an oath of allegiance or to hold an official capacity in the government.

(e) DURATION OF AUTHORITY.—The authority under this section shall expire on December 31, 2011.

SEC. 1209. DEFENSE COOPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND IRAQ.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) As United States forces continue their redeployment from Iraq, the quality of the Iraqi Security Forces and the nature of their training and equipment will play an increasingly important role.

(2) Despite the decrease in violence in Iraq, Iraq continues to face formidable threats to its national security.

(3) There are many benefits to the United States and Iraq resulting from the strategic relationship that exists between the two nations.

(4) Enhancing the capabilities of the Iraqi Security Forces and strengthening the defense cooperation between the United States and Iraq will help ensure that Iraq has the military strength and political support necessary to enhance its internal and regional security.

(b) AVAILABILITY OF PROFESSIONAL MILITARY EDUCATION FOR IRAQ SECURITY FORCES.—The Secretary of Defense shall endeavor to increase the number of positions in professional military education courses, including courses at command and general staff colleges, war colleges, and the service academies, that are made available annually to personnel of the security forces of the Government of Iraq.

SEC. 1210. REPORT ON ALTERNATIVES TO USE OF ACQUISITION AND CROSS-SERVICING AGREEMENTS TO LEND MILITARY EQUIPMENT FOR PERSONNEL PROTECTION AND SURVIVABILITY.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report setting forth and assessing various alternatives to the use of acquisition and cross-servicing agreements pursuant to the temporary authority in section 1202 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 (Public Law 109-364; 120 Stat. 2412), as amended by section 1252 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (Public Law 110-181; 122 Stat. 402), for purposes of lending covered military equipment to military forces of nations as follows:

(1) A nation participating in combined operations with the United States in Iraq and Afghanistan.

(2) A nation participating in combined operations with the United States as part of a peacekeeping operation under the Charter of the United Nations or another international agreement.

(b) COVERED MILITARY EQUIPMENT DEFINED.—In this section, the term “covered military equipment” has the meaning given that term in section 1202(d)(1) of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007.

SEC. 1211. ENSURING IRAQI SECURITY THROUGH DEFENSE COOPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND IRAQ.

The President may treat an undertaking by the Government of Iraq that is made between the date of the enactment of this Act and December 31, 2011, as a dependable undertaking described in section 22(a) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2762(a)) for purposes of entering into contracts for the procurement of defense articles and defense services as provided for in that section.

SEC. 1212. AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATED FUNDS FOR THE STATE PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATED FUNDS.—The Secretary of Defense may, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, use funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 2010 to pay the costs incurred by the National Guard (including the costs of pay and allowances of members of the National Guard) in conducting activities under the State Partnership Program—

(1) to support the objectives of the commander of the combatant command for the theater of operations in which such activities are conducted; or

(2) to build international civil-military partnerships and capacity on matters relating to defense and security.

(b) LIMITATIONS.—

(1) APPROVAL BY COMMANDER OF COMBATANT COMMAND AND CHIEF OF MISSION.—Funds shall not be available under subsection (a) for activities conducted under the State Partnership Program in a foreign country unless such activities are jointly approved by the commander of the combatant command concerned and the chief of mission concerned.

(2) PARTICIPATION BY MEMBERS.—Funds shall not be available under subsection (a) for the participation of a member of the National Guard in activities conducted under the State Partnership Program in a foreign country unless the member is on active duty in the Armed Forces at the time of such participation.

(c) REIMBURSEMENT.—In the event of the participation of personnel of a department or agency of the United States Government (other than the Department of Defense) in activities for which payment is made under subsection (a), the head of such department or agency shall reimburse the Secretary of Defense for the costs associated with the participation of such personnel in such activities. Amounts reimbursed the Department of Defense under this subsection shall be deposited in the appropriation or account from which amounts for the payment concerned were derived. Any amounts so deposited shall be merged with amounts in such appropriation or account, and shall be available for the same purposes, and subject to the same conditions and limitations, as amounts in such appropriation or account.

SEC. 1213. AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER DEFENSE ARTICLES AND PROVIDE DEFENSE SERVICES TO THE MILITARY AND SECURITY FORCES OF IRAQ AND AFGHANISTAN.

(a) AUTHORITY.—The President is authorized to transfer defense articles from the stocks of the Department of Defense, and to provide defense services in connection with the transfer of such defense articles, to—

(1) the military and security forces of Iraq to support the efforts of those forces to restore and maintain peace and security in that country; and

(2) the military and security forces of Afghanistan to support the efforts of those forces to restore and maintain peace and security in that country.

(b) LIMITATIONS.—

(1) VALUE.—The aggregate replacement value of all defense articles transferred and defense services provided under subsection (a) may not exceed $500,000,000.

(2) SOURCE OF TRANSFERRED DEFENSE ARTICLES.—The authority under subsection (a) may only be used for defense articles that—

(A) immediately before the transfer were in use to support operations in Iraq;

(B) were present in Iraq as of the date of enactment of this Act; and

(C) are no longer required by United States forces in Iraq.

(c) APPLICABLE LAW.—Any defense articles transferred or defense services provided to Iraq or Afghanistan under the authority of subsection (a) shall be subject to the authorities and limitations applicable to excess defense articles under section 516 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2321j), other than the authorities and limitations contained in subsections (b)(1)(B), (e), (f), and (g) of such section.

(d) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President may not exercise the authority under subsection (a) until 30 days after the Secretary of Defense, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, provides the appropriate congressional committees a report on the plan for the disposition of equipment and other property of the Department of Defense in Iraq.

(2) ELEMENTS OF REPORT.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall include the following elements:

(A) An assessment of—

(i) the types and quantities of defense articles required by the military and security forces of Iraq to support the efforts of those military and security forces to restore and maintain peace and security in Iraq; and

(ii) the types and quantities of defense articles required by the military and security forces of Afghanistan to support the efforts of those military and security forces to restore and maintain peace and security in Afghanistan.

(B) A description of the authorities available for addressing the requirements identified in subparagraph (A).

(C) A description of the process for inventorying equipment and property, including defense articles, in Iraq owned by the Department of Defense, including equipment and property owned by the Department of Defense and under the control of contractors in Iraq.

(D) A description of the types of defense articles that the Department of Defense intends to transfer to the military and security forces of Iraq and an estimate of the quantity of such defense articles to be transferred.

(E) A description of the process by which potential requirements for defense articles to be transferred under the authority provided in subsection (a), other than the requirements of the security forces of Iraq or Afghanistan, are identified and the mechanism for resolving any potential conflicting requirements for such defense articles.

(F) A description of the plan, if any, for reimbursing military departments from which non-excess defense articles are transferred under the authority provided in subsection (a).

(G) An assessment of the efforts by the Government of Iraq to identify the requirements of the military and security forces of Iraq for defense articles to support the efforts of those forces to restore and maintain peace and security in that country.

(H) An assessment of the ability of the Governments of Iraq and Afghanistan to absorb the costs associated with possessing and using the defense articles to be transferred.

(I) A description of the steps taken by the Government of Iraq to procure or acquire defense articles to meet the requirements of the military and security forces of Iraq, including through military sales from the United States.

(e) NOTIFICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President may not transfer defense articles or provide defense services under subsection (a) until 15 days after the date on which the President has provided notice of the proposed transfer of defense articles or provision of defense services to the appropriate congressional committees.

(2) CONTENTS.—Such notification shall include—

(A) a description of the amount and type of each defense article to be transferred or defense services to be provided;

(B) a statement describing the current value of such article and the estimated replacement value of such article;

(C) an identification of the military department from which the defense articles being transferred are drawn;

(D) an identification of the element of the military or security force that is the proposed recipient of each defense article to be transferred or defense service to be provided;

(E) an assessment of the impact of the transfer on the national technology and industrial base and, particularly, the impact on opportunities of entities in the national technology and industrial base to sell new or used equipment to the countries to which such articles are to be transferred; and

(F) a certification by the President that—

(i) the Secretary of Defense has determined that—

(I) the defense articles to be transferred are no longer required by United States forces in Iraq;

(II) the proposed transfer of such defense articles will not adversely impact the military preparedness of the United States;

(III) immediately before the transfer, the defense articles to be transferred were being used to support operations in Iraq;

(IV) the defense articles to be transferred were present in Iraq as of the date of enactment of this Act; and

(V) the defense articles to be transferred are required by the military and security forces of Iraq or the military and security forces of Afghanistan, as applicable, to build their capacity to restore and maintain peace and security in their country;

(ii) the government of the recipient country has agreed to accept and take possession of the defense articles to be transferred and to receive the defense services in connection with that transfer; and

(iii) the proposed transfer of such defense articles and the provision of defense services in connection with such transfer is in the national interest of the United States.

(f) QUARTERLY REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the report provided under subsection (d), and every 90 days thereafter during fiscal year 2010, the Secretary of Defense shall report to the appropriate congressional committees on the implementation of the authority under subsection (a). The report shall include the replacement value of defense articles transferred pursuant to subsection (a), both in the aggregate and by military department, and services provided to Iraq and Afghanistan during the previous 90 days.

(g) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—The term “appropriate congressional committees” means—

(A) the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives; and

(B) the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on Armed Services, and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

(2) DEFENSE ARTICLES.—The term “defense articles” has the meaning given the term in section 644(d) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2403(d)).

(3) DEFENSE SERVICES.—The term “defense services” has the meaning given the term in section 644(f) of such Act (22 U.S.C. 2403(f)).

(4) MILITARY AND SECURITY FORCES.—The term “military and security forces” means national armies, national air forces, national navies, national guard forces, police forces and border security forces, but does not include non-governmental or irregular forces (such as private militias).

(h) EXPIRATION.—The authority provided under subsection (a) may not be exercised after September 30, 2010.

(i) EXCESS DEFENSE ARTICLES.—

(1) ADDITIONAL AUTHORITY.—The authority provided by subsection (a) is in addition to the authority provided by Section 516 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961.

(2) AGGREGATE VALUE.—The value of excess defense articles transferred to Iraq during fiscal year 2010 pursuant to Section 516 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 shall not be counted against the limitation on the aggregate value of excess defense articles transferred contained in subsection (g) of such Act.

SEC. 1226. REPORT ON TAIWAN'S AIR FORCE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the Department of Defense's (DoD) 2009 Annual Report on Military Power of the People's Republic of China, the military balance in the Taiwan Strait has been shifting in China's favor since 2000, marked by the sustained deployment of advanced military equipment to the Chinese military regions opposite Taiwan.

(2) Although the DoD's 2002 Report concluded that Taiwan “has enjoyed dominance of the airspace over the Taiwan Strait for many years,” the DoD's 2009 Report states this conclusion no longer holds true.

(3) China has based 490 combat aircraft (330 fighters and 160 bombers) within unrefueled operational range of Taiwan, and has the airfield capacity to expand that number by hundreds. In contrast, Taiwan has 390 combat aircraft (all of which are fighters).

(4) Also according to the DoD's 2009 Report, China has continued its build-up of conventional ballistic missiles since 2000, “building a nascent capacity for conventional short-range ballistic missile (SRBM) strikes against Taiwan into what has become one of China's primary instruments of coercion.” At this time, China has expanded its SRBM force opposite Taiwan to seven brigades with a total of 1,050 through 1,150 missiles, and is augmenting these forces with conventional medium-range ballistic missiles systems and at least 2 land attack cruise missile variants capable of ground or air launch. Advanced fighters and bombers, combined with enhanced training for nighttime and overwater flights, provide China's People's Liberation Army (PLA) with additional capabilities for regional strike or maritime interdiction operations.

(5) Furthermore, the Report maintains, “the security situation in the Taiwan Strait is largely a function of dynamic interactions among Mainland China, Taiwan, and the United States. The PLA has developed and deployed military capability to coerce Taiwan or attempt an invasion if necessary. PLA improvements pose new challenges to Taiwan's security, which has historically been based upon the PLA's inability to project power across the 100 nautical-mile Taiwan Strait, natural geographic advantages of island defense, Taiwan's armed forces' technological superiority, and the possibility of U.S. intervention”.

(6) The Taiwan Relations Act of 1979 requires that, in furtherance of the principle of maintaining peace and stability in the Western Pacific region, the United States shall make available to Taiwan such defense articles and defense services in such quantity “as may be necessary to enable Taiwan to maintain a sufficient self-defense capability,” allowing that “the President and the Congress shall determine the nature and quantity of such defense articles and services based solely upon their judgment of the needs of Taiwan . . .”.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS ON TAIWAN'S CURRENT AIR FORCE AND FUTURE SELF-DEFENSE REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to Congress a report, in both classified and unclassified form, containing the following:

(1) A thorough and complete assessment of the current state of Taiwan's Air Force, including—

(A) the number and type of aircraft;

(B) the age of aircraft; and

(C) the capability of those aircraft.

(2) An assessment of the effectiveness of the aircraft in the face of a full-scale concerted missile and air campaign by China, in which China uses its most modern surface-to-air missiles currently deployed along its seacoast.

(3) An analysis of the specific weapons systems and platforms that Taiwan would need to provide for its self-defense and maintain control of its own air space.

(4) Options for the United States to assist Taiwan in achieving those capabilities.

(5) A 5-year plan for fulfilling the obligations of the United States under the Taiwan Relations Act to provide for Taiwan's self-defense and aid Taiwan in maintaining control of its own air space.

SEC. 1227. REPORT ON UNITED STATES CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE UNITED NATIONS.

Section 1225 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 (Public Law 109-364; 120 Stat. 2424) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking “until December 31, 2010, the President shall submit” and inserting “(but not later than the first of each May), the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall submit”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(c) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall post a public version of each report submitted under subsection (a) on a text-based searchable and publicly available Internet Web site.”.

Subtitle C—Other Matters

SEC. 1231. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ESTABLISHMENT OF MEASURES OF PROGRESS TO EVALUATE UNITED STATES STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES IN AFGHANISTAN AND PAKISTAN.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The President announced a new strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan on March 27, 2009, that calls for a commitment of more resources and a significant increase in the number of United States Armed Forces deployed to the region.

(2) It is the obligation of the United States Government to the members of the Armed Forces, and to all Americans, that their sacrifices be met by a clear method for evaluating the progress toward achieving the objectives in the new strategy of the Administration.

(3) The President stated, with reference to the strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan, that “going forward, we will not blindly stay the course. Instead, we will set clear metrics to measure progress and hold ourselves accountable. We’ll consistently assess our efforts to train Afghan security forces and our progress in combating insurgents. We will measure the growth of Afghanistan’s economy, and its illicit narcotics production. And we will review whether we are using the right tools and tactics to make progress towards accomplishing our goals”.

(4) Since the announcement of the new strategy of the Administration on March 27, 2009, key leaders in the Administration, including in the Department of Defense and Department of State, have testified before Congress that progress measures were needed to evaluate performance toward achieving the strategic objectives of the United States in Afghanistan and Pakistan and that the Administration was undertaking the process of reviewing and developing measures of progress.

(5) Key leaders in the Administration further assured Congress that the Administration would not only share the measures of progress with Congress, but would also invite review and comment by Congress on proposed measures of progress.

(6) The establishment of both clear objectives and a means to impartially measure success toward those objectives will expound to the American people what the United States and its partners intend to accomplish in and for Afghanistan and Pakistan.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Administration should, through the coordination of the Departments of Defense and State, expeditiously submit to Congress a comprehensive list of measures of progress with regard to United States strategic objectives in Afghanistan and Pakistan;

(2) the comprehensive list under paragraph (1) should include newly-established measures of progress as well as such measures of progress previously established pursuant to section 1230(d) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (Public Law 110-181; 122 Stat. 385) that continue to be relevant to the current United States strategy for Afghanistan and Pakistan;

(3) the Administration should incorporate the comprehensive list under paragraph (1) with each report submitted under sections 1230 and 1232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008 (122 Stat. 385, 392) and should review, and if necessary modify, the comprehensive list for each such report; and

(4) upon submittal to Congress of the reports required by sections 1230 and 1232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2008, the Administration should provide an assessment of each measure of progress by—

(A) setting forth the measure of progress being evaluated;

(B) providing data used to evaluate the measure of progress;

(C) providing an evaluation of the performance of the particular measure of progress; and

(D) providing a comprehensive assessment of how the performance of the particular measure of progress hinders or enhances the overall performance toward achieving strategic objectives of the United States in Afghanistan and Pakistan.

SEC. 1232. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON IMPOSING SANCTIONS WITH RESPECT TO THE ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF IRAN.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The illicit nuclear activities of the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran, combined with its development of unconventional weapons and ballistic missiles and support for international terrorism, represent a grave threat to the security of the United States and United States allies in Europe, the Middle East, and around the world.

(2) The United States and other responsible countries have a vital interest in working together to prevent the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapons capability.

(3) As President Barack Obama said, “Iran obtaining a nuclear weapon would not only be a threat to Israel and a threat to the United States, but would be profoundly destabilizing in the international community as a whole and could set off a nuclear arms race in the Middle East that would be extraordinarily dangerous for all concerned, including for Iran.”.

(4) The International Atomic Energy Agency has repeatedly called attention to the illicit nuclear activities of the Islamic Republic of Iran, and, as a result, the United Nations Security Council has adopted a range of sanctions designed to encourage the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to cease those activities and comply with its obligations under the Treaty on Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, done at Washington, London, and Moscow July 1, 1968, and entered into force March 5, 1970 (commonly known as the “Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty”).

(5) The Department of the Treasury has imposed sanctions on several Iranian banks, including Bank Melli, Bank Saderat, Bank Sepah, and Bank Mellat, for their involvement in proliferation activities or support for terrorist groups.

(6) The Central Bank of Iran, the keystone of Iran’s financial system and its principal remaining lifeline to the international banking system, has engaged in deceptive financial practices and facilitated such practices among banks involved in proliferation activities or support for terrorist groups, including Bank Sepah and Bank Melli, in order to evade sanctions imposed by the United States and the United Nations.

(7) On April 8, 2009, the United States formally extended an offer to engage in direct diplomacy with the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran through negotiations with the five permanent members of the United States Security Council and Germany (commonly referred to as the “P5-plus-1 process”), in the hope of resolving all outstanding disputes between the Islamic Republic of Iran and the United States.

(8) The Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran has yet to make a formal reply to the April 8, 2009, offer of direct diplomacy by the United States or to engage in direct diplomacy with the United States through the P5-plus-1 process.

(9) On July 8, 2009, President Nicolas Sarkozy of France warned that the Group of Eight major powers will give the Islamic Republic of Iran until September 2009 to accept negotiations with respect to its nuclear activities or face tougher sanctions.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran should—

(A) seize the historic offer put forward by President Barack Obama to engage in direct diplomacy with the United States;

(B) suspend all enrichment-related and reprocessing activities, including research and development, and work on all heavy-water related projects, including the construction of a research reactor moderated by heavy water, as demanded by multiple resolutions of the United Nations Security Council; and

(C) come into full compliance with the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, including the additional protocol to the Treaty; and

(2) the President should impose sanctions on the Central Bank of Iran and any other Iranian bank engaged in proliferation activities or support for terrorist groups, as well as any other sanctions the President determines appropriate, if—

(A) the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran—

(i) has not accepted the offer by the United States to engage in direct diplomacy through the P5-plus-1 process before the Summit of the Group of 20 (G-20) in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in September 2009; or

(ii) has not suspended all enrichment-related and reprocessing activities and work on all heavy-water related projects within 60 days of the conclusion of that Summit; and

(B) the United Nations Security Council has failed to adopt significant and meaningful additional sanctions on the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

SEC. 1233. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON ENFORCEMENT AND IMPOSITION OF SANCTIONS WITH RESPECT TO NORTH KOREA; REVIEW TO DETERMINE WHETHER NORTH KOREA SHOULD BE RE-LISTED AS A STATE SPONSOR OF TERRORISM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) On April 5, 2009, the Government of North Korea tested an intermediate range ballistic missile in violation of United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1695 (2006) and 1718 (2006).

(2) On April 5, 2009, President Barack Obama issued a statement on North Korea, stating that "Preventing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery is a high priority for my administration", and adding, "North Korea has ignored its international obligations, rejected unequivocal calls for restraint, and further isolated itself from the community of nations".

(3) On April 15, 2009, the Government of North Korea announced it was expelling international inspectors from its Yongbyon nuclear facility and ending its participation in the Six Party Talks for the Denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula.

(4) On May 25, 2009, the Government of North Korea conducted a second nuclear test, in disregard of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1718, which was issued in 2006 following the first such test and which demanded that North Korea not conduct any further nuclear tests or launches of a ballistic missile.

(5) The State Department's 2008 Human Rights Report on North Korea, issued on February 25, 2009, found that human rights conditions inside North Korea remained poor, prison conditions are harsh and life-threatening, and citizens were denied basic freedoms such as freedom of speech, press, assembly, religion, and association.

(6) Pursuant to section 102(b)(2)(E) of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2799aa-1(b)(2)(E)), President George W. Bush, on February 7, 2007, notified Congress that the United States Government would oppose the extension of any loan or financial or technical assistance to North Korea by any international financial institution and the prohibition on support for the extension of such loans or assistance remains in effect.

(7) On June 12, 2009, the United Nations Security Council passed Resolution 1874, condemning North Korea's nuclear test, imposing a sweeping embargo on all arms trade with North Korea, and requiring member states not to provide financial support or other financial services that could contribute to North Korea's nuclear-related or missile-related activities or other activities related to weapons of mass destruction.

(8) On July 15, 2009, the Sanctions Committee of the United Nations Security Council, pursuant to United Nations Security Council Resolution 1874, imposed a travel ban on five North Korean individuals and asset freezes on five more North Korean entities for their involvement in nuclear weapons and ballistic missile development programs, marking the first time the United Nations has imposed a travel ban on North Koreans.

(9) On June 10, 2008, the Government of North Korea issued a statement, subsequently conveyed directly to the United States Government, affirming that North Korea, "will firmly maintain its consistent stand of opposing all forms of terrorism and any support to it and will fulfill its responsibility and duty in the struggle against terrorism".

(10) The June 10, 2008, statement by the Government of North Korea also pledged that North Korea would take "active part in the international efforts to prevent substance, equipment and technology to be used for the production of nukes and biochemical and radioactive weapons from finding their ways to the terrorists and the organizations that support them".

(11) On June 26, 2008, President George W. Bush certified that—

(A) the Government of North Korea had not provided any support for international terrorism during the preceding 6-month period; and

(B) the Government of North Korea had provided assurances that it will not support acts of international terrorism in the future.

(12) The President's June 26 certification concluded, based on all available information, that there was "no credible evidence at this time of ongoing support by the DPRK for international terrorism" and that "there is no credible or sustained reporting at this time that supports allegations (including as cited in recent reports by the Congressional Research Service) that the DPRK has provided direct or witting support for Hezbollah, Tamil Tigers, or the Iranian Revolutionary Guard".

(13) The State Department's Country Reports on Terrorism 2008, in a section on North Korea, state, "The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) was not known to have sponsored any terrorist acts since the bombing of a Korean Airlines flight in 1987.".

(14) The Country Reports on Terrorism 2008 also state, "A state that directs WMD resources to terrorists, or one from which enabling resources are clandestinely diverted, poses a grave WMD terrorism threat. Although terrorist organizations will continue to seek a WMD capability independent of state programs, the sophisticated WMD knowledge and resources of a state could enable a terrorist capability. State sponsors of terrorism and all nations that fail to live up to their international counterterrorism and nonproliferation obligations deserve greater scrutiny as potential facilitators of WMD terrorism.".

(15) On October 11, 2008, the Secretary of State, pursuant to the President's certification, removed North Korea from its list of state sponsors of terrorism, on which North Korea had been placed in 1988.

(b) REPORT ON CONDUCT OF NORTH KOREA.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to Congress a detailed report examining the conduct of the Government of North Korea since June 26, 2008, based on all available information, to determine whether North Korea meets the statutory criteria for listing as a state sponsor of terrorism. The report shall—

(1) present any credible evidence of support by the Government of North Korea for acts of terrorism, terrorists, or terrorist organizations;

(2) examine what steps the Government of North Korea has taken to fulfill its June 10, 2008, pledge to prevent weapons of mass destruction from falling into the hands of terrorists; and

(3) assess the effectiveness of re-listing North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism as a tool to accomplish the objectives of the United States with respect to North Korea, including completely eliminating North Korea's nuclear weapons programs, preventing North Korean proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and encouraging North Korea to abide by international norms with respect to human rights.

(c) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the United States should—

(A) vigorously enforce United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1718 (2006) and 1874 (2009) and other sanctions in place with respect to North Korea under United States law;

(B) urge all member states of the United Nations to fully implement the sanctions imposed by United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1718 and 1874; and

(C) explore the imposition of additional unilateral and multilateral sanctions against North Korea in furtherance of United States national security;

(2) the conduct of North Korea constitutes a threat to the northeast Asian region and to international peace and security;

(3) if the United States determines that the Government of North Korea has provided assistance to terrorists or engaged in state sponsored acts of terrorism, the Secretary of State should immediately list North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism; and

(4) if the United States determines that the Government of North Korea has failed to fulfill its June 10, 2008, pledges, the Secretary of State should immediately list North Korea as a state sponsor of terrorism.

(d) STATE SPONSOR OF TERRORISM DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term "state sponsor of terrorism" means a country that has repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism for purposes of—

(1) section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2405(j)) (as continued in effect pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.));

(2) section 40 of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2780); or

(3) section 620A of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2371).

SEC. 1234. REPORT ON THE PLAN FOR THE UNITED STATES NUCLEAR WEAPONS STOCKPILE, NUCLEAR WEAPONS COMPLEX, AND DELIVERY PLATFORMS AND SENSE OF THE SENATE ON FOLLOW-ON NEGOTIATIONS TO START TREATY.

(a) REPORT ON THE PLAN FOR THE UNITED STATES NUCLEAR WEAPONS STOCKPILE, NUCLEAR WEAPONS COMPLEX, AND DELIVERY PLATFORMS.—

(1) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act or at the time a follow-on treaty to the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START Treaty) is submitted by the President to the Senate for its advice and consent, whichever is earlier, the President shall submit to the congressional defense and foreign relations committees a report on the plan to enhance the safety, security, and reliability of the United States nuclear weapons stockpile, modernize the nuclear weapons complex, and maintain the delivery platforms for nuclear weapons.

(2) COORDINATION.—The President shall prepare the report required under paragraph (1) in coordination with the Secretary of Defense, the directors of Sandia National Laboratory, Los Alamos National Laboratory, and Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, the Administrator for the National Nuclear Security Administration, and the Commander of the United States Strategic Command.

(3) ELEMENTS.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) A description of the plan to enhance the safety, security, and reliability of the United States nuclear weapons stockpile.

(B) A description of the plan to modernize the nuclear weapons complex, including improving the safety of facilities, modernizing the infrastructure, and maintaining the key capabilities and competencies of the nuclear weapons workforce, including designers and technicians.

(C) A description of the plan to maintain delivery platforms for nuclear weapons.

(D) An estimate of budget requirements, including the costs associated with the plans outlined under subparagraphs (A) through (C), over a 10-year period.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE ON FOLLOW-ON NEGOTIATIONS TO THE START TREATY.—The Senate urges the President to maintain the stated position of the United States that the follow-on treaty to the START Treaty not include any limitations on the ballistic missile defense systems, space capabilities, or advanced conventional weapons systems of the United States.

SEC. 1235. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON CONTINUED SUPPORT BY THE UNITED STATES FOR A STABLE AND DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF IRAQ.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The men and women of the United States Armed Forces who have served or are serving in the Republic of Iraq have done so with the utmost bravery and courage and deserve the respect and gratitude of the people of the United States and the people of Iraq.

(2) The leadership of Generals David Petraeus and Raymond Odierno, as the Commanders of the Multi-National Force Iraq, as well as Ambassador Ryan Crocker, was instrumental in bringing stability and success to Iraq.

(3) The strategy known as the surge was a critical factor contributing to significant security gains and facilitated the economic, political, and social gains that have occurred in Iraq since 2007.

(4) The people of Iraq have begun to develop a stable government and stable society because of the security gains following the surge and the willingness of the people of Iraq to accept the ideals of a free and fair democratic society over the tyranny espoused by Al Qaeda and other terrorist organizations.

(5) The security gains in Iraq must be carefully maintained so that those fragile gains can be solidified and expanded upon, primarily by citizens of Iraq in service to their country, with the support of the United States as appropriate.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) a stable and democratic Republic of Iraq is in the long-term national security interest of the United States;

(2) the people and the Government of the United States should help the people of Iraq promote the stability of their country and peace in the region; and

(3) the United States should be a long-term strategic partner with the Government and the people of Iraq in support of their efforts to build democracy, good governance, and peace and stability in the region.

SEC. 1236. REPORT ON FEASIBILITY AND DESIRABILITY OF ESTABLISHING GENERAL UNIFORM PROCEDURES AND GUIDELINES FOR THE PROVISION OF MONETARY ASSISTANCE BY THE UNITED STATES TO CIVILIAN FOREIGN NATIONALS FOR LOSSES INCIDENT TO COMBAT ACTIVITIES OF THE ARMED FORCES.

(a) REPORT.—The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress a report on the feasibility and the desirability of establishing general uniform procedures and guidelines for the provision by the United States of monetary assistance to civilian foreign nationals for losses, injuries, or death (hereafter “harm”) incident to combat activities of the United States Armed Forces during contingency operations.

(b) MATTERS TO BE INCLUDED IN REPORT.—The Secretary shall include in the report the following:

(1) A description of the authorities under laws in effect as of the date of the enactment of this Act for the United States to provide compensation, monetary payments, or other assistance to civilians who incur harm due directly or indirectly to the combat activities of the United States Armed Forces.

(2) A description of the practices in effect as of the date of enactment of this Act for the United States to provide ex gratia, solatia, or other types of condolence payments to civilians who incur harm due directly or indirectly to the combat activities of the United States Armed Forces.

(3) A discussion of the historic practice of the United States to provide compensation, other monetary payments, or other assistance to civilian foreign nationals who incur harm due directly or indirectly to combat activities of the United States Armed Forces.

(4) A discussion of the practice of the United States in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom to provide compensation, other monetary payments, or other assistance to civilian foreign nationals who incur harm due directly or indirectly to the combat activities of the United States Armed Forces, including the procedures and guidelines used and an assessment of its effectiveness. This discussion will also include estimates of the total amount of funds disbursed to civilian foreign nationals who have incurred harm since the inception of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. This discussion will also include how such procedures and guidelines compare to the processing of claims filed under the Foreign Claims Act.

(5) A discussion of the positive and negative effects of using different authorities, procedure, and guidelines to provide monetary assistance to civilian foreign nationals, based upon the culture and economic circumstances of the local populace and the operational impact on the military mission. This discussion will also include whether the use of different authorities, procedures, and guidelines has resulted in disparate monetary assistance to civilian foreign nationals who have incurred substantially similar harm, and if so, the frequency and effect of such results.

(6) A discussion of the positive and negative effects of establishing general uniform procedures and guidelines for the provision of such assistance, based upon the goals of timely commencement of a program of monetary assistance, efficient and effective implementation of such program, and consistency in the amount of assistance in relation to the harm incurred. This discussion will also include whether the implementation of general procedures and guidelines would create a legally enforceable entitlement to “compensation” and, if so, any potential significant operational impact arising from such an entitlement.

(7) Assuming general uniform procedures and guidelines were to be established, a discussion of the following:

(A) Whether such assistance should be limited to specified types of combat activities or operations, e.g., such as during counterinsurgency operations.

(B) Whether such assistance should be contingent upon a formal determination that a particular combat activity/operation is a qualifying activity, and the criteria, if any, for such a determination.

(C) Whether a time limit from the date of loss for providing such assistance should be prescribed.

(D) Whether only monetary or other types of assistance should be authorized, and what types of nonmonetary assistance, if any, should be authorized.

(E) Whether monetary value limits should be placed on the assistance that may be provided, or whether the determination to provide assistance and, if so, the monetary value of such assistance, should be based, in whole or in part, on a legal advisor’s assessment of the facts.

(F) Whether a written record of the determination to provide or to not provide such assistance should be maintained and a copy made available to the civilian foreign national.

(G) Whether in the event of a determination to not provide such assistance the civilian foreign national should be afforded the option of a review of the determination by a higher ranking authority.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Secretary shall include in the report such recommendations as the Secretary considers appropriate for legislative or administrative action with respect to the matters discussed in the report.

(d) SUBMISSION OF REPORT.—The report shall be submitted not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act. The report shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

Subtitle D—VOICE Act

SEC. 1241. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Victims of Iranian Censorship Act” or the “VOICE Act”.

SEC. 1242. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that the United States—

(1) respects the sovereignty, proud history, and rich culture of the Iranian people;

(2) respects the universal values of freedom of speech and freedom of the press in Iran and throughout the world;

(3) supports the Iranian people as they take steps to peacefully express their voices, opinions, and aspirations;

(4) supports the Iranian people seeking access to news and other forms of information;

(5) condemns the detainment, imprisonment, and intimidation of all journalists, in Iran and elsewhere throughout the world;

(6) supports journalists who take great risk to report on political events in Iran, including those surrounding the presidential election;

(7) supports the efforts the Voice of America’s (VOA) 24-hour television station Persian News Network, and Radio Free Europe / Radio Liberty’s (RFE/RL) Radio Farda 24-hour radio station; British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) Farsi language programming; Radio Zamaneh; and other independent news outlets to provide information to Iran;

(8) condemns acts of censorship, intimidation, and other restrictions on freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and freedom of expression in Iran and throughout the world;

(9) commends companies which have facilitated the ability of the Iranian people to access and share information, and exercise freedom of speech, freedom of expression, and freedom of assembly through alternative technologies; and

(10) condemns companies which have knowingly impeded the ability of the Iranian people to access and share information and exercise freedom of speech, freedom of expression, and freedom of assembly through electronic media, including through the sale of technology that allows for deep packet inspection or provides the capability to monitor or block Internet access, and gather information about individuals.

SEC. 1243. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It shall be the policy of the United States—

(1) to support freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of expression, and freedom of assembly in Iran;

(2) to support the Iranian people as they seek, receive, and impart information and promote ideas in writing, in print, or through any media without interference;

(3) to discourage businesses from aiding efforts to interfere with the ability of the people of Iran to freely access or share information or otherwise infringe upon freedom of speech, freedom of expression, freedom of assembly, and freedom of the press through the Internet or other electronic media, including through the sale of deep packet inspection or other technology to the Government of Iran that provides the capability to monitor or block Internet access, and gather information about individuals; and

(4) to encourage the development of technologies, including Internet Web sites that facilitate the efforts of the Iranian people—

(A) to gain access to and share accurate information and exercise freedom of speech, freedom of expression, freedom of assembly, and freedom of the press, through the Internet or other electronic media; and

(B) engage in Internet-based education programs and other exchanges between United States citizens and Iranians.

SEC. 1244. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING OPERATIONS FUND.—In addition to amounts otherwise authorized for the Broadcasting Board of Governors' International Broadcasting Operations Fund, there is authorized to be appropriated $15,000,000 to expand Farsi language programming and to provide for the dissemination of accurate and independent information to the Iranian people through radio, television, Internet, cellular telephone, short message service, and other communications.

(b) BROADCASTING CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS FUND.—In addition to amounts otherwise authorized for the Broadcasting Board of Governors' Broadcasting Capital Improvements Fund, there is authorized to be appropriated $15,000,000 to expand transmissions of Farsi language programs to Iran.

(c) USE OF AMOUNTS.—In pursuit of the objectives described in subsections (a) and (b), amounts in the International Broadcasting Operations Fund and the Capital Improvements Fund may be used to—

(1) develop additional transmission capability for Radio Farda and the Persian News Network to counter ongoing efforts to jam transmissions, including through additional shortwave and medium wave transmissions, satellite, and Internet mechanisms;

(2) develop additional proxy server capability and anti-censorship software to counter efforts to block Radio Farda and Persian News Network Web sites;

(3) develop technologies to counter efforts to block SMS text message exchange over cellular phone networks;

(4) expand program coverage and analysis by Radio Farda and the Persian News Network, including the development of broadcast platforms and programs, on the television, radio and Internet, for enhanced interactivity with and among the people of Iran;

(5) hire, on a permanent or short-term basis, additional staff for Radio Farda and the Persian News Network; and

(6) develop additional Internet-based, Farsi-language television programming, including a Farsi-language, Internet-based news channel.

SEC. 1245. IRANIAN ELECTRONIC EDUCATION, EXCHANGE, AND MEDIA FUND.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established in the Treasury of the United States the Iranian Electronic Education, Exchange, and Media Fund (referred to in this section as the "Fund"), consisting of amounts appropriated to the Fund pursuant to subsection (f).

(b) ADMINISTRATION.—The Fund shall be administered by the Secretary of State.

(c) OBJECTIVE.—The objective of the Fund shall be to support the development of technologies, including Internet Web sites, that will aid the ability of the Iranian people to—

(1) gain access to and share information;

(2) exercise freedom of speech, freedom of expression, and freedom of assembly through the Internet and other electronic media;

(3) engage in Internet-based education programs and other exchanges between Americans and Iranians; and

(4) counter efforts—

(A) to block, censor, and monitor the Internet; and

(B) to disrupt or monitor cellular phone networks or SMS text exchanges.

(d) USE OF AMOUNTS.—In pursuit of the objective described in subsection (c), amounts in the Fund may be used for grants to United States or foreign universities, nonprofit organizations, or companies for targeted projects that advance the purpose of the Fund, including projects that—

(1) develop Farsi-language versions of existing social-networking Web sites;

TITLE XIII—COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTIONSEC. 1301. SPECIFICATION OF COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTION PROGRAMS AND FUNDS.

(a) SPECIFICATION OF COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTION PROGRAMS.—For purposes of section 301 and other provisions of this Act, Cooperative Threat Reduction programs are the programs specified in section 1501 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997 (50 U.S.C. 2362 note).

(b) FISCAL YEAR 2010 COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTION FUNDS DEFINED.—As used in this title, the term "fiscal year 2010 Cooperative Threat Reduction funds" means the funds appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations in section 301 for Cooperative Threat Reduction programs.

(c) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations in section 301 for Cooperative Threat Reduction programs shall be available for obligation for fiscal years 2010, 2011, and 2012.

SEC. 1302. FUNDING ALLOCATIONS.

(a) FUNDING FOR SPECIFIC PURPOSES.—Of the $424,093,000 authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 2010 in section 301(a)(20) for Cooperative Threat Reduction programs, the following amounts may be obligated for the purposes specified:

(1) For strategic offensive arms elimination in Russia, $73,385,000.

(2) For strategic nuclear arms elimination in Ukraine, $6,800,000.

(3) For nuclear weapons storage security in Russia, $15,090,000.

(4) For nuclear weapons transportation security in Russia, $46,400,000.

(5) For weapons of mass destruction proliferation prevention in the states of the former Soviet Union, $90,886,000.

(6) For biological threat reduction in the states of the former Soviet Union, $152,132,000.

(7) For chemical weapons destruction, $3,000,000.

(8) For defense and military contacts, $5,000,000.

(9) For new Cooperative Threat Reduction initiatives, $10,000,000.

(10) For activities designated as Other Assessments/Administrative Costs, $21,400,000.

(b) REPORT ON OBLIGATION OR EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS FOR OTHER PURPOSES.—No fiscal year 2010 Cooperative Threat Reduction funds may be obligated or expended for a purpose other than a purpose listed in paragraphs (1) through (10) of subsection (a) until 15 days after the date that the Secretary of Defense submits to Congress a report on the purpose for which the funds will be obligated or expended and the amount of funds to be obligated or expended. Nothing in the preceding sentence shall be construed as authorizing the obligation or expenditure of fiscal year 2010 Cooperative Threat Reduction funds for a purpose for which the obligation or expenditure of such funds is specifically prohibited under this title or any other provision of law.

(c) LIMITED AUTHORITY TO VARY INDIVIDUAL AMOUNTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), in any case in which the Secretary of Defense determines that it is necessary to do so in the national interest, the Secretary may obligate amounts appropriated for fiscal year 2010 for a purpose listed in paragraphs (1) through (10) of subsection (a) in excess of the specific amount authorized for that purpose.

(2) NOTICE-AND-WAIT REQUIRED.—An obligation of funds for a purpose stated in paragraphs (1) through (10) of subsection (a) in excess of the specific amount authorized for such purpose may be made using the authority provided in paragraph (1) only after—

(A) the Secretary submits to Congress notification of the intent to do so together with a complete discussion of the justification for doing so; and

(B) 15 days have elapsed following the date of the notification.

SEC. 1303. AUTHORITY TO ENTER INTO AGREEMENTS TO RECEIVE CONTRIBUTIONS FOR BIOLOGICAL THREAT REDUCTION PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Defense may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, enter into one or more agreements with any person (including a foreign government, international organization, multinational entity, or any other entity) that the Secretary of Defense considers appropriate under which the person contributes funds for purposes of the Biological Threat Reduction Program of the Department of Defense.

(b) RETENTION AND USE OF AMOUNTS.—Notwithstanding section 3302 of title 31, United States Code, and subject to subsections (c) and (d), the Secretary of Defense may retain and obligate or expend amounts contributed pursuant to subsection (a) for purposes of the Biological Threat Reduction Program. Amounts so contributed shall be retained in a separate fund established in the Treasury for that purpose and shall be available to be obligated or expended without further appropriation.

(c) RETURN OF AMOUNTS NOT OBLIGATED OR EXPENDED WITHIN THREE YEARS.—If the Secretary of Defense does not obligate or expend an amount contributed pursuant to subsection (a) by the date that is three years after the date on which the contribution was made, the Secretary shall return the amount to the person who made the contribution.

(d) NOTICE TO CONGRESSIONAL DEFENSE COMMITTEES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 30 days after receiving an amount contributed pursuant to subsection (a), the Secretary shall submit to the congressional defense committees a notice—

(A) specifying the value of the contribution and the purpose for which the contribution was made; and

(B) identifying the person who made the contribution.

(2) LIMITATION ON USE OF AMOUNTS.—The Secretary may not obligate or expend an amount contributed pursuant to subsection (a) until the date that is 15 days after the date on which the Secretary submits the notice required by paragraph (1).

(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than October 31 each year, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on amounts contributed pursuant to subsection (a) during the preceding fiscal year. Each such report shall include, for the fiscal year covered by the report, the following:

(1) A statement of any amounts contributed pursuant to subsection (a), including, for each such amount, the value of the contribution and the identity of the person who made the contribution.

(2) A statement of any amounts so contributed that were obligated or expended by the Secretary, including, for each such amount, the purposes for which the amount was obligated or expended.

(3) A statement of any amounts so contributed that were retained but not obligated or expended, including, for each such amount, the purposes (if known) for which the Secretary intends to obligate or expend the amount.

(f) TERMINATION.—The authority provided under this section shall terminate on December 31, 2015.

SEC. 1304. AUTHORIZATION OF USE OF COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTION PROGRAM FUNDS FOR BILATERAL AND MULTILATERAL NONPROLIFERATION AND DISARMAMENT ACTIVITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and subject to subsection (b), the Secretary of Defense may obligate or expend not more than 10 percent of the funds authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available for Cooperative Threat Reduction programs in a fiscal year to provide assistance for or to otherwise carry out bilateral or multilateral activities relating to nonproliferation or disarmament.

(b) NOTIFICATION OF CONGRESSIONAL DEFENSE COMMITTEES.—The Secretary may obligate or expend funds pursuant to subsection (a) if, not less than 15 days before obligating or expending such funds—

(1) the Secretary notifies the congressional defense committees of the intent of the Secretary to obligate or expend such funds; and

(2) the President certifies to the congressional defense committees that obligating or expending such funds is necessary to support the national security objectives of the United States.

SEC. 2704. REPORT ON GLOBAL DEFENSE POSTURE REALIGNMENT AND INTERAGENCY REVIEW.

(a) INTERAGENCY REVIEW OF OVERSEAS MASTER PLANS.—At the same time that the budget is submitted under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, for a fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives a report on the status of overseas base closure and realignment actions undertaken as part of a global defense posture realignment strategy and the status of development and execution of comprehensive master plans for overseas military main operating bases, forward operating sites, and cooperative security locations. The report shall address the following:

(1) How the plans would support the security commitments undertaken by the United States pursuant to any international security treaty, including, the North Atlantic Treaty, The Treaty of Mutual Cooperation and Security between the United States and Japan, and the Security Treaty Between Australia, New Zealand, and the United States of America.

(2) The impact of such plans on the current security environments in the combatant commands, including United States participation in theater security cooperation activities and bilateral partnership, exchanges, and training exercises.

(3) Any comments of the Secretary of Defense resulting from an interagency review of these plans that includes the Department of State and other Federal departments and agencies that the Secretary of Defense deems necessary for national security.

(b) INTERAGENCY OVERSEAS BASING REPORT.—Section 118 of title 10, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(h) INTERAGENCY OVERSEAS BASING REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after submitting a report on a quadrennial defense review under subsection (d), the Secretary shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report detailing how the results of the assessment conducted as part of such review will impact the status of overseas base closure and realignment actions undertaken as part of a global defense posture realignment strategy and the status of development and execution of comprehensive master plans for overseas military main operating bases, forward operating sites, and cooperative security locations of the global defense posture of the United States. The report shall include any recommendations for additional closures or realignments of military installations outside of the United States. The report shall include any comments resulting from an interagency review of these plans that includes the Department of State and other relevant Federal departments and agencies.”.

SEC. 2705. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON NEED FOR COMMUNITY ASSISTANCE RELATED TO BASE CLOSURES AND REALIGNMENTS AND FORCE REPOSITIONING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The 2005 round of defense base closures and realignments (BRAC) has resulted in a requirement to dispose of excess Federal property in addition to property determined to be excess as the result of decisions in four previous rounds of base realignments and closures in 1988, 1991, 1993, and 1995.

(2) The Department of Defense has primary responsibility to dispose of Federal property resulting from the closure or realignment of military installations under the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990 (part A of title XXIX of Public Law 101–510; 10 U.S.C. 2687 note).

(3) The Department of Defense is authorized to dispose of BRAC property using a range of methods including administrative transfer to another Federal agency, public benefit conveyances, homeless housing assistance, economic development conveyances, negotiated sales, or public sales.

(4) The Department of Defense is authorized to convey property to local redevelopment agencies representing communities affected by base closures and realignments for the purpose of economic development.

(5) The Department of Defense is authorized to assess the needs of the local community and the intended use of the property in determining the amount of compensation to be received in exchange for the economic development conveyance.

(6) The Department of Defense is authorized to receive an amount for the economic development conveyance that may range from fair market value to an amount less than fair market, to no cost to the conveyee, depending on the local economic conditions.

(7) The Department of Defense is required to use any monetary proceeds gained from the disposal of BRAC property to fund environmental clean-up, remediation, and compliance actions required to safely dispose of BRAC property.

(8) Any revenue foregone as a result of a decision not to seek fair market value for disposed property must be compensated with appropriated funds requested by the Department of Defense in annual budget submissions to Congress.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that, as the Federal Government implements base closures and realignments, global repositioning, and grows the force initiatives, it is necessary—

(1) to assist local communities coping with the impact of these programs at both closed and active military installations; and

(2) to comprehensively assess the needs and degree of Federal assistance to communities to effectively implement the various initiatives of the Department of Defense while aiding communities to either recover quickly from closures or to accommodate growth associated with troop influges.

SEC. 2706. RELOCATION OF CERTAIN ARMY RESERVE UNITS IN CONNECTICUT.

The Secretary of the Army may use funds appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations in section 2703 for the purpose of constructing an Army Reserve Center and Maintenance Facility in the vicinity of Newtown, Connecticut, at a location determined by the Secretary to be in the best interest of national security and in the public interest.

SEC. 2707. AUTHORITY TO CONSTRUCT PREVIOUSLY AUTHORIZED ARMED FORCES RESERVE CENTER IN VICINITY OF SPECIFIED LOCATION AT PEASE AIR NATIONAL GUARD BASE, NEW HAMPSHIRE.

The Secretary of the Army may use funds appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations in section 2703 of the Duncan Hunter National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2009 (Public Law 110–417; 122 Stat. 4715) for the purpose of constructing an Armed Forces Reserve Center at Pease Air National Guard Base, New Hampshire, to construct instead an Armed Forces Reserve Center in the vicinity of Pease Air National Guard Base at a location determined by the Secretary to be in the best interest of national security and in the public interest.

SEC. 2708. REQUIREMENT FOR MASTER PLAN TO PROVIDE WORLD CLASS MILITARY MEDICAL FACILITIES IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION.

(a) MASTER PLAN REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall develop and implement a comprehensive master plan to provide world class military medical facilities and an integrated system of health care delivery for the National Capital Region that—

(1) addresses—

(A) the unique needs of members of the Armed Forces and retired members of the Armed Forces and their families;

(B) the care, management, and transition of seriously ill and injured members of the Armed Forces and their families;

(C) the missions of the branch or branches of the Armed Forces served; and

(D) performance expectations for the future integrated health care delivery system, including—

(i) information management and information technology support; and

(ii) expansion of support services;

(2) includes the establishment of an integrated process for the joint development of budgets, prioritization of requirements, and the allocation of funds;

(3) designates a single entity within the Department of Defense with the budget and operational authority to respond quickly to and address emerging facility and operational requirements required to provide and operate world class military medical facilities in the National Capital Region;

(4) incorporates all ancillary and support facilities at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Maryland, including education and research facilities as well as centers of excellence, transportation, and parking structures required to provide a full range of adequate care and services for members of the Armed Forces and their families;

(5) ensures that each facility covered by the plan meets or exceeds Joint Commission hospital design standards as applicable; and

(6) can be used as a model to develop similar master plans for all military medical facilities within the Department of Defense.

(b) MILESTONE SCHEDULE AND COST ESTIMATES.—Not later than 90 days after the development of the master plan required by (a), the Secretary shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report describing—

(1) the schedule for completion of requirements identified in the master plan; and

(2) updated cost estimates to provide world class military medical facilities for the National Capital Region.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION.—The term “National Capital Region” has the meaning given the term in section 2674(f) of title 10, United States Code.

(2) WORLD CLASS MILITARY MEDICAL FACILITY.—The term “world class military medical facility” has the meaning given the term by the National Capital Region Base Realignment and Closure Health Systems Advisory Subcommittee of the Defense Health Board in appendix B of the report entitled “Achieving World Class – An Independent Review of the Design Plans for the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center and the Fort Belvoir Community Hospital”, published in May, 2009.

(A) A parcel of real property, together with any improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 2.37 acres and comprising the 11000 West Communications Annex.

(B) A parcel of real property, together with any improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 6.643 acres and comprising the South Nike Education Annex.

(3) CONDITION.—As a condition of the conveyance under this subsection, the Authority, and any person or entity to which the Authority transfers the property, shall comply in the use of the property with the applicable provisions of the Ellsworth Air Force Base Air Installation Compatible Use Zone Study.

(4) REVERSIONARY INTEREST.—If the Secretary determines at any time that the real property conveyed under paragraph (1) is not being used in compliance with the applicable provisions of the Ellsworth Air Force Base Air Installation Compatible Use Zone Study, all right, title, and interest in and to such real property, including any improvements and appurtenant easements thereto, shall, at the option of the Secretary, revert to and become the property of the United States, and the United States shall have the right of immediate entry onto such real property. A determination by the Secretary under this paragraph shall be made on the record after an opportunity for a hearing.

(5) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under this subsection shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(6) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under this subsection as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 2834. LAND CONVEYANCE, F.E. WARREN AIR FORCE BASE, CHEYENNE, WYOMING.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Air Force may convey to the County of Laramie, Wyoming (in this section referred to as the "County") all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property, including any improvements thereon and appurtenant easements thereto, consisting of approximately 73 acres along the southeastern boundary of F.E. Warren Air Force Base, Cheyenne, Wyoming, for the purpose of removing the property from the boundaries of the installation and permitting the County to preserve the entire property for healthcare facilities.

(b) CONSIDERATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—As consideration for the conveyance under subsection (a), the County shall provide the United States consideration, whether by cash payment, in-kind consideration as described under paragraph (2), or a combination thereof, in an amount that is not less than the fair market value of the conveyed real property, as determined by the Secretary.

(2) IN-KIND CONSIDERATION.—In-kind consideration provided by the County under paragraph (1) may include the acquisition, construction, provision, improvement, maintenance, repair, or restoration (including environmental restoration), or combination thereof, of any facilities or infrastructure relating to the security of F.E. Warren Air Force Base, that the Secretary considers acceptable.

(3) RELATION TO OTHER LAWS.—Sections 2662 and 2802 of title 10, United States Code, shall not apply to any new facilities or infrastructure received by the United States as in-kind consideration under paragraph (2).

(4) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall provide written notification to the congressional defense committees of the types and value of consideration provided the United States under paragraph (1).

(5) TREATMENT OF CASH CONSIDERATION RECEIVED.—Any cash payment received by the United States under paragraph (1) shall be deposited in the special account in the Treasury established under subsection (b) of section 572 of title 40, United States Code, and shall be available in accordance with paragraph (5)(B)(ii) of such subsection.

(c) REVERSIONARY INTEREST.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines at any time that the County is not using the property conveyed under subsection (a) in accordance with the purpose of the conveyance specified in such subsection, all right, title, and interest in and to the property, including any improvements thereon, shall revert, at the option of the Secretary, to the United States, and the United States shall have the right of immediate entry onto the property. Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be made on the record after an opportunity for a hearing.

(2) RELEASE OF REVERSIONARY INTEREST.—The Secretary shall release, without consideration, the reversionary interest retained by the United States under paragraph (1) if—

(A) F.E. Warren Air Force Base, Cheyenne Wyoming, is no longer being used for Department of Defense activities; or

(B) the Secretary determines that the reversionary interest is otherwise unnecessary to protect the interests of the United States.

(d) PAYMENT OF COSTS OF CONVEYANCE.—

(1) PAYMENT REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall require the County to cover costs to be incurred by the Secretary, or to reimburse the Secretary for costs incurred by the Secretary, to carry out the conveyance under subsection (a) and implement the receipt of in-kind consideration under paragraph (b), including survey costs, appraisal costs, costs related to environmental documentation, and other administrative costs related to the conveyance and receipt of in-kind consideration. If amounts are received from the County in advance of the Secretary incurring the actual costs, and the amount received exceeds the costs actually incurred by the Secretary under this section, the Secretary shall refund the excess amount to the County.

(2) TREATMENT OF AMOUNTS RECEIVED.—Amounts received as reimbursements under paragraph (1) shall be credited to the fund or account that was used to cover the costs incurred by the Secretary in carrying out the conveyance and implementing the receipt of in-kind consideration. Amounts so credited shall be merged with amounts in such fund or account and shall be available for the same purposes, and subject to the same conditions and limitations, as amounts in such fund or account.

(e) DESCRIPTION OF REAL PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(f) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under subsection (a) as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 2835. LAND CONVEYANCE, LACKLAND AIR FORCE BASE, TEXAS.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Air Force may convey to an eligible entity, all right, title, and interest of the United States to not more than 250 acres of real property and associated easements and improvements on Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, in exchange for real property adjacent to or near the installation for the purpose of relocating and consolidating Air Force tenants located on the former Kelly Air Force Base, Texas, onto the main portion of Lackland Air Force Base.

(b) CONDITION OF CONVEYANCE.—The conveyance under subsection (a) shall be subject to the condition that the eligible entity accept the real property in its condition at the time of the conveyance, commonly known as conveyance “as is” and not subject to the requirements for covenants in deed under section 120(h)(3) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(h)(3)).

(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—A conveyance under this section may be made to the City of San Antonio, Texas, or an organization or agency chartered or sponsored by the local or State government.

(d) CONSIDERATION.—As consideration for the conveyance under subsection (a), the eligible entity shall provide the Air Force with real property or real property improvements, or a combination of both, of equal value, as determined by the Secretary. If the fair market value of the real property or real property improvements, or combination thereof, is less than the fair market value of the real property to be conveyed by the Air Force, the eligible entity shall provide cash payment to the Air Force, or provide Lackland Air Force Base with in-kind consideration of an amount equal to the difference in the fair market values. Any cash payment received by the Air Force for the conveyance authorized by subsection (a) shall be deposited in the special account described in section 2667(e) of title 10, United States Code, and shall be available to the Secretary for the same uses and subject to the same limitations as provided in that section.

(e) PAYMENT OF COSTS OF CONVEYANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may require the eligible entity to cover costs to be incurred by the Secretary, or to reimburse the Secretary for costs incurred by the Secretary, to carry out the conveyances under this section, including survey costs, costs related to environmental documentation, and other administrative costs related to the conveyances. If amounts are collected from the eligible entity in advance of the Secretary incurring the actual costs, and the amount collected exceeds the costs actually incurred by the Secretary to carry out the conveyance, the Secretary shall refund the excess amount to the eligible entity.

(2) TREATMENT OF AMOUNTS RECEIVED.—Amounts received as reimbursement under paragraph (1) shall be credited to the fund or account that was used to cover the costs incurred by the Secretary in carrying out the conveyances. Amounts so credited shall be merged with amounts in such fund or account, and shall be available for the same purposes, and subject to the same conditions and limitations, as amounts in such fund or account.

(f) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(g) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyances under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 2836. LAND CONVEYANCE, HAINES TANK FARM, HAINES, ALASKA.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Army may convey to the Chilkoot Indian Association (in this section referred to as the “Association”) all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property, including improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 201 acres located at the former Haines Fuel Terminal (also known as the Haines Tank Farm) in Haines, Alaska, for the purpose of permitting the Association to develop a Deep Sea Port and for other industrial and commercial development purposes. To the extent practicable, the Secretary is encouraged to complete the conveyance by September 30, 2013, but not prior to the date of completion of all obligations referenced in subsection (e).

(b) CONSIDERATION.—As consideration for the conveyance under subsection (a), the Association shall pay to the Secretary an amount equal to the fair market value of the property, as determined by the Secretary. The determination of the Secretary shall be final.

(c) REVERSIONARY INTEREST.—If the Secretary determines at any time that the real property conveyed under subsection (a) is not being used in accordance with the purpose of the conveyance, all right, title, and interest in and to such real property, including any improvements and appurtenant easements thereto, shall, at the option of the Secretary, revert to and become the property of the United States, and the United States shall have the right of immediate entry onto such real property. A determination by the Secretary under this subsection shall be made on the record after an opportunity for a hearing.

(d) PAYMENT OF COSTS OF CONVEYANCES.—

(1) PAYMENT REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall require the Association to cover costs to be incurred by the Secretary, or to reimburse the Secretary for costs incurred by the Secretary, to carry out the conveyance under subsection (a), including survey costs, costs related to environmental documentation, and other administrative costs related to the conveyance. If amounts are collected from the Association in advance of the Secretary incurring the actual costs, and the amount collected exceeds the costs actually incurred by the Secretary to carry out the conveyance, the Secretary shall refund the excess amount to the Association.

(2) TREATMENT OF AMOUNTS RECEIVED.—Amounts received as reimbursements under paragraph (1) shall be credited to the fund or account that was used to cover the costs incurred by the Secretary in carrying out the conveyance. Amounts so credited shall be merged with amounts in such fund or account and shall be available for the same purposes, and subject to the same conditions and limitations, as amounts in such fund or account.

(e) SAVINGS PROVISION.—The Haines Tank Farm is currently under a remedial investigation (RI) for petroleum, oil and lubricants contamination. Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect or limit the application of, or any obligation to comply with, any environmental law, including the National Environmental Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.), the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C.

9601 et seq.) and the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.).

(f) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under this section shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(g) ADDITIONAL TERM AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

SEC. 2837. LAND CONVEYANCES OF CERTAIN PARCELS IN THE CAMP CATLIN AND OHANA NUI AREAS, PEARL HARBOR, HAWAII.

(a) CONVEYANCES AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Navy (“the Secretary”) may convey to any person or entity leasing or licensing real property located at Camp Catlin and Ohana Nui areas, Hawaii, as of the date of the enactment of this Act (“the lessee”) all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to the portion of such property that is respectively leased or licensed by such person or entity for the purpose of continuing the same functions as are being conducted on the property as of the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) CONSIDERATION.—As consideration for a conveyance under subsection (a), the lessee shall provide the United States, whether by cash payment, in-kind consideration, or a combination thereof, an amount that is not less than the fair market of the conveyed property, as determined pursuant to an appraisal acceptable to the Secretary.

(c) EXERCISE OF RIGHT TO PURCHASE PROPERTY.—

(1) ACCEPTANCE OF OFFER.—For a period of 180 days beginning on the date the Secretary makes a written offer to convey the property or any portion thereof under subsection (a), the lessee shall have the exclusive right to accept such offer by providing written notice of acceptance to the Secretary within the specified 180-day time period. If the Secretary's offer is not so accepted within the 180-day period, the offer shall expire.

(2) CONVEYANCE DEADLINE.—If a lessee accepts the offer to convey the property or a portion thereof in accordance with paragraph (1), the conveyance shall take place not later than 2 years after the date of the lessee's written acceptance, provided that the conveyance date may be extended for a reasonable period of time by mutual agreement of the parties, evidenced by a written instrument executed by the parties prior to the end of the 2-year period. If the lessee's lease or license term expires before the conveyance is completed, the Secretary may extend the lease or license term up to the date of conveyance, provided that the lessee shall be required to pay for such extended term at the rate in effect at the time it was declared excess property.

(d) PAYMENT OF COSTS OF CONVEYANCES.—

(1) PAYMENT REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall require the lessee to cover costs to be incurred by the Secretary, or to reimburse the Secretary for costs incurred by the Secretary, to carry out a conveyance under subsection (a), including survey costs, related to the conveyance. If amounts are collected from the lessee in advance of the Secretary incurring the actual costs, and the amount collected exceeds the costs actually incurred by the Secretary to carry out the conveyance, the Secretary shall refund the excess amount to the lessee.

(2) TREATMENT OF AMOUNTS RECEIVED.—Amounts received under paragraph (1) as reimbursement for costs incurred by the Secretary to carry out a conveyance under subsection (a) shall be credited to the fund or account that was used to cover the costs incurred by the Secretary in carrying out the conveyance. Amounts so credited shall be merged with amounts in such fund or account and shall be available for the same purposes, and subject to the same conditions and limitations, as amounts in such fund or account.

(e) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of any real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(f) ADDITIONAL TERM AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with a conveyance under subsection (a) as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

Subtitle D—Other Matters

SEC. 2841. EXPANSION OF FIRST SERGEANTS BARRACKS INITIATIVE.

(a) EXPANSION OF INITIATIVE.—Not later than September 30, 2011, the Secretary of the Army shall expand the First Sergeants Barracks Initiative (FSBI) to include all Army installations in order to improve the quality of life and living environments for single soldiers.

(b) PROGRESS REPORTS.—Not later than February 15, 2010, and February 15, 2011, the Secretary of the Army shall submit to Congress a report describing the progress made in expanding the First Sergeants Barracks Initiative to all Army installations, including whether the Secretary anticipates meeting the deadline imposed by subsection (a).

TITLE XXXI—DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY NATIONAL SECURITY PROGRAMS

Subtitle A—National Security Programs Authorizations

SEC. 3101. NATIONAL NUCLEAR SECURITY ADMINISTRATION.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Funds are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Energy for fiscal year 2010 for the activities of the National Nuclear Security Administration in carrying out programs necessary for national security in the amount of $10,051,215,000, to be allocated as follows:

(1) For weapons activities, $6,490,619,000.

(2) For defense nuclear nonproliferation activities, including $705,900,000 for fissile materials disposition, $2,136,709,000.

(3) For naval reactors, $1,003,133,000.

(4) For the Office of the Administrator for Nuclear Security, $420,754,000.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF NEW PLANT PROJECTS.—From funds referred to in subsection (a) that are available for carrying out plant projects, the Secretary of Energy may carry out new plant projects for the National Nuclear Security Administration as follows:

(1) For readiness in technical base and facilities, the following new plant project:

Project 10–D–501, Nuclear Facility Risk Reduction (NFRR), Y–12 National Security Complex, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, $12,500,000.

(2) For defense nuclear security, the following new plant project:

Project 10–D–701, Security Improvement Project (SIP), Y–12 National Security Complex, Oak Ridge, Tennessee, $49,000,000.

(3) For naval reactors, the following new plant projects:

Project 10–D–904, Naval Reactors Facility (NRF) infrastructure upgrades, Naval Reactors Facility, Idaho Falls, Idaho, $700,000.

Project 10–D–903, Security upgrades, Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, Knolls Site and Kesselring Site, Schenectady, New York, $1,500,000.

SEC. 3102. DEFENSE ENVIRONMENTAL CLEANUP.

Funds are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Energy for fiscal year 2010 for defense environmental cleanup activities in carrying out programs necessary for national security in the amount of $5,395,831,000.

SEC. 3103. OTHER DEFENSE ACTIVITIES.

Funds are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Energy for fiscal year 2010 for other defense activities in carrying out programs necessary for national security in the amount of $852,468,000.

SEC. 3104. DEFENSE NUCLEAR WASTE DISPOSAL.

Funds are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Energy for fiscal year 2010 for defense nuclear waste disposal for payment to the Nuclear Waste Fund established in section 302(c) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10222(c)) in the amount of $98,400,000.

SEC. 3105. FUNDING TABLE.

The amounts authorized to be appropriated by sections 3101, 3102, 3103, and 3104 shall be available, in accordance with the requirements of section 4001, for projects, programs, and activities, and in the amounts, specified in the funding table in section 4501.

Subtitle B—Program Authorizations, Restrictions, and Limitations

SEC. 3111. NUCLEAR WEAPONS STOCKPILE LIFE EXTENSION PROGRAM.

Section 4204 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2524) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 4204. NUCLEAR WEAPONS STOCKPILE LIFE EXTENSION PROGRAM.

“(a) PROGRAM REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Energy shall, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense, carry out a program to provide for the extension of the effective life of the weapons in the nuclear weapons stockpile without nuclear weapons testing.

“(b) ADMINISTRATIVE RESPONSIBILITY FOR PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The program under subsection (a) shall be carried out through the National Nuclear Security Administration.

“(2) INCLUSION OF PROGRAM FUNDS IN BUDGET.—For each budget submitted by the President to Congress under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the amounts requested for the program under subsection (a) shall be clearly identified in the budget justification materials submitted to Congress in support of that budget.

“(c) PROGRAM PLAN.—As part of the program under subsection (a), the Secretary of Energy shall develop a long-term plan to extend the effective life of the weapons in the nuclear weapons stockpile without nuclear weapons testing. The plan shall include the following:

“(1) Mechanisms to provide for the manufacture, maintenance, and modernization of each weapon design in the nuclear stockpile, as needed.

“(2) Mechanisms to expedite the collection of information necessary for carrying out the program, including information relating to the aging of materials and components, new manufacturing techniques, and the replacement or substitution of materials.

“(3) Mechanisms to ensure the appropriate assignment of roles and missions for each nuclear weapons laboratory and production plant of the Department of Energy, including mechanisms for allocation of workload, mechanisms to ensure the carrying out of appropriate modernization activities, and mechanisms to ensure the retention of skilled personnel.

“(4) Mechanisms to ensure that each national laboratory of the National Nuclear Security Administration has full and complete access to all weapons data to enable a rigorous peer review process to support the annual assessment of the condition of the nuclear weapons stockpile required under section 4205.

“(5) Mechanisms for allocating funds for activities under the program, including allocations of funds by weapon type and facility.

“(6) An identification of the funds needed, in the current fiscal year and in each of the next 5 fiscal years, to carry out the program.

“(d) ANNUAL UPDATES.—The Secretary of Energy shall update the plan required under subsection (c) annually and shall submit the updated plan to Congress as part of the plan for maintaining the nuclear weapons stockpile submitted to Congress under section 4203(c).

“(e) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON FUNDING OF PROGRAM.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should include in each budget for a fiscal year submitted to Congress under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, sufficient funds to carry out in that fiscal year the activities under the program under subsection (a) that are specified in the most current version of the plan required under subsection (c).”.

SEC. 3112. ELIMINATION OF NUCLEAR WEAPONS LIFE EXTENSION PROGRAM FROM EXCEPTION TO REQUIREMENT TO REQUEST FUNDS IN BUDGET OF THE PRESIDENT.

Section 4209 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2529) is amended—

(1) in subsection (c), by striking “necessary—” and all that follows through the period and inserting “necessary to address proliferation concerns.”; and

(2) in subsection (d)—

(A) by striking paragraph (1); and

(B) by redesignating paragraphs (2) and (3) as paragraphs (1) and (2), respectively.

SEC. 3113. REPEAL OF RELIABLE REPLACEMENT WARHEAD PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 4204A of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2524a) is repealed.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of contents for that Act is amended by striking the item relating to section 4204A.

SEC. 3114. AUTHORIZATION OF USE OF INTERNATIONAL NUCLEAR MATERIALS PROTECTION AND COOPERATION PROGRAM FUNDS FOR BILATERAL AND MULTILATERAL NON-PROLIFERATION AND DISARMAMENT ACTIVITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and subject to subsection (b), the Secretary of Energy may obligate or expend not more than 10 percent of the funds authorized to be appropriated or otherwise made available for the International Nuclear Materials Protection and Cooperation program in a fiscal year to provide assistance for or to otherwise carry out bilateral or multilateral activities relating to nonproliferation or disarmament.

(b) NOTIFICATION OF CONGRESSIONAL DEFENSE COMMITTEES.—The Secretary may obligate or expend funds pursuant to subsection (a) if, not less than 15 days before obligating or expending such funds—

(1) the Secretary notifies the congressional defense committees of the intent of the Secretary to obligate or expend such funds; and

(2) the President certifies to the congressional defense committees that obligating or expending such funds is necessary to support the national security objectives of the United States.

SEC. 3115. REPEAL OF PROHIBITION ON FUNDING ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATED WITH INTERNATIONAL COOPERATIVE STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 4301 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2561) is repealed.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents for that Act is amended by striking the item relating to section 4301.

SEC. 3116. MODIFICATION OF MINOR CONSTRUCTION THRESHOLD FOR PLANT PROJECTS.

Section 4701(3) of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2741(3)) is amended by striking “$5,000,000” and inserting “$7,000,000”.

SEC. 3117. TWO-YEAR EXTENSION OF AUTHORITY FOR APPOINTMENT OF CERTAIN SCIENTIFIC, ENGINEERING, AND TECHNICAL PERSONNEL.

Section 4601(c)(1) of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2701(c)(1)) is amended by striking “September 30, 2009” and inserting “September 30, 2011”.

SEC. 3118. REPEAL OF SUNSET DATE FOR CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTERINTELLIGENCE PROGRAMS OF DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY AND NATIONAL NUCLEAR SECURITY ADMINISTRATION.

Section 3117 of the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007 (Public Law 109-364; 120 Stat. 2507; 42 U.S.C. 7144b note) is amended by amending subsection (a) to read as follows:

“(a) TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS.—The functions, personnel, funds, assets, and other resources of the Office of Defense Nuclear Counterintelligence of the National Nuclear Security Administration are transferred to the Secretary of Energy, to be administered (except to any extent otherwise directed by the Secretary) by the Director of the Office of Counterintelligence of the Department of Energy.”.

Subtitle C—Other Matters

SEC. 3131. TEN-YEAR PLAN FOR UTILIZATION AND FUNDING OF CERTAIN DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY FACILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator for Nuclear Security and the Under Secretary for Science of the Department of Energy shall jointly develop a plan to use and fund, over a ten-year period, the following facilities of the Department of Energy:

(1) The National Ignition Facility at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, California.

(2) The Los Alamos Neutron Science Center at the Los Alamos National Laboratory, New Mexico.

(3) The “Z” Machine at the Sandia National Laboratories, New Mexico.

(4) The Microsystems and Engineering Sciences Application (MESA) Facility at the Sandia National Laboratories, New Mexico.

(b) SUBMITTAL OF PLAN.—Not later than 45 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator for Nuclear Security and the Under Secretary for Science of the Department of Energy shall submit to the congressional defense committees the plan required by subsection (a).

(c) REQUIREMENT TO SPECIFY SOURCE OF FACILITY FUNDING IN BUDGET REQUESTS.—In any budget request for the Department of Energy for a fiscal year that is submitted to Congress after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Energy shall identify for that fiscal year the portion of the funding for each facility specified in subsection (a) that is to be provided by the National Nuclear Security Administration and by the Office of Science of the Department of Energy.

SEC. 3132. REVIEW OF MANAGEMENT AND OPERATION OF CERTAIN NATIONAL LABORATORIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Energy shall, in consultation with the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives, appoint an independent panel of experts to conduct a review of the management and operation of the following:

(1) The Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, California.

(2) The Los Alamos National Laboratory, New Mexico.

(3) The Sandia National Laboratories, New Mexico.

(b) ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.—

(1) APPOINTMENT OF CHAIRPERSON.—The Secretary of Energy shall appoint a chairperson of the panel from among the members of the panel.

(2) DESIGNATION OF AGENCY STAFF TO PANEL.—The Secretary of Energy, the Secretary of Defense, and the Director of National Intelligence shall each designate one or more employees of the Department of Energy, the Department of Defense, and the intelligence community, respectively, to serve as liaisons between the panel and the Department of Energy, the Department of Defense, or the intelligence community, as the case may be.

(3) AGENCY COOPERATION.—The Secretary of Energy shall, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense and the Director of National Intelligence, ensure that the panel receives full and timely cooperation from the Department of Energy, the Department of Defense, and the Director of National Intelligence in conducting the review required under subsection (a).

(4) SUPPORT FROM FEDERALLY FUNDED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CENTER.—The Secretary of Energy may use a federally funded research and development center not associated with the Department of Energy to provide support to the panel.

(c) ELEMENTS.—The review required under subsection (a) shall include, with respect to each laboratory specified in such subsection, an evaluation of the following:

(1) The quality of the scientific research being conducted at the laboratory, including research with respect to weapons science, nonproliferation, energy, and basic science.

(2) The quality of the engineering being conducted at the laboratory.

(3) The general operations of the laboratory, including the management of facilities and procedures with respect to safety, security, environmental management and compliance, and human capital.

(4) The financial operations of the laboratory, including contract administration, accounting controls, and management of property and equipment.

(5) The management of work conducted by the laboratory for entities other than the Department of Energy, including academic institutions and other Federal agencies, and interactions between the laboratory and such entities.

(6) The adequacy and effectiveness of the form and scope of current management contracts in implementing the mission of the laboratory.

(7) The effectiveness of the management and oversight of the laboratory by the Department of Energy.

(d) REPORT OF PANEL.—The panel shall submit to the Secretary of Energy a report containing the results of the review and any recommendations of the panel resulting from the review.

(e) TRANSMITTAL TO CONGRESS.—Not later than January 1, 2011, the Secretary of Energy shall transmit to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives the report of the panel submitted under subsection (d) and any comments or recommendations of the Secretary with respect to that report.

SEC. 3133. INCLUSION IN 2010 STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP PLAN OF CERTAIN INFORMATION RELATING TO STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP CRITERIA.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Energy shall include in the 2010 stockpile stewardship plan the elements specified in subsection (b).

(b) ELEMENTS.—The elements specified in this subsection are the following:

(1) An update of any information or criteria included in the report on stockpile stewardship criteria submitted under subsection (c) of section 4202 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2522).

(2) A description of any additional information identified under paragraph (1) of such subsection (c) or criteria established under subsection (a) of such section 4202 during the period beginning on the date of the submittal of the report under section 3133 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004 (Public Law 108-136; 117 Stat. 1751; 50 U.S.C. 2523 note) and ending on the date of the submittal of the 2010 stockpile stewardship plan.

(3) For each science-based tool developed or modified by the Department of Energy during the period described in paragraph (2) to collect information needed to determine that the nuclear weapons stockpile is safe, secure, and reliable—

(A) a description of the relationship of the science-based tool to the collection of such information; and

(B) a description of criteria for assessing the effectiveness of the science-based tool in collecting such information.

(c) 2010 STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP PLAN DEFINED.—In this section, the term “2010 stockpile stewardship plan” means the updated version of the plan for maintaining the nuclear weapons stockpile developed under section 4203 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2523) and required to be submitted to Congress on May 1, 2010, by subsection (c) of such section.

SEC. 3134. COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES REVIEW OF PROJECTS CARRIED OUT BY THE OFFICE OF ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY PURSUANT TO THE AMERICAN RECOVERY AND REINVESTMENT ACT OF 2009.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a series of three reviews, as described in subsections (b), (c), and (d), of projects carried out by the Office of Environmental Management of the Department of Energy (in this section referred to as the “Office”) using American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds.

(b) PHASE ONE REVIEW.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall conduct a review of the following:

(A) The criteria used by the Office to select projects to be carried out using American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds.

(B) The extent to which lessons learned during previous accelerations of defense environmental cleanup efforts were used in the development of such criteria.

(C) The process used by the Office to estimate costs and develop schedules for such projects.

(D) The process used by the Office for the independent validation of the scope, cost, and schedule for such projects.

(E) The criteria and methodology used by the Office to measure the contribution of each such project toward reducing the overall costs, and meeting the goals, of defense environmental cleanup.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report containing the results of the review conducted under paragraph (1).

(c) PHASE TWO REVIEW.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General shall conduct a review, during the period described in paragraph (2), of the following:

(A) The implementation of each project carried out using American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds.

(B) The extent to which each such project is meeting the cost and scheduling goals of the project.

(C) The number of jobs created or maintained through such projects.

(D) The adequacy of contract oversight for such projects.

(E) Any technical problems or other problems in connection with such projects that are identified by the Comptroller General in the course of the review.

(F) Any management and implementation issues or actions, or other systemic issues, identified by the Comptroller General in the course of the review that either hinder or assist the effective management of defense environmental cleanup efforts.

(2) PERIOD DESCRIBED.—The period described in this paragraph is the period—

(A) beginning on the date on which the Comptroller General submits the report required under subsection (b)(2); and

(B) ending on the later of—

(i) the date on which all projects carried out using American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds have been completed; or

(ii) the date on which all American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds have been obligated or expended or are no longer available to be obligated or expended.

(3) REPORTS.—The Comptroller General shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on the status of the review conducted under paragraph (1) not later than 30 days after submitting the report required under subsection (b)(2) and every 120 days thereafter until the end of the period described in paragraph (2).

(d) PHASE THREE REVIEW.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Beginning on the date on which the Comptroller General submits the last report required under subsection (c)(3), the Comptroller General shall conduct a review of the following:

(A) The implementation of all projects carried out using American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds, including the number of such projects that were completed, that were not completed, that were completed on budget, that exceeded the budget for such project, that were completed on schedule, and that exceeded the scheduling goals for such project.

(B) The impact on employment as a result of the completion of such projects.

(C) Any lessons learned as a result of accelerating such projects.

(D) The extent to which the achievement of the overall goals of defense environmental cleanup were accelerated, and the overall costs of defense environmental cleanup were reduced, as a result of such projects.

(E) Any other issues the Comptroller General considers appropriate with respect to such projects.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after submitting the last report required under subsection (c)(3), the Comptroller General shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report containing the results of the review conducted under paragraph (1).

(e) AMERICAN RECOVERY AND REINVESTMENT ACT FUNDS DEFINED.—In this section, the term “American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funds” means funds made available for the Office of Environmental Management under the heading “DEFENSE ENVIRONMENTAL CLEANUP” under the heading “ENVIRONMENTAL AND OTHER DEFENSE ACTIVITIES” under the heading “DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY” under title IV of division A of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5; 123 Stat. 140).

SEC. 3135. IDENTIFICATION IN BUDGET MATERIALS OF AMOUNTS FOR CERTAIN DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY PENSION OBLIGATIONS.

The Secretary of Energy shall include in the budget justification materials submitted to Congress in support of the Department of Energy budget for a fiscal year (as submitted with the budget of the President under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code) specific identification, as a budgetary line item, of the amounts required to meet the pension obligations of the Department of Energy for contractor employees at each facility of the Department of Energy operated using amounts authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Energy.

SEC. 3136. EXPANSION OF AUTHORITY OF OMBUDSMAN OF ENERGY EMPLOYEES OCCUPATIONAL ILLNESS COMPENSATION PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 3686 of the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 7385s-15) is amended—

(1) in subsection (c), by inserting “and subtitle B” after “this subtitle” each place it appears;

(2) in subsection (d), by inserting “and subtitle B” after “this subtitle”;

(3) in subsection (e), by inserting “and subtitle B” after “this subtitle” each place it appears;

(4) by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h); and

(5) by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

“(g) NATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH OMBUDSMAN.—In carrying out the duties of the Ombudsman under this section, the Ombudsman shall work with the individual employed by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health to serve as an ombudsman to individuals making claims under subtitle B.”.

(b) CONSTRUCTION.—Except as specifically provided in subsection (g) of section 3686 of the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000, as amended by subsection (a) of this section, nothing in the amendments made by such subsection (a) shall be construed to alter or affect the duties and functions of the individual employed by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health to serve as an ombudsman to individuals making claims under subtitle B of the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 7384i et seq.).

SEC. 3137. COMPTROLLER GENERAL STUDY OF STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study of the stockpile stewardship program established under section 4201 of the Atomic Energy Defense Act (50 U.S.C. 2521) to determine if the program was functioning, as of December 2008, as envisioned when the program was established.

(b) ELEMENTS.—The study required by subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) An assessment of whether the capabilities determined to be necessary to maintain the nuclear weapons stockpile without nuclear testing have been implemented and the extent to which such capabilities are functioning.

(2) A review and description of the agreements governing use, management, and support of the capabilities developed for the stockpile stewardship program and an assessment of enforcement of, and compliance with, those agreements.

(3) An assessment of plans for surveillance and testing of nuclear weapons in the stockpile and the extent of the compliance with such plans.

(4) An assessment of—

(A) the condition of the infrastructure at the plants and laboratories of the nuclear weapons complex;

(B) the value of nuclear weapons facilities built after 1992;

(C) any plans that are in place to maintain, improve, or replace such infrastructure;

(D) whether there is a validated requirement for all planned infrastructure replacement projects; and

(E) the projected costs for each such project and the timeline for completion of each such project.

(5) An assessment of the efforts to ensure and maintain the intellectual and technical capability of the nuclear weapons complex to support the nuclear weapons stockpile.

(6) Recommendations for the stockpile stewardship program going forward.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 270 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report containing the results of the study required by subsection (a).

SEC. 3138. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON PRODUCTION OF MOLYBDENUM-99.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) There are fewer than five reactors around the world currently capable of producing molybdenum-99 (Mo-99) and there are no such reactors in the United States that can provide a reliable supply of Mo-99 to meet medical needs.

(2) Since November 2007, there have been major disruptions in the global availability of Mo-99, including at facilities in Canada and the Netherlands, which have led to shortages of Mo-99-based medical products in the United States and around the world.

(3) Ensuring a reliable supply of medical radioisotopes, including Mo-99, is of great importance to the public health.

(4) It is also a national security priority of the United States, and specifically of the Department of Energy, to encourage the production of low-enriched uranium-based radioisotopes in order to promote a more peaceful international nuclear order.

(5) The National Academy of Sciences has identified a need to establish a reliable capability in the United States for the production of Mo-99 and its derivatives for medical purposes using low-enriched uranium.

(6) There also exists a capable industrial base in the United States that can support the development of Mo-99 production facilities and can conduct the processing and distribution of radiopharmaceutical products for use in medical tests worldwide.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) radioisotopes and radiopharmaceuticals, including Mo-99 and its derivatives, are essential components of medical tests that help diagnose and treat life-threatening diseases affecting millions of people each year; and

(2) the Secretary of Energy should continue and expand a program to meet the need identified by the National Academy of Sciences to ensure a source of Mo-99 and its derivatives for use in medical tests to help ensure the health security of the United States and around the world and promote peaceful nuclear industries through the use of low-enriched uranium.

TITLE XXXII—DEFENSE NUCLEAR FACILITIES SAFETY BOARD

SEC. 3201. AUTHORIZATION.

There are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 2010, $26,086,000 for the operation of the Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board under chapter 21 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2286 et seq.).

TITLE XXXIII—MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 3301. MARITIME ADMINISTRATION.

Section 109 of title 49, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“§ 109. Maritime Administration

“(a) ORGANIZATION.—The Maritime Administration is an administration in the Department of Transportation.

“(b) MARITIME ADMINISTRATOR.—The head of the Maritime Administration is the Maritime Administrator, who is appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Administrator shall report directly to the Secretary of Transportation and carry out the duties prescribed by the Secretary.

“(c) DEPUTY MARITIME ADMINISTRATOR.—The Maritime Administrator shall have a Deputy Maritime Administrator, who is appointed in the competitive service by the Secretary, after consultation with the Administrator. The Deputy Administrator shall carry out the duties prescribed by the Administrator. The Deputy Administrator shall be Acting Administrator during the absence or disability of the Administrator and, unless the Secretary designates another individual, during a vacancy in the office of Administrator.

“(d) DUTIES AND POWERS VESTED IN SECRETARY.—All duties and powers of the Maritime Administration are vested in the Secretary.

“(e) REGIONAL OFFICES.—The Maritime Administration shall have regional offices for the Atlantic, Gulf, Great Lakes, and Pacific port ranges, and may have other regional offices as necessary. The Secretary shall appoint a qualified individual as Director of each regional office. The Secretary shall carry out appropriate activities and programs of the Maritime Administration through the regional offices.

“(f) INTERAGENCY AND INDUSTRY RELATIONS.—The Secretary shall establish and maintain liaison with other agencies, and with representative trade organizations throughout the United States, concerned with the transportation of commodities by water in the export and import foreign commerce of the United States, for the purpose of securing preference to vessels of the United States for the transportation of those commodities.

“(g) DETAILING OFFICERS FROM ARMED FORCES.—To assist the Secretary in carrying out duties and powers relating to the Maritime Administration, not more than five officers of the armed forces may be detailed to the Secretary at any one time, in addition to details authorized by any other law. During the period of a detail, the Secretary shall pay the officer an amount that, when added to the officer's pay and allowances as an officer in the armed forces, make the officer's total pay and allowances equal to the amount that would be paid to an individual performing work the Secretary considers to be of similar importance, difficulty, and responsibility as that performed by the officer during the detail.

“(h) CONTRACTS AND AUDITS.—

“(1) CONTRACTS.—In the same manner that a private corporation may make a contract within the scope of its authority under its charter, the Secretary may make contracts for the United States Government and disburse amounts to—

“(A) carry out the Secretary's duties and powers under this section and subtitle V of title 46; and “(B) protect, preserve, and improve collateral held by the Secretary to secure indebtedness.

“(2) AUDITS.—The financial transactions of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be audited by the Comptroller General. The Comptroller General shall allow credit for an expenditure shown to be necessary because of the nature of the business activities authorized by this section or subtitle V of title 46. At least once a year, the Comptroller General shall report to Congress any departure by the Secretary from this section or subtitle V of title 46.

“(i) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, there are authorized to be appropriated such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the duties and powers of the Secretary relating to the Maritime Administration.

“(2) LIMITATIONS.—Only those amounts specifically authorized by law may be appropriated for the use of the Maritime Administration for—

“(A) acquisition, construction, or reconstruction of vessels;

“(B) construction-differential subsidies incident to the construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning of vessels;

“(C) costs of national defense features;

“(D) payments of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies;

“(E) expenses necessary for research and development activities, including reimbursement of the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund for losses resulting from expenses of experimental vessel operations;

“(F) the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund;

“(G) National Defense Reserve Fleet expenses;

“(H) expenses necessary to carry out part B of subtitle V of title 46; and “(I) other operations and training expenses related to the development of waterborne transportation systems, the use of waterborne transportation systems, and general administration.

“(3) TRAINING VESSELS.—Amounts may not be appropriated for the purchase or construction of training vessels for State maritime academies unless the Secretary has approved a plan for sharing training vessels between State maritime academies.”.

DIVISION D—FUNDING TABLES

SEC. 4001. AUTHORIZATION OF AMOUNTS IN FUNDING TABLES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Whenever a funding table in this division specifies a dollar amount authorized for a project, program, or activity, the obligation and expenditure of the specified dollar amount for the project, program, or activity is hereby authorized, subject to the availability of appropriations.

(b) MERIT-BASED DECISIONS.—Decisions by agency heads to commit, obligate, or expend funds with or to a specific entity on the basis of a dollar amount authorized pursuant to subsection (a) shall be based on authorized, transparent, statutory criteria, or merit-based selection procedures in accordance with the requirements of sections 2304(k) and 2374 of title 10, United States Code, and other applicable provisions of law.

(c) RELATIONSHIP TO TRANSFER AND REPROGRAMMING AUTHORITY.—An amount specified in the funding tables in this division may be transferred or reprogrammed under a transfer or reprogramming authority provided by another provision of this Act or by other law. The transfer or reprogramming of an amount specified in such funding tables shall not count against a ceiling on such transfers or reprogrammings under section 1001 of this Act or any other provision of law, unless such transfer or reprogramming would move funds between appropriation accounts.

(d) ORAL AND WRITTEN COMMUNICATIONS.—No oral or written communication concerning any amount specified in the funding tables in this division shall supercede the requirements of this section.

DIVISION E—MATTHEW SHEPARD HATE CRIMES PREVENTION ACT

SEC. 4701. SHORT TITLE.

This division may be cited as the “Matthew Shepard Hate Crimes Prevention Act”.

SEC. 4702. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The incidence of violence motivated by the actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, or disability of the victim poses a serious national problem.

(2) Such violence disrupts the tranquility and safety of communities and is deeply divisive.

(3) State and local authorities are now and will continue to be responsible for prosecuting the overwhelming majority of violent crimes in the United States, including violent crimes motivated by bias. These authorities can carry out their responsibilities more effectively with greater Federal assistance.

(4) Existing Federal law is inadequate to address this problem.

(5) A prominent characteristic of a violent crime motivated by bias is that it devastates not just the actual victim and the family and friends of the victim, but frequently savages the community sharing the traits that caused the victim to be selected.

(6) Such violence substantially affects interstate commerce in many ways, including the following:

(A) The movement of members of targeted groups is impeded, and members of such groups are forced to move across State lines to escape the incidence or risk of such violence.

(B) Members of targeted groups are prevented from purchasing goods and services, obtaining or sustaining employment, or participating in other commercial activity.

(C) Perpetrators cross State lines to commit such violence.

(D) Channels, facilities, and instrumentalities of interstate commerce are used to facilitate the commission of such violence.

(E) Such violence is committed using articles that have traveled in interstate commerce.

(7) For generations, the institutions of slavery and involuntary servitude were defined by the race, color, and ancestry of those held in bondage. Slavery and involuntary servitude were enforced, both prior to and after the adoption of the 13th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, through widespread public and private violence directed at persons because of their race, color, or ancestry, or perceived race, color, or ancestry. Accordingly, eliminating racially motivated violence is an important means of eliminating, to the extent possible, the badges, incidents, and relics of slavery and involuntary servitude.

(8) Both at the time when the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments to the Constitution of the United States were adopted, and continuing to date, members of certain religious and national origin groups were and are perceived to be distinct “races”. Thus, in order to eliminate, to the extent possible, the badges, incidents, and relics of slavery, it is necessary to prohibit assaults on the basis of real or perceived religions or national origins, at least to the extent such religions or national origins were regarded as races at the time of the adoption of the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments to the Constitution of the United States.

(9) Federal jurisdiction over certain violent crimes motivated by bias enables Federal, State, and local authorities to work together as partners in the investigation and prosecution of such crimes.

(10) The problem of crimes motivated by bias is sufficiently serious, widespread, and interstate in nature as to warrant Federal assistance to States, local jurisdictions, and Indian tribes.

SEC. 4703. DEFINITION OF HATE CRIME.

In this division—

(1) the term “crime of violence” has the meaning given that term in section 16, title 18, United States Code;

(2) the term “hate crime” has the meaning given such term in section 280003(a) of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (28 U.S.C. 994 note); and

(3) the term “local” means a county, city, town, township, parish, village, or other general purpose political subdivision of a State.

SEC. 4704. SUPPORT FOR CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS AND PROSECUTIONS BY STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS.

(a) ASSISTANCE OTHER THAN FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—At the request of State, local, or tribal law enforcement agency, the Attorney General may provide technical, forensic, prosecutorial, or any other form of assistance in the criminal investigation or prosecution of any crime that—

(A) constitutes a crime of violence;

(B) constitutes a felony under the State, local, or tribal laws; and

(C) is motivated by prejudice based on the actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, or disability of the victim, or is a violation of the State, local, or tribal hate crime laws.

(2) PRIORITY.—In providing assistance under paragraph (1), the Attorney General shall give priority to crimes committed by offenders who have committed crimes in more than one State and to rural jurisdictions that have difficulty covering the extraordinary expenses relating to the investigation or prosecution of the crime.

(b) GRANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General may award grants to State, local, and tribal law enforcement agencies for extraordinary expenses associated with the investigation and prosecution of hate crimes.

(2) OFFICE OF JUSTICE PROGRAMS.—In implementing the grant program under this subsection, the Office of Justice Programs shall work closely with grantees to ensure that the concerns and needs of all affected parties, including community groups and schools, colleges, and universities, are addressed through the local infrastructure developed under the grants.

(3) APPLICATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State, local, and tribal law enforcement agency that desires a grant under this subsection shall submit an application to the Attorney General at such time, in such manner, and accompanied by or containing such information as the Attorney General shall reasonably require.

(B) DATE FOR SUBMISSION.—Applications submitted pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall be submitted during the 60-day period beginning on a date that the Attorney General shall prescribe.

(C) REQUIREMENTS.—A State, local, and tribal law enforcement agency applying for a grant under this subsection shall—

(i) describe the extraordinary purposes for which the grant is needed;

(ii) certify that the State, local government, or Indian tribe lacks the resources necessary to investigate or prosecute the hate crime;

(iii) demonstrate that, in developing a plan to implement the grant, the State, local, and tribal law enforcement agency has consulted and coordinated with nonprofit, nongovernmental victim services programs that have experience in providing services to victims of hate crimes; and

(iv) certify that any Federal funds received under this subsection will be used to supplement, not supplant, non-Federal funds that would otherwise be available for activities funded under this subsection.

(4) DEADLINE.—An application for a grant under this subsection shall be approved or denied by the Attorney General not later than 180 business days after the date on which the Attorney General receives the application.

(5) GRANT AMOUNT.—A grant under this subsection shall not exceed $100,000 for any single jurisdiction in any 1-year period.

(6) REPORT.—Not later than December 31, 2010, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a report describing the applications submitted for grants under this subsection, the award of such grants, and the purposes for which the grant amounts were expended.

(7) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subsection $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2010 and 2011.

SEC. 4705. GRANT PROGRAM.

(a) AUTHORITY TO AWARD GRANTS.—The Office of Justice Programs of the Department of Justice may award grants, in accordance with such regulations as the Attorney General may prescribe, to State, local, or tribal programs designed to combat hate crimes committed by juveniles, including programs to train local law enforcement officers in identifying, investigating, prosecuting, and preventing hate crimes.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 4706. AUTHORIZATION FOR ADDITIONAL PERSONNEL TO ASSIST STATE, LOCAL, AND TRIBAL LAW ENFORCEMENT.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Justice, including the Community Relations Service, for fiscal years 2010, 2011, and 2012 such sums as are necessary to increase the number of personnel to prevent and respond to alleged violations of section 249 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 4707 of this division.

SEC. 4707. PROHIBITION OF CERTAIN HATE CRIME ACTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 13 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“§249. Hate crime acts

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) OFFENSES INVOLVING ACTUAL OR PERCEIVED RACE, COLOR, RELIGION, OR NATIONAL ORIGIN.—Whoever, whether or not acting under color of law, willfully causes bodily injury to any person or, through the use of fire, a firearm, a dangerous weapon, or an explosive or incendiary device, attempts to cause bodily injury to any person, because of the actual or perceived race, color, religion, or national origin of any person—

“(A) shall be imprisoned not more than 10 years, fined in accordance with this title, or both; and

“(B) shall be imprisoned for any term of years or for life, fined in accordance with this title, or both, if—

“(i) death results from the offense; or

“(ii) the offense includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or an attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill.

“(2) OFFENSES INVOLVING ACTUAL OR PERCEIVED RELIGION, NATIONAL ORIGIN, GENDER, SEXUAL ORIENTATION, GENDER IDENTITY, OR DISABILITY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Whoever, whether or not acting under color of law, in any circumstance described in subparagraph (B) or paragraph (3), willfully causes bodily injury to any person or, through the use of fire, a firearm, a dangerous weapon, or an explosive or incendiary device, attempts to cause bodily injury to any person, because of the actual or perceived religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability of any person—

“(i) shall be imprisoned not more than 10 years, fined in accordance with this title, or both; and

“(ii) shall be imprisoned for any term of years or for life, fined in accordance with this title, or both, if—title, or both, and shall be subject to the penalty of death in accordance with chapter 228 (if death results from the offense), if—

“(i) death results from the offense; or

“(ii) the offense includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or an attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill.

“(2) OFFENSES INVOLVING ACTUAL OR PERCEIVED RELIGION, NATIONAL ORIGIN, GENDER, SEXUAL ORIENTATION, GENDER IDENTITY, OR DISABILITY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Whoever, whether or not acting under color of law, in any circumstance described in subparagraph (B) or paragraph (3), willfully causes bodily injury to any person or, through the use of fire, a firearm, a dangerous weapon, or an explosive or incendiary device, attempts to cause bodily injury to any person, because of the actual or perceived religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability of any person—

“(i) shall be imprisoned not more than 10 years, fined in accordance with this title, or both; and

“(ii) shall be imprisoned for any term of years or for life, fined in accordance with this title, or both, and shall be subject to the penalty of death in accordance with chapter 228 (if death results from the offense), if—

“(I) death results from the offense; or

“(II) the offense includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or an attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill.

“(B) CIRCUMSTANCES DESCRIBED.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the circumstances described in this subparagraph are that—

“(i) the conduct described in subparagraph (A) occurs during the course of, or as the result of, the travel of the defendant or the victim—

“(I) across a State line or national border; or

“(II) using a channel, facility, or instrumentality of interstate or foreign commerce;

“(ii) the defendant uses a channel, facility, or instrumentality of interstate or foreign commerce in connection with the conduct described in subparagraph (A);

“(iii) in connection with the conduct described in subparagraph (A), the defendant employs a firearm, dangerous weapon, explosive or incendiary device, or other weapon that has traveled in interstate or foreign commerce; or

“(iv) the conduct described in subparagraph (A)—

“(I) interferes with commercial or other economic activity in which the victim is engaged at the time of the conduct; or “(II) otherwise affects interstate or foreign commerce.

“(3) OFFENSES OCCURRING IN THE SPECIAL MARITIME OR TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION OF THE UNITED STATES.—Whoever, within the special maritime or territorial jurisdiction of the United States, commits an offense described in paragraph (1) or (2) shall be subject to the same penalties as prescribed in those paragraphs.

“(b) CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—No prosecution of any offense described in this subsection may be undertaken by the United States, except under the certification in writing of the Attorney General, or his designee, that—

“(A) the State does not have jurisdiction;

“(B) the State has requested that the Federal Government assume jurisdiction;

“(C) the verdict or sentence obtained pursuant to State charges left demonstratively unvindicated the Federal interest in eradicating bias-motivated violence; or “(D) a prosecution by the United States is in the public interest and necessary to secure substantial justice.

“(2) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to limit the authority of Federal officers, or a Federal grand jury, to investigate possible violations of this section.

“(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

“(1) the term ‘bodily injury’ has the meaning given such term in section 1365(h)(4) of this title, but does not include solely emotional or psychological harm to the victim;

“(2) the term ‘explosive or incendiary device’ has the meaning given such term in section 232 of this title;

“(3) the term ‘firearm’ has the meaning given such term in section 921(a) of this title; and

“(4) the term ‘gender identity’ for the purposes of this chapter means actual or perceived gender-related characteristics.”

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The analysis for chapter 13 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“249. Hate crime acts.”

SEC. 4708. STATISTICS.

(b) DATA.—Subsection (b)(5) of the first section of the Hate Crime Statistics Act (28 U.S.C. 534 note) is amended by inserting “, including data about crimes committed by, and crimes directed against, juveniles" after "data acquired under this section".

SEC. 4709. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this division, an amendment made by this division, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this division, the amendments made by this division, and the application of the provisions of such to any person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

SEC. 4710. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

For purposes of construing this division and the amendments made by this division the following shall apply:

(1) RELEVANT EVIDENCE.—Courts may consider relevant evidence of speech, beliefs, or expressive conduct to the extent that such evidence is offered to prove an element of a charged offense or is otherwise admissible under the Federal Rules of Evidence. Nothing in this division is intended to affect the existing rules of evidence.

(2) VIOLENT ACTS.—This division applies to violent acts motivated by actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability of a victim.

SEC. 4711. CONSTRUCTION AND APPLICATION.

Nothing in this division, or an amendment made by this division, shall be construed or applied in a manner that infringes on any rights under the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States, or substantially burdens any exercise of religion (regardless of whether compelled by, or central to, a system of religious belief), speech, expression, association, if such exercise of religion, speech, expression, or association was not intended to—

(1) plan or prepare for an act of physical violence; or

(2) incite an imminent act of physical violence against another.

(3) FREE EXPRESSION.—Nothing in this division shall be construed to allow prosecution based solely upon an individual's expression of racial, religious, political, or other beliefs or solely upon an individual's membership in a group advocating or espousing such beliefs.

(4) FIRST AMENDMENT.—Nothing in this division, or an amendment made by this division, shall be construed to diminish any rights under the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(5) CONSTITUTIONAL PROTECTIONS.—Nothing in this division shall be construed to prohibit any constitutionally protected speech, expressive conduct or activities (regardless of whether compelled by, or central to, a system of religious belief), including the exercise of religion protected by the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States and peaceful picketing or demonstration. The Constitution does not protect speech, conduct or activities consisting of planning for, conspiring to commit, or committing an act of violence.

SEC. 4712. LIMITATION ON PROSECUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—All prosecutions under section 249 of title 18, United States Code, as added by this Act, shall be undertaken pursuant to guideline, issued by the Attorney General—

(1) to guide the exercise of the discretion of Federal prosecutors and the Attorney General in their decisions whether to seek death sentences under such section when the crime results in a loss of life; and

(2) that identify with particularity the type facts of such cases that will support the classification of individual cases in term of their culpability and death eligibility as low, medium, and high.

(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR DEATH PENALTY.—If the Government seeks a death sentence in crime under section 249 of title 18, United States Code, as added by this Act, that results in a loss of life—

(1) the Attorney General shall certify with particularity in the information or indictment how the facts of the case support the Government's judgment that the case is properly classified among the cases involving a hate crime that resulted in a victim's death;

(2) the Attorney General shall document in a filing to the court—

(A) the facts of the crime (including date of offense and arrest and location of the offense), charges, convictions, and sentences of all state and Federal hate crimes (committed before or after the effective date of this legislation) that resulted in a loss of life and were known to the Assistant United States Attorney or the Attorney General; and

(B) the actual or perceived race, color, national origin, ethnicity, religion, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, or disability of the defendant and all victims; and

(3)(A) the court, either at the close of the guilt trial or at the close of the penalty trial, shall conduct a proportionality review in which it shall examine whether the prosecutorial death seeking and death sentencing rates in comparable cases in Federal prosecutions are both greater than 50 percent; and

(B) if the United States fails to satisfy the test under subparagraph (A), by a preponderance of the evidence, the court shall dismiss the Government's action seeking a death sentence in the case.

SEC. 4713. GUIDELINES FOR HATE-CRIMES OFFENSES.

Section 249(a) of title 18, United States Code, as added by section _____ of this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(4) GUIDELINES.—All prosecutions conducted by the United States under this section shall be undertaken pursuant to guidelines issued by the Attorney General, or the designee of the Attorney General, to be included in the United States Attorneys' Manual that shall establish neutral and objective criteria for determining whether a crime was committed because of the actual or perceived status of any person."

SEC. 4714. ATTACKS ON UNITED STATES SERVICEMEN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 67 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§1389. Prohibition on attacks on United States servicemen on account of service

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Whoever knowingly assaults or batters a United States serviceman or an immediate family member of a United States serviceman, or who knowingly destroys or injures the property of such serviceman or immediate family member, on account of the military service of that serviceman or status of that individual as a United States serviceman, or who attempts or conspires to do so, shall—

"(1) in the case of a simple assault, or destruction or injury to property in which the damage or attempted damage to such property is not more than $500, be fined under this title in an amount not less than $500 nor more than $10,000 and imprisoned not more than 2 years;

"(2) in the case of destruction or injury to property in which the damage or attempted damage to such property is more than $500, be fined under this title in an amount not less than $1000 nor more than $100,000 and imprisoned not more than 5 years; and

"(3) in the case of a battery, or an assault resulting in bodily injury, be fined under this title in an amount not less than $2500 and imprisoned not less than 6 months nor more than 10 years.

"(b) EXCEPTION.—This section shall not apply to conduct by a person who is subject to the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

"(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

"(1) the term 'Armed Forces' has the meaning given that term in section 1388;

"(2) the term 'immediate family member' has the meaning given that term in section 115; and

"(3) the term 'United States serviceman'—

"(A) means a member of the Armed Forces; and

"(B) includes a former member of the Armed Forces during the 5-year period beginning on the date of the discharge from the Armed Forces of that member of the Armed Forces."

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 67 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"1389. Prohibition on attacks on United States servicemen on account of service."

DIVISION F—SBIR/STTR REAUTHORIZATION

SEC. 5001. SHORT TITLE.

This division may be cited as the "SBIR/STTR Reauthorization Act of 2009".

SEC. 5108. MAJORITY-VENTURE INVESTMENTS IN SBIR FIRMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 9 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638), as amended by this division, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(cc) MAJORITY-VENTURE INVESTMENTS IN SBIR FIRMS.—

"(1) AUTHORITY AND DETERMINATION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon a written determination provided not later than 30 days in advance to the Administrator and to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives—

"(i) the Director of the National Institutes of Health may award not more than 18 percent of the SBIR funds of the National Institutes of Health allocated in accordance with this Act, in the first full fiscal year beginning after the date of enactment of this subsection, and each fiscal year thereafter, to small business concerns that are owned in majority part by venture capital companies and that satisfy the qualification requirements under paragraph (2) through competitive, merit-based procedures that are open to all eligible small business concerns; and

"(ii) the head of any other Federal agency participating in the SBIR program may award not more than 8 percent of the SBIR funds of the Federal agency allocated in accordance with this Act, in the first full fiscal year beginning after the date of enactment of this subsection, and each fiscal year thereafter, to small business concerns that are majority owned by venture capital companies and that satisfy the qualification requirements under paragraph (2) through competitive, merit-based procedures that are open to all eligible small business concerns.

"(B) DETERMINATION.—A written determination made under subparagraph (A) shall explain how the use of the authority under that subparagraph will induce additional venture capital funding of small business innovations, substantially contribute to the mission of the funding Federal agency, demonstrate a need for public research, and otherwise fulfill the capital needs of small business concerns for additional financing for the SBIR program.

"(2) QUALIFICATION REQUIREMENTS.—The Administrator shall establish requirements relating to the affiliation by small business concerns with venture capital companies, which may not exclude a United States small business concern from participation in the program under paragraph (1) on the basis that the small business concern is owned in majority part by, or controlled by, more than 1 United States venture capital company, so long as no single venture capital company owns more than 49 percent of the small business concern.

"(3) REGISTRATION.—A small business concern that is majority owned and controlled by multiple venture capital companies and qualified for participation in the program authorized under paragraph (1) shall—

"(A) register with the Administrator on the date that the small business concern submits an application for an award under the SBIR program; and

"(B) indicate whether the small business concern is registered under subparagraph (A) in any SBIR proposal.

"(4) COMPLIANCE.—A Federal agency described in paragraph (1) shall collect data regarding the number and dollar amounts of phase I, phase II, and all other categories of awards under the SBIR program, and the Administrator shall report on the data and the compliance of each such Federal agency with the maximum amounts under paragraph (1) as part of the annual report by the Administration under subsection (b)(7).

"(5) ENFORCEMENT.—If a Federal agency awards more than the amount authorized under paragraph (1) for a purpose described in paragraph (1), the amount awarded in excess of the amount authorized under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the funds for general SBIR programs from the non-SBIR research and development funds of the Federal agency within 60 days of the date on which the Federal agency awarded more than the amount authorized under paragraph (1) for a purpose described in paragraph (1)."

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(t) VENTURE CAPITAL COMPANY.—In this Act, the term "venture capital company" means an entity described in clause (i), (v), or (vi) of section 121.103(b)(5) of title 13, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor thereto)."

(c) ASSISTANCE FOR DETERMINING AFFILIATES.—Not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall post on the website of the Administration (with a direct link displayed on the homepage of the website of the Administration or the SBIR website of the Administration)—

(1) a clear explanation of the SBIR affiliation rules under part 121 of title 13, Code of Federal Regulations; and

(2) contact information for officers or employees of the Administration who—

(A) upon request, shall review an issue relating to the rules described in paragraph (1); and

(B) shall respond to a request under subparagraph (A) not later than 20 business days after the date on which the request is received.

SEC. 5109. SBIR AND STTR SPECIAL ACQUISITION PREFERENCE.

Section 9(r) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638(r)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(4) PHASE III AWARDS.—To the greatest extent practicable, Federal agencies and Federal prime contractors shall issue Phase III awards relating to technology, including sole source awards, to the SBIR and STTR award recipients that developed the technology."

SEC. 5110. COLLABORATING WITH FEDERAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CENTERS.

Section 9 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638), as amended by this division, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(dd) COLLABORATING WITH FEDERAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CENTERS.—

"(1) AUTHORIZATION.—Subject to the limitations under this section, the head of each participating Federal agency may make SBIR and STTR awards to any eligible small business concern that—

"(A) intends to enter into an agreement with a Federal laboratory or federally funded research and development center for portions of the activities to be performed under that award; or

"(B) has entered into a cooperative research and development agreement (as defined in section 12(d) of the Stevenson-Wylder Technology Innovation Act of 1980 (15 U.S.C. 3710a(d))) with a Federal laboratory.

"(2) PROHIBITION.—No Federal agency shall—

"(A) condition an SBIR or STTR award upon entering into agreement with any Federal laboratory or any federally funded laboratory or research and development center for any portion of the activities to be performed under that award;

"(B) approve an agreement between a small business concern receiving a SBIR or STTR award and a Federal laboratory or federally funded laboratory or research and development center, if the small business concern performs a lesser portion of the activities to be performed under that award than required by this section and by the SBIR Policy Directive and the STTR Policy Directive of the Administrator; or

"(C) approve an agreement that violates any provision, including any data rights protections provision, of this section or the SBIR and the STTR Policy Directives.

"(3) IMPLEMENTATION.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this subsection, the Administrator shall modify the SBIR Policy Directive and the STTR Policy Directive issued under this section to ensure that small business concerns—

"(A) have the flexibility to use the resources of the Federal laboratories and federally funded research and development centers; and

"(B) are not mandated to enter into agreement with any Federal laboratory or any federally funded laboratory or research and development center as a condition of an award."

SEC. 5111. NOTICE REQUIREMENT.

The head of any Federal agency involved in a case or controversy before any Federal judicial or administrative tribunal concerning the SBIR program or the STTR program shall provide timely notice, as determined by the Administrator, of the case or controversy to the Administrator.

TITLE LII—OUTREACH AND COMMERCIALIZATION INITIATIVES

“(B) require a prime contractor on such a contract to report the number and dollar amount of contracts entered into by that prime contractor for Phase III SBIR or STTR projects.

“(6) GOAL FOR SBIR AND STTR TECHNOLOGY INSERTION.—The Secretary of Defense shall—

“(A) set a goal to increase the number of Phase II SBIR contracts and the number of Phase II STTR contracts awarded by that Secretary that lead to technology transition into programs of record or fielded systems;

“(B) use incentives in effect on the date of enactment of the SBIR/STTR Reauthorization Act of 2009, or create new incentives, to encourage agency program managers and prime contractors to meet the goal under subparagraph (A); and “(C) include in the annual report to Congress the percentage of contracts described in subparagraph (A) awarded by that Secretary, and information on the ongoing status of projects funded through the Commercialization Program and efforts to transition these technologies into programs of record or fielded systems.”.

SEC. 5205. COMMERCIALIZATION PILOT PROGRAM FOR CIVILIAN AGENCIES.

Section 9 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638), as amended by this division, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(ee) PILOT PROGRAM.—

“(1) AUTHORIZATION.—The head of each covered Federal agency may set aside not more than 10 percent of the SBIR and STTR funds of such agency for further technology development, testing, and evaluation of SBIR and STTR Phase II technologies.

“(2) APPLICATION BY FEDERAL AGENCY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A covered Federal agency may not establish a pilot program unless such agency makes a written application to the Administrator, not later than 90 days before to the first day of the fiscal year in which the pilot program is to be established, that describes a compelling reason that additional investment in SBIR or STTR technologies is necessary, including unusually high regulatory, systems integration, or other costs relating to development or manufacturing of identifiable, highly promising small business technologies or a class of such technologies expected to substantially advance the mission of the agency.

“(B) DETERMINATION.—The Administrator shall—

“(i) make a determination regarding an application submitted under subparagraph (A) not later than 30 days before the first day of the fiscal year for which the application is submitted;

“(ii) publish the determination in the Federal Register; and “(iii) make a copy of the determination and any related materials available to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives.

“(3) MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF AWARD.—The head of a Federal agency may not make an award under a pilot program in excess of 3 times the dollar amounts generally established for Phase II awards under subsection (j)(2)(D) or (p)(2)(B)(ix).

“(4) MATCHING.—The head of a Federal agency may not make an award under a pilot program for SBIR or STTR Phase II technology that will be acquired by the Federal Government unless new private, Federal non-SBIR, or Federal non-STTR funding that at least matches the award from the Federal agency is provided for the SBIR or STTR Phase II technology.

“(5) ELIGIBILITY FOR AWARD.—The head of a Federal agency may make an award under a pilot program to any applicant that is eligible to receive a Phase III award related to technology developed in Phase II of an SBIR or STTR project.

“(6) REGISTRATION.—Any applicant that receives an award under a pilot program shall register with the Administrator in a registry that is available to the public.

“(7) TERMINATION.—The authority to establish a pilot program under this section expires at the end of fiscal year 2014.

“(8) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

“(A) the term ‘covered Federal agency’—

“(i) means a Federal agency participating in the SBIR program or the STTR program; and “(ii) does not include the Department of Defense; and

“(B) the term ‘pilot program’ means the program established under paragraph (1).”.

SEC. 5206. NANOTECHNOLOGY INITIATIVE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 9 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638), as amended by this division, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(ff) NANOTECHNOLOGY INITIATIVE.—Each Federal agency participating in the SBIR or STTR program shall encourage the submission of applications for support of nanotechnology related projects to such program.”.

(b) SUNSET.—Effective October 1, 2014, subsection (ff) of the Small Business Act, as added by subsection (a) of this section, is repealed.

SEC. 5207. ACCELERATING CURES.

The Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 631 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by redesignating section 44 as section 45; and

(2) by inserting after section 43 the following:

“SEC. 44. SMALL BUSINESS INNOVATION RESEARCH PROGRAM.

“(a) NIH CURES PILOT.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—An independent advisory board shall be established at the National Academy of Sciences (in this section referred to as the ‘advisory board’) to conduct periodic evaluations of the SBIR program (as that term is defined in section 9) of each of the National Institutes of Health (referred to in this section as the ‘NIH’) institutes and centers for the purpose of improving the management of the SBIR program through data-driven assessment.

“(2) MEMBERSHIP.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The advisory board shall consist of—

“(i) the Director of the NIH;

“(ii) the Director of the SBIR program of the NIH;

“(iii) senior NIH agency managers, selected by the Director of NIH;

“(iv) industry experts, selected by the Council of the National Academy of Sciences in consultation with the Associate Administrator for Technology of the Administration and the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy; and “(v) owners or operators of small business concerns that have received an award under the SBIR program of the NIH, selected by the Associate Administrator for Technology of the Administration.

“(B) NUMBER OF MEMBERS.—The total number of members selected under clauses (iii), (iv), and (v) of subparagraph (A) shall not exceed 10.

“(C) EQUAL REPRESENTATION.—The total number of members of the advisory board selected under clauses (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv) of subparagraph (A) shall be equal to the number of members of the advisory board selected under subparagraph (A)(v).

“(b) ADDRESSING DATA GAPS.—In order to enhance the evidence-base guiding SBIR program decisions and changes, the Director of the SBIR program of the NIH shall address the gaps and deficiencies in the data collection concerns identified in the 2007 report of the National Academies of Science entitled ‘An Assessment of the Small Business Innovation Research Program at the NIH’.

“(c) PILOT PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the SBIR program of the NIH may initiate a pilot program, under a formal mechanism for designing, implementing, and evaluating pilot programs, to spur innovation and to test new strategies that may enhance the development of cures and therapies.

“(2) CONSIDERATIONS.—The Director of the SBIR program of the NIH may consider conducting a pilot program to include individuals with successful SBIR program experience in study sections, hiring individuals with small business development experience for staff positions, separating the commercial and scientific review processes, and examining the impact of the trend toward larger awards on the overall program.

“(d) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Director of the NIH shall submit an annual report to Congress and the advisory board on the activities of the SBIR program of the NIH under this section.

“(e) SBIR GRANTS AND CONTRACTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In awarding grants and contracts under the SBIR program of the NIH each SBIR program manager shall place an emphasis on applications that identify products and services that may enhance the development of cures and therapies.

“(2) EXAMINATION OF COMMERCIALIZATION AND OTHER METRICS.—The advisory board shall evaluate the implementation of the requirement under paragraph (1) by examining increased commercialization and other metrics, to be determined and collected by the SBIR program of the NIH.

“(3) PHASE I AND II.—To the greatest extent practicable, the Director of the SBIR program of the NIH shall reduce the time period between Phase I and Phase II funding of grants and contracts under the SBIR program of the NIH to 6 months.

“(f) LIMIT.—Not more than a total of 1 percent of the extramural budget (as defined in section 9 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 638)) of the NIH for research or research and development may be used for the pilot program under subsection (c) and to carry out subsection (e).

“(g) SUNSET.—This section shall cease to be effective on the date that is 5 years after the date of enactment of the SBIR/STTR Reauthorization Act of 2009.”.

“(iii) to make refunds for projects that will not be completed.

“(B) CREDITS.—There shall be deposited into the Fund

“(i) funds from non-Federal and private entities which have agreements or contracts with the Administrator and which shall remain in the Fund until expended; and “(ii) such amounts as may be appropriated or transferred to the Fund under this subsection.

“(C) TRANSFERS.—Amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for any fiscal year for an intermodal or marine facility comprising a component of the program shall be transferred to the Fund and administered by the Administrator.

“(D) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Administrative and related expenses for the program for any fiscal year may not exceed 3 percent of the amount available to the program for that fiscal year.

“(E) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Fund such sums as may be necessary to carry out the program, taking into account amounts received under subparagraph (A)(ii).”

SEC. 6009. REEFS FOR MARINE LIFE CONSERVATION PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 3 of Public Law 92-09402 (16 U.S.C. 1220) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

“(d) Any territory, possession, or Commonwealth of the United States, and any foreign country, may apply to the Secretary for an obsolete vessel to be used for an artificial reef under this section. The application process and reefing of any such obsolete vessel shall be performed in a manner consistent with the process jointly developed by the Secretary of Transportation and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency under section 3504(b) of Public Law 107-09314 (16 U.S.C. 1220 note).”

(b) LIMITATION.—Section 7 of Public Law 92-09402 (16 U.S.C. 1220c-091) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

“(d) LIMITATION.—The Secretary may not provide assistance under this section to a foreign country to which an obsolete ship is transferred under this Act.”

SEC. 6010. STUDENT INCENTIVE PAYMENT AGREEMENTS.

Section 51509(b) of title 46, United States Code, is amended by striking “paid before the start of each academic year,” and inserting “paid,”

SEC. 6011. UNITED STATES MERCHANT MARINE ACADEMY GRADUATE PROGRAM RECEIPT, DISBURSEMENT, AND ACCOUNTING FOR NON-APPROPRIATED FUNDS.

Section 51309(b) of title 46, United States Code, is amended by inserting after “body.” the following: “Non-appropriated funds received for this purpose shall be credited to the Maritime Administration’s Operations and Training appropriation, to remain available until expended, for those expenses directly related to the purpose of such receipts. The Superintendent shall maintain a separate and detailed accounting of non-appropriated fund receipts and all associated expenses.”

SEC. 6012. AMERICA’S SHORT SEA TRANSPORTATION GRANTS FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF MARINE HIGHWAYS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 556 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by redesignating sections 55602 through 55605 as sections 55603 through 55606 and by inserting after section 55601 the following:

“§55602. Short sea transportation grant program.”

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation shall establish and implement a short sea transportation grant program.

“(b) PURPOSE.—The purposes of the program are to make grants to States and other public entities and sponsors of short sea transportation projects designated by the Secretary—

“(1) to facilitate and support marine transportation initiatives at the State and local levels to facilitate commerce, mitigate landside congestion, reduce the transportation energy consumption, reduce harmful emissions, improve safety, assist in environmental mitigation efforts, and improve transportation system resiliency; and

“(2) to provide capital funding to address short sea transportation infrastructure and freight transportation needs for ports, vessels, and intermodal cargo facilities.

“(c) ELIGIBLE PROJECTS.—To be eligible for a grant under the program, a project—

“(1) shall be designed to help relieve congestion, improve transportation safety, facilitate domestic and international trade, or encourage public-private partnerships; and

“(2) may include development, modification, and construction of marine and intermodal cargo facilities, vessels, port infrastructure and cargo handling equipment, and transfer facilities at ports.

“(d) SELECTION PROCESS.—

“(1) APPLICATIONS.—A State or other public entity, or the sponsor of any short sea transportation project designated by the Secretary under the America’s Marine Highway Program (MARAD Docket No. 2008-090096; 73 FR 59530), may submit an application to Secretary for a grant under the short sea transportation grant program. The application shall contain such information and assurances as the Secretary may require.

“(2) PRIORITY.—In selecting projects for grants, the Secretary shall give priority to projects that are consistent with the objectives of the short sea transportation initiative and America’s Marine Highway Program that will—

“(A) mitigate landside congestion;

“(B) provide the greatest public benefit in energy savings, reduced emissions, improved system resiliency, and improved safety;

“(C) include and demonstrate the greatest environmental responsibility; and “(D) provide savings as an alternative to or means to avoid highway or rail transportation infrastructure construction and maintenance.

“(e) USE OF GRANT FUNDS.—Funds made available to a recipient of a grant under this section shall be used by the recipient for the project described in the application of the recipient approved by the Secretary.”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents for chapter 556 of title 46, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating the items relating to sections 55602 through 55605 as relating to section 55603 through 55606; and

(2) by inserting after the item relating to section 55601 the following:

“55602. Short sea transportation grant program.”

SEC. 6013. EXPANSION OF THE MARINE VIEW SYSTEM.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) MARINE TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM.—The term “marine transportation system” means the navigable water transportation system of the United States, including the vessels, ports (and intermodal connections thereto), and shipyards and other vessel repair facilities that are components of that system.

(2) MARINE VIEW SYSTEM.—The term “Marine View system” means the information system of the Maritime Administration known as Marine View.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Information regarding the marine transportation system is comprised of information from the Government of the United States and from commercial sources.

(2) Marine transportation system information includes information regarding waterways, bridges, locks, dams, and all intermodal components that are dependent on maritime transportation and accurate information regarding marine transportation is critical to the health of the United States economy.

(3) Numerous challenges face the marine transportation system, including projected growth in cargo volumes, international competition, complexity, cooperation, and the need for improved efficiency.

(4) There are deficiencies in the current information environment of the marine transportation system, including the inability to model the entire marine transportation system to address capacity planning, disaster planning, and disaster recovery.

(5) The current information environment of the marine transportation system contains multiple unique systems that are duplicative, not integrated, not able to be shared, not secure, or that have little structured privacy protections, not protected from loss or destruction, and will not be available when needed.

(6) There is a lack of system-wide information views in the marine transportation system.

(7) The Administrator of the Maritime Administration is uniquely positioned to develop and execute the role of marine transportation system information advocate, to serve as the focal point for marine transportation system information management, and to provide a robust information infrastructure to identify, collect, secure, protect, store, and deliver critical information regarding the marine transportation system.

(c) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are—

(1) to expand the Marine View system; and

(2) to provide support for the strategic requirements of the marine transportation system and its contribution to the economic viability of the United States.

(d) EXPANSION OF MARINE VIEW SYSTEM.—To accomplish the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Transportation shall expand the Marine View system so that such system is able to identify, collect, integrate, secure, protect, store, and securely distribute throughout the marine transportation system information that—

(1) provides access to many disparate marine transportation system data sources;

(2) enables a system-wide view of the marine transportation system;

(3) fosters partnerships between the Government of the United States and private entities;

(4) facilitates accurate and efficient modeling of the entire marine transportation system environment;

(5) monitors and tracks threats to the marine transportation system, including areas of severe weather or reported piracy; and

(6) provides vessel tracking and rerouting, as appropriate, to ensure that the economic viability of the United States waterways is maintained.

(e) AGREEMENTS AND CONTRACTS.—The Administrator of the Maritime Administration may enter into cooperative agreements, partnerships, contracts, or other agreements with industry or other Federal agencies to carry out this section.

SEC. 6014. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 2010.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Transportation, for the use of the Maritime Administration, for fiscal year 2010 the following amounts:

(1) For expenses necessary for operations and training activities, $122,900,000, of which—

(2) For expenses to maintain and preserve a United States-flag merchant fleet to serve the national security needs of the United States under chapter 531 of title 46, United States Code, $174,000,000.

(3) For paying reimbursement under section 3517 of the Maritime Security Act of 2003 (46 U.S.C. 53101 note).

(4) For expenses to dispose of obsolete vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet, including provision of assistance under section 7 of Public Law 92-09402, $15,000,000.

(5) For the cost (as defined in section 502(5) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (2 U.S.C. 661a(5))) of loan guarantees under the program authorized by chapter 537 of title 46, United States Code, $48,000,000.

(6) For administrative expenses related to the implementation of the loan guarantee program under chapter 537 of title 46, United States Code, administrative expenses related to implementation of the reimbursement program under section 3517 of the Maritime Security Act of 2003 (46 U.S.C. 53101 note), and administrative expenses related to the implementation of the small shipyards and maritime communities assistance program under section 54101 of title 46, United States Code, $4,000,000.

(b) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts appropriated pursuant to subsection (a) shall remain available, as provided in appropriations Acts, until expended.

NATIONAL DIRECT SUPPORT PROFESSIONALS RECOGNITION WEEK

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 228, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 228) designating the week beginning September 14, 2009, as “National Direct Support Professionals Recognition Week.”

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and any statements relating to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 228) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 228

Whereas direct support workers, direct care workers, personal assistants, personal attendants, in-home support workers, and paraprofessionals (referred to in this preamble as “direct support professionals”) are the primary providers of publicly funded long term support and services for millions of individuals;

Whereas a direct support professional must build a close, trusted relationship with an individual with disabilities;

Whereas a direct support professional assists an individual with disabilities with the most intimate needs, on a daily basis;

Whereas direct support professionals provide a broad range of support, including—

(1) preparation of meals;

(2) helping with medications;

(3) bathing;

(4) dressing;

(5) mobility;

(6) getting to school, work, religious, and recreational activities; and

(7) general daily affairs;

Whereas a direct support professional provides essential support to help keep an individual with disabilities connected to the family and community of the individual;

Whereas direct support professionals enable individuals with disabilities to live meaningful, productive lives;

Whereas direct support professionals are the key to allowing an individual with disabilities to live successfully in the community of the individual, and to avoid more costly institutional care;

Whereas the majority of direct support professionals are female, and many are the sole breadwinners of their families;

Whereas direct support professionals work and pay taxes, but many remain impoverished and are eligible for the same Federal and State public assistance programs on which the individuals with disabilities served by the direct support professionals must depend;

Whereas Federal and State policies, as well as the Supreme Court, in Olmstead v. L.C., 527 U.S. 581 (1999), assert the right of an individual to live in the home and community of the individual;

Whereas, in 2008, the majority of direct support professionals are employed in home and community-based settings and this trend is projected to increase over the next decade;

Whereas there is a documented critical and growing shortage of direct support professionals in every community throughout the United States; and

Whereas many direct support professionals are forced to leave jobs due to inadequate wages and benefits, creating high turnover and vacancy rates that research demonstrates adversely affects the quality of support to individuals with disabilities: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week beginning September 14, 2009, as “National Direct Support Professionals Recognition Week”;;

(2) recognizes the dedication and vital role of direct support professionals in enhancing the lives of individuals with disabilities of all ages;

(3) appreciates the contribution of direct support professionals in supporting the needs that reach beyond the capacities of millions of families in the United States;

(4) commends direct support professionals as integral in supporting the long-term support and services system of the United States; and

(5) finds that the successful implementation of the public policies of the United States depends on the dedication of direct support professionals.

NATIONAL HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES WEEK

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 229.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 229) designating the week beginning August 30, 2009, as “National Historically Black Colleges and Universities Week.”

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, before asking unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, I wish to speak in support of S. Res. 229.

Wilberforce University, in Ohio, is one of the great historically Black colleges and universities in this country and provides terrific service and terrific education for people in my State.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 229) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 229

Whereas there are 103 historically Black colleges and universities in the United States;

Whereas historically Black colleges and universities provide the quality education essential to full participation in a complex, highly technological society;

Whereas historically Black colleges and universities have a rich heritage and have played a prominent role in the history of the United States;

Whereas historically Black colleges and universities allow talented and diverse students, many of whom represent underserved populations, to attain their full potential through higher education; and

Whereas the achievements and goals of historically Black colleges and universities are deserving of national recognition: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week beginning August 30, 2009, as “National Historically Black Colleges and Universities Week”; and

(2) calls on the people of the United States and interested groups to observe the week with appropriate ceremonies, activities, and programs to demonstrate support for historically Black colleges and universities in the United States.

DESIGNATING RICHARD A. BAKER AS HISTORIAN EMERITUS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 230, submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 230) designating Richard A. Baker as Historian Emeritus of the United States Senate.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I risk again doing what I just did in messing a little with regular order. I just want to thank Dr. Baker for his terrific service. As the Senate Historian, no one knows this place better than he does, and no one understands better the lessons history has taught us in order to serve better today and tomorrow in this institution.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc; and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 230) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 230

Whereas, Richard A. Baker will retire from the United States Senate after serving with distinction as the Senate's first historian from 1975 to 2009, and as acting curator from 1969 to 1970;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has dedicated his Senate service to preserving, protecting, and promoting the history of the Senate and its members;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has produced or directed production of numerous books, articles, and pamphlets detailing the rich institutional history of the Senate;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has worked with senators and Senate committees to archive their records and to make them available for scholarly research in a timely manner;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has assisted in the Senate's commemoration of events of historical significance and in the development of exhibitions and educational programs on the history of the Senate and the U.S. Capitol;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has upheld the high standards and traditions of the Senate with abiding devotion, and has performed his Senate duties in an impartial and professional manner;

Whereas, Richard A. Baker has earned the respect, affection, and esteem of the United States Senate: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That, effective September 1, 2009, as a token of the appreciation of the Senate for his long and faithful service, Richard A. Baker is hereby designated as Historian Emeritus of the United States Senate.

STAR PRINT—S. 370

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that S. 370 be star printed with the changes at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, JULY 30, 2009

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 9:30 a.m., on Thursday, July 30; that following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each; further; I ask that the Senate recess from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m. to allow for the Members-only briefing with Secretary of State Clinton and Secretary of Defense Gates.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, tonight, we were able to lock in an agreement to consider the highway trust fund legislation.

Tomorrow, Senators should expect rollcall votes in relation to amendments to the bill throughout the day.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. BROWN. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it adjourn under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:57 p.m., adjourned until Thursday, July 30, 2009, at 9:30 a.m.

GEN. JAMES N. MATTIS

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

COMMEMORATING THE 375TH ANNIVERSARY OF IPSWICH, MASSACHUSETTS

HON. JOHN F. TIERNEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. TIERNEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 375th Anniversary of the founding of Ipswich, Massachusetts and to congratulate the residents of Ipswich, Massachusetts as they plan to gather to celebrate this momentous occasion in their historical town.

In 1633, English colonists from the Massachusetts Bay Colony decided to forge an outpost to the north at "Agawam." These early settlers were led by John Winthrop, Jr., the son of Governor John Winthrop, and were charged with the responsibility of protecting the colony from threats to its destruction and opening up trade opportunities. Their success, in so doing, ensured the future of the nation. The new settlement was so successful as a military outpost and future center of law and culture that, on August 4, 1634, the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony voted to name it "Ipswich" after Ipswich, England.

In 1638, the Reverend Nathaniel Ward of Ipswich was commissioned by colonial leaders to draft the Body of Liberties, which was adopted by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and published in 1641 as the first code of laws drafted in New England, and which was the colony's and—some would claim—the nation's first Bill of Rights.

In 1687, Ipswich citizens refused to pay new taxes instituted by Governor Edmund Andros and, in so doing, committed acts resisting taxation without representation now known as the "Andros Rebellion" that predated by roughly eighty years the episodes of the next century that led to the American Revolution.

Ipswich is home to America's oldest continuously working farm, Appleton Farms (1635); the Chebacco Parish of Ipswich (now Essex, Massachusetts) was one of the shipbuilding capitals of New England, thus securing the lucrative fishing industry of Massachusetts, its economic future and early maritime contributions to the nation and Ipswich's literary heritage includes the seventeenth-century resident Anne Bradstreet, America's first published poet.

Ipswich's eighteenth-century lace industry, acknowledged with appreciation by President George Washington during his 1789 visit to Ipswich, is considered the first women's industry in America, and Ipswich's nineteenth-century mills produced more stockings than any other place in America and transformed the town culturally by attracting new residents from all over Europe.

To honor Ipswich's proud heritage, Town officials and Ipswich residents have registered historic structures on the National Register, mounted plaques to mark historic sites and preserved thousands of acres of open space and the centrally-important Ipswich River. They have a deep appreciation for the town's architectural and historical significance in our nation's history and are committed to historical preservation so others can share the traditions of our nation's past. As a result, Ipswich currently contains more houses (fifty-nine at last count) built during the "first period" of American architecture (1625–1725) than any other town in America. Some town folks suggest that this makes Ipswich, "America's Colonial home town."

Today, Ipswich Clams are known throughout America with good reason, and Ipswich thrives as a diverse community of cultures and professions that lives comfortably with its history and welcomes visitors from around the world.

As they have been throughout 2009, the residents of Ipswich will continue celebrating the Town's 375th Anniversary while simultaneously honoring its 11,000-year Native American heritage (as documented by the Paleo-Indian site called Bull Brook).

As their representative in the United States House of Representatives, I salute the residents of Ipswich and Town leaders for their welcoming nature, their sense of community and their warm hospitality in opening their arms and doors to visitors from around this country and around the world.

As Ipswich celebrates its 375th Anniversary, I encourage my colleagues and their constituents to travel to the 6th Congressional District of Massachusetts to discover and celebrate the storied history of Ipswich, Massachusetts one of the founding cornerstones of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the United States of America. I assure you that you will enjoy Ipswich and its people and its natural, cultural and historic treasures.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. CHARLES W. DENT

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. DENT. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding projects that are listed in H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010:

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: DPA, Title: Navy Production Capacity Improvement Project, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Lehigh Heavy Forge Corporation, Address of Requesting Entity: 275 Emery Street, Bethlehem, PA 18015, Description of Request: The Navy Production Capacity Improvement Project will expand, modernize, and maintain the production capabilities of Lehigh Heavy Forge, which is needed to support production of Navy Ship shafts and Navy Nuclear Reactor components. Lehigh Heavy Forge is the only domestic facility with the capability to produce the large, complex forgings required for the nuclear power plants and propulsion shafts of the U.S. Navy Submarine and Aircraft Carrier Programs. Specifically, this project will provide for the engineering and installation of an automated Ultrasonic test system to increase production capability and improve the inspection process; the installation of a new computer programming and drafting system to replace an old and unreliable system; the engineering and rebuilding of three heating furnaces in the Forge and Treatment Department; and the engineering and upgrading of facilities for shipping and inspection operations.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: O&M, Army, Title: Army Force Generation Synchronization Tool, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: ProModel Corporation, Address of Requesting Entity: 7540 Windsor Drive, Suite 300, Allentown, PA 18195, Description of Request: In 2006 ProModel was tasked by FORSCOM to provide a technology solution based on its COTS software platform. The solution enables the Army to capture the Army Force Generation Model (ARFORGEN) process in software, providing decision makers the ability to rapidly create Courses of Action and predict the impact of their decisions on key metrics such as Dwell and Boots on Ground. The ability through automation to run "what ifs" to assess risk on readiness is recognized as a key priority for the Army and Joint Forces. The project will accelerate the deployment and enhance the current capabilities of the ProModel ARFORGEN Synchronization Tool (AST). The AST has provided a unique capability to quickly visualize the impact of today's sourcing decisions on the Army's capability to sustain operations in the future and to synchronize associated resources and training.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Army, Title: Ballistic Armor Research, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., Address of Requesting Entity: 7201 Hamilton Boulevard, Allentown, PA 18195, Description of Request: This project partners industry with a strategic university to conduct research under the leadership of the U.S. Army Research Lab (ARL) in Aberdeen, MD to develop polymers and materials that will provide the basis for the next generation of armor to protect personnel, equipment, and critical infrastructure. While current approaches in vehicle armor technology continue to use all-metal construction or in some cases ceramic-steel and polymer-ceramic-steel designs, polymer-based armor, based on multilayer composite technology comprising ceramics, metals, and polymers, will allow for better protection, at a lighter weight and lower cost. This research will provide a fundamental understanding of how materials undergo physical and chemical changes during the blast/impact which will lead to polymer-based armor solutions for programs like MCWL Lightweight Body Armor. The body armor advances can be replicated in next-generation vehicle armor systems for new programs such as Joint Light Tactical Vehicles and the MRAP-ATV armored vehicle program needed for use in Afghanistan.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Army, Title: Chronic Tinnitus Treatment Program, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Neuromonics, Inc., Address of Requesting Entity: 2810 Emrick Boulevard, Bethlehem, PA 18020, Description of Request: The Army reports that tinnitus is among the top medical complaints of soldiers returning from OIF/OEF and often occurs with Traumatic Brain Injury/mild Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI/mTBI). Until recently, no effective treatment program has existed to help individuals suffering with the effects of tinnitus. The Chronic Tinnitus Treatment Program is designed to interact, interrupt, and desensitize tinnitus disturbance for long-term benefit, especially in those suffering with chronic and severe tinnitus. The treatment program shows promise by reducing symptoms quickly, in particular, providing relief from the disturbing effects of the condition; treating the neurological causes associated with tinnitus; providing long term relief and improvements in quality of life; and being convenient and noninvasive. This funding will expand a clinical trial to study the effectiveness of the program with specific subgroups of service-members (PTSD and/or TBI) and veterans with chronic and severe tinnitus.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Army, Title: Networked Reliability and Safety Early Evaluation System, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Bosch Rexroth Corporation, Address of Requesting Entity: 2315 City Line Road, Bethlehem, PA 18017, Description of Request: Changing requirements for combat and tactical vehicles are accelerating the urgent need to quickly assess and identify new technology for reliability, durability, and safety shortcomings in combat environments. The Networked Reliability and Safety Early Evaluation System (NRSEES) will include a Dynamic High Frequency Component Reliability System and a High Payload Reliability System (HPRS). Specifically, funding for this project is to design, build, test, train and install the HPRS. This system will be a large simulator capable of accurately assessing vehicle system structural reliability for platforms up to 35 tons, which will include current MRAPs, MATV, JLTV, FCS and all legacy Tactical Wheeled Vehicles, Trailers and Light Armored Vehicles.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Army, Title: Silent Watch, IB NPS 1160 Lithium-Ion Advanced Battery, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: International Battery, Inc., Address of Requesting Entity: 6845 Snowdrift Road, Allentown, PA 18106, Description of Request: The project will demonstrate the improved performance capability of the Lithium-Ion battery, which will provide increased power and energy density, and life cycle sustainability over the previous (IB model IB-1100) battery type. Through this program, it is anticipated that the operational support cost drivers will be reduced. This battery will consist of a Silent Watch, 28V (seven series connected 160Ah Lithium Iron Phosphate cells), third generation IB BMS, and a self-contained Thermal Management System. Importantly, the battery provides no hazardous material such as lead or acid, which eliminates major disposal charges.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Navy, Title: Landing Craft Composite Lift Fan, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Curtiss Wright Engineered Pump Division (EPD), Address of Requesting Entity: 222 Cameron Drive, Phillipsburg, NJ 08865, Description of Request: The presence of salt water, extreme temperatures, and the abrasive effects of airborne sand reduce the effective life of LCAC Amphibious Assault Vessels' metal fans. The U.S. Navy spends approximately $1.4 million a year repairing and replacing the lift fan blades on the LCAC Landing Craft. This project will complete the development of composite material lift fans for Navy landing craft, enabling the replacement of metallic blades which require high maintenance and frequent replacement, resulting in higher life cycle costs and decreased operational reliability. Funding will support the installation and testing of a composite lift fan prototype on a Navy landing craft and any final design modifications that are required. This project will provide a domestic manufacturer of a composite lift fan that will reduce maintenance and life cycle costs, and increase operational reliability for the current and next generation landing craft fleet.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Air Force, Title: Hybrid Nanoparticle-based Coolant Technology Development and Manufacturing, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Dynalene, Inc., Address of Requesting Entity: 5250 West Copley Road, Whitehall, PA 18052, Description of Request: DOD is actively supporting thermal management activities to ensure that Directed Energy Weapons (DEWs) function properly when they are introduced into the military. The cooling system in these applications requires not only a highly efficient heat transfer device, but also a coolant that has significantly better thermo-physical properties than existing fluids. There is no coolant fluid currently available that possesses all of the desirable properties required for high heat flux applications such as DEWs. Dynalene has developed an advanced coolant composition that addresses the shortcomings of existing coolants by combining a base composition (which can be a mixture of water and an antifreeze compound) with specially designed hybrid nanoparticles. This project will complete the optimization of the coolant and demonstrate its applicability in a real DEW system. Funding will be used to fabricate a reactor and separator, develop a quality control system for the hybrid nanoparticles and the coolant, establish scale-up criteria to go to the next level of manufacturing, and generate samples for testing in DEW systems as well as various civilian applications.

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, FY2010, Account: RDT&E, Defense-Wide, Title: High Speed Optical Interconnects for Next Generation Supercomputing, Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Lightwire, Inc., Address of Requesting Entity: 7540 Windsor Drive, Suite 412, Allentown, PA 18195, Description of Request: The Army and other services have two overarching future needs in the area of computing devices—they need to be faster and more capable, but at the same time smaller (and use less energy). These needs run the entire spectrum from the largest defense computing assets (supercomputers) to the very smallest (PDAs that can be “worn” by a soldier). The requirements for high performance computer simulations by classified Defense projects are massive. Supercomputers can model ballistics, armor performance under attack, radar signatures of new stealth technologies, and nuclear weapons performance, saving manpower and funding that would be required to truly test such phenomena. In order to target the next generation of supercomputers, Lightwire will engage in a joint research effort with DARPA to explore uses of its optical printed circuit board technology supporting both C4ISR antenna remoting and supercomputing needs. Funding will be used to accelerate the development of high speed optical interconnects needed to enable the next generation of DOD supercomputing needs.

MR. KARL MALDEN

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Madam Speaker, it is my distinct honor to take this time to remember one of northwest Indiana's most cherished natives, Karl Malden. An extraordinary talent, his memorable on-screen characters and his remarkable ability to connect with his audience have delighted generations of moviegoers. As an actor, Karl Malden brought joy to people in ways that very few people can. Mr. Malden passed away on July 1, 2009, at the age of 97, but his legacy will forever remain in the hearts and spirits of his family and friends, as well as his many loyal fans.

Born Mladen George Sekulovich on March 22, 1912, in Chicago, Karl was raised in Gary, Indiana, a hardworking steel-producing community. The son of a Czech seamstress and a Serbian milkman and steelworker, Karl's early years were much like many of his generation who grew up in northwest Indiana at the time. As a high school student, he was a gifted athlete and student, excelling on both the basketball court and in the classroom. A leader among his peers, Karl was also the senior class president of the Gary Emerson High School class of 1931.

Following his graduation in 1931, Karl briefly considered continuing his athletic career at the collegiate level before returning to Gary, and like his father, began working in a local steel mill. His career in the mills would not last long though as his passion for theater and acting continued to grow. Early on, young Mladen often performed in Serbian plays produced by his father at his church. Undoubtedly, this had an immense impact on his decision to leave the steel mill and begin studying at Chicago's Goodman Theater. From there, Karl would eventually relocate to New York and begin performing on Broadway. Thus, the start of his illustrious career as an entertainer began.

For more than seven decades, Karl Malden brought memorable characters to the stage and screen. With more than fifty film credits and numerous plays and television projects on his résumé, not to mention one of the most recognizable commercial characters in history, Karl Malden proved that he is one of the most adored and versatile actors of not only his, but all, generations. From his lesser known roles to his unforgettable, Oscar-winning performance in A Streetcar Named Desire, Karl's determination and passion for his craft were, without a doubt, an extension of the lessons he learned as a child growing up in Gary, and as a laborer in the steel mills. It is this same passion for his craft that has raised millions of dollars for programs aimed at preserving and researching the history of film.

From his high school years to his golden years, Mr. Malden was always held in high esteem by his peers, so it is no surprise that he served as president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for several years, and in 2004 he was honored with the Screen Actors Guild's Lifetime Achievement Award.

Madam Speaker, I respectfully ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues join me in paying tribute to an American treasure, Mr. Karl Malden. A gifted actor whose characters often embodied the hard-working, blue-collar northwest Indiana community from which he emerged, Mr. Malden has been a source of pride for the people of Gary, Indiana, for decades, and I ask that you join me in remembering him today as one of northwest Indiana's most beloved sons.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. PETER J. ROSKAM

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. ROSKAM. Madam Speaker, pursuant to Republican standards on disclosure for Member project requests, I am submitting the following information regarding projects I support for inclusion in H.R. 3326, the Departments of Defense Appropriations Act of 2010.

Congressman Peter J. Roskam: H.R. 3326 Department of Defense, Gas Technology Institute's Advanced Power Generation Unit for Military Applications. In partnership with the U.S. Army Research Laboratory, the Gas Technology Institute will use this $650,000 in funding to develop an advanced power generation unit for military applications. The unit developed as a result of this research project will have dual-use applications as military or commercial portable power or vehicle auxiliary power units (APU). The novel fuel cell power unit is highly efficient, clean, and very quiet. GTI will work with the U.S. Army Research Laboratory to develop and validate the performance, efficiency, and emissions of this new power generation unit and identify applications that address the needs of Army Technology Objectives ATO related to reduced energy consumption and increased carried energy density for power systems. This technology will also have commercial applications for commercial vehicle auxiliary power units (e.g., to address anti-idling laws) and back-up power systems for improved reliability. Vehicles that sit and idle for extended periods of time, such as long haul trucks and transit and school busses, currently use nearly 1.5 billion gallons of diesel fuel annually (during idling). In addition, the military has specialized needs for quiet power systems for field deployment for individual soldiers, vehicles, and other remote power requirements. This high-risk, high-impact technology offers the promise of substantially reducing the capital cost of fuel cell-based power systems by avoiding the use of expensive, foreign-sourced precious metals such as platinum that are common in current fuel cell power systems.

Congressman Peter J. Roskam: H.R. 3326 Department of Defense, Helmets to Hardhats Center for Military Recruitment, Assessment and Employment. The Helmets to Hardhats program will use this $3,000,000 in funding to provide infrastructure support to help members of the armed forces in transitioning from active duty into skilled employment in the construction industry. Most career opportunities utilizing the program are connected to federally-approved apprenticeship training programs. This training is usually provided by trade organizations at no or minimal cost to the servicemember. This program even provides the extensive training that is sometimes necessary for military personnel without prior experience in the building and construction trades. In fact, most of the servicemembers that are successfully placed start with virtually no experience in their chosen field. All participating trade organizations conduct three to five year "earn-while-you-learn" apprenticeship training programs that teach veterans everything necessary to become a construction industry professional with a specialization in a particular craft. Because these apprenticeship programs are regulated and approved at both the Federal and State levels, veterans can utilize their Montgomery GI bill benefits to supplement their income while learning a valuable skill. The program creates valuable links to ideal careers for guardsmen and reservists, and it helps to smooth the transition into a valuable and sustainable career that lessens the time that a veteran-in-transition will be dependent on other services. The Helmets to Hardhats program in Illinois is the most innovative in the nation, offering job placement assistance in dozens of fields. Through the leadership of the Illinois Teamsters, Helmets to Hardhats hosted the first-ever Chicago-area veterans' job fair in August 2007. Over 400 veterans were placed with job training, apprenticeships, and employment opportunities as a result. To date, more than 39,000 veterans have been placed with jobs nationally.

IN RECOGNITION OF RUTH RUNYAN ON HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

HON. JEFF MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor Miss Ruth Alberta Runyan upon the occasion of her 100th birthday. Miss Runyan has spent a lifetime serving others, and it is a privilege to recognize her today.

Miss Runyan was born on September 10, 1909 in Escambia County, Florida and has lived there ever since. She has resided at her current permanent address in the East Hill neighborhood for 85 years. As an eight year old child, she sold the newspaper "Grit" for five cents. She used the money to buy war bonds during World War I, and later used this savings to pay for her college education. In 1931, Ruth graduated from the Florida State College for Women, now known as Florida State University.

Ruth's life was spent serving others. She was a teacher in Escambia County for over forty years. She started her teaching career at the Eliza Jane Wilson School and spent fifteen years there and later also spent over fifteen years teaching elementary students at Oliver J. Semmes School in Pensacola.

Madam Speaker, Ruth Runyan is an admirable woman who has spent a lifetime reaching for her dreams and helping others achieve theirs. My wife Vicki and I wish her all the best for her future.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. DOUG LAMBORN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. LAMBORN. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards, I am submitting the following information regarding member requests I received as part of H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010:

Requesting Member: Representative DOUG LAMBORN, CO-05

Bill Number: H.R. 2647

Account: RDTE Navy, Line 27, PE 0603216N

Legal Name of the Requesting Entity: Global Near Space Services

Legal Address of the Requesting Entity: 8610 Explorer Dr, Ste 140, Colorado Springs, CO 80920

Description of the Request: Requesting $6 million funding for the Lighter-Than-Air Stratospheric UAV for Persistent Communications Relay and Surveillance. This project will develop a lighter-than-air, unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) that will fly at 85,000 feet for three to four months, providing low cost, persistent surveillance, high bandwidth and over the horizon communications needed to effectively fight terrorism, achieve maritime domain awareness, protect critical infrastructures and secure national borders.

Requesting Member: Representative DOUG LAMBORN, CO-05

Bill Number: H.R. 2647
Account: RDTE Air Force, Line 8, PE 0602201F

Legal Name of the Requesting Entity: Colorado Engineering, Inc

Legal Address of the Requesting Entity: 1310 United Heights, Suite 105, Colorado Springs, CO 80921

Description of the Request: Requesting $3 million funding for the Unmanned Sense, Track, and Avoid Radar (USTAR) for low rate initial production of an advanced radar system for the Global Hawk unmanned aerial vehicle platform to detect and track large and small targets. USTAR will allow the UAV to identify potential collision risks and increase maneuvering capability in controlled airspace and improve operability in adverse weather conditions.

Requesting Member: Representative DOUG LAMBORN, CO-05

Bill Number: H.R. 2647

Account: RDTE Defense-wide, Line 89, PE 0603898C

Legal Name of the Requesting Entity: Not Applicable

Legal Address of the Requesting Entity: Not Applicable

Description of the Request: Requesting $500,000 funding for an Independent Advisory Group to review Ballistic Missile Defense (BMD) Education and Training Needs and recommend a BMD education and training solution to include a recommendation of roles and responsibilities, organizational structure, and/or resources and facilities for integrated missile defense training.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. GLENN THOMPSON

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010. The entity to receive funding is Impact Technologies, LLC, 2029 Cato Avenue, State College, PA 16801, in the amount of $3,000,000. Funding will be used for smart oil sensors.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. BRETT GUTHRIE

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GUTHRIE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman BRETT GUTHRIE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E/DW

Recipient: EWA, Inc. 2413 Nashville Road, Suite 126, Bowling Green, KY 42101

Description of Request: Provide $5,000,000 to develop prototypes for the U.S. Special Operation Command to covertly identify and track individuals who threaten the national security of the U.S. Government.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE FALL OF ZEPA

HON. RUSS CARNAHAN

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. CARNAHAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the anniversary of the fall of Zepa during the war in Bosnia in 1995. Just a few weeks ago, I attended the Srebrenica genocide remembrance ceremony in Bosnia and Herzegovina to commemorate the thousands of innocent lives lost during the war. It is important to remember these innocent people who lost their lives as Bosnians move forward.

This siege on Srebrenica, however, was not an isolated event. On July 25, 1995, Zepa, another U.N.-declared safe haven, also fell to the same forces that took Srebrenica just weeks earlier. The thousands of inhabitants and refugees in Zepa were forced to suffer, and die through a constant downpour of shellfire.

In addition to the vast numbers who perished due to the barrage of fire and starvation, an unknown number were taken away never to be seen again, including the Colonel of the Bosnia and Herzegovina army, Avdo Palic, who negotiated the evacuation of approximately 5,000 civilians.

Today, a little more than 14 years after the fall of Zepa, I urge us all to remember not only the fall of Zepa, but also the destruction of the other towns of Srebrenica, Zepa, Sarajevo, Gorazde, Bihac, Tuzla, Prijedor, Bjeljina, Visegrad, Foca, and Kozarac, and many others, all of which experienced significant loss. We must remind ourselves of the innocent lives that were lost, and honor their memory.

Madam Speaker, while we cannot erase the pain of these losses, let us support the efforts of the families of the missing to learn the fate of their loved ones, and let us support the justice that is necessary for the building of a stable, prosperous, and unified Bosnia and Herzegovina.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. PHIL GINGREY

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GINGREY of Georgia. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks as well as in accordance with Clause 9 of Rule XXI, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman PHIL GINGREY

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test, Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Georgia Institute of Technology

Address of Requesting Entity: Institute of Bioengineering and Bioscience, 315 First Drive, NW, Atlanta, Georgia 30332-0363

Description of Request: The $3,000,000 included in H.R. 3326 for the Center for Advanced Bioengineering and Soldier Survivability (CABSS) will focus on research in advanced tissue and bone regeneration and wound care and treatment issues relevant to military trauma care. Fundamental research advances in these areas can lead to technologies and techniques for better immediate clinical combat care as well as address long term care issues involving limb loss, tissue and organ damage, facial and dental injuries, and reconstruction.

Specifically, the $3,000,000 in funding will be paid out at pre-negotiated rates in accordance with Department of Defense policy. Specifically, funds will be used to: establish a seed grant program to identify novel technologies for treatment of musculoskeletal defects following trauma, develop oriented nanofiber meshes for treatment of neurologic defects following injury to the extremities, develop biodegradable shape memory polymers for treatment of large bone defects, develop biodegradable shape memory polymers for craniofacial reconstruction, and test the effects of sustained delivery of osteoinductive proteins in tubular nanofiber mesh scaffolds on functional repair of large segmental bone defects.

Georgia Tech will continue to leverage this request to obtain funding from other sources. The Georgia Research Alliance has pledged additional money to the project for infrastructure and equipment, and past Congressional funding has been leveraged to successfully obtain funding from DoD's Orthopaedic Trauma Research Program and its Armed Forces Institute of Regenerative Medicine, as well as funding from the Musculoskeletal Transplant Foundation.

Requesting Member: Congressman PHIL GINGREY

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test, Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Printpack, Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 2800 Overlook Drive NE, Atlanta, GA 30345-2024

Description of Request: The $1,000,000 added to H.R. 3326 will be used to develop new and innovative packaging and processing technologies for the Warfighter's combat rations. These funds will result in the ability to provide greater variety and more nutritional rations with longer shelf-life and reduced production costs.

The objective of this effort is to develop advanced thermal processing techniques based on the utilization of non-foil materials for military ration packaging. The importance of developing non-foil packaging materials will serve as a precursor to the next stage of the R&D effort to investigate new and enhanced thermal processing techniques—specifically, Enhanced High Pressure Processing (EHPP) and Microwave Sterilization (MW) technologies. The EHPP and MW processing technologies have numerous advantages over conventional thermal processing; however, these processes cannot be used on current foil packaging because they cause blistering and flex cracking of the foil packaging material. Therefore, to achieve the advantages of advanced EHPP and MW processing, it is essential to use state-of-the-art, non-foil packaging materials.

The development of advanced, non-foil packaging materials and utilization of innovative EHPP and MW processing techniques will result in the provision of rations with the following beneficial and enhanced qualities: greater variety, better taste, more nutrition, longer shelf-life, lower overall production costs, environmentally friendly, less volume and waste. The FY10 effort will consist of three stages and is budgeted as follows: Stage 1: Blistering ($0.14M), Stage 2: Flex Crack Resistance ($0.26M), Stage 3: EHPP & MW Trials ($0.6M).

Requesting Member: Congressman PHIL GINGREY

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test, Evaluation, Defense Wide

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Scientific Research Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 2300 Windy Ridge Parkway, Suite 400, Atlanta, GA 30339

Description of Request: This program will utilize recently developed Wavelet Packet Modulation (WPM). The $1,000,000 included in H.R. 3326 will be used to implement design modifications for limited rate initial production, including form factor packaging changes for ruggedization and for integration with signal intelligence systems. Additionally, production readiness for integration with existing communications systems will occur. Finally, module testing will be subjected to continued assessment and utility testing on multiple platforms.

The enhanced modules will then undergo a final government Production Readiness Review, paving the way for subsequent deployment. Covert WPM Communications Modules as communications links for multiple platforms, including unmanned aerial systems, provide a critical solution to special operations warfighters that require the ability to communicate covertly without detection.

Funding is required for hardware and software engineering, integration, and testing (64%); specialized equipment (21%); specialized software (13%); and travel to U.S. Special Operations Command and to military test sites (2%). This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the U.S. Special Operations Command Special Operations Tactical Systems Development program.

Requesting Member: Congressman PHIL GINGREY

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Other Procurement, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Meggitt Training Systems

Address of Requesting Entity: 7340 McGinnis Ferry Road, Suwanee, GA 30024

Description of Request: The ARNG combined arms simulation training system began in 1996, and presently there are 266 fielded Combat Skills Marksmanship Trainers (CSMT) systems. All have been or are in the process of being upgraded. The ARNG has an immediate requirement to supply its soldiers with newer and more advanced training technology, since simulators are an integral part of the training requirement. Since the Army no longer supports the ARNG with training simulator systems, Congress has consistently provided funding for these systems upgrades. ARNG itself has contributed funds of its own—$4.5 million in FY07 and $1.2 million in FY08.

The ARNG's immediate need is to upgrade the remaining fleet of CSMT systems, and the plan includes acquiring approximately 1,200 new weapons. The $4,000,000 included in H.R. 3326 will continue the multiyear upgrade and modernization of existing firearms simulation systems in the Army National Guard necessary to meet the validated system standard.

The ARNG has defined modernization as paramount to resolving an immediate mandatory small-arms training need in support of the Guard's role in a global war on terrorism and homeland security. The Army's Program Executive Office for Simulation, Training & Instrumentation (PEO STRI) has validated the upgraded system as a U.S. Army standard for use by the ARNG.

The CSMT system includes U.S. Army-specific courseware and training scenarios that address new and complex tactical situations and provide soldiers with the ability to conduct weapons, judgmental, and military training in a tactical environment built on geo-specific terrain databases. The CSMT simulates tactical small unit defensive and offensive situations such as security operations, fire & maneuver, and hostage & clearing operations in built-up urban areas. Small unit leaders use the system to conduct mission planning and rehearsal. The system's embedded scenario authoring capability allows the user to quickly author a scenario reflecting emerging doctrinal and/or mission requirement changes.

Requesting Member: Congressman PHIL GINGREY

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test, Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: CryoLife

Address of Requesting Entity: 1655 Roberts Boulevard, NW, Kennesaw, GA 30144

Description of Request: Despite advances in medical technology, battlefield trauma injuries present a significant threat to the lives of U.S. soldiers. In fact uncontrollable bleeding from internal wounds where tourniquets cannot be applied is a major cause of combat casualty. Biofoam Protein Hydrogel will provide a new tool for physicians to address blood loss at Forward Surgical Team (FST) and Combat Support Hospital (CSH) locations for injuries sustained by service personnel.

CryoLife believes that further development of its existing protein hydrogel technology could result in FDA approval to address blood loss by forward surgical teams or combat support hospitals. CryoLife has developed a formulation for an expanding, adhesive, foam sealant. This two-part material is applied as a liquid that mixes in the portable delivery device and is expressed as a foam to the application site where it bends to the surrounding tissue. An easy to use, expandable hemostatic agent would provide better packing, faster hemostasis and improve the survival of the soldier by extending his "golden hour."

Congress has appropriated $6.6 million for the development of this technology in FY05–09. The $1,000,000 included in H.R. 3326 will build upon the previously funded work conducted with the Army Medical Research and Material Command and the Army Institute of Surgical Research (ISR), including feasibility studies and acute and chronic animal studies. The funding included in H.R. 3326 would support large scale pivotal clinical trials on humans in accordance with FDA standards and protocols.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. BRETT GUTHRIE

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GUTHRIE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Departments of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman BRETT GUTHRIE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E/Army/Medical Technology

Recipient: Owensboro Medical Health System Mitchell Memorial Cancer Center, 811 E. Parrish Avenue, Owensboro, KY 42303

Description of Request: Provide $2,500,000 to continue the hospital's partnership in plant-based pharmaceutical research.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ROBERT J. WITTMAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. WITTMAN. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding an earmark I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Program Name: SSBN(X) Systems Development

Amount: $2,500,000

Requested By: ROBERT J. WITTMAN (VA–01)

Account: Research and Development, Navy (RDTE,N)

Intended Recipient of Funds: Northrop Grumman Corporation, 1000 Wilson Blvd, Suite 2300, Arlington, VA 22209

Program description and explanation of the request: This funding is provided as an increase to the Advanced Submarine Systems Development Program, Line 41, Research and Development, Navy. SSBN–X is the designation for the submarine class that will serve as the replacement for the OHIO submarine class, which will begin going out of service in 2029. The OHIO Class is the nation's primary and most secure nuclear deterrent and this capability will be maintained. Detail design expected to start as early as FY12 (construction start is in FY19) and the concept design work must be performed in advance of detail design. $53M was requested for FY09 in order to conduct the SBSD concept study plan originally planned for FY08 and FY09 which has not been fully funded, and to support R&D technology development. Funding in FY10 will allow the Navy to proceed with SBSD development in a timely fashion. Furthermore, potential delay in SSBN-X Program start will threaten the submarine design industrial base. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. STEVE BUYER

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVE BUYER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: DoD RDT&E, Technology Transfer
Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Technology Service Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 116 West Sixth St., Suite 200, Bloomington, IN 47404

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $5,000,000 to continue support of the National Radio Frequency Research, Development, and Technology Transfer Center, which provides an efficient method of transitioning new technologies into DoD programs of record to provide for performance improvements at lower cost for the war fighter.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVE BUYER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: USAF RDT&E, Technology Transfer

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Purdue University

Address of Requesting Entity: 610 Purdue Mall, Hovde Hall, West Lafayette, IN 47907

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $1,640,000 to continue the development of the multi-faceted National Test Facility for Aerospace Fuels Propulsion, which supports development and testing of alternative energy sources for aerospace equipment, is aligned with the Civil Aviation Alternative Fuel Initiative, and compliments DoD's commitment to transition all aircraft for flight on synthetic fuel blends.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. CAROLYN MCCARTHY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. Madam Speaker, yesterday, I missed 4 votes. Had I been present, I would have voted as follows:

On rollcall No. 650, on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H.R. 1293, I would have voted "yea."

On rollcall No. 651, on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H.R. 556, as Amended, I would have voted "yea."

On rollcall No. 652, on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Pass H.R. 509, as Amended, I would have voted "yea."

On rollcall No. 653, on the Motion to Suspend the Rules and Agree to H. Res. 616, I would have voted "yea."

CONGRATULATING MICHAEL L. FARRIOR FOR HIS HARD WORK AND LEADERSHIP WITH THE INTERNATIONAL GAME FISH ASSOCIATION

HON. BRIAN P. BILBRAY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BILBRAY. Madam Speaker, today, I rise to congratulate International Game Fish Association (IGFA) Trustee Michael L. Farrior of Rancho Santa Fe, a long time San Diego businessman, for his extraordinary leadership and for his passion in promoting fishing and conservation.

Mr. Farrior, whose interest in sportfishing stretches back nearly four decades, has become the recognized authority and historian of saltwater sportfishing on the West Coast. Over the years Michael has shared his interest in antique tackle and encouraged others to begin collecting and preserving old fishing equipment. The antique tackle collection he has assembled and the research he has shared is another way Michael gives back to a sport that he loves.

A long-time member of the Tuna Club of Avalon, Mr. Farrior was appointed Historian and was subsequently invited to write The History of the Tuna Club 1898–1998. When his book was published, Mr. Farrior donated all of the profits to the Tuna Club Hospital Foundation. He approached that project with the same enthusiasm he has demonstrated throughout his life and his research has literally changed the way the International Game Fish Association viewed West Coast sportfishing.

He is a well-respected IGFA Trustee, and has been the catalyst in arranging pier fishing tournaments for the youth of San Diego, as well as fishing trips for military patients recuperating at the San Diego Naval Hospital from wounds suffered in Iraq. He has also assisted the U.S. government by providing the historical data for use in developing the Highly Migratory Species Act.

Mr. Farrior was able to establish that the birth of big-game fishing occurred on the West Coast and the early fishing gear used to battle large bluefin tuna, marlin and swordfish, evolved here. The sportfishing ethics and rules used today by IGFA and other fishing clubs were originally drafted at the Tuna Club at Avalon on Catalina Island at the turn of the century. "Making Californians aware of the fact that big-game fishing was born here and getting California indelibly recognized as the birthplace of big-game fishing is one of my proudest achievements," he added "Previously, it had literally just been lost to time". Mr. Farrior's impact on West Coast sportfishing is also indelibly written in the history which he has preserved and which has consumed him throughout the years. His contributions to sportfishing over the years truly qualify him as Sportfishing's own "National Treasure."

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BUCHANAN. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3293, the Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations Act, 2010:

Requesting Member: Congressman VERN BUCHANAN

Bill Number: H.R. 3293

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Child Protection Center

Address of Requesting Entity: 1750 17th Street, Bldg. L, Sarasota (FL) 34234

Description of Request: I secured $150,000 for the "Pillar of Hope" Campaign, which seeks a Child Advocacy Center in Sarasota, Florida. Along with the expansion of the counseling program, the center will have two new state-of-the-art medical exams rooms at their location. By having the ability to provide more medical services to abused children the burden on local emergency rooms will be lessened. Currently, the center is unable to offer certain services as they are limited in space in their current location.

Requesting Member: Congressman VERN BUCHANAN

Bill Number: H.R. 3293

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Sarasota County

Address of Requesting Entity: 1660 Ringling Blvd., Sarasota (FL) 34236.

Description of Request: I secured $350,000 for Sarasota County, which is seeking to construct a new health facility in the community of Englewood. The facility will be located in the southern most portion of Sarasota County and will serve the residents of both Sarasota and Charlotte counties. The facility will improve access to health care and a variety of human and social services programs for residents.

Requesting Member: Congressman VERN BUCHANAN

Bill Number: H.R. 3293

Account: Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: University of South Florida (USF) Sarasota-Manatee

Address of Requesting Entity: 8350 North Tamiami Trail, Sarasota (FL) 34243

Description of Request: I secured $250,000 to address nursing shortages by supporting educational development at the University of South Florida Sarasota-Manatee Campus.

The university is in the initial stages of preparing for separate academic accreditation.

Once this is achieved, their highest priority will be to establish a College of Nursing on the campus. With a nursing program in place we will be able to reach and educate the southern-most portions of Florida. The funds from this proposal will be spent to support the development of a teaching simulation laboratory (equipment and simulation models) on our campus, for equipping a videoconference classroom, and the development of web, on-site, and blended courses.

Requesting Member: Congressman VERN BUCHANAN

Bill Number: H.R. 3293

Account: Higher Education

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: New College

Address of Requesting Entity: 5800 Bay Shore Road, Sarasota (FL) 34243

Description of Request: I secured $100,000 to establish a joint-use library facility that will serve local higher education entities and the general public in the areas of community research and civic engagement.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. PAUL W. HODES

OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. HODES. Madam Speaker, due to inclement weather I missed the following votes on Monday, July 27, 2009. I would have voted as follows:

(1) H. Res. 593—Recognizing and celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the entry of Hawaii into the Union as the 50th State (Rep. ABERCROMBIE—Oversight and Government Reform)—“Yes.”

(2) H.R. 1376—Waco Mammoth National Monument Establishment Act of 2009 (Rep. EDWARDS (TX)—Natural Resources)—“Yes.”

(3) H.R. 1121—Blue Ridge Parkway and Town of Blowing Rock Land Exchange Act of 2009 (Rep. FOXX—Natural Resources)—“Yes.”

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ROBERT J. WITTMAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. WITTMAN. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding an earmark I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Project Name: Aerospace Laser Micro Engineering Station

Amount: $1,000,000

Requested By: ROBERT J. WITTMAN (VA-01)

Account: Research and Development, Air Force (RDTE, AF)

Intended Recipient of Funds: Jefferson Laboratory, 12000 Jefferson Ave. Newport News, VA 23606

Project description and explanation of the request: In September, 2001, the JLAB, with the Aerospace Corporation, initiated a joint project with the Air Force Research Lab (AFRL) to expand the FEL capabilities to provide a microfabrication processing tool to produce miniature satellite components. Micro-fabrication of ceramics and glass is a high-potential JLab FEL application. The ability to create intricate microstructures in or on glass materials is considered a necessary value-added component in the development of advanced photonics and certain microinstruments. Micro-structure patterns can be used to guide light, serve as frequency selectors, control fluidic flow or enable the extraction of specific cells to capture genetic material. The Aerospace Corporation is exploring the potential of micro-fabricating a class of glass materials called photocerams using ultraviolet laser processing. This technology promises a more precise, less expensive way of creating intricate glass microstructures with the goal of fabricating picosatellites weighing less than 1 kilogram for the Air Force. The JLab FEL ultraviolet capabilities will allow for the mass production-rate throughput necessary for industry. Because of the compelling need for the Air Force to develop new materials and metal alloys for aerospace applications, the Thomas Jefferson National Accelerator Facility (Jefferson Lab) is requesting $3 million from the FY10 DOD Appropriations for the final commission and demonstration of the required accuracy and reproducibility for satellite production of the Aerospace Laser Micro Engineering Station (LMES). The LMES will make mass-producible satellites possible using 10 hours with the JLab UV FEL as compared to 270 hours using a conventional UV laser, making it possible to address new and unique missions not accessible using conventional satellite technology. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. PETER T. KING

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. KING of New York. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326—the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Rep. PETER KING

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: RDTE, N (MC)

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: American Defense Systems, Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 230 Duffy Avenue, Hicksville, NY 11801

Description of Request: $2,000,000 will be used to develop a new Enhanced Small Arms Protective Insert (E-SAPI) that will have the same performance of the current E-SAPI, but at a lower weight and with greater durability and multi-hit capacity.

Requesting Member: Rep. PETER KING

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: RDTE, N

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Webb Institute.

Address of Requesting Entity: 298 Crescent Beach Road, Glen Cove, NY 11542

Description of Request: $2,500,000 will be used for the construction of a Ship Model Testing Facility to provide undergraduate research applicable to the new hull forms the Navy is developing and fielding.

Requesting Member: Rep. PETER KING

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: RDTE, A

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: New York University.

Address of Requesting Entity: 3 Park Avenue, 15th Floor, New York, NY 10016

Description of Request: $3,000,000 will be used for the NYU School of Medicine to create a research Center for Excellence in the areas of Infectious Diseases and Human Microbiome to foster the collaboration of researchers across the campus.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. JACK KINGSTON

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. KINGSTON. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Army National Guard—Operation and Maintenance Account

Recipient information: Georgia Air National Guard—Savannah Combat Readiness Training Center, PO Box 7299, Garden City, GA 31418-7299

Description: The Georgia Army National Guard received an earmark in the amount of $515,000. Joint training event has provided a training infrastructure (where units are able to train using the same data-link and digital communications infrastructure they have in theater) to train against a live Opposition Force fielding tactically deployed independent “Integrated Air Defense Systems”.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Army, Operation and Maintenance Account
Recipient information: MPRI, 2961 W. California Avenue, Salt Lake City, UT 84104

Description: MPRI received an earmark in the amount of $3,500,000. The TranSim Training Program is designed to enhance driving skills and behaviors through the use of a tailored state-of-the-art simulator based, cognitive learning and classroom instruction system.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Army, Operation and Maintenance Account
Recipient information: ARNG Readiness Center, 111 South George Mason Drive, Arlington, VA 22204-1382

Description: The Georgia Army National Guard received an earmark in the amount of $4,000,000. Funds training devices for small arms and infantry weapons that enhance the readiness of Army National Guardsmen. Improves marksmanship and mission readiness for ground troops with interactive training without expending ammunition.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Proposed Recipient: Scientific Research Corporation (SRC), 2300 Windy Ridge Parkway, Suite 400 South, Atlanta, GA 30339

Description: The Georgia Army National Guard received an earmark in the amount of $3,000,000. Aircrews will benefit from training with actual electronic threats. The electronic threats are modeled after potential enemy weapon systems. This is a significant improvement in the quality of training and enhances the certifications done prior to deployment.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Defense Wide

Recipient information: Georgia Air National Guard—Savannah Combat Readiness Training Center, PO Box 7299, Garden City, GA 31418–7299

Description: The Georgia Army National Guard received an earmark in the amount of $4,500,000. Provides enhanced network and tactical data links for training units prior to activating for combat operations. Expands the range for training virtually without environmental impact. Also allows for greater participation from other military services.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: Georgia Air National Guard—Savannah Combat Readiness Training Center, PO Box 7299, Garden City, GA 31418–7299

Description: The Georgia Army National Guard received an earmark in the amount of $5,000,000. Infrastructure and procurement of one threat anti-aircraft weapon system for the Savannah CRTC and the Townsend Range Complex and complete the high fidelity threat range plan for Townsend Range. Improves mission readiness for deploying forces with actual, operating weapon systems.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: University of Georgia, Department of Infectious Diseases, 111 Carlton St.—AHRG, Athens, GA 30602.

Description: The University of Georgia received an earmark in the amount of $1,900,000. The project will develop nanophotonic biosensors to facilitate direct, rapid, and extremely sensitive detection of bioagents and pathogens using surface enhanced Raman spectroscopy (SERS).

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Procurement—Defense Wide

Recipient information: Daniel Defense, Inc., 235 Oracal Parkway, Black Creek, GA 31308

Description: Daniel Defense received an earmark in the amount of $2,500,000. M4 Carbine Rail System that provides a solid free float mounting platform for SOF soldiers to mount modern weapon accessories allowing the SOF Operator to acquire, identify and accurately fire on enemy targets in combat. Increases accuracy of the soldier and effectiveness of the weapon system.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: Georgia Institute of Technology, 315 Ferst Drive, Atlanta, Georgia 30332–0363

Description: The Georgia Institute of Technology received an earmark in the amount of $3,000,000. Specifically focusing on the development of technologies to streamline research directly to patient care treatment. Research teams include clinicians with expertise in combat medical care, and biomedical engineers and bioscientists with industry and regulatory expertise to shorten the process from invention to clinical use. Critical need for enabling technologies to support the translation of research findings to medical products that are safe and effective.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Operation and Maintenance—Air Force

Recipient information: Intergraph, 170 Graphics Drive, Madison, AL 35758 USA

Description: Intergraph received an earmark in the amount of $4,000,000. To improve aircraft availability (AA), reliability, and maintainability, and reduce total ownership cost (TOC). The newly defined processes of this program will create enterprise-wide proactive planning, improve strategic mobility, implement total asset visibility, and achieve greater communication and operational situational awareness.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: Southwest Research Institute, 609 Russell Parkway, Warner Robins, GA 31088

Description: Southwest Research Institute received an earmark in the amount of $3,000,000. System that improves mission readiness of Army weapon systems. Minimizes the life cycle cost of providing automatic test systems for weapon systems support at DoD field, depot, and manufacturing operations, and to promote joint service automatic test systems interoperability.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: Valdosta Optics Laboratory, 1717 Dow Street, Valdosta, GA 31601

Description: Valdosta Optics Laboratory received an earmark in the amount of $2,500,000. Adhesive-Free Bond Diamond (AFB®–D) will enable DoD ultra-high power solid state weapon lasers for space platforms and will help remedy current limitations, including foreign material sources, limited availability and limited sizes. Improvement in manufacturing techniques to produce high quality optics.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: Radiance Technologies, 7790 Veteran's Parkway, Suite C, Columbus, GA 31909

Description: Radiance Technologies received an earmark in the amount of $2,000,000. This program develops and combines the crewmember displays with the AWW–HFI that alert the door gunners with immediate and accurate detections of these weapon systems.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Army

Recipient information: ATK, 3309 North Reseda Circle, Mesa, AZ 85215

Description: ATK received an earmark in the amount of $3,000,000. Low weight, soft recoil and a dual feed loading weapon systems. Increased capability in combat using the existing fleet of helicopters.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Defense Wide

Recipient information: Morehouse College, 830 Westview Dr. SW, Atlanta, GA 30314–3773

Description: Morehouse College received an earmark of $3,000,000. This research scholars program is designed to advance core federal missions and Defense Department goals to increase the participation of minority students in emerging scientific and technology fields. The program identifies top tier high school students and places them in a rigorous program in the Division of Science and Mathematics that includes one-on-one mentoring, a summer educational and research program, and challenging internships at top research institutions, with the goal of placing them in doctoral programs on a track to work in the national laboratories.

Request information: Representative JACK KINGSTON

H.R. 3326

Research, Development, Test and Evaluation—Air Force

Recipient information: Georgia Institute of Technology, School of Aerospace Engineering, 270 Ferst Dr., Atlanta, GA 30332–0150

Description: Georgia Institute of Technology received an earmark of $2,000,000. Air Force-wide project aimed at developing new procedures and user interface methodologies for the Warfighter that request in-theater tactical Intelligence, Surveillance, & Reconnaissance (ISR) support via satellite, UAV or Aircraft. This program will help reduce costs at the Air Force and assist them in modernizing its satellite ground operations and training equipment.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ED WHITFIELD

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday July 29, 2009

Mr. WHITFIELD. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of the FY2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Act.

Requesting Member: Congressman ED WHITFIELD

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of Fiscal Year 2010

Account: Ballistics Technology

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Ensign-Bickford Aerospace and Dynamics

Address of Requesting Entity: P.O. Box 219, State Route 175, Graham, KY 42344

Description of Request: The money ($3,000,000) will be used to update and replace current reactive armor.

Requesting Member: Congressman ED WHITFIELD

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of Fiscal Year 2010

Account: Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Luvata Franklin

Address of Requesting Entity: 4720 Bowling Green Rd Franklin, KY 42134

Description of Request: The money ($2,800,000) will be used for pathogen reduction, which is vital for protection of military, particularly those serving in enclosed weapons systems such as tanks and submarines and in medical environments. It can be used proactively as a cost-effective and conscientious measure to counter today's increased concern for bio-security and improved health conditions in indoor air environments.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. LATOURETTE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide Legal

Name of Requesting Entity: Hunter Manufacturing Company

Address of Requesting Entity: 30525 Aurora Rd., Solon, OH 44139

Description of Request: Funds will be used for a regenerative filtration system, which is currently being developed by Hunter Manufacturing Co., which will reduce costs and provide protection against all chemical warfare agents for our servicemen and women. The U.S. Army Edgewood Chemical and Biological Center, the nation's leading facility for research and development for chemical and biological defense, has a requirement for filtration systems to protect military personnel, critical equipment, and strategic facilities. Current filters do not protect against the full range of chemical and biological weapons, and they must be changed-out, creating higher expenses. The full funding would be used for the design, manufacture, and testing of the filtration system.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Main Sail, LLC

Address of Requesting Entity: 20820 Chagrin Blvd., Cleveland, OH 44122

Description of Request: The Department of Defense and the U.S. Navy have been developing a system to track their vast inventories of parts and supplies. This implementation of passive RFID technology will greatly improve visibility of parts as they flow through the DoD supply distribution system to our forward deployed forces afloat. The U.S. Navy believes this effort, which will bring numerous high tech jobs to Northeast Ohio, will reduce logistics, operating, and inventory costs, reduce manning needs on Navy ships, and increase military readiness. The full funding would be used to develop and implement the passive RFID infrastructure, including the purchase of hardware and software.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Phycal, LLC

Address of Requesting Entity: 51 Alpha Park, Highland Heights, OH 44143

Description of Request: Funds will be used to allow Phycal to grow, harvest, and extract oil from algae for fuel for engine testing. Through partnerships with Ohio industry, government, and non-profit organizations, this project can accelerate the creation of a bio-fuel supply chain in Ohio and hundreds of new green jobs. Reliance on foreign oil has become a national security as well as a cost issue, and there is a rising concern about the cost and availability of aviation fuel for the U.S. Air Force. The Air Force is pursuing an alternative fuels program to identify alternative "drop-in" fuels from a number of sources, including algae, toward the goal of 50% domestic production of fuel by 2016. The funding would be used for research and development of its extraction process including purchase of equipment and prototypes.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Advanced Materials Products, Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 1890 Georgetown Rd., Hudson, OH 44236

Description of Request: Funds will be used to help establish a titanium production plant in Ohio to implement more effective production techniques. In the United States, there is not enough titanium to satisfy military and commercial need at its high cost, which means we must look to Russia, China, and Ukraine to supply us. This project will bring the titanium market home to the U.S. and create new jobs in Ohio. The funding would be used for establishing a pilot scale powder plant, develop necessary technology, and manufacture large vehicle components.

Requesting Member: Congressman STEVEN C. LATOURETTE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Steris Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 5960 Heisley Rd., Mentor, OH 44060

Description of Request: Funds will be used by Steris to develop methods for decontamination of a range of aircraft in order to protect our servicemen and women as well as keeping our military aircraft operational. Aircraft are a major part of the military's capability to perform operations. Loss of aircraft due to chemical or biological weapons makes a significant impact on the capability to resupply deployed forces, transport forces and equipment in theater, and execute missions. Steris's work further establishes Northeast Ohio as a leader in chem/bio and decontamination technology while meeting current security needs of the military. The funding would be used for development and demonstration of decontamination ability, including testing and purchase of equipment.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. JOE WILSON

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Other Procurement, Air Force

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: South Carolina Air National Guard

Address of Requesting Entity: McEntire JNGB, 1325 South Carolina Rd., Eastover, SC 29044

Description of Request: I have secured $1,500,000 for the South Carolina Air National Guard Eagle Vision Upgrade. Eagle Vision (EV) is a USAF mobile satellite imagery collection and processing system assigned to the SC ANG that will be used as a war time resource in the war on terrorism as well as a counter drug and Homeland Security asset in the United States. Funding would upgrade the EV system at McEntire JNGB to include a 1 meter infrared capability. Emergency planners and responders would be able to look through clouds and smoke with infrared enabling them to plan responses during an emergency instead of reacting afterward. Matching funds are not applicable. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: South Carolina Research Authority

Address of Requesting Entity: 1330 Lady Street, # 503, Columbia, SC 29201

Description of Request: I have secured $2,500,000 for the South Carolina Research Authority's Highly Integrated Production for Expediting Reset (HIPER). The funding will drive downstream efficiencies in manufacturing and quality inspection by enabling the utilization of laser scanning technology to significantly shorten the time and lower the cost for resetting and modernizing the military's small arms and crew-served weapons. HIPER will implement a program which ensures the provision of the best and safest weaponry to the warfighter and in the quickest and most efficient way, by replacing parts and resetting weapons more quickly and at reduced cost. This will help keep our troops safe and fully equipped with the optimum defense mechanisms they need to effectively complete their missions, while using cutting-edge technology to reduce costs and lower wait times. To achieve this goal SCRA will be relying on industry and government partners in numerous states, resulting in employment sustained and created via manufacturing and research requirements. Matching funds are not applicable. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Lifeblood Medical

Address of Requesting Entity: 10120 Two Notch Road, Suite 2, Columbia, South Carolina 29223

Description of Request: I have secured $2,000,000 for the Lifeblood Medical's Human Organ and Tissue Preservation Technology (HOTPT). Funding will be used to continue and advance studies for Oxygen Therapeutics and Extending Room Temperature Organ Preservation so that the technology can be brought to FDA for approval. The use of funds is justified due to the potential of finding the first approved oxygen therapeutics which will solve the world issue of a lack of donated blood for trauma, military and casualty use. The use of funds is justified so that the supply of organs for transplantation can adequately meet the demand through extending the preservation time at room temperature. Large animal studies have proven successful in both oxygen therapeutics and organ preservation. Prior DoD funds have also proven that the Lifeblood technology can reverse cell damage and render organs that are labeled untransplantable into an acceptable organ for donation and transplantation. Matching funds will be provided by cash on hand, licensing fee revenues, and product sales. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Procurement, Defense Wide

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: FN Manufacturing, LLC

Address of Requesting Entity: 797 Old Clemson Road, Columbia, SC 29229-4203

Description of Request: I have secured $2,500,000 for FN Manufacturing to continue production of the Special Operations Combat Assault Rifle (SCAR). The SCAR was selected after a full and open competition. It meets validated US SOCOM requirements for a 21st Century modular battle rifle available in 5.56 mm and 7.62 mm, and with Close Quarter Battle, Long-Range, and Sniper variants. Federal/taxpayer funding of the SCAR program will provide US Special Operations Forces with a far more effective and reliable combat rifle than the current M-4/M-16 family of rifles. In its various modular configurations, the SCAR will replace five different rifles now in use, greatly reducing the need for maintenance and logistics support and associated costs. Matching funds are not applicable. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Advanced Technology Institute

Address of Requesting Entity: 5300 International Blvd., North Charleston, SC 29418

Description of Request: I have secured $3,000,000 for Advanced Technology Institute to continue the Vanadium Technology Program. The Vanadium Technology Program funds the research, development and prototype-testing necessary to implement vanadium alloyed steel into warfighter protection and mobility. This funding builds on successes accomplished previously which include: reductions in weight, fabrication cost, and welding costs of 21%, 10%, and 53% respectively, leading to a smaller, higher-performing vanadium steel trailer design for the Army/Marine Joint Light Tactical Vehicle System; a longer span temporary bridge, designed by the Army Corps of Engineers and the University of South Carolina, to bridge road gaps in combat regions like Iraq; and, a new class of lighter, longer span trusses and joists, based on vanadium hot rolled steel angle shapes, have been developed and laboratory tested. Matching funds are not applicable. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Aircraft Procurement, Army
Legal Name of Requesting Entity: South Carolina Army National Guard

Address of Requesting Entity: 1 National Guard Rd, Columbia, SC 29201

Description of Request: I have secured $3,000,000 for the South Carolina Army National Guard Vibration Management Enhancement Program (VMEP). This funding will continue fielding this proven capability on the Army National Guard's AH-64, CH-47, and UH-60 helicopter fleets. VMEP collects and utilizes information derived from onboard sensors to indicate the state and health of the helicopter drive system and rotational components. VMEP enabled the SCARNG to realize a total savings in parts costs over a 12-month period of $1.4 million, as well as an increase in mission capable rates. These funds would ensure that the South Carolina Army National Guard aviation program stays in the forefront of embedded technology doctrine. Matching funds are not applicable. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman JOE WILSON

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Defense Wide

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Two Stroke International

Address of Requesting Entity: 8 Schein Loop, Beaufort, SC 29906

Description of Request: I have secured $1,900,000 for the Non-Gasoline Burning Outboard Engine. The Navy SEAL's currently use a 30 hp and 55 hp engine on their Combat Rubber Raiding Crafts. This effort is focused on the 30 hp engine. The program name for this outboard motor project is "Phoenix." The team broke down the existing motor to multiple elements; ignition system; carburetion; exhaust and intake silencing, lower unit, control apparatus, and enclosure cover. The goal of this effort is to provide the SEAL's with an advanced outboard reconnaissance engine that would burn multiple fuels (JP grades, gas, diesel, alcohol). It will be quiet for stealthy operations, have an extended fuel range using a microwave ignition system currently in development, and a lower unit that allows it to go through mud and kelp without harming the engine. Additionally the engine will take advantage of the newest technology to be resistant to salt water that make the engines last longer, decrease weight and increase range. I certify that neither I nor my spouse has any financial interest in this project.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. CALVERT. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding an earmark I received as part of the House-passed version of H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEN CALVERT

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Navy Research and Development—0604215N

Address of Requesting Entity: Naval Surface Warfare Center, Corona Division, Corona, CA 92878–5000

Description of Request: I have secured $5,800,000 for the Measurement Standards Research and Development Program. The program includes testing for electro-optic and night vision systems; chem/bio and radiation detection systems; advanced sensor technologies; nano-technology. It also provides for improved and state of the art measurement calibration systems that ensure an accurate traceability of measurement from the weapon system parameter to National Standards maintained at NIST. Without adequate measurement capability, verification of performance for weapon and detection system readiness is not possible. This project results in the development of the measurement standards and calibration systems necessary to provide traceable measurements. These state-of-the-art measurement standards often reside at NIST and thus provide benefit to other federal agencies and industry as well. This project allows the Navy to make correct test decisions that ensure mission success and safety while reducing the cost of unnecessary rework. Substantial cost savings have resulted from past R&D project funding through this program.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEN CALVERT

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Microelectronic Technology Development and Support—0603720S

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Center for Nanoscale Science and Engineering, University of Riverside, California

Address of Requesting Entity: 900 University Avenue, Riverside, California 92521

Description of Request: I have secured $6,000,000 for the Center for Nanoscale Science and Engineering. The funds will be used for the 3-D Electronics program which aims to take advantage of recent advances in nanomaterials and nanodevices to begin to address the issue necessary to take the electronics industry beyond the two-dimensional silicon based devices and wiring and to develop high density, 3D-electronics technology together with associated packaging, heat dissipation solutions and the investigation of alternative electronic materials. Conventional electronics is based on 2D planar processes, but this is becoming prohibitively expensive as well as a barrier to performance. By stacking devices and interconnecting them in a 3D arrangement, a huge leap in functionality density is possible. 3D integration is a cornerstone of the coming revolution in electronics.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEN CALVERT

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Navy Research and Development—0603739N

Address of Requesting Entity: Naval Surface Warfare Center, Corona Division, Corona, CA 92878–5000

Description of Request: I have secured $1,800,000 for the NSWC Corona IUID Center which provides technical support, implementation assistance, training, and lessons learned for IUID, a DoD mandate, to various DoD programs and offices. The IUID Center leverages complementary efforts and catalogs, distributes lessons learned, and helps streamline implementation efforts, reducing IUID implementation cost. IUID itself will enable lifecycle traceability and improve data integrity, leading to more informed decisions and improved asset management. Substantial cost savings result from IUID implementation in DoD programs as well as major gains in asset management and tracking of critical DoD material.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEN CALVERT

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Operation & Maintenance; 1C8C Depot Operations Support

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: U.S. Navy; Naval Surface Warfare Center, Corona Division

Address of Requesting Entity: Naval Surface Warfare Center, Corona Division, Corona, CA 92878–5000

Description of Request: I have secured $2,400,000 for the NSWC, Corona Fleet Readiness Data Assessment project which will update/replace existing tools to enable the accurate, efficient collection and transmission of data to quickly perform detailed readiness analyses. It will take advantage of the improved automation and data collection capability provided by the METBENCH calibration system. The analyses resulting from this project will quickly put accurate readiness information into the hands of Navy decision-makers and accelerate the savings resulting from METBENCH implementation in the Navy.

Requesting Member: Congressman KEN CALVERT

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Operation and Maintenance, Navy—03 Training and Recruiting 3A2J

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: U.S. Naval Sea Cadet Corps

Address of Requesting Entity: U.S. Naval Sea Cadet Corps; 2300 Wilson Blvd, North, Arlington, VA 22201–3308

Description of Request: I have secured $651,000 for the U.S. Naval Sea Cadet Program. The Sea Cadet Program is focused upon development of youth ages 11–17, serving almost 9,000 Sea Cadets and adult volunteers in 387 units country-wide. It promotes interest and skill in seamanship and aviation and instills qualities that mold strong moral character in an anti-drug and anti-gang environment. Summer training onboard Navy and Coast Guard ships and shore stations is a challenging training ground for developing self-confidence and self-discipline, promotion of high standards of conduct and performance and a sense of teamwork. Funds will be utilized to “buy down” the out-of-pocket expenses for training to $120/week. NSCC instills in every Cadet a sense of patriotism, courage and the foundation of personal honor. A significant percent of Cadets join the Armed Services often receiving accelerated advancement, or obtain commissions. The program has significance in assisting to promote the Navy and Coast Guard, particularly in those areas of the U.S. where these Services have little presence.

CITY OF BRANDON, MISSISSIPPI
NAMED AS ONE OF THE BEST PLACES TO LIVE IN 2009

HON. GREGG HARPER

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. HARPER. Madam Speaker, the City of Brandon, Mississippi was recently named as one of America's top small towns in which to live, according to Money magazine. The CNN magazine named this Rankin County city number 54 in its annual list of 100 Best Places to Live. As a city in the Third Congressional District, which I am proud to represent, Brandon is the only Mississippi municipality to make the 2009 list.

The list of 100 American municipalities compares communities with populations of less than 50,000 and takes into account an area's school system, crime rate, median income and racial makeup.

Brandon's job growth was 30.4 percent from 2000–2008 versus about 19.6 percent nationally and the city posts a median income of $77,679. The city's population is currently 20,600, up from 16,436 in 2000 according to the latest census figures.

A low crime rate was also a key point for Brandon making the study. This is why many of the city's residents consider locking their doors as optional.

Brandon Mayor Tim Coulter said, “I think people are finding out what we've known for years, that Brandon is a great place to live.”

Rankin County Chamber of Commerce director Gale Martin attributes this honor to Brandon's quality of life. He said, “You've got a small-town atmosphere with the big-city amenities,” said Martin. Martin credits quality schools, closeness to cities like Jackson, Meridian and Vicksburg and its short distance from Jackson-Evers International Airport to spurring Brandon's tremendous growth.

The residents of Brandon should also share the honor of this national recognition. Since 1829, residents, first responders, school teachers, pastors and local elected officials have worked tirelessly to ensure that Brandon maintains its standing as the “City of Red Hills with Golden Opportunities.” I salute Brandon, Mississippi and the State of Mississippi, both great places to live in America.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GALLEGLY. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010:

Requesting Member: Rep. ELTON GALLEGLY
Bill: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy; Electronic Warfare Development

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Regional Defense Partnership—21st Century

Address of Requesting Entity: 311 Main Road, Building 1, Point Mugu, CA 93042

Description of Request: Naval Air Warfare Center Weapons Division (NAWCWD) Point Mugu is an Electronic Warfare Center of Excellence for the development and maintenance of airborne electronic attack, tactical, and assault system platform electronic warfare (EW) systems. This request for $4,500,000 is for a laboratory upgrade at Point Mugu that would directly support EA-18G, EA-6B, MH-60, and E-2C platform development. Additionally, this enhanced capability would provide risk reduction to current acquisition programs such as the P-8A multi mission aircraft.

In order to be effective in modern battle scenarios containing multiple threats, the EW weapon system requires the exact location and type of all the threats in a 360 degree, or four quadrant, field of view. The current lab equipment is limited to simulating a 180 degree, or 2 quadrant, field of view of the battle space. The EW Center of Excellence at NAWCWD Point Mugu utilizes laboratory test equipment to simulate this complex electronic battle space. Testing that cannot be performed in the laboratory must be done using flight test hours on an open air EW range. This not only costs more, it is also very difficult to obtain test repeatability and exposes the system under test to electronic eavesdropping. No open air range can duplicate the dense electromagnetic environment of large numbers of threat and friendly emitters encountered in a modern battle scenario. This can only be replicated through laboratory simulation.

Funding is requested to upgrade the EW laboratory facility at NAWCWD Point Mugu to a four quadrant simulation capability and acquire the AMES III High Speed Calibrator and the Airborne Interceptor Simulator for real world threat simulations. The bill provides $4,000,000 in funding for this project request.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. DEAN HELLER

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. HELLER. Madam Speaker, Pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010:

Requesting Member: Congressman DEAN HELLER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Other Procurement—Air Force

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Nevada Air National Guard

Address of Requesting Entity: 2460 Fairview Dr., Carson City, NV 89701

Description of Request: $1,000,000. This funding will allow the Nevada Air National Guard to purchase Scathe View, which is a unique intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance system. Scathe View provides real time imagery support to combat operations, search and rescue operations, as well as support to civil authorities during natural disasters. This technology is essential in allowing the Nevada Air National Guard to fulfill both its foreign and domestic responsibilities.

Requesting Member: Congressman DEAN HELLER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Operations and Maintenance—Army Reserve

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Nevada National Guard

Address of Requesting Entity: 2460 Fairview Dr., Carson City, NV 89701

Description of Request: $1,000,000. This funding will allow Nevada National Guard the ability to man their Joint Operations Center 24/7 with trained professional staff to meet its emergency readiness responsibilities throughout the state.

Requesting Member: Congressman DEAN HELLER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation—Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Day & Zimmermann Hawthorne Corporation—Hawthorne Army Depot

Address of Requesting Entity: 2 South Maine, Hawthorne, NV 89415

Description of Request: $1,000,000. This funding will be used for the development of a rocket motor contained burn system which demilitarizes rockets safely. The system will be used for Multiple Launch Rocket System (MLRS) motors, and will be adaptable to other larger rocket motors.

dated garments that are bulky, do not fit the aircrew population, have minimal water and wind resistance, limited moisture management and cannot decrease or increase thermal value by addition or removal of layers. The majority of aircrews do not have this system.

Requesting Member: Congressman MIKE ROGERS (MI)

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Operations and Maintenance—Operating Forces

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Peckham Industries

Address of Requesting Entity: 2822 N. Martin Luther King Blvd., Lansing, MI 48906

Description of Request: Provide funding of $2,600,000 for a Cold Weather Layering System (CWLS) for U.S. Marine Corps Expeditionary Forces. The Marine Corps requirement for the Polartec components to CWLS is 202,000 units. $2,600,000 will fund approximately 13,000 sets of CWLS. The CWLS is designed to reduce the weight and volume that a Marine operating as dismounted infantry must carry to accomplish combat missions in mountainous and cold weather environments.

Requesting Member: Congressman MIKE ROGERS (MI)

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Combat Vehicle and Automotive Technology

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Michigan State University

Address of Requesting Entity: MSU Campus, East Lansing, MI, 48824

Description of Request: Provide funding of $3,500,000 for advanced composite materials research Operating costs, salaries for researchers, purchase of research equipment, continued lease of the building housing CVRC. This broadly based ongoing program of basic research on composite materials and structures will support the U.S. army, navy, marines and air forces in the design, production, inspection, and repair of safe, durable, lightweight, energy-efficient tactical and strategic land, marine, and air vehicles that will function dependably in severe environments. Some specific service needs addressed include the repair or replacement of vehicles lost or damaged in the Middle East, the requirement for lightweight trailers and vehicles for the U.S. Marines, improvement of design and fabrication of aircraft and watercraft, the creation of deployable inspection techniques, and the furthering of development of heavy combat vehicles that can be easily transported on available cargo aircraft. The results will also contribute to improved exploitation of composites in light-weight personal armor for military and police personnel.

Requesting Member: Congressman MIKE ROGERS (MI)

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Combat Vehicle And Automotive

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: NextEnergy

Address of Requesting Entity: 461 Burroughs, Detroit, MI 48202

Description of Request: Provide funding of $4,100,000 for The NextEnergy Center to work with the National Automotive Center to develop and deploy Smart Plug-In Hybrid Vehicle (PHEV) technology in support of Defense Department ("DoD") initiatives to reduce fuel

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. MIKE ROGERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, The Department of Defense Appropriations Act of Fiscal Year 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman MIKE ROGERS (MI)

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Other Procurement—Aviation Support Equipment—Aviation Life Support

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Peckham Industries

Address of Requesting Entity: Peckham Industries, 2822 N. Martin Luther King Blvd., Lansing, MI 48906

Description of Request: Provide funding of $2,500,000 for a Multi Climate Protection System (MCPS) for U.S. Navy and Marine Corps aircrews. The U.S. Navy and Marine Corps requirement for MCPS is 21,500 units. $2,500,000 will fund approximately 1,250 sets of MCPS. MCPS is designed to replace out-consumption using vehicles with exportable high-quality electric power. Will fund associated operating expenses, construction and building maintenance, feasibility studies, equipment purchase, technician salaries, travel, and federal overhead. A smart PHEV will supplement electrical power generation via exportable electric power from the vehicle, and reduce emissions by the vehicle fleet. Funding will support continued development of new stationary and mobile charging and discharging infrastructure and technologies associated with smart Plug-In Hybrid Electric Vehicles with vehicle to grid (V2G) connectivity including power transfer and the associated communication to support integration of electric vehicles for military and commercial stationary power applications. NextEnergy will pursue technologies that have tactical and non-tactical utility.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. C.W. BILL YOUNG

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the House Republican Standards on Congressional appropriations initiatives, I am submitting the following information regarding projects that was included at my request in H.R. 3326, The Defense Appropriations Bill of Fiscal Year 2010:

Adaptive Diagnostic Electronic Portable Test Set (ADEPT)

Account: Department of Defense, Operations Navy Other Procurement

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Mikros Systems

Address of Requesting Entity: 7887 Bryan Dairy Road, Suite 220, Largo, Florida 33777

Description of Request: Provides $1,000,000 for Department of Defense to conduct a competition for the Adaptive Diagnostic Electronic Portable Test Set (ADEPT). The Adaptive Diagnostic Electronic Portable Test Set (ADEPT®) program is an intelligent, automated, programmable electronic test tool designed to aid shipboard technical personnel in the maintenance, alignment, calibration, and error diagnosis of radar and other complex electronic systems.

Advanced Battery Technology (ABT)

Account: United States Army, RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Enser Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 5430 70th Avenue North, Pinellas Park, FL 33781

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 in funding for Advanced Battery Technology (ABT) in the Fiscal Year 2010 Appropriations Bill. This program is intended to establish a United States owned thermal battery capability to support advanced weapon systems. There are only two companies in the world that can produce these products. Enser Corporation is the only domestic source. Advancement in thermal battery technology is required for next generation weapons systems for strategic defense and advanced guided munitions, smart bombs and missiles.

Advanced Conductivity Program (ACP)

Account: United States Army, RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Eclipse Energy Systems Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 2345 Anvil Street North, St. Petersburg, FL 33710

Description of Request: Provides $1,000,000 for the Advanced Conductivity Program (ACP). The United States Army has recognized the need for the manufacture of advanced nanotechnology film materials. These films reduce solar loading of vehicles and are transparent; electrically and thermally conductive and flexible; thereby enhancing the transparent and armor capability of avionic window systems. This allows the soldier increased situational awareness, survivability and effectiveness on the battlefield.

Advanced Detection of Explosives (ADE)

Account: United States Air Force, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alaka'i Consulting & Engineering, Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 7887 Bryan Dairy Rd, Suite 220, Largo, FL 33777

Description of Request: $2,000,000 was requested for the United States Army to conduct a competition to provide for the Advanced Detection of Explosives (ADE). ADE will improve current counter-IED technology and detect improvised explosives devices (IEDs) at safe standoff distance thereby increasing survivability of warriors on the battlefield.

Advanced Electronic Components for Sensor Arrays

Account: United States Air Force, Aerospace Sensors

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Custom Manufacturing & Engineering, Inc. (CME)

Address of Requesting Entity: 2904 44th Avenue North, St. Petersburg, FL 33714

Description of Request: $3,000,000 was requested for the United States Air Force to conduct a competition to provide for the Advanced Electronic Components for Sensor Arrays which will provide the Air Force with detailed designs and integration of advanced, lower cost electronic sensor components. These components will be used in large-scale phased array antenna architectures and other passive electromagnetic and EO/IR sensor arrays. These modular components for DC powered devices and critical power components effectively militarized will also support other highly integrated sensor arrays across the military services—air, space, ship, and shore assets.

AN/AAR-47B(V)2 Missile Warning System

Account: United States Navy, Aircraft Procurement

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Alliant Techsystems (ATK), Inc.

Address of Requesting Entity: 13133 34th Street North, Clearwater FL 33762

Description of Request: $5,000,000 will be provided for the United States Navy for advancements in the AN/AAR-47B(V)2 Missile Warning System. The AN/AAR-47B(V)2 Missile Warning System is an extremely effective, low cost, missile warning system that provides significant timely warning of missile and laser threats to U.S. aircraft. This program will provide upgrades for new requirements based on emerging threats in the Global War on Terrorism, and it will address long-term performance improvements for emerging threats. This system is currently fielded in a wide variety of fixed wing and rotary wing aircraft currently being used in Iraq and Afghanistan. The lessons learned from years of combat operations and subsequent upgrades to this system which would enhance the ability of the aircraft to avoid being shot down.

Autonomous Marine Sensors and Networks for Rapid Littoral Assessment

Account: United States Navy, ONR RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: University of South Florida

Address of Requesting Entity: 4202 East Fowler Avenue, Tampa, FL 33620

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for the continuation of the Autonomous Marine Sensors and Networks for Rapid Littoral Assessment. This program continues development of advanced underwater sensing systems and associated networks that provide rapid assessment of underwater threats along the shoreline, providing greater security to bases and ports both domestically and abroad.

Ballistic Missile Technology (BMT)

Account: Air Force RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Honeywell

Address of Requesting Entity: 13350 U.S. Highway 19 North, Clearwater, FL 33764

Description of Request: $2,000,000 for the United States Air Force to conduct a competition to provide for the Ballistic Missile Technology. This project will help develop and mature the current Minuteman III program, the Navy's Trident D-5 Life Extension and Prompt Global Strike mission.

BATMAV Program Miniature Digital Data Link (DDL)

Account: United States Air Force, RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Draper Labs

Address of Requesting Entity: 9900 16th St N, PO Box 22369, St Petersburg, FL 33742-2369

Description of Request: $2,000,000 for the United States Air Force to conduct a competition for the development of the BATMAV Program Miniature Digital Data Link (DDL). The U.S. Air Force is developing a small one-man packable and one-man operable Battlefield Air Targeting Micro Air Vehicle (BATMAV) for reconnaissance, surveillance, target acquisition and battle damage assessment. A MCM micro Digital Data Link (DDL) will be developed with an agile frequency capability (providing multiple frequencies for AFSOC UAV operations) controlled via a USB computer interface and encryption capabilities to protect command and control and sensor communications.

Battlefield Sensor Netting (BSN)

Account: United States Navy/Marine Corps, RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: SAIC

Address of Requesting Entity: Central Avenue, Suite 1370, St. Petersburg, FL 33701

Description of Request: $3,000,000 for the United States Navy for the continuation of development for Battlefield Sensor Netting (BSN). BSN will provide the warfighter with unparalleled access to mission critical, real-time sensor data. Although tremendous progress has been made in the advancement of sensors, there has not been a corresponding advancement in data link network technologies that can effectively disseminate, display and exploit the tremendous amounts of data generated by modern sensor systems. The Battlefield Sensor Netting program bridges the sensor to shooter gap. It would provide a high bandwidth data network that combines the advantages of low cost, highly capable commercial wireless technologies with the extended range, jamming resistance and security provided by phased array antennas, military encryption systems and network software.

Advanced Development of CBRN Detection Payload for Unmanned Rotary Wing Aircraft

Account: United States Department of Defense, Defense Wide, RDT&E/DW

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Constellation Technology Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: Young-Rainey STAR Center, 7887 Bryan Dairy Road, Suite 100, Largo, Florida 33777-1452

Description of Request: $2,000,000 for the Department of Defense to conduct a competition for the development of an Advanced Development of CBRN Detection Payload for Unmanned Rotary Wing Aircraft. The New rotary wing unmanned aircraft offers many key benefits for CBRN detection in that they are capable of staying near a potential source (hovering) for extended periods. This effort is designed to take the lessons learned from fixed wing aircraft and develop a CBRN detection payload for rotary wing aircraft. Rotary wing aircraft offer a great potential improvement in the ability to detect CBRN from the air. The Rotary Wing UAV platforms are expected to be a more proficient means in addressing payload considerations associated with detector technology in the detection of Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD).

Comprehensive Maritime Domain Awareness

Account: United States Department of Defense, Defense Wide, RDT&E/DW

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: SRI International

Address of Requesting Entity: 140 7th Avenue South, St. Petersburg, FL 33701

Description of Request: $4,000,000 for the Department of Defense to provide for the continuation of development for Comprehensive Maritime Domain Awareness. The current program is conducted in conjunction with the University of South Florida. This funding would continue an ongoing successful program to detect, deter or prevent terrorist attacks against our ports as well as support a broad group of local and regional law enforcement agencies, national and defense assets tasked with protecting ports, waterways, and the general maritime commerce. The program is developing a comprehensive, networked, water-side and landside port and maritime domain awareness system. The initiative applies the latest available technology and develops new capabilities to fill deficiencies in existing systems. Technology used to support the effort takes advantage of the latest advances in micro-systems and nano-materials for sensors and communications.

Cooperative Engagement Capability (CEC)

Account: United States Navy, RDT&E

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Raytheon Company

Address of Requesting Entity: 7401 22nd Avenue North, Building D, St. Petersburg, Florida 33710

Description of Request: $5,000,000 for the United States Navy to conduct a competition to provide for improvements to the current Cooperative Engagement Capability (CEC) program. CEC is the premier anti-air warfare sensor networking system for the United States Navy. Additional research and development funding will support critical anti-tamper upgrades to safeguard CEC technology and modify the CEC algorithms to support fleet defense against emerging threats. The anti-tamper upgrades will allow CEC technology to be used by our closest allies (the U.K. and Australia; also possibly Canada), thereby fostering an interoperability between our navies.

Countermeasures to Chemical and Biological Controls—Rapid Response

Account: United States Department of Defense, Defense Wide, RDT&E Defense-Wide, Chemical and Biological Defense Program

Address of Requesting Entity: 4202 East Fowler Avenue, Tampa, FL 33620

Description of Request: Provides $3,500,000 for Countermeasures to Chemical and Biological Controls—Rapid Response. This project assists the Department of Defense to primarily focus in two important medical areas: (1) numerous sub-project investigations, studies and research which has led to the development of recognized diagnostics and vaccines that are used to treat infectious diseases and more rapid response to chemical and biological agents such as anthrax, and (2) a highly successful program of training and education for first responders both in and outside of Florida. Over 3,500 persons (law enforcement officers, firefighters, medical personnel and the media, to name a few) have been trained to act quickly and efficiently in the event of a terrorist attack or natural disaster condition which necessitates the highest level of productivity to protect affected communities.

Countermeasures to Combat Protozoan Parasites (Toxoplasmosis and Malaria)

Account: United States Department of Defense, Defense-Wide, RDT&E, Defense-Wide, DARPA, Defense Research Sciences

Address of Requesting Entity: 4202 East Fowler Avenue, Tampa, FL 33620

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 for Countermeasures to Combat Protozoan Parasites (Toxoplasmosis and Malaria). There has been an increasing rate of difficulty to diagnose and treat infectious diseases occurring from battlefield experiences and exposure to multiple hazards. This project singularly focuses on specific molecular determinants of that threat and new research to lead to effective drug discovery treatments. The project also focuses on delivery and deployment of therapies directly to military personnel. This area of research is under funded in the U.S. military at present and is a growing and compelling need to protect our service members from long-term disability and death.

Expansion of the Forensic Intelligence Technologies and Training Support Center of Excellence in Largo, Florida

Account: Defense Wide, RDT&E Procurement

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: National Forensic Science Technology Center

Address of Requesting Entity: 7881 114th Avenue North, Largo, FL 33773

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 for Expansion of the Forensic Intelligence Technologies and Training Support Center of Excellence in Largo, Florida. This program currently has a strong working relationship with both SOCOM and CENTCOM. In addition the NFSTC works closely with the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory (USACIL) which provides all the operational analysis and some reach back support to SOCOM. These factors along with over 65,000 sq ft of specifically designed training space make this an excellent regional training site for all Department of Defense forensic related training.

Florida Counterdrug Program

Account: United States Army National Guard, Operations and Maintenance

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Army National Guard

Address of Requesting Entity: 82 Marine Street, St. Augustine, Florida 32084

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for the Florida Counterdrug Program. The Florida National Guard has the foremost Counterdrug Program in the nation. This funding would continue an ongoing successful program to detect, deter or prevent successful Drug Trafficking Organizations. This program continues to develop and resource innovative tactics to prevent penetration of our borders and reach our youth. The Florida National Guard is prepared to meet this challenge. In light of the ever emerging threats to our citizenry, this funding will sustain the Florida Counterdrug Program in its current capability in supporting our law enforcement and community-based program partners and defending the citizens of our Nation and State against the source of illegal drugs.

Florida National Guard (FLNG) Total Force Integration

Account: United States Air Force, RDT&E, Advanced Spacecraft Technology

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Honeywell Aerospace, Space Systems

Address of Requesting Entity: 13350 U.S. Hwy 19 North, Clearwater, FL 33764

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for Florida National Guard (FLNG) Total Force Integration. This project will enable Florida National Guard involvement in new range initiatives that will address the responsive space mission in addition to addressing a number of pressing Air Force and DOD range issues such as increasing launch costs, range infrastructure costs and range radar reliability, all of which have been challenges over the last decade. The Florida National Guard brings a unique perspective and expertise necessary to take full advantage of Total Force Integration; reducing the significant probability of failure of range instrumentation. The Guard provides safe and on-time launch range capabilities with lower costs and shorter cycle times, and provides lighter and leaner range operations.

High Performance Thermal Battery Infrastructure Project

Account: Defense Wide, Defense Production Act

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Enser Corporation

Address of Requesting Entity: 5430 70th Avenue North, Pinellas Park, FL 33781

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for the High Performance Thermal Battery Infrastructure Project. This project will greatly enhance the Defense Production Act Title III Program. The Battery Production Project is critical to meet production requirements of next generation weapon systems supporting the U.S. Homeland and U.S. War Fighters engaged in the Global War On Terror (GWOT). This DPA Title III Program Battery Production Project provides the Department of Defense the only manufacturing source available to meet production requirements of next generation weapon systems for the Missile Defense Agency (MDA) strategic defense weapons and advanced tactical guided munitions, smart bombs and missiles for the US Armed Forces. This facility is the only United States owned source of high performance cobalt disulfide thermal batteries.

Integrated Psycho-Social Healthcare Demonstration Project

Account: United States Navy, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Health Integrated.

Address of Requesting Entity: 10008 North Dale Mabry Highway, Tampa, FL 33618.

Description of Request: Provides $1,000,000 for the United States Navy to conduct a competition to provide for an Integrated Psycho-Social Healthcare Demonstration Project. This project proposes to enhance healthcare for US service members and their families, and to proactively address their unique psychological healthcare needs through the use of industry-leading targeted population management models. It will target a pilot population of DoD beneficiaries within a designated Military Treatment Facility area. The target population will be risk stratified.

Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance Global Sensors Architecture (ISR-GSA) and Full Motion Video (FMV) Assessment Project

Account: Department of Defense, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: National Interest Security Company (NISC) / Information Manufacturing Company (IMC).

Address of Requesting Entity: 11300 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Street North, Suite 310, St. Petersburg, FL 33716.

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 for the Department of Defense to conduct a competition to provide for the Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance Global Sensors Architecture (ISR-GSA) and Full Motion Video (FMV) Assessment Project. This project fulfills an urgent need by Special Operating Forces (SOF) to achieve near real-time data fusion for deployed sensor systems. This project will supplement and enhance the SOF Warfighter both in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Military / Law Enforcement Counterterrorism Test Bed

Account: United States Air Force RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Pinellas County Sheriff Office.

Address of Requesting Entity: 10750 Ulmerton Road, Largo FL 33778.

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for a Military / Law Enforcement

Counterterrorism Test Bed. Civilian law enforcement professionals have unique skills in investigations, crime scene forensics and evidence gathering that are hard to find in the Department of Defense. The test bed program allows the Law Enforcement CT Test Bed to train Department of Defense Personnel in non-traditional warfare skills associated with counter insurgency and counter terrorism missions through interaction and training with the local and federal law enforcement community. These non-traditional law enforcement skills are required in the military's nation building role in urban environments both in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Multi-Jurisdictional Counter-Drug Task Force Training (MCTFT)

Account: United States Army National Guard, Counter Drug Activities

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: St. Petersburg College.

Address of Requesting Entity: P.O. Box 13489, Saint Petersburg, FL 33733.

Description of Request: Provides $3,500,000 for Multi-Jurisdictional Counter-Drug Task Force Training (MCTFT). This program brings law enforcement, military and civilian personnel together to fight the war on drugs through the Multi-Jurisdictional Counter-Drug Task Force Training (MCTFT) Program. This is the most comprehensive counter-drug training program today and is a federally funded partnership with the Department of Defense's National Guard Bureau, the Florida National Guard and St. Petersburg College. MCTFT provides unique counter-drug training for local, state, federal, and military criminal justice professionals as well as awareness training for community leaders. MCTFT offers in-depth courses covering aspects of counter-drug law enforcement using conventional classroom and scenario models as well as distance learning technologies.

National Functional Genomics Center

Account: United States Army, RDT&E, Advanced Medical Technology.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center and Research Institute

Address of Requesting Entity: 12902 Mag-nolia Drive, Tampa, FL 33612

Description of Request: Provides $6,000,000 for the National Functional Genomics Center. This program will accelerate the discovery of new cancer drugs and save lives and burdensome dislocation of the fighting soldier and support personnel. This adds an enormous financial burden on the Department of Defense Tri-Care program utilized by our DoD veterans, their spouses and dependents. Medical R&D that will improve care, reduce morbidity, be cost specific and bring quality to the system is relevant to the Department of Defense mission and the taxpayer.

National Terrorism Preparedness Institute Anti-Terrorism/Counter-Terrorism Technology Development and Training project

Account: United States Navy, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: St. Petersburg College.

Address of Requesting Entity: 6021 142nd Avenue North, Largo FL 33760.

Description of Request: Provides $3,500,000 for the National Terrorism Preparedness Institute Anti-Terrorism/Counter-Terrorism Technology Development and Training project. This project provides the DOD with technology and training development in the four pillars of combating terrorism: intelligence support, counterterrorism, anti-terrorism, and consequence management. The National Terrorism Preparedness Institute (NTP) will continue to provide training to the DOD, emergency responders, and policy makers. This program will continue research and development of technology and training.

Next Generation Scalable Lean Manufacturing Initiative—Phase Two

Account: United States Navy, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Revenge Advanced Composites.

Address of Requesting Entity: 12705 Daniel Drive, Clearwater, FL 33762

Description of Request: Provides $3,000,000 for the continued development of the Next Generation Scalable Lean Manufacturing Initiative—Phase Two. The second phase of this program could potentially revolutionize the ship building industry taking advantage of modern techniques, current technologies, and advanced materials such as composites. Specifically, this initiative will solve current and immediate operational needs/requirements to develop large-scale, high strength, light-weight structures. There is increasing demand at all levels within the Department of Defense for such modernizations today.

Reduced Manning Situational Awareness project

Account: United States Army, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: DRS Technologies

Address of Requesting Entity: 6200 118th Avenue North, Largo, FL 33773

Description of Request: Provides $5,000,000 for the Reduced Manning Situational Awareness project. This program is a Command and Control (C2) system of integrated smart sensors, 3D visualization, video analytics, and bandwidth management. This system automates the monitoring of a wide array of sensors thereby reducing manning requirements and operator fatigue. These capabilities reduce operator costs and increase detection probability and response with increased protection of critical assets. This project will enhance the military capability to perform real-time battle surveillance as well as battle damage assessments.

Regional Emergency Response Network Emergency Cell Phone Capability

Account: United States Army National Guard, Operations and Maintenance

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Army National Guard.

Address of Requesting Entity: 82 Marine Street, St. Augustine, Florida 32084

Description of Request: $5,000,000 for the United States Army to provide for competition for a Regional Emergency Response Network Emergency Cell Phone Capability program. This program helps military managers and leaders improve efficiency by providing cellular service during the crucial hours after a disaster occurs. This would allow first responders to communicate with already existing hand held equipment thus providing a much quicker and focused coordinated recovery effort.

Second Civil Support Team for Weapons of Mass Destruction in Florida

Account: United States Army National Guard, Operations and Maintenance
Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Army National Guard.

Address of Requesting Entity: 400 South Monroe St., Tallahassee, FL 32399.

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 for a Second Civil Support Team for Weapons of Mass Destruction in Florida. This appropriation would allow for continued Operations and Maintenance funding for a second Civil Support Team in Florida. This capability provides the citizens of Florida an increased response capability to match the potential terrorist and natural disaster threats in the state.

Second Civil Support Team for Weapons of Mass Destruction in Florida.

Account: United States Army National Guard, Personnel

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Florida Army National Guard.

Address of Requesting Entity: 400 South Monroe St., Tallahassee, FL 32399.

Description of Request: Provides $1,200,000 for a Second Civil Support Team for Weapons of Mass Destruction in Florida. This appropriation would allow for continued personnel funding for a second Civil Support Team in Florida. This capability provides the citizens of Florida an increased response capability to match the potential terrorist and natural disaster threats in the state.

Super High Accuracy Range Kit (SHARK) Precision Guided Artillery Round—105mm

Account: United States Army, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: General Dynamics.

Address of Requesting Entity: 11399 16th Court North, St. Petersburg, FL 33716.

Description of Request: Provides $5,000,000 for the United States Army to conduct a competition for the Super High Accuracy Range Kit (SHARK) Precision Guided Artillery Round—105mm. This program is a promising technology for providing precision accuracy for 105mm artillery projectiles for use by the Infantry Brigade Combat Team (IBCT) in order to reduce collateral damage. This technology utilizes Global Positioning System (GPS) guidance and rear steering fins packaged in a module that can be used on the newly type classified M1130 Pre-Formed Fragment (PFF) artillery projectiles. This technology incorporates a gun hardened Control Actuator System (CAS) that has been successfully demonstrated on the 155mm Excalibur program.

United States Special Operations Command—SOCOM/STAR-TEC Partnership Program

Account: Defense-Wide, RDT&E, Counter-Drugs

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: CTC Tampa Bay, Inc. (STAR-TEC)

Address of Requesting Entity: Young-Rainey STAR Center, 7887 Bryan Road, Suite 220, Largo, Florida 33777.

Description of Request: Provides $2,000,000 for the United States Special Operations Command—SOCOM/STAR-TEC Partnership Program. This project would establish an ultra-responsive, local resource, tied to academia, science and industry to meet unique Special Operations Forces (SOF) requirements. STAR-TEC will research and share concepts and information under development by similar Department of Defense organizations and other rapid deployment forces combating the Global War On Terrorism (GWOT).

United States Special Operations Command "SOCRATES" High Assurance Platform Program

Account: Defense-Wide, RDT&E,

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: National Information Assurance Corporation (NIACORP)

Address of Requesting Entity: 7887 Bryan Road, Suite 320, Largo, Florida 33777.

Description of Request: Provides $1,000,000 for the United States Special Operations Command "SOCRATES" High Assurance Platform Program. This project would establish The High Assurance Platform (Trusted Virtual Environment) that will provide the capability for a secure solution allowing the user to access multi-level information (TS/SCI) to unclassified as well as a multi-domain information (NATO, Coalition) on a single desktop/laptop. Significant cost savings will be realized by the DOD throughout the life cycle of this technology while combating the Global War On Terrorism (GWOT).

X-Band/W-Band Solid State Power Amplifier
Account: Defense Wide, RDT&E.

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Global Technical Services (GTS)

Address of Requesting Entity: 6901 Bryan Dairy Road, Largo, FL 33777.

Description of Request: Provides $1,000,000 for an X-Band/W-Band Solid State Power Amplifier. This program will design, develop and test a solid state power amplifier at X-Band/W-Band to replace the current Traveling Wave Tubes (TWT), in order to provide a higher mean time before replacement thereby reducing overall costs.

IN SUPPORT OF H.R. 3200

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, I submit the following regarding H.R. 3200:

PHYSICIANS

"As a geriatrician who specializes in care of older adults, the more power and choice we can put in the hands of patients the better! My patients are afraid of being overtaken by the health care system. Advance care planning restores the focus to where it belongs—on the patient's goals, the patient's wishes, and putting the patient—not the system—in the drivers seat."—Diane E. Meier, MD, Gaisman Professor of Medical Ethics, Director, Center to Advance Palliative Care, Mount Sinai School of Medicine.

"Patients and families have suffered too much and for too long and needlessly. Adjusting the system so that providers know what the patient's goals for care are allows us what we all want: the chance for every person to live by our values—including when sick. With palliative care we can live life to its fullest till the very last drop—including while curative treatment continues. People make the best decisions when the decisions are their own. When that happens, as individuals and as a nation, we will be paying for what is right, not for what is wrong. This bill gives us the right to do what is right."—Linda L. Emanuel, MD, PhD, Buehler Professor of Medicine, Director, Buehler Center on Aging, Health & Society at Feinberg School of Medicine.

"As a physician, I strongly believe in advance planning for life threatening illness and end of life care. Patients deserve the opportunity to have voluntary yet candid conversations with their physicians about who they want involved and how they want their care managed during a serious illness. A provision in H.R. 3200 encourages and supports physicians to open the door for these important discussions as their patients deal with unexpected illness and anticipate natural life cycles. Thoughtful planning can only help bring peace, comfort and healing to patients and their families during a difficult time."—Glenn Rodriguez, M.D., Chief medical officer, Providence Health & Services—Oregon.

"Understanding patient preferences for care at the end of life is a key component of patient centered care. Substantial literature indicates that discussing care preferences improves quality of life for patients and reduces caregiver grief. These conversations require skill and time. The Advanced Planning provisions in H.R. 3200 provide training and reimbursement to deliver these essential care components."—Robert A. Gluckman, MD, FACP.

"As a palliative medicine physician and geriatrician who cares for healthy older adults and those living with serious illness and their families, I wanted to express my unqualified support for efforts to promote advance care planning and palliative care in the House health reform bill [H.R. 3200]. These provisions will help ensure that older adults get the care that they want and need by supporting physicians' efforts to identify their patients' goals for medical care and by allowing them to help their patients to select treatments that meet those goals. Too often, my patients are not aware of their options, receive treatments that will not meet their goals, or do not receive treatments that they want and need. The result is unnecessary patient and family suffering. These provisions will make a real difference in addressing this problem."—R. Sean Morrison, MD, Mount Sinai—School of Medicine.

"... Conversations with patients and their loved ones that clarify goals of care, surrogate medical decision makers, and resuscitation preferences help physicians develop plans of care that offer only therapies that will be beneficial and consistent with a patient's wishes. These help tremendously in "focusing" therapies on what the patient would want, reassuring loved ones that care is consistent with that desired, and limiting inadvertent application of unwanted precious medical resources. They are win-win experiences for patients, providers, and payers."—Jeanne Lewandowski, MD, Director of Palliative Medicine, St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

"We cannot change that people for whom we care will die, but we can give them the choice of how they wish to live at the end of their life. Some prefer the support of a hospital, some prefer the comfort of the familiar in their home. Some tolerate extreme discomfort in order to be alert while others will compromise their alertness for relief of pain. We cannot know what people will choose without having the discussion about their choices. Further support for these discussions only improves the care we can tailor for each individual. Thoughtful consideration of these issues takes time. Patients deserve our full attention when we address these issues.”—Elizabeth Weiss, MD, Bangor, Maine.

“Most Americans will live for some years with a serious chronic condition such as heart failure or dementia before dying, and most of that time will be covered by Medicare. The responsibility falls to Medicare to ensure that this phase of life is rewarding, comfortable, and meaningful by making sure that citizens get the information to make choices that serve us well—and making sure that the services we need then are reliable and efficient. For far too long, Medicare has paid attention mainly to the issues and treatments that matter most earlier in life—Medicare has to take the lead in good care for the last years of life. Only one American in five dies before becoming eligible for Medicare. We have the opportunity to build the care system we can trust to serve us well in the last years of life, and we should seize it.”—Joanne Lynn, MD, Author of The Handbook for Mortals.

The focus of health care should be what is the best care for patients as related to their life values and personal goals. As a physician, I often find that evidenced-based clinical care falls short of the dignity and comfort when the disease is non-curable and in time, result in death. Empowering people to make the best decisions related to their health care requires much discussion about their diseases. It is, in fact, allowing people to make their own decisions, to be heard, to be respected, and to be cared for to the best of our abilities regardless of disease treatment and or symptom management. I support the advance care planning provisions in H.R. 3200 because health care decision-making is American. It is the patient's right to make an informed decision and not for the government to decide what choices to make.—Mark A. Fox, MD, Florence, South Carolina.

It takes a great deal of time to discuss advanced directives with patients. This time spent should be compensated through the Medicare program. Euthanasia is never part of the discussion. Most physicians are ethically opposed to euthanasia, either active or passive. It is also illegal in 98% of the states.—Martin A. Grossman, MD, New York.

NURSES

“As trusted patient advocates, the nursing members of the Hospice and Palliative Nursing Association witness the suffering experienced by patients and family members during difficult times when advance care planning does not occur. We are, therefore, very pleased to see the specific language of this bill [H.R. 3200] assuring the patient's right to express their wishes through open discussions and know this change will indeed allow for improvement in patient care.”—Judy Lentz, RN, MSN, NHA, CEO, Hospice and Palliative Nurses Association.

“As an advanced practice nurse working in palliative care I know we improve lives of patient and families daily. I can not emphasize how critical advance care planning and palliative care is to the American health care system and fully support the provisions of H.R. 3200 that provide for Medicare coverage of these important conversations between patients and their health care providers.”—Patrick J. Coyne, MSN, APRN, Richmond, Virginia.

“What is important for health care reform and for the ninety million Americans living with serious illness is that care is focused on quality of life, management of the symptoms that accompany chronic disease, and facilitation of care that reflects patient goals and values. As a geriatric nurse practitioner and palliative care program director, I strongly support inclusion of advance care planning and palliative care—the medical specialty that focuses on preventing and treating the debilitating effects of serious and chronic illness—as a solution to achieving quality health care.”—Lyn Ceronsky, APRN, MS, Director, Palliative Care Program at the Fairview Palliative Care Leadership Center

PATIENT ADVOCATES

“This measure would not only help people make the best decisions for themselves, but also better ensure that their wishes are followed. To suggest otherwise is a gross, and even cruel, distortion—especially for any family that has been forced to make the difficult decisions on care for loved ones approaching the end of their lives. AARP is committed to improving the quality, effectiveness, and affordability of health care for our 40 million members and their families. We will fight any measure that would prevent individuals and their doctors from making their own health care decisions. We will also fight the campaign of misinformation that vested interests are using to try to scare older Americans in order to protect the status quo.”—John Rother, Executive Vice President, AARP.

“The goal of this measure is to honor an individual's choice to have or to limit life-sustaining treatments. By developing tools to help people with Medicare and their families make educated decisions about treatments, we can assure that an individual's preferences for care are respected.”—Paul Precht, Director of Policy and Communications, Medicare Rights Center.

“In La Crosse, health professionals taking time to fully inform their patients and their patient's family about future choices better assures that the patient receives the best care possible in light of that patient's health condition, religious and cultural values and that these decisions are really known by the family. Such a process benefits everyone involved and better assures that our utilization of health resources are actually matched with patient goals. This is a far better method of distribution of resources than the society deciding what is best for the patient.”—Bud Hammes, Ph.D., Director of Medical Humanities, Gunderson Lutheran Medical Foundation.

“The National Coalition for Cancer Survivorship supports the advance care planning provisions of H.R. 3200, which will help patients make well-informed decisions about the care they want and need at the end of life. A first step toward patient-centered care is productive dialogue between patients and their caregivers, communication that is not adequately valued in the current health care system. The practice of advance care planning gives patients more control over their health care than currently exists.”—Ellen L. Stovall, 37-Year Cancer Survivor and Acting President & CEO, National Coalition for Cancer Survivorship.

“Make no mistake. Living wills and proxies (advance directives) ensure that we—as opposed to just the doctors—have a clear voice and a choice in our care should we reach that most vulnerable stage where we can't advocate for ourselves. This is why I've chosen to have a health care proxy, and I applaud [Representatives] Levin and Blumenauer's efforts on this matter.”—Joseph Rickards, Patient Advocate, New York City.

FAITH COMMUNITY

“The Supportive Care Coalition is a nationwide collaborative of 20 Catholic health care organizations that assists Catholic health ministries in addressing the physical, emotional, psychosocial and spiritual needs of those suffering from life-threatening and chronic illness, as well as those approaching the end of life. We have long supported measures that improve palliative care and end-of-life services, eliminate barriers and build a more connected health care experience across the continuum of care. Central to achieving patient-centered, quality care is strong communication between patients and their health care providers and for these reasons, we strongly support the advance care planning provisions in H.R. 3200.”—Sister Karin Dufault, SP, PhD, RN, Executive Director, Supportive Care Coalition: Pursuing Excellence in Palliative Care.

“Reflection about the end of life, including elements in medical care, is important for all of us. Such discernment and discussion with loved ones can be enhanced by conversations with thoughtful and caring physicians. Actual decisions are always our own informed by our values and moral perspectives.”—Msgr. Charles J. Fahey.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. TOM COLE

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. COLE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010:

Name: Advanced Autonomous Robotic Inspections for Aging Aircraft

Bill #: H.R. 3326

Account: Operations & Maintenance, Air Force

Legal Name of requesting entity: Veracity Technology Solutions, LLC

Address of requesting entity: 2701 Liberty Parkway, Suite 311; Midwest City, OK 73110

Description: Provide an earmark of $1 million for the purposes of providing military aviation with an inspection system vehicle which will be utilized for the autonomous gathering of nondestructive inspection (NDI) data for the detection of corrosion and cracking on the KC-135 wing skins as well as other aging aircraft. This funding will allow Veracity Technology Solutions (VTS) to complete development and implement a precise and cost-effective autonomous vehicle that can provide these needed inspection results. This system will allow for condition assessment of aircraft structures, as well as continuous assessment through the historical comparison of previous and present inspection results. Currently the method for inspecting the wing skins of the KC-135 aircraft is with traditional NDI methods that are both antiquated and time consuming. Veracity, in collaboration with the Air Force have proven the ability to reduce the time of inspection on the KC-135 wing skin by a factor of 5X through the successful demonstration of a semi-autonomous automated inspection vehicle. With the addition of these congressional funds, Veracity will be able to implement a fully automated autonomous robotic vehicle that has the capability to inspect for corrosion as well as crack detection around fasteners. This system will allow maintenance personnel to set up the automated vehicle, perform the scan, analyze data real time, and perform visual inspection of fasteners which is currently not available to maintenance personnel. This system will decrease the maintenance downtime and unnecessary refurbishment of serviceable components. Without this system there is the increased risk of the catastrophic failure of these critical components. This project will provide a state-of-the-art NDI system and training that have the potential to decrease costs while assuring safety and airworthiness. This plan provides information regarding the development and deployment of two platforms. The first 60% of the granted earmark funds will be utilized on the deployment of the Autonomous Robot with the Eddy Current and Ultrasonic Inspection capabilities. The remaining 40% will be utilized for the deployment of additional proof of project concept between the KC-135 program office and Veracity. These inspections will help eliminate the need for hazardous x-ray technology, reduce idle workers, due to the use of x-ray technology, reduce flow delays, and greatly improve efficiency. There are as many as 126 inspections on the KC-135 that are meeting these criteria according to Boeing and Air Force officials, which are expected to save more than $1.5 million annually. If this inspection were to be deployed fleet-wide the savings could grow to more than $55 million. These requirements are based upon US Air Force's needs for a more reliable and sensitive inspection system.

Name: Joint Fires and Effects Trainer System Enhancements

Bill #: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E, Army

Legal Name of requesting entity: Creative Technologies, Inc.

Address of requesting entity: 6255 W. Sunset Blvd., Suite 716; Los Angeles, CA 90028

Description: Provide an earmark of $2,500,000 for the purpose of testing and developing a handheld interactive application that will develop the capability of the Artillery branch to export the JFETS Training capability to forces not located at Fort Sill, OK. The application of precision fires and effects is an essential capability not only in current theaters of war, but in virtually the entire spectrum of conflict for which US defense forces prepare. Live fire training cost and environmental impact are limiting factors in the volume and frequency of Soldier training in this domain. Virtual simulation training for Joint Fires and Effects is intended to mitigate these limitations, for both initial training and currency, by reducing total cost and increasing the total number of training repetitions Soldiers may experience. The Joint Fires and Effects Trainer System (JFETS) at the Fires Center of Excellence (FCoE), Fort Sill, Oklahoma has received funding to develop an excellent prototype; Joint Forces Command rates the JFETS Close Air Support Module as the best in existence. The current system design, however, limits throughput and, as a result, Instructors at the FCoE are unable to use the system to its fullest potential for their classes. Accordingly, the FCoE Fires Battle Lab in 2008 commissioned a study to increase throughput in the JFETS Open Terrain Module (OTM): a key venue for Call For Fire Training. The results of this study propose a technological enhancement that will allow a single Instructor to manage nine concurrent discrete call for fire training sessions in the OTM facility: an 800% increase in efficiency over the current configuration. While the underlying technology in the proposed solution is mature and sound, the question remains as to whether the enhancement will work as planned. In effect, there is a need to determine whether a single instructor will be able to manage nine concurrent sessions as predicted. Notwithstanding this increase in efficiency, the JFETS OTM will still be, relatively speaking, a scarce resource at the FCoE. Additionally, students will need to review training received on the OTM and other JFETS modules in the field after training in the school house. To maximize the value of Soldier training time in the JFETS, an interactive application is required to drill Soldiers in the five essential elements of accurate predictive fires to prepare them before they train in the immersive environment and reinforce that training once they leave. An extension to the JFETS suite of capabilities, the application will be designed to work on a variety of platforms. FCoE leadership has expressed interest in an application to work on a Personal Digital Assistant (PDA), Smartphone or other portable platform in addition to a desktop computational environment.

Name: Tactical Metal Fabrication System (TACFAB)

Bill #: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E, Army

Legal Name of requesting entity: IMTEC

Address of requesting entity: IMTEC Plaza, 2401 North Commerce; Ardmore, OK 73401

Description: Provide an earmark of $1 million for TacFab. 63% will be used for a Shelterized Integration of a Low-End (TacFab) Capability. An additional 37% will be used for the Integration of Full-Up Deployable (TacFab) Capability. TacFab demonstrates a tactically mobile, rapid metal fabrication capability that will be a companion unit to the MPH to provide spare and replacement parts to our Warfighters in theater, and also as a stand-alone metal casting resource provided to domestic organic Army depots and industrial facilities in support of RESET activities. TacFab provides a containerized, mobile foundry to the U.S. Army, allowing deployed forces to produce spare and replacement parts in the field. This cuts the order time from weeks or months to 24 hours. The Army uses its Rapid Manufacturing System to provide deployed forces with critical spare and replacement parts to keep its tanks, helicopters, guns and other systems operating under the extreme wear and tear of battle. The system provides troops on the ground with parts that they would otherwise need to wait weeks or months for, if they were being ordered through the standard supply chain and shipped to the front. However, because the existing system does not include a mobile foundry, the system cannot address the need for cast parts, which make up a large percentage of needs. The Tactical Metal Fabrication (TacFab) System will provide a complementary capability to the RMS to cut the time required to produce parts by 90%.

Name: UAV/UAS Test Facility

Bill #: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E, DefenseWide

Legal Name of requesting entity: University Multispectral Labs

Address of requesting entity: 500 West South Avenue; Ponca City, OK 74601

Description: Provide an earmark of $3 million to advance the National Unmanned Aerial Vehicles/System (UAV/S) Test Facility initiated in FY2009. The test facility is located adjacent to restricted Fort Sill, Oklahoma airspace and established on behalf of the United States Special Operations Command. 68% is for material, engineering support, range equipment and renovations, and 32% is for further creation of high-technology jobs consisting of technicians, engineers and scientists. Facility will also support Army Fires Center of Excellence and foster a positive impact on the surrounding areas. The UML has a fully executed Memorandum of Agreement with the Garrison Commander supported by the Fort Sill Commanding General.

Name: Infrared Materials Laboratory

Bill #: H.R. 3326

Account: RDT&E, Navy

Legal Name of requesting entity: Amethyst Research Inc.

Address of requesting entity: 1405 4th Ave. NW, Box 345; Ardmore, OK 73401

Description: Provide an earmark of $3.5 million for advanced infrared systems development. Approximately 83% is for research, development, testing and evaluation; approximately 14% is for research equipment lease, and approximately 3% is for building lease. This project has the support of key officials within the Department of Defense and from U.S. suppliers of key defense-related technologies to the U.S. Government. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the ONR, RDTE, N account. While not required to do so, the State of Oklahoma and the host community City of Ardmore have committed non-federal dollars toward this national priority. The Infrared Materials Laboratories are overcoming the technical and financial barriers preventing the use of HgCdTe (Mercury Cadmium Telluride) on large-format Si (Silicon) substrate infrared focal plane arrays (IRFPAs) and also are resolving related DoD challenges of the highest national priority. This research, performed by a highly respected team of former NVESD, Oak Ridge National Lab, Sandia National Labs, General Electric, ONR, and USAF scientists at Amethyst Research Inc. as well as at collaborating research universities and DoD equipment manufacturers will: (1) dramatically lower the cost of high-performance IR devices for DoD applications, (2) create a stable, domestic supply of wafers for IRFPA fabrication at all major U.S. infrared houses, and (3) put superior technologies into the hands of the U.S. warfighter more quickly. DOD requirement for funds is: "Passivation of Dislocation Defects by Hydrogenation for High Performance LWIR HgCdTe on Si"—NVESD W15P7T-05-C-F401; "Si Based Large Area Substrates for HgCdTe Infrared Detectors"—ARO W911 NF-06-0074; "Defect Mapping of Wafers for Increasing Yield and Operability of Infrared Focal Plane Arrays"—MDA, Pending; "Passivation Technologies for Improved Operability and Radiation Hardness of VLWIR HgCdTe Focal Plane Arrays"—MDA HQ006-07-C-7705, B063-025-044. This program will eliminate complete DoD dependency on a single, foreign source for a key component of infrared sensors. Further, this program will reduce DoD's cost to acquire and deploy high-performance IRFPAs (including 3D LADAR technologies) and improve the ability of DoD assets to distinguish, track, and target well-camouflaged enemy assets in highly cluttered environments and in space. The goal of this program is to reduce by a factor of five (5) DoD's current $200,000 cost per IRFPA. DoD estimates that the program's integral proprietary defect characterization system alone will result in taxpayer savings of $100,000,000 over 10 years. This effort is rooted in proprietary hydrogenation, wafer mapping and repair techniques that dramatically improve the operability and yield of infrared focal plane arrays used in military and homeland security applications. It will result in the production of large-area HgCdTe on Si wafer substrates and defect mapping and repair/mitigation on existing CdZnTe wafer substrates. The major U.S. infrared manufacturing houses are collaborating with Amethyst Research Inc. on this effort. The President of the United States has determined that certain components of this program are of the highest national priority.

HONORING JACKIE S. ROWLES, CRNA, MBA, MA, FAAPM, PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSE ANESTHETISTS

HON. STEVE BUYER

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BUYER. Madam Speaker, today I pay tribute to Jackie S. Rowles, CRNA, MBA, MA, FAAPM, of Indiana. Ms. Rowles will soon complete her year as national president of the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists (AANA). I am very pleased that a fellow Hoosier served as the 2008-2009 President of this prestigious national organization.

Celebrating its 78th Anniversary, the AANA is the professional organization that represents more than 40,000 practicing Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetists (CRNAs). Founded in 1931, the AANA is the professional association representing CRNAs nationwide. As you may know, CRNAs are advanced practice nurses who administer more than 27 million anesthetics in the United States each year. CRNAs practice in every setting in which anesthesia is delivered: traditional hospital surgical suites and obstetrical delivery rooms; critical access hospitals; ambulatory surgical centers; the offices of dentists, podiatrists, ophthalmologists, plastic surgeons, the U.S. military, Public Health Services, Department of Veterans Affairs healthcare facilities, and finally, like Ms. Rowles, some are specialists in the management of pain.

Ms. Rowles was educated in the art and science of Nurse Anesthesia, at the Truman

Medical Center, in Kansas City, Missouri. She earned her Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) from Ball State University, in Muncie, Indiana. In addition, Ms. Rowles also holds a Master of Arts (MA) degree in Biology from the University of Missouri at Kansas City, and a Master of Business Administration (MBA) from Memphis State University in Memphis, Tennessee. Currently, she is an Anesthetist within the Meridian Health Group, which provides pain management services in and around the Indianapolis area.

Ms. Rowles has held numerous leadership positions in the AANA as Regional Director, Vice-President, and President-elect before becoming the National President of the AANA in 2008. In addition, Jackie has served terms as President, President-Elect, and Secretary, for the Indiana Association of Nurse Anesthetists (INANA). She has received the Excellence Award from the Indiana Association of Nurse Anesthetists; the Outstanding Nursing Alumni Award from Ball State University; and the AANA Alice Magaw Outstanding Clinical Practitioner Award. Ms. Rowles has been a Member of the Indiana Commission on Health Care Excellence; a Member of the Accreditation Association Ambulatory Health Care; Associate Member in the American Society of Interventional Pain Physicians and Indiana Society of IPP; a Member of the Society of Pain Management; and finally, a Fellow and Member of the Board of Directors in the American Academy of Pain Management (AAPM). Considered an expert in interventional pain management, Jackie Rowles developed a nationally recognized system of CRNA skill competency assessment that has served as a tool in patient safety initiatives.

Adding to her professional accomplishments, Ms. Rowles has been recognized for speaking on anesthesia- and pain management-related topics over the years. During her AANA Presidency, Ms. Rowles advocated for CRNAs and patients before the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Food and Drug Administration, and other federal agencies. In addition, Ms. Rowles directed that the AANA be represented before this Congress to testify about the contributions of CRNAs in the Veterans Affairs and military health systems. Finally, Ms. Rowles has been an invaluable advocate for the value of CRNAs in health reform.

Madam Speaker, I rise to ask my colleagues to join me today in recognizing the outgoing President of the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists, Ms. Jackie S. Rowles, CRNA, MBA, MA, FAAPM, for her notable career and outstanding achievements. And, on a personal note, Jackie, stay out of the sand traps and enjoy the fairways and greens.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. SCOTT GARRETT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, FY 2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Act:

1. Project Name—Lightweight Munitions and Surveillance System for Unmanned Air and Ground Vehicles

Requesting Member—SCOTT GARRETT
Bill Number—H.R. 3326, FY 2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Act

Account—RDT&E (Army), Shipboard Systems Component Development

Requesting Entity—Imperial Machine & Tool Company, 8 West Crisman Road, Columbia, NJ 07832

Description of the Project—The Hybrid Projectile program's goal is to produce low-cost guided munitions capable of reaching targets faster than a traditional UAV. These munitions will be more efficient and effective than current guided projectiles of the same caliber with larger payloads and the ability to change targets or be recalled mid-flight. With additional taxpayer funding, current early phase research can be accelerated, completed, and transferred to other caliber weapons. The Hybrid Projectile program will offer a wide range of forward-looking, advanced weapons and surveillance capabilities to not only Army personnel, but also members of all branches of the Armed Services.

Description of the Spending Plan—
($4,800,000)

$900,000—Design/Study: Design and study costs are associated with the intense engineering and drafting of the various hybrid projectiles. Imperial dedicates personnel solely to this project.

$1,100,000—Personnel/Salaries: This cost is for the salaries of employees at Imperial Machine & Tool Co. and subcontractors (if required) that will be working on the program for FY10.

$800,000—Equipment: Equipment purchases are associated with hardware and electronics necessary to continue development of Hybrid Projectiles. Imperial Machine & Tool Co. owns state of the art manufacturing equipment. Therefore, there are no capital equipment purchases necessary.

$2,000,000—Manufacturing: This allows for the advanced manufacturing of hybrid projectiles through novel machining practices and cutting edge technology.

Total—$4,800,000.

2. Project Name—Landing Craft Composite Lift Fan

Requesting Member—SCOTT GARRETT
Bill Number—H.R. 3326, FY 2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Act

Account—RDT&E (Navy) Weapons and Munitions Advanced Technology

Requesting Entity—Curtiss-Wright Flow Control/Engineered Pump Division, 222 Cameron Drive, Suite 200, Phillipsburg, NJ 08865

Description of the Project—This project will support the design, development, and manufacture of two sets of prototype composite material lift fans for application on current and next generation Navy landing craft vessels. The initiative will address an ongoing problem the Navy has been experiencing with current generation metal lift fan blades that have to be replaced every few months at a cost of approximately $1.4 million a year. This technology will extend the life of landing craft lift fans, reducing failures, maintenance, and life cycle costs. The proposed fan improvement utilizes state of the art composite materials, fiber-reinforced matrix composites. Similar composite materials have proven themselves in pumps used in sea water applications on-board U.S. Naval Ships. This funding would complete the development of landing craft composite lift fan initiated in FY09, providing final design and production ready capability to replace current generation landing craft lift fans.

Description of the Spending Plan—
($1,500,000)

$750,000—prototype installation on Navy LCAC

$525,000—US Navy testing of prototype on LCAC

$225,000—final design modifications as identified in testing

Total—$1,500,000.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. HALL of Texas. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of FY 2010:

Requesting Member: Congressman RALPH M. HALL

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of FY 2010:

Account: RDTE, AF

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: L-3 Communications Integrated Systems

Address of Requesting Entity: 10001 Jack Finney Boulevard, Greenville, Texas 75403

Description of Request: I have secured $2,500,000 for the Rivet Joint Services Oriented Architecture (SOA) with L-3 Communications Integrated Systems. Funding for this project will fully implement the RC-135 SOA, which will ensure full RIVET JOINT integration in the ISR Enterprise, thus meeting USAF/DoD/DNI requirements for making ISR data and information discoverable, accessible, and to enable information sharing. RIVET JOINT requires continuous, current access to other ISR nodes, databases, and special processing to accomplish current and projected missions. At the same time, the ISR Enterprise will benefit greatly from RC-135 provision of ISR services, both intra- and post-mission. This will be achieved by building on current ongoing RC-135 ground systems, extending the number and performance of ISR services available through these systems, and fully meeting USAF/DoD/ DNI SOA tenets. I certify that I do not have any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman RALPH M. HALL

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of FY 2010:

Account: RDTE, A

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Denison Industries

Address of Requesting Entity: 22 Fielder Street, Denison, Texas 75020

Description of Request: I have secured $2,000,000 for the Predictive Casting Process Modeling for Rapid Production of Critical Defense Components with Denison Industries. Funding for this project will develop and implement new casting technologies and materials that will give the Department of Defense lightweight alternatives and the lowest cost options for producing vehicles that can survive against many of today's threats. It will help reverse the trend of U.S. foundries closing or moving overseas by leading the transition of new technologies that will solidify manufacturing in America and secure high skilled jobs and growth markets. It will establish a working research facility to further educate the next generation of engineers. For an often fragmented industry, it will coordinate resources and funding and help assure a continued source of American casting producers for both the military and commercial applications. I certify that I do not have any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman RALPH M. HALL

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of FY 2010:

Account: RDTE, A

Address of Requesting Entity: 2501 West University Drive, McKinney, Texas 75071

Description of Request: I have secured $2,000,000 for the Current Force common Active Protection System Radar with the Raytheon Company. Funding for this project will be used to integrate a critical FCS technology, the Active Protection System (APS), into the Army's Current Force combat vehicles. Vehicle survivability and protection of our Soldiers are paramount concerns for the Army, especially in ongoing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. The Army's Abrams, Bradley, and Stryker vehicle programs all have requirements for APS. Additional federal funding is warranted to meet these requirements and enhance force protection. I certify that I do not have any financial interest in this project.

Requesting Member: Congressman RALPH M. HALL

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act of FY 2010:

Account: RDTE, N

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Mustang Technology Group

Address of Requesting Entity: 400 West Bethany Drive, Suite 110, Allen, Texas 75013.

Description of Request: I have secured $1,000,000 for the Moving Target Indicator (MTI) Scout Radar with the Mustang Technology Group. The Navy lacks an all-weather airborne unmanned air vehicle (UAV) surveillance capability to detect and track high value targets that move, stop for a while, and then move again (Move Stop Move: MSM). Not having this capability allows suspected fast boat attackers to become untraceable when stopped within littoral regions and terrorists that stop and plant mines and IEDs along the shoreline to evade surveillance. Existing UAV radars possess a multi target track all-weather capability but do not have the ability to detect and track targets that move, stop, then move again. However, a new affordable Active Electronic Scanned Array (AESA) based radar is being developed for the Navy. The MTI Scout AESA radar hardware has been designed to support MSM and funding for this project will help develop, integrate, and test the MSM mode software. This radar capability offers the low lifecycle costs afforded by solid state reliability, has over twice the performance of similar systems, and is upgradeable with simple software updates. The light weight and low power of the MTI Scout radar make it ideal for many other airborne manned and unmanned surveillance platforms including the Predator, Fire Scout and MC-12W Adding the MSM function within the size, weight, and power of a UAV airborne platform will give field commanders a new lifesaving surveillance tool to win the global war on terror. I certify that I do not have any financial interest in this project.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. DONALD A. MANZULLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. MANZULLO. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding the two earmarks I secured as part of H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

My first request, totaling $4 million, will come from the Air Force Research and Development Appropriations account (RDT&E) under Budget Line Title "Aerospace Propulsion" for the Thermal and Energy Management for Aerospace (THEMA) II program. This program will enable improved performance and range for the next air vehicles while making key steps towards national environmental and domestic energy goals. The initiative is comprised of discrete technology, system optimization and integration elements that provide the enabling foundation for future air vehicles and capabilities. The basic and applied research to be performed under the THEMA II initiative is necessary to ensure that the technologies needed for high power, high performance, cost effective, energy efficient secondary power thermal and energy management systems are ready and available as these future vehicles and vehicle capabilities are developed and matured. Previously, THEMA received $3.5 million in FY 2008. The entity to receive funding for the THEMA II program is the Air Force Research Laboratory (AFRL) Power Division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, for a "plus-up" of an already existing contract competitively won by Hamilton-Sundstrand, a division of United Technologies Company, located at 4747 Harrison Avenue in Rockford, Illinois, 61125.

My second request, totaling $2 million, will come from the Army RDT&E Appropriation Account under the Budget Line Title "Combat Vehicle & Automotive Advanced Technology" for the Fuel System Component Technology Research program at Northern Illinois University (NIU). NIU, under the current Rapid Optimization of Commercial Knowledge (ROCK) program, has worked with a number of small companies in the Rockford, Illinois area to develop new products for improved processing of precision small parts as well as parts fabricated out of titanium. The Fuel System Component Manufacturing Technology Improvement program will have NIU work with small manufacturers in Rockford to develop improved manufacturing processes for fuel handling and similar components to enable more affordable, longer lasting lighter weight components for new and retrofit applications. The program will enable the cost-effective production of precision fuel-fluidic system components in small quantities such as are needed for replacement parts or typical military small order quantities. These manufacturing technologies will also enable higher fuel efficiency engines in vehicles ranging from trucks and cars to railroad locomotives all the way to aircraft turbines. The entity to receive funding for the Fuel System Component Manufacturing Technology Improvement program is Northern Illinois University located at 1120 East Diehl Road in Naperville, Illinois 60563.

Madam Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to thank the Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Representative DAVID OBAYE, and the Ranking Minority Member, Representative JERRY LEWIS, and the Chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, Representative JOHN MURTHA, and the Ranking Minority Member, Representative C.W. BILL YOUNG, for working with me in a bipartisan manner to include these two critical requests in this spending bill.

COMMENDING THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TILLAMOOK COUNTY CREAMERY ASSOCIATION

HON. KURT SCHRADER

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. SCHRADER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the 100th anniversary of the Tillamook County Creamery Association. The Tillamook Creamery Association and its world famous cheese factory is an institution in Tillamook County, Oregon, and now, for 100 years, has been one of the oldest farmer cooperatives in my state.

The roots of the Tillamook County Creamery Association date back to those pioneers who ventured out West on the Oregon Trail. When they arrived in Oregon, many established farms after seeing that the fertile lands and cool ocean breeze of Tillamook County were appealing for dairy production. In 1894, an entrepreneur named T.S. Townsend took 30 cows from local Tillamook farmers and created the first commercial cheese plant in Tillamook County. His cheese, and specifically his cheddar cheese recipe, gained fame across the west and Townsend eventually became known as the "Cheese King of the Coast."

As more local dairy owners followed Townsend's lead and founded their own cheese plants, 10 came together in 1909 to form the Tillamook County Creamery Association (TCCA). The goal of the association was to promote their community by marketing all of the cheese from Tillamook as being from the county, instead of from individual farmers. That cooperative ensured that all profits from the sale of dairy products from Tillamook would go back to the farmers and everyone else who ensured its production.

By the late 1940s several of the larger independent cheese production plants merged and by 1968, all of the small cheese plants had combined and together built a centralized cooperative plant in Tillamook known as the Tillamook Cheese Factory. As the factory and its delicious cheese became known across the country, the owners built a visitors center where tourists could watch the cheese making process, taste homemade fudge and ice cream and of course, sample the cheese. The factory eventually became the largest attractor of tourism in Tillamook County, with now close to 1 million people visiting annually.

Even today, Tillamook cheese is still being internationally recognized. It won six awards in cheddar cheese at the 2008 National Milk Producers Federation cheese contest and five at the 2009 Oregon Dairy Industries. In 2009, for the third year in a row the factory was ranked by the Portland Business Journal as one of the Most Admired Companies in Oregon for forestry or agriculture products. It's owned, of course, by 110 local Tillamook dairy families.

While 100 years have now passed since the establishment of the association, the guiding principles that the founders promoted remain the same. In the association, it's called "The Tillamook Tradition." That "tradition" always ensures a commitment to quality, cooperation, integrity, stewardship, responsiveness, and a dedication to their local community dairy industries. The association also supports that tradition by annually donating to more than 200 organizations across the state of Oregon. I know, that those original pioneers would be proud to see that even after 100 years, two things have stayed constant: the notion of community first, and of course, the cheese.

UNITED STATES ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS JACKSONVILLE DISTRICT CHANGE OF COMMAND

HON. KENDRICK B. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the service and contributions of Colonel Paul Grosskruger of the United States Army Corps of Engineers—Jacksonville District as he passes Command to Colonel Pantano and prepares to retire from military service. He has had a long and admirable career, worthy of distinction and worthy of our gratitude.

Colonel Grosskruger assumed command of the Jacksonville District on July 25, 2006 and it has been my distinct pleasure to work closely with him for these past several years. Most notably, I have worked with Colonel Grosskruger on the Merrill-Stevens Expansion Project and was also fortunate to assist the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as they completed the restoration of Virginia Key Beach. Each time, Colonel Grosskruger impressed us with his clarity, candor and fairness. Colonel Al Pantano has large new responsibilities to fill, but from reading his resume and noting his experiences, I am confident that he will be more than up to the task.

Below is a brief biographical sketch of Colonel Grosskruger's long and distinguished career. We have come to expect nothing less than great things of this career officer and we look forward to hearing from Colonel Grosskruger again, though as a private citizen. I know that many members of Florida's delegation join me in wishing him the best as he enters this new stage of life and we have every confidence that Colonel Pantano will continue the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers—Jacksonville District's fine tradition.

Born and raised in eastern Iowa, Colonel Grosskruger was commissioned into the Corps of Engineers upon graduation from the United States Military Academy in 1983. Colonel Grosskruger is a graduate of the U.S. Army Engineer Basic and Advance Courses, the Combined Arms and Services Staff School, the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, and the U.S. Army War College. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in engineering mechanics from the United States Military Academy and a Master of Science degree in civil engineering from Iowa State University. He is a registered professional engineer in the both the Commonwealth of Virginia and the State of Florida.

His assignments include platoon leader, battalion S2 officer and company executive officer in the 317th Engineer Battalion, Eschborn, Germany; company commander and battalion S4 officer in the 82d Engineer Battalion, Bamberg, Germany; company commander of the 535th Engineer Company (Combat Support Equipment), Grafenwoehr, Germany; project officer and deputy resident engineer in the Omaha Engineer District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Colorado Springs, Colorado; battalion executive officer, 317th Engineer Battalion, Fort Benning, Georgia; group operations officer, 36th Engineer Group, Fort Benning, Georgia; Instructor, U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Chief of Engineer Operations and Assistant Corps Engineer, V Corps, Heidelberg, Germany; Commander of the 94th Engineer Combat Battalion, Vilseck, Germany, where he planned and conducted operations in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. His prior assignment was as the Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army Engineer School, Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Colonel Grosskruger's awards include the Bronze Star, the Meritorious Service Medal (seventh award); the Army Commendation Medal (three awards and the "V" device); the Joint Commendation Medal; the Army Achievement Medal (fifth award); the NATO Medal; the Joint Meritorious Unit award; and the Humanitarian Service Medal. He has earned medals from Nicaragua and Poland. He has the U.S. and German parachutist badge and the air assault badge. His battalion earned the Presidential Unit Citation for service with the 3d Infantry Division during Operation Iraqi Freedom.

I would be remiss if I did not also take this opportunity to thank Colonel Grosskruger's wife and family for their support and dedication. It is a well known fact that the hardest job in the military is that of the military spouse; our service men and women would not be able to do what our country asks of them without the backbone of a loving family. Claudia Grosskruger is to be commended as much as Colonel Grosskruger for their work in service to this country and for their efforts in raising Jerry, 20 and Jennifer, 18.

HONORING SSGT JUAN ROLDAN

HON. BILL PASCRELL, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today in honor of a true American hero, SSGT Juan Roldan of the United States Army. On December 29, 2006, SSGT Roldan of Paterson, New Jersey, lost both of his legs in an EFP explosion. SSGT Roldan is now fighting his next war as he must learn to walk again. Like so many other soldiers who come home from war, SSGT Roldan relies on his loved ones to help him win this and his precious daughter Rian, who just turned two years old, is now the driving force behind his recovery. SSGT Roldan is not only an inspiration to his daughter, but his experience teaches all of us courage in the face of great adversity. The following poem, written by Albert Carey Caswell, is a tribute to SSGT Roldan.

FOR MY DAUGHTER!

I went off to war, all for her future to ensure . . .
 And all for God and Country Tis of Thee, as were my burdens, my burdens bore . . .
 And for all of those daughters, whose fine daddies won't be coming home no more . . .
 And oh yes, I have lost my two fine strong legs . . . but I won't moan, and I won't beg . . .
 For I have something to so live for . . . for My Daughter, I will win this battle, this war . . .
 For I have one of the greatest gifts from above, Rian, which came from such seeds of love . . .
 For I must teach her, for I must reach her . . . to show her all that it is she so needs each year . . .
 All to help her grow up, and about life and what she needs to know . . . and what really counts so . . .
 As I will inspire her by my love . . . as in my heart, I hold her close and so very high above . . .
 As I will show her, how to lift up her head each morn, even though such pain is worn . . .
 To cherish each new shining day, to touch all hearts along her way . . . as I live on . . .
 Showing her how not to be bitter and afraid, as out and along life's road as made . . .
 For I know she needs me so very much, for her this my battle . . . for her I do so much . . .
 Because so many children . . . will never know, and grow up with such loving daddies so . . .
 And never have such a best friend . . . who will stick with them, through thick and thin . . .
 Who at night will tuck them in, and tell bedtime stories . . . as together, our two hearts blend . . .

Who from them so much can learn, as it's for her and her future, that this my heart so burns . . .
 As she will learn all from me, how great a heart can truly be . . . as to her, mine so speaks . . .
 Showing her, arms and legs yes we may need . . . but, without hearts we can not live indeed . . .
 And what really counts, all in the end . . . is what's in your heart, as where it all so begins . . .
 So for my daughter I will wake . . . as each new day for her, these most courageous steps I take . . .
 As I fight through all of my pain, as I venture out upon heartache's way . . . my soul will remain.
 All so I can see those smiles upon her face, and watch her grow up with such happiness and grace . . .
 And for all of my buddies who died, who shall never so look into their children's eyes . . .
 It's for you too I wake, and to Be the Best Father our Lord God could make . . .
 As I will tell your children, all about your love . . . and how you spoke of them, so high above.
 Recalling, all of those words of love you spoke . . . and all about them, as their names you invoked . . .
 For I stand stronger on this day, all because of this child who before me so lays . . .
 For you Rian . . . give me a reason to live, at night as I watch sleep in your crib . . .
 Daughter, all of this . . . I do, for you . . . my gift from God, that will help see me through . . .
 And if I ever have a son, Juan, I but hope and pray he is like you the one!
 For my Daughter, all this I'll do!

IN RECOGNITION OF SGT STEVE MAY

HON. DENNIS A. CARDOZA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. CARDOZA. Madam Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I rise today to recognize the passing of a great public servant, Sergeant Steve May of the Modesto Police Department who died from medical complications sustained from a 2002 accident that occurred while on duty. As a 23 year veteran of the Department, Sergeant May gave the ultimate sacrifice to our community.

Sergeant May was hired by the Modesto Police Department on February 6, 1979 and promoted to Corporal on January 28, 1992. He was then promoted to Sergeant on September 20, 1994. Sergeant May was a respected member of the Department who was a consummate professional who served his community with distinction. The accident that took Sergeant May from his family and our community occurred on July 29, 2002. Stanislaus County Sheriffs Deputies saw a black pickup that they believed to be suspicious, and after the vehicle attempted to evade officers, it rammed the deputies' patrol car and sped off. Sergeant May was on patrol and spotted the suspect's vehicle in downtown Modesto. He followed the vehicle and pursued it vigorously as the vehicle reached high rates of speed. The suspect ran two stop signs and was evading police. While running a stop sign, Sergeant May's patrol car was struck and pushed into a tree as the suspect's vehicle hit a house. Sergeant May was trapped inside his car and freed by firefighters. Suffering severe injuries, he was rushed to the hospital for treatment.

Sergeant May's family and our community are deeply saddened by this loss. He leaves behind his wife Diana and their two children—Corinne and Michael. I offer my prayers and condolences as they grieve.

Sergeant May was clearly a remarkable individual, public servant and law enforcement officer who remained dedicated to public safety and service throughout his impressive career. Through his dedicated work, he touched the lives of many and helped change the face of our community. Madam Speaker, it is with respect and gratitude that I ask my colleagues to join me in this posthumous recognition of Police Sergeant Steve May for his dedicated service.

RECOGNIZING PIZZA 4 PATRIOTS

HON. MIKE QUIGLEY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor and recognize the extraordinary efforts of the Pizza 4 Patriots Organization, Uno Chicago Grill, and DHL, in teaming up to provide Chicago-style deep dish pizzas on Independence Day to our service men and women serving in both Iraq and Afghanistan. The cumulative effort brought 28,000 pizzas to the troops, allowing them to celebrate our nation's day of independence with a taste and feel of home.

The initiative of retired Air Force Master Sergeant Mark Evans, Pizza 4 Patriots is a non-profit organization that seeks to honor the service of the United States' Armed Forces in Iraq and Afghanistan. With pizzas provided by Uno Chicago Grill and international delivery service provided by DHL, Operation Pizza Surge broke the record for the "World's Largest Pizza Party," and will go down in the Guinness Book of World Records as such.

As our service men and women continue to courageously protect our freedom and liberties throughout the Middle East, the services provided by Pizza 4 Patriots, Uno Chicago Grill, and DHL are of the utmost importance. In garnering donations from individuals and organizations to make Operation Pizza Surge possible, they have helped raise awareness and recognition of the outstanding and courageous job that the United States' military continues to do to protect the liberty and safety of the American people.

We must always remember and pay tribute to the courage and sacrifice of those proud men and women who serve and protect the American people. The efforts of Pizza 4 Patriots, Uno Chicago Grill, and DHL remind us that as we celebrate our independence at home, it is the efforts of our armed forces that allow us to do so.

Madam Speaker, today we congratulate Pizza 4 Patriots, Uno Chicago Grill, and DHL for a successful completion of Operation Pizza Surge, and we thank them for providing our brave troops with a slice of home while they protect our country and our freedoms abroad.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BURGESS. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the U.S. House of Representatives Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding one earmark I received as part H.R. 3326, The Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010:

(1) Institute for Science and Engineering Simulation (ISES), University of North Texas—$6 million—Account: 0602102F Materials—$4,500,000.

ISES at the University of North Texas is currently working closely with the U.S. Air Force to remedy a critical requirement. Due to increased operations as a result of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan during the past 5 yrs, Air Force aircraft are often pushed to perform beyond their intended design criteria: this has created serious concerns for safety of both the aircraft and personnel. The Air Force requires modeling and simulation research of the performance and lifecycles of materials in aircraft in order to extend the life of current military aircraft and to perform testing on future aircraft structures and material. Utilizing state-of-the-art facilities and equipment at the University of North Texas, the research conducted at ISES will be used to predict/identify and reduce the risk of catastrophic failure in aircraft structural components, extend the life of current aircraft and increase the safety of pilots and personnel.

University of North Texas is located at Hurley Administration Building 175, Denton, TX 76203-2979.

HONORING THE SERVICE OF FORT GRATIOT FIRE CHIEF RONALD B. NICHOLS

HON. CANDICE S. MILLER

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Fire Chief Ronald B. Nichols from the Fort Gratiot Fire Department in St. Clair County, Michigan. This year marks the 50th year Mr. Nichols has been a member of the department—and during 31 of those years he has proudly served as Chief.

Chief Nichols has consistently raised the bar and set a high standard during his outstanding career in the fire service. The State of Michigan and the 10th Congressional District truly have been very fortunate to have him as one of our fire chiefs. During his tenure, the Fort Gratiot Fire Department experienced tremendous growth and commercial expansion. Through his continued leadership, he has been able to administer safe and effective fire codes while keeping pace with the latest technological advancements and changes in local fire prevention ordinances.

Chief Nichols has stepped forth to fulfill numerous leadership roles and positions. He is a 26 year member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, a member of the St. Clair County Fire Chiefs Association, a member of the St. Clair County Firefighters Association, and a member of the National Fire Protection Association. In 1992, he was recognized by his community, earning the St. Clair County Firefighters Association Firefighter of the Year Award.

First responders are often under-appreciated and taken for granted until crisis strikes and the public reaches out for help and rescue. Against all common sense and natural instinct, firefighters rush to the scene of an emergency and into harm's way without the slightest hesitation.

Firefighters are the backbone of our communities. Without the promise of any fame, fortune, or so much as a simple "thank-you", firefighters remain constantly vigilant and ready to serve. I know sometimes younger people idolize professional athletes and cheer for their favorite sports teams. And the same could be said for some adults too. But if you really want to see true teamwork search no further than your local fire station. It is here where men and women work together and count on each other to protect lives. Their service demonstrates courage, camaraderie, and bravery.

I am extremely proud of all the men and women who risk so much to protect our safety and well-being, so it is my honor to offer my sincere gratitude to Chief Nichols for his 50 years of service. His leadership, integrity, and dedication are greatly appreciated. I wish him, his family, and his wife, Carole, all the best as he continues to serve the citizens of Fort Gratiot. Thank you, Chief Ronald B. Nichols, for dedicating your life to a noble cause. And thank you for ignoring fear and always demonstrating incredible bravery. That is what a real hero does.

H.R. 3377, THE DISASTER RESPONSE, RECOVERY, AND MITIGATION ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2009

HON. JAMES L. OBERSTAR

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. OBERSTAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3377, the "Disaster Response, Recovery, and Mitigation Enhancement Act of 2009". This bill makes amendments to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Stafford Act) to improve the assistance that the Federal Government provides to States, local governments, and communities after major disasters and emergencies. I thank Full Committee Ranking Member MICA, as well as the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART), Chair and Ranking Member of the Subcommittee on Economic Development, Public Buildings, and Emergency Management, for joining me in sponsoring this bill.

H.R. 3377 is a consolidation of many issues brought to the attention of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure in the last two and a half years and contains a series of proposals to enable the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to carry out its programs and activities related to preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation more effectively. Several provisions of this bill incorporate proposals put forth by Members on both sides of the aisle.

This bill reauthorizes core FEMA programs and activities, including the Pre-Disaster Mitigation program; codifies programs that FEMA is currently administering under the authority of the Stafford Act but which are not expressly authorized in statute, such as the National Urban Search and Rescue System and Citizen Corps; restores an essential program, the Mortgage and Rental Assistance program, which was eliminated in 2000; and amends eligibility under certain FEMA programs, including the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program, by creating incentives for better building codes.

Congress made changes to the Stafford Act in 2000 with the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000, and in 2006 with the Post-Katrina Emergency Management and Reform Act. FEMA is still working to implement the changes required in these Acts. This bill makes a number of positive changes to FEMA's authority which, together with prior reforms that FEMA is still implementing, will enable it to become a more effective agency.

H.R. 3377 is a continuation of the Committee's work to address ongoing emergency management and disaster relief needs. In the 110th Congress, the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure ordered reported a similar bill, H.R. 6658. We are reintroducing this bill, which is an updated version of H.R. 6658, with the intent to move it through Committee and the House as expeditiously as possible.

Specifically, H.R. 3377 reauthorizes the Pre-Disaster Mitigation ("PDM") program, a program to provide cost-effective technical and financial assistance to State and local governments to reduce injuries, loss of life, and damage to property through fiscal year 2012 at a level of $250 million per year. While a one-year extension was included in the Department of Homeland Security Fiscal Year 2009 Appropriations Act to keep this vital program alive, Congress must act. If we do not, this worthy program will sunset on September 30, 2009. The bill also reauthorizes the Emergency Management Assistance Compact (EMAC), which expired at the end of fiscal year 2008, to provide form and structure to interstate mutual aid and allows a State impacted by a disaster to request and receive assistance from other states quickly and efficiently.

The bill also specifically authorizes two existing FEMA programs that are not expressly authorized in statute but rely on broader language in the Stafford Act. The National Urban Search and Rescue System (US&R), is a robust system of 28 teams composed of state and local emergency responders who work together to respond to both local incidents and major disasters and emergencies, and codifies workers' compensation and other protections for US&R teams currently provided administratively by FEMA. The bill also specifically authorizes FEMA's existing citizen preparedness program, known as "Citizen Corps", to help coordinate volunteer activities to better prepare communities to respond to a disaster or emergency, as well as the Citizen Emergency Response Team Program.

The legislation directs the President to modernize the integrated public alerts and warning system to help ensure that our Nation's warning systems are prepared for all hazards, which is currently authorized by the Stafford Act. It also amends section 404 of the Stafford Act by providing for additional assistance under the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program for States that actively enforce an approved building code throughout the State.

H.R. 3377 also authorizes the Disaster Relief Fund and Disaster Support Account, which provide funding for FEMA's Federal Disaster Programs authorized by titles IV and V of the Stafford Act. Since its inception, how the Disaster Relief Fund is set up and administered and what it can be used for has been determined by appropriations; this provision remedies this deficiency and gives the authorizing statute and the authorizing committee in the House and Senate an appropriate role.

The bill also takes small steps to address two very pressing issues that face our nation: health care and housing. This legislation makes temporary employees hired by FEMA in response to a disaster eligible to enroll in the Federal Health Benefits Program. Most of the employees that FEMA sends to disasters—many of whom have been employed by FEMA for years—do not have access to employer sponsored health insurance. This legislation would also restore the Mortgage and Rental Assistance program, which was eliminated in the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000 (P.L. 106–390). The program provides assistance for up to 18 months in the form of mortgage or rental payments to or on behalf of individuals and families who, as a result of financial hardship caused by a major disaster, are at imminent risk of dispossession or eviction. This will protect communities and citizens who have been impacted by disaster from taking an additional hit by exacerbating the current housing crisis in those communities.

H.R. 3377 further provides new authority to allow FEMA to sell excess materials, supplies, and equipment to States, local governments, and relief or disaster assistance organizations to assist victims of smaller-scale natural disasters and other incidents that do not result in the declaration of a major disaster or emergency. This bill also authorizes FEMA to include household pet and service animal rescue, care, and sheltering to activities during emergency declarations under Title V of Stafford Act. Currently, such activities are only authorized under a Major Disaster Declaration under Title IV of the Stafford Act.

Finally, this legislation addresses an important issue from the aftermath of the response to Hurricane Katrina by requiring FEMA to assess the number of temporary housing units necessary for the agency to effectively respond to future disasters and emergencies. FEMA must, within six months, develop a plan to store any units needed for future disasters and to dispose of, through sale, transfer, donation, or other means, those units the agency does not need to keep in stock. This legislation provides FEMA the flexibility to provide temporary housing units in its current inventory to victims of disasters that do not rise to the level of a Presidential disaster declaration, if the Governor of the State certifies that there is an urgent need for the housing and meets other requirements.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 3377, the "Disaster Response, Recovery, and Mitigation Enhancement Act of 2009".

HONORING THE FORMER TEXAS STATE LEGISLATOR LEO ALVARADO, JR.

HON. CIRO D. RODRIGUEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to my colleague in the Texas Legislature, former State Representative Leo Alvarado, Jr., of San Antonio, who passed away on June 5, 2009. I served with Mr. Alvarado at the State Capitol in Austin during the 1990s, both of us representing districts in Bexar Country.

Madam Speaker, during the recently concluded 1st Called Session of the 81st Texas Legislature, the Texas House of Representatives adopted House Resolution No. 21 in memory of Mr. Alvarado, offered by my former colleague State Representative Delwin Jones of Lubbock, joined by Bexar County members Trey Martinez Fischer, Mike Villarreal, Joe Farias, Joaquin Castro, and Valerie Ryder Corte.

THE STATE OF TEXAS HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES RESOLUTION H.R. NO. 21

Whereas, The passing of former state representative Leopoldo "Leo" Alvarado, Jr., on June 5, 2009, at the age of 70, has profoundly saddened the legal and legislative communities and citizens throughout San Antonio and brought a great loss to his family and friends; and

Whereas, Born in San Antonio on April 23, 1939, Leo Alvarado was the son of Maria del Refugio Parias de Alvarado and Leopoldo Alvarado, Sr.; he grew up on the West Side and graduated from Jefferson High School before enlisting in the United States Air Force; following his service to his country, he enrolled in St. Mary's University, where he earned his bachelor's degree in political science and accounting and went on to receive his law degree in 1974; and

Whereas, This dedicated community activist helped organize the J.F.K. Community Forum, which laid the groundwork for West San Antonio agencies engaged in the war on poverty, and served as a consultant to the Inner City Apostolate and as a director of the Mexican American Unity Council and of Project Health and Viable Economics; he was vice chair of the board of the Bexar County Hospital District and worked toward the purchase and reopening of Lutheran General Hospital to serve downtown residents; and

jury and public interest cases; he played an important role in landmark Edgewood ISO cases involving the redistribution of funds from wealthy to poorer school districts, which ultimately led to increased support for education in lower income communities; he was a partner in Weir & Alvarado, P.C., before forming Alvarado & Alvarado, P.L.L.C., with his daughter, Rosemarie Alvarado-Hawkins; and

Whereas, Mr. Alvarado was first elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1992 and served the people of District 116 for eight years; during his tenure, he was chair of the Freshman House Caucus and was a valued member of the civil practices, house administration, state affairs, redistricting, insurance, and judicial affairs committees; a man of principle and integrity, he worked to improve the lives of all Texans, and he introduced bills relating to high school education and redlining in the insurance industries, among numerous others; and

Whereas, A devoted and loving father, Mr. Alvarado most enjoyed spending time with his family, whom he placed first in all matters; he was also fond of hunting, fishing, playing guitar, cooking, painting, gardening, and travel; and

Whereas, Leo Alvarado leaves a legacy of accomplishments that will continue to benefit people in this state for years to come, and he will long be remembered with deep affection and admiration by all who were fortunate enough to share in the richness of his life; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the 81st Texas Legislature, 1st Called Session, 2009, hereby pay tribute to the memory of Leopoldo "Leo" Alvarado, Jr., and extend sincere sympathy to the members of his family: to his brother, Carlos Alvarado; to his first wife, Gloria Acosta Farias, and their son, Leopoldo Alvarado Acosta III; to his second wife, Charlene Alvarado, and their children, Rosemarie Alvarado-Hawkins, Christina Lisa Morales, Miguel Antonio Alvarado, and Carlos Andres Alvarado; to his grandchildren, Maria and Sharet Castillejos and Evangeline and Chloe Hawkins; and to the other family members and friends of this esteemed Texan; and, be it further

Resolved, That an official copy of this resolution be prepared for his family and that when the Texas House of Representatives adjourns this day, it do so in memory of Leopoldo "Leo" Alvarado, Jr.

Joe Straus, Speaker of the House.

I certify that H.R. No. 21 was unanimously adopted by a rising vote of the House on July 2, 2009.

Robert Haney, Chief Clerk of the House.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CONGRESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I rise to introduce the Congressional Responsibility and Accountability Act. This bill requires Congress to specifically authorize via legislation any proposed federal regulation that will impose costs on any individual of at least $5,000, impose costs on a business or other private organization of at least $10,000, or impose aggregate costs on the American people of at least $25,000, or cause any American to lose his or her job.

According to some legal experts, at least three-quarters of all federal laws consist of regulations promulgated by federal agencies without the consent, or even the review of, Congress. Allowing unelected, and thus unaccountable, executive agencies to make law undermines democracy and violates the intent of the drafters of the Constitution to separate legislative and executive powers. The drafters of the Constitution correctly viewed separation of powers as a cornerstone of republican government and a key to protecting individual liberty from excessive and arbitrary government power.

Congress's delegation of law-making authority to unelected bureaucrats has created a system that seems to owe more to the writings of Franz Kafka than to the writings of James Madison. The volume of regulations promulgated by federal agencies and the constant introduction of new rules makes it impossible for most Americans to know with any certainty the federal laws, regulations, and rules they are required to obey. Thus, almost all Americans live with the danger that they may be hauled before a federal agency for an infraction they have no reasonable way of knowing is against the law.

While it is easy for members of Congress to complain about out of control federal bureaucrats, it was Congress that gave these agencies the ability to create laws. Since Congress created the problem of lawmaking by regulatory agencies, it is up to Congress to fix the problem and make certain that all federal laws are passed by the people's elected representatives. Therefore, Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to cosponsor the Congressional Responsibility and Accountability Act.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. DAVID G. REICHERT

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. REICHERT. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information for publication in the Congressional Record regarding earmarks I received as part of the Fiscal Year 2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Act, H.R. 3326.

(1) $2,300,000 for the Washington National Guard for the Tactical Operations Center

Requesting Entity: Washington State Military Department, Building One, Camp Murray, WA 98430-5000

Agency: NGB/WAARNG, Domestic Operations

Account: National Guard Equipment, Army Guard—P-1/Line # 094

Funding Requested by: Rep. DAVE REICHERT, Rep. BRIAN BAIRD, and Rep. JIM McDERMOTT

Project Summary: This funding would help develop a rapidly deployable mobile command center, interoperable communications, and a forward domestic response command headquarters capable of providing defense support to civil authorities. This capability is needed to respond to state/interstate/national domestic emergencies, including terrorism and natural hazards like earthquakes, flooding, and fires. It would include tentage, vehicles, power, and communications to relocate support to any community to assist in the event of an emergency and to help in facilitating receipt and control of reinforcing support and supplies necessary to respond to protect citizens' life, property and the economy in the event of an emergency or a disaster. The Washington National Guard is frequently called upon to protect lives and property during state emergencies, however, we do not have any assets dedicated to domestic operations. The federal equipment that they do operate can be (and is) deployed on a regular basis making it unavailable for state emergencies. Acquisition of the Domestic Operations Response Equipment will enable the Military Department to fulfill their mission to the people of the state of Washington.

Finance Plan: Cost of Domestic Operations Response Equipment—Finance Plan

1. The Washington Military Department's stated mission is to minimize the impact of emergencies and disasters on people, property, environment, and the economy of Washington State and the region; provide trained and ready forces for state and federal missions; and provide structured alternative education opportunities for at-risk youth.

2. Estimated costs of the equipment are as follows:

a. Deployable Field Shelter—$817,493.00
b. Command & Control Vehicle—$325,000.00
c. Truck Mounted Incident Site System—$1,157,500.00
Total—$2,299,993.00

3. The Washington Military Department's mission is to protect lives and property while minimizing the disaster impact on communities, the environment, and the economy of Washington State. They provide a trained and ready force for state and federal missions and offer structured alternative education opportunities for at-risk youth.

Acquisition of the Domestic Operations Response Equipment will enable the Military Department to fulfill their mission to the people of the state of Washington.

(2) $2,000,000 for B.E. Meyers & Co for Thermal Pointer/Illuminator for Force Protection

Requesting Entity: B.E. Meyers & Co., 14540 NE 91st St., Redmond, WA 98052

Agency: Special Operations Forces, U.S. Navy, RDT&E

Account: R-1/PE#1160479BB; P-1/Line #243; Special Operations Forces Visual Augmentation

Funding Requested by: Rep. DAVE REICHERT

Project Summary: This project would develop a prototype for testing a Long-Range, Day and Night, Covert Thermal Target Designator for ground-based and airborne applications, compatible with thermal imagers presently in use by U.S. Armed Forces. This rapid research and development program would result in the delivery of 50 field ready, hand-held, targeting devices to the Navy Special Warfare community. There is a demonstrated need for a thermal target designator that is compatible with thermal imagers presently in use by U.S. Armed Forces. The Long-Range, Day and Night, Covert Thermal Target Designator would enable rapid and simple target acquisition while remaining invisible to the human eye and night vision goggles and would operate well in adverse environmental conditions such as fog, rain and dust. This target designator could also be easily and rapidly integrated into existing military operations with minimal additional training required. Infrared (IR) pointing lasers are routinely used for targeting in darkness but are ineffective during bright daylight because the IR wavelength is invisible to the naked eye, and night vision goggles are not typically used during the day. The warfighter could benefit from this thermal target designator capability because it will enable pointing, illuminating and targeting when coupled with the thousands of thermal imagers currently employed by the U.S. Military.

Finance Plan: The proposed development effort is 12 months in duration at a total cost of $4.15 M. 50 production units will be delivered to the U.S. government at the conclusion of the 12 month effort. Travel is included.

The funding plan is as follows:

Cost Component Burdened Cost

Labor—57.1%

Materials—42.7%

Travel—0.2%

Source of funds is planned as follows:

Cost Component Burdened Cost

Total Government Funding—75%

BE Meyers Funded—25%

3) $1,000,000 for Stellar Photonics, LLC for Dynamic Eye-Safe Imaging Laser (DESIL)

Requesting Entity: Stellar Photonics, LLC, 14797 NE 95th Street, Redmond, WA 98052

Agency: U.S. Marine Corps: Joint Non-Lethal Weapons Directorate (JNLWD), RDT&E

Account: R-1/PE #0603651M; P-1/Line #21
Funding Requested by: Rep. DAVE REICHERT

Protect Summary: The purpose of funding is to support the existing EYE-SAFE (DESIL, Dynamic Eye-Safe Imaging Laser) laser research program and to improve the capabilities to the non-lethal Plasma Acoustic Shield System (PASS) in terms of making it safer for eyes and increasing the range, higher repetitions and coverage area. The PASS system can be used at check points for riot control and to visually intimidate opponents from entering a restricted area. By operating in the EYE-SAFE laser wavelength and spectrum, the DESIL technology could enable the military to operate their desired laser systems and applications without being in violation of the United Nations' "Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects" Protocol IV on Blinding Laser Weapons, Vienna, 13th, October 1995.

Finance Plan:

	CY 2010	CY 2011	FY 2010 Total
Total dollar amount of the proposal:	2,027,225.60	1,832,076.83	3,859,302.43
Total Direct Materials	505,545.00	505,545.00	1,011,090.00
Total Estimated Direct Labor	221,050.00	200,375.00	421,425.00
Total Estimated Direct Costs	898,850.83	812,323.89	1,711,174.72
General & Administrative Expenses	1,031,840.21	932,511.19	1,964,351.40
Total Estimated Cost and Fee	2,027,225.60	1,832,076.83	3,859,302.43

This office conducted site visits to meet with representatives from all five of the projects listed above. Enclosed with this disclosure are statements from the military demonstrating the need and use for these specific projects.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
NAVAL SPECIAL WARFARE COMMAND,
San Diego, CA, April 6, 2009.

Mr. BRUCE WESTCOAT,
Vice President, Business Development, BE Meyers Corporation, Redmond, WA.

DEAR MR. WESTCOAT: The information provided by BE Meyers email of March 31, 2009 has been reviewed. Naval Special Warfare is very interested in a Thermal Pointer. The proliferation of Night Vision on the battlefield has allowed the enemy combatant to track the use of U.S. forces current Infrared lasers. This emerging technology will allow U.S. Special Operations Forces the ability to mark targets while minimizing the ability to be compromised based on enemy forces current NVG technology.

Your company's continued interest in developing better products for Naval Special Warfare is greatly appreciated. The product as described in the email is very desirable and appears to be an attainable solution in support of Miniature Day/Night Sight (MDNS), Annex to U.S. Special Operations Command Special Operations Peculiar Modification (SOPMOD), of December 16, 2004. Additionally, the Thermal Pointer may have application to other Special Operation Forces and conventional units. The Thermal Laser Pointer, if developed, would enhance our ability to engage opposing forces, in the prosecution of the Global War on Terrorism. Regrettably, funding is not currently available to fund the development of the Thermal Pointer System.

My points of contact for this matter are Mr. Bruce Holmes and Mr. Calvin Hastings.

Sincerely,

T. H. DEGHEOTTO,

Captain, U.S. Navy.

UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS, JOINT NON-LETHAL WEAPONS
DIRECTORATE,
Quantico, VA, March 27, 2009.

Stellar Photonics, LLC,
NE 95th Street,
Redmond, WA.

TO STELLAR PHOTONICS LLC (MS. INGRID FUHRMAN): The Joint Non-Lethal Weapons Directorate (JNLWD) supports Stellar Photonics, LLC's request for appropriation in the FY2010 Department of Defense Appropriations Bill for the development of a 1.55 microns (a retina-safe wavelength) laser system. I am aware that Stellar Photonics has made some progress at 1.55 microns which bodes well for the successful completion of this project.

We are currently developing non-lethal weapons which employ this special type of ultra-short pulse lasers systems. Given that this non-lethal technology is very new, the US industry-base is not very large. It would be beneficial to the US Government to fund a limited number of US industry partners to develop this new non-lethal weapon technology.

The JNLWD is confident that Stellar Photonics can leverage their existing laser work performed for the US Army to support this new non-lethal technology. This new nonlethal technology has many useful military and non-military applications.

I feel confident that Stellar Photonics, with the appropriate additional funding, can complete development of such a system and therefore I ask you to consider supporting the Stellar Photonics request for FY10.

DAVID B. LAW,
JNLWD Technology Division Chief.

A SALUTE TO LEAH GANSLER

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize and salute Ms. Leah Gansler, a very special person in the Washington metropolitan region, recognized as a Washingtonian of the Year for her leadership and commitment to helping others, especially disadvantaged children. We are graced by her commitments and accomplishments which have helped so many.

Ms. Gansler launched a nonprofit, CharityWorks, in 1999, after volunteer work showed her the great need in this area among children and families. Leah brought together a team of dedicated friends and community leaders to create this nonprofit and local philanthropic organization. Her vision has been to transform the lives of families and children in the Washington metropolitan area, to try to break the cycle of poverty, to enhance local educational programs, and to enable families to overcome critical health issues, through the philanthropy of the CharityWorks organization. Her plan was a terrific success: CharityWorks' first $375,000 went to Habitat for Humanity for 20 plots of land and one house, which Gansler's members built. When President Carter learned of the partnership between Habitat for Humanity and CharityWorks, he praised Leah's efforts as "unique in Habitat's history and a sample for other communities." Since 1999, Leah has spearheaded CharityWorks' partnerships that have made an extraordinary impact in our community by distributing a net of more than $10,000,000.

Wanting to include friends but not stay with the same charity every year, Leah devised two networks: one of 125 volunteers, who would screen charities and work with those chosen, and one of 40 CEOs and others who could give and raise money and would choose the recipient groups. This unique combination of efforts has led to signal accomplishments that have changed and transformed many lives and enriched our greater community. Among some of her greatest accomplishments are: creating 24 college scholarships, opening and expanding literacy programs, supporting after school child literacy programs, and building the Fisher House at the Veteran's Medical Center here in the nation's capital.

Appalling statistics convinced Leah that education is the key to breaking the cycle of dependency on welfare, so CharityWorks partnered with The Orphan Foundation of America to change the lives of twenty-four local foster teens by sending them to college. That same commitment to disadvantaged children led Leah to open and expand child literacy programs in Washington, D.C., Maryland, and Virginia. Through her personal efforts, hard work, and generosity, Everybody Wins, the largest grassroots literacy and mentoring program, serving 3,600 children was awarded $450,000 by CharityWorks in 2002.

Ms. Gansler also supported after-school and summer programs of The Fishing School in two of the most crime-ridden, depressed neighborhoods of Northeast D.C. Leah's tireless fundraising allowed CharityWorks to raise over $650,000, providing 120 at-risk elementary school children a safe harbor from violence, addiction and abuse. Similarly, her efforts were key in 2004 to CharityWorks' partner, See Forever, opening a second campus of the Maya Angelou Public Charter School for 150 teens. Leah was the leading light to raise $700,000 for the school, providing what The NewsHour with Jim Lehrer called "their last shot at success." Because of Leah's dedication, CharityWorks was also able to grant Heads Up more than $750,000 for after-school and summer programs in some of Washington, D.C.'s most under-resourced neighborhoods. More than 900 at-risk children attend enrichment programs in 10 local schools. Perceiving the need for the Center City Consortium to expand its program, Leah, thru CharityWorks, was able to support 2,400 at-risk children so that they could achieve significant academic gains.

Through the generosity of all whose lives Leah has touched, CharityWorks last year was successful in raising $2 million to construct the 50th Fisher House on the grounds of the Veteran's Medical Center in Washington, D.C. Fisher House provides a comfort home for families of patients receiving medical care at major military and veteran medical centers.

This year Leah is celebrating 10 years of CharityWorks and partnering with Friendship Public Charter School. They are joining hands to design and build Early Childhood Centers of Excellence at the school and to support students enrolled in Friendship's award winning program.

Madam Speaker, we are fortunate and graced to have a person of such vision and leadership.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. DAVID DREIER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010:

Requesting Member: DAVID DREIER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010

Account: Air Force, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation

Legal Name and Address of Entity Receiving Earmark: Advanced Projects Research, Inc., located at 1925 McKinley Avenue, Suite B, La Verne, CA 91750

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $1.5 million which will be used to continue testing and development for the production of the Wavelength Agile Spectral Harmonic (WASH) Oxygen Sensor which continually measures oxygen concentration in military high-performance fuel tanks, and the Cell Level Battery Controller that monitors and controls charge and temperature at the cell level of military battery energy storage systems. Approximately $146,000 will be used for project management; $220,000 for engineering analysis; $512,000 for engineering design; $275,000 for hardware fabrication and assembly; $329,000 for test engineering; and $18,000 for material and hardware. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Air Force RDT&E account.

Requesting Member: DAVID DREIER

Bill Number: H.R. 3326, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2010

Account: Defense-Wide, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation

Legal Name and Address of Entity Receiving Earmark: AeroVironment, located at 181 West Huntington Drive, Suite 202, Monrovia, CA 91016

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $1 million to develop the Hand-Held Lethal Small Unmanned Aircraft System (SUAS). Air Force Special Operations Command stated its need for a capability to engage fleeing enemy combatants on the battlefield. The Hand-Held SUAS will help protect U.S. troops by providing an efficient tool to encounter a target quickly with minimum collateral damage using an on-board explosive. Controlled with common ground-control devices, this precision system will provide unparalleled situational awareness and combat effectiveness in urban and mountainous environments. Approximately $600,000 is for test production, including procurement of parts for manufacturing. $300,000 is for engineering costs and $100,000 is for flight testing and range costs. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Defense-Wide RDT&E account.

Requesting Member: DAVID DREIER

Account: Army, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation

Legal Name and Address of Entity Receiving Earmark: Chang Industry, located at 968 Palomares Avenue, La Verne, CA 91750

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $4 million to develop Fire Shield, an Active Protection System (APS), with the cooperation of the U.S. Army Tank Automotive Research, Development and Engineering Center (TARDEC) in Warren, Michigan. Fire Shield would be used to protect armored vehicles from the blast effects and the plasma jet of rocket propelled grenades by detecting and destroying incoming projectiles. Approximately $800,000 is for directional warhead blast and fragment effects characterization and optimization. $600,000 will be used for static threat defeat characterization, test and evaluation with directional warhead. $600,000 will be used for threat defeat test and evaluation on a controlled moving platform with directional warhead. $1 million will be allocated to integrate the system for use on optimal vehicles, such as Mine Resistant Ambush Protected and Joint Light Tactical vehicles, and protection system deployment configurations (vehicle geometry dependant) for overall vehicle protection using sensor/warhead components. The remaining $1 million will be used for the preliminary incorporation of Insensitive Munition and development of proper Safe & Arm for the Fire Shield system and conducting preliminary interaction with the Army Fuse Board. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Army RDT&E account.

Account: Navy, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation

Legal Name and Address of Entity Receiving Earmark: City of Hope National Medical Center, located at 1500 E. Duarte Road, Duarte, CA 91010

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $1 million for the City of Hope National Medical Center's Advanced Molecular Medicine Initiative (AMMI), which furthers the mission and goals of the Navy's Division of Molecular Medicine program, performing a variety of basic and translational research programs investigating human disease mechanisms. The Navy's Medical Development Program is directed to develop biomedical equipment and related techniques to reduce morbidity and enhance medical care for combat casualties. The AMMI directly complements these efforts by improving therapeutic treatments for the Department of Defense and civilian populations. This research will also develop expertise and technologies directly applicable to defense against biological, chemical or radiological attacks. $750,000 is for continued research and $250,000 is for genotyping. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Navy RDT&E account.

at 825 South Myrtle Avenue, Monrovia, CA 91016

Description of Request: Provide an earmark of $2,500,000 to continue development of a Dual-Mode Micro Seeker (radio frequency/electro-optical (RF/EO)) for use in improving the accuracy of gun-launched and small missile interceptors used with current and emerging defensive weapons systems. The funding includes: $300,000 for RF signal processing development; $850,000 for Monolithic Microwave Integrated Circuits and Complementary Metal-Oxide-Semiconductor integrated circuit development; $600,000 for EO avalanche photodiode (APD) circuit development; $450,000 for RF seeker integration; and $300,000 for EO seeker integration. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Army RDT&E account.

INTRODUCTION OF THE PROTECT AMERICA'S WILDLIFE ACT OF 2009

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Protect America's Wildlife (PAW) Act. This legislation is a narrowly crafted amendment to the Airborne Hunting Act, which has been on the books for decades.

Simply put, the PAW Act will stop the unnecessary and unscientific air assault on wolves and other wildlife that is occurring in Alaska, and it will prevent other states from following Alaska's lead.

In 1971, as a response to public outcry over airborne wolf hunting in Alaska, Congress took decisive action by passing the Airborne Hunting Act. The law was a direct result of the national outcry over brutal and needless wolf hunting conducted by airplane in Alaska, brought to the public's attention by a television documentary.

At the time, Congress recognized that this unsportsmanlike practice should only be used in extreme situations—as in the defense of humans, livestock, and wildlife—which is why the Airborne Hunting Act banned the practice and made narrow exceptions for those extreme situations.

The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD reflects that these exceptions, and in particular the wildlife exception, were not intended as a carte blanche to the states. In the 92nd Congress, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries prepared a report on "Shooting Animals From Aircraft" that clearly articulated that the states should not "utilize or permit the utilization of aircraft to achieve a balance in wildlife, which should be left to nature or to other more sportsmanlike hunting practices."

Unfortunately, the State of Alaska has spent the last several years defying congressional intent. The state is granting permits to individuals who are harassing and shooting wolves and other wildlife from planes to artificially boost game species, even though the state has no credible scientific evidence to show that the relevant prey populations are actually at risk.

Hundreds of scientists, the esteemed American Society of Mammalogists, and wildlife managers in Alaska have all spoken out against the State's airborne "predator control" programs as unnecessary, unscientific, and in violation of the clear objective of the Airborne Hunting Act. In addition, I recently received a letter, which I will enter into the record, from nine former Alaska Board of Game members that strongly supports the PAW Act and notes that "Alaska's current predator control programs . . . clearly circumvent the federal Airborne Hunting Act (AHA) of 1972."

Wolves are now being shot from airplanes on more than 60,000 square miles of Alaska, including federal lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management and on lands adjacent to several national parks, preserves, and national wildlife refuges. This past spring, state employees targeted wolves that were known to den inside the Yukon Charley Rivers National Preserve, and which were part of a long-term National Park Service study.

Let me be very clear: the exceptions that Congress provided in the Airborne Hunting Act gave states the right to use an extreme measure in extreme circumstances. But instead, the state of Alaska has exploited that exception and violated the intent of the law. Since 2003, more than 1,000 wolves have been killed through these practices. The state's program of hunting predators from the air has spiraled out of control; it is unscientific and goes far beyond any recognizable form of legitimate wildlife management.

Proponents of these practices will say that the state's program is run for the benefit of those who rely upon moose and caribou for food. But the reality is that the state continues to allow moose and caribou hunting by out-of-state hunters and non-local resident hunters, in the same regions they claim airborne wolf hunting is needed to boost moose and caribou populations.

One final note on the pressing need for this legislation. Now that wolves in the Northern Rockies have been removed from the endangered species list, there is a threat that other states may attempt to misuse the same exception that Alaska has misused, to hunt wolves in the lower 48 states from airplanes in order to boost game populations.

The Protect America's Wildlife Act, which I am introducing today, is carefully and narrowly crafted. It specifically addresses the ongoing misuse of the wildlife management provision as I outlined above, while maintaining the ability of states to address legitimate biological emergencies in the wild, as Congress intended.

Specifically, this legislation:

Clarifies the conditions under which states can use airplanes and helicopters to kill wolves and other predators. For example, they may still be used to address legitimate biological emergencies in prey populations;

Requires states to provide a scientific foundation for their use of the wildlife management exception as part of the report to the Department of the Interior which they are already required to submit; and Maintains the ability of states to use aerial gunning to protect land, water, wildlife, livestock, domesticated animals, human life, or crops.

I urge my fellow Members of Congress to take a stand for wildlife and for proper use of our wildlife laws by supporting the Protect America's Wildlife Act.

JULY 14, 2009.

Re The Protect America's Wildlife Act

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: As former members of the Alaska Board of Game, we endorse the modest but crucial changes to the Federal Airborne Hunting Act (16 USC 742j1) contained in the Protect America's Wildlife Act, which you are sponsoring in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Alaska Board of Game (hereafter Board) is a seven member citizen board appointed by Alaska's governor and confirmed by the state legislature. The Board promulgates Alaska's hunting and trapping regulations and establishes wildlife policies including those for predator control.

The Protect America's Wildlife Act is largely a response to Alaska's current predator control programs, which clearly circumvent the federal Airborne Hunting Act (AHA) of 1972. The legislation would clarify the intent of the AHA so that the exception that allows a state to authorize the use of aircraft to shoot wildlife must be based on the finding of a biological emergency and not used to increase prey populations just to meet increasing hunter demand. It further provides that when a state authorizes aircraft shooting under the exception, it must be supported by adequate scientific data and the shooting must be conducted by government personnel only.

The Protect America's Wildlife Act is in conformance with the laws that Alaskan voters passed by initiative in 1996 and 2000. The state legislature reversed the will of the people both times.

Extensive wolf control is being conducted in Alaska at present. Aerial predator control is now occurring on more than 60,000 square miles of Alaska—the largest predator control program since statehood. Since 2003, more than 1,000 wolves have been killed by private hunters through shooting directly from airplanes or from the land and shoot practice. This past spring, the Alaska Department of Fish and Game killed 84 wolves in 5 days in eastern Alaska. In March, the Board reauthorized aerial predator control for five more years and has eased the regulations further by allowing private aerial gunning teams to now use helicopters to kill wolves.

Many Alaskans object to using state personnel for ongoing airborne wolf control as a standard game management tool unless there is a serious biological problem. And even more strongly object to the use of private pilots for these activities because of the long, well documented history of abuses and violations of the AHA.

We also note that the long, detailed history of predator control in Alaska and elsewhere clearly demonstrates that control is often poorly supported by sound science, ignores other options, and often becomes institutionalized and perpetual. The Protect America's Wildlife Act would help curb these problems by restricting lethal control programs to those that are well justified and truly necessary. We are aware that other control options are available and effective including non-lethal control and habitat management.

In summary, we strongly support The Protect America's Wildlife Act and believe that it would improve the management of wildlife in Alaska as well as settle some longstanding, controversial issues related to predator control.

Sincerely,

Former Alaska Board of Game Members

Vic Van Ballenberghe, Joel Bennett, Leo Keeler, Tom Meacham, George Matz, R.T. Skip Wallen, Bruce Baker, Nicole Whittington-Evans, Jack Lentfer.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. EDWARD R. ROYCE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. ROYCE. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Representative ED ROYCE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Operations & Maintenance—Defense Wide

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: California State University

Address of Requesting Entity: 401 Golden Shore, Long Beach, CA 90802-4210

Description of Request: To provide $3,600,000 for the Strategic Language Initiative. Our nation's defense, diplomatic, and business employers need affordable, accessible strategic language instruction programs. The five California State University (CSU) campuses originally comprising the Strategic Language Initiative (SLI) Consortium worked collaboratively between 2005 and 2007 to create an effective model capitalizing on campus language expertise, student heritage language diversity, and local linguistic communities in Arabic, Mandarin, Korean, Persian, and Russian.

No single university has the resources to meet this rapidly changing need for global and regional expertise in a wide range of world languages. National efforts have concentrated on developing flagship programs in languages such as Chinese, Arabic, Russian, and Korean, and creating demonstration materials for offering languages online. These efforts have not adequately tapped into the diverse heritage language communities in California, home to the densest concentration of linguistic and cultural diversity in the nation. Collectively, through the establishment of the CSU Consortium for the Strategic Language Initiative, the southern California campuses of the CSU system have collaborated to provide an innovative approach to intensive language learning that can be a model for other metropolitan consortia. These universities serve the most linguistically diverse populations in the country, with large heritage communities near different campuses, and collectively enroll over 100,000 students each year. Initial participating campuses are CSU Long Beach, Fullerton, Los Angeles, Northridge and San Bernardino. Preliminary assessment data collected from SLI participants showed an average language development progress that significantly exceeds traditional classroom and course-based program in Arabic, Korean, Mandarin, and Persian. Compared to other models of critical language development, the SLI Model is very cost-efficient and effective in advancing a large group of undergraduate and graduate students through several language proficiency levels across multiple campuses in a relatively short time period, for a fraction of the funding available to other programs. The Consortium's success in southern California can be enhanced by developing a similar model in northern California. This request would build the programs within the current Consortium, and add CSU campuses in San Francisco and San Jose. Lessons learned from the current 5 programs will shape the 2 new programs. The legacy of this federal investment will be an instructional model sustained by the CSU system that effectively responds to the national challenge to graduate more professionals with language and cultural knowledge and skills for an increasingly interdependent global world.

Requesting Member: Representative ED ROYCE

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: U.S. Army, Research, Development, Test & Evaluation (RDT&E) Legal Name of Requesting Entity: California State University, Fullerton

Address: 800 N. State College Boulevard, Fullerton, California 92831

Description of Request: Provide $2,000,000 to continue the Prader-Willi Syndrome

(PWS) Research project being led by the California State University, Fullerton. This funding would allow for the continuation of vital research on Prader-Willi Syndrome, which will help the Department of Defense and its many military families, with children affected by this disorder. More importantly, the research will serve as a resource to the Department for the treatment and study of obesity in general. The strong manifestation of obesity in children with PWS makes it an excellent model for the study and control of obesity in general. Military health experts have characterized the growing problem of obesity amongst active duty and potential recruits as a national security issue because of its overall impact on the health, performance, and readiness of our armed forces. Furthermore, obesity places a significant cost burden on the military and veterans' health care systems. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Army, RDT&E Account and consistent with the DoD mission.

Funding will be used to provide better understanding of how individuals with PWS progress from an initial failure to thrive to morbid obesity. Improved understanding of the various nutritional phases of PWS will not only benefit the treatment and management of PWS, but also provide valuable insights into obesity in general. Researchers will also test the effectiveness of various intervention programs.

HONORING KARI DOMBROVSKI AT TALAH ELEMENTARY SCHOOL IN ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA FOR THE 2008 PRESIDENTIAL AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN MATHEMATICS AND SCIENCE TEACHING

HON. MICHELE BACHMANN

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mrs. BACHMANN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Kari Dombrovski of Talahi Elementary School in St. Cloud, Minnesota. Kari was awarded the Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching this July for her work as a second grade teacher.

This award is the highest recognition that an elementary school teacher may receive. She was selected first by a statewide committee and then by a National Science Foundation Committee. Kari's dedication to instilling the building blocks of learning in students may have earned her the award, but the real winners are the kids. The young children that get to spend time with her in her classroom already know she is one of the nation's finest teachers.

I rise to congratulate and honor Kari Dombrovski's dedication to the children of Talahi Elementary School. The Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching is a public recognition of her passionate work in the second grade classroom. The faculty, parents and students that she works with know what a special teacher she is and it is my honor to highlight her accomplishments to this Congress.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. J. RANDY FORBES

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. FORBES. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding earmarks I received as part of H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman J. RANDY FORBES

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research and Development, Defense Wide, Joint Experimentation

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Deputy Assistant to the Governor for Commonwealth Preparedness

Address of Requesting Entity: Patrick Henry Building, 1111 East Broad Street, Richmond, VA 23218

Description of Request: Provides $2,900,000 to enhance the Commonwealth of Virginia's interdiction, response and recovery capabilities to a WMD event through the conduct of a multiple agency, maritime full scale exercise.

Requesting Member: Congressman J. RANDY FORBES

Bill Number: H.R. 3326

Account: Research and Development, Defense Wide, Defense Technology Analysis

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Old Dominion Research Foundation

Address of Requesting Entity: 4111 Monarch Way, Suite 204, Norfolk, VA, 23801

Description of Request: Provides $800,000 to Virginia Modeling and Simulation Center in Suffolk, Virginia to formulate modeling and simulation standards for model research, development and use by the government, academic and industry sectors. This is the second year of a three year study.

TRIBUTE TO DR. DAVE RUDY

HON. HAROLD ROGERS

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. David R. Rudy, Associate Provost and Dean at Morehead State University, who is retiring this fall after 29 years of service. I want to recognize his record of excellence as a teacher, scholar, mentor, and public servant, and for his distinguished career.

Dr. Rudy has a prominent record as a Professor of Sociology at Morehead State University, publishing numerous articles and books. His books on drug abuse, alcoholism, and the social struggles they entail are valuable tools to fight the challenges that many Americans face with these troubles, including southern and eastern Kentuckians. Dr. Rudy has published numerous scholarly articles including those in Sociological Analysis and the Journal of Studies on Alcohol. He has received funding to support his research from, among others, the Alcohol Beverage Medical Research Foundation at Johns Hopkins University, the National Science Foundation, U.S. Department of Education, and U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Among numerous service and outreach efforts, Dr. Rudy is a graduate of Leadership East Kentucky, served as a researcher for the Kentucky League of Cities "New Cities" program, and serves on the Board of the Advanced Manufacturing Partnership (AMP).

Dr. Rudy has a long track record of mentoring young scholars and supporting excellence in their academic endeavors, with several of his students going on to receive Ph.D.s. He has given them an excellent example to follow. As a tenured professor at Morehead State University he was chosen to serve as Dean of a newly established Program of Distinction. The Institute for Regional Analysis and Public Policy (IRAPP) was then founded by Dr. Rudy in 1999 and over ten years he led the development of IRAPP as a research intensive unit that serves the eastern region of Kentucky. Dr. Rudy has been honored with the Distinguished Researcher Award and Distinguished Service Award by Morehead State University for these and other significant contributions to the campus and community.

Under Dr. Rudy's leadership, Morehead State and the IRAPP program can take pride in his accomplishments. The impact of his career will be felt far and wide, as his students use what they have learned from him, and have their own impacts on eastern Kentucky, our nation and the world. As they do this, they will know that they have Dr. Rudy to thank.

ON TELEWORK DAY IN VIRGINIA

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of Monday, August 3, as Telework Day in Virginia and applaud Governor Tim Kaine on this initiative.

On this day, thousands of Virginians will perform a full day's work from their houses rather than their places of work. This practice empowers workers who feel that they can fulfill their obligations to their employer equally well from home as in a brick and mortar office.

My colleagues, teleworking provides enormous benefits to employers and employees alike, as well as positive social and economic impacts. Teleworking, a practice which dates to the 1960s and then was dramatically expanded in the '90s, thanks to a host of networking innovations, can save employers premises costs and office overhead fees.

If all eligible Federal employees teleworked 2 days per week, the Federal Government could realize $3.3 billion in savings in commuting costs annually and eliminate the emission of 2.7 million tons of pollutants each year. Furthermore, it would provide an easy and necessary means of operational continuity should the Nation's Capital be the target of another horrific terror attack.

Teleworking can also increase productivity, typically 10 percent to 40 percent per person in large programs, by eliminating the often distressing and frustrating commute to and from work. For example, it eliminates commuting costs for employees because they do not have to pay for gas or public transportation. Given that the average round trip commute is 50 miles and commuters spend an average of 264 hours per year commuting (66 minutes per day), Americans would be relieved of the burden of spending so much time on the road that could be better spent with their families.

Through this practice, employees are allowed the freedom of working at their optimal times; some might be more productive in the morning while others might be more productive late at night. Telework allows the workers to get into a personal daily rhythm and work when they please, thus maximizing individual liberty and occupational productivity.

At this time, States and localities all around the Nation are grappling with ways in which congestion on the roadways can be reduced. We could facilitate greater capacity for mass transportation—but that requires heavy infrastructure investment and the vision to plan long-term. We could also build more roadways—but that would simply invite more cars and more traffic, while doing nothing to improve the quality of life for millions of hard-working Americans.

Those options taken together do indeed form a necessary component of traffic mitigation, but they take both time and money. Teleworking is simple to implement, economical to operate, and reflects the many ways in which technology has allowed the spheres of personal and professional life to blend together. It allows for a young professional to care for her newborn child or a son to care for his ailing mother in the comfort of their own homes, without worrying what would happen should they have to spend a portion of their day in an office, away from those who depend on their presence.

I am proud to say that at the end of 2005, Fairfax County in Virginia was able to meet the region-wide target of having 20 percent of eligible workers engaged in teleworking. I would invite my colleagues to take note of teleworking's success and stand up for a worker's ability to set his or her own schedule, with the expectation that it will allow for a more flexible lifestyle without compromising productivity. Rather than relying on the desks, chairs, and file cabinets that defined the average employee's office a generation ago, telework allows Americans to bring the workplace to them, not the other way around.

HONORING MASTER SGT. LORENE KITZMILLER

HON. ZACH WAMP

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. WAMP. Madam Speaker, the Volunteer State continues to produce the best of the best in our military! Today, I am privileged to rise and honor Master Sgt. Lorene Kitzmiller of the Tennessee Air National Guard who was selected as the 2009 First Sergeant of the Year for the Air National Guard. She was also recognized as an Outstanding Airman of the Year along with five other Airmen nationwide.

Master Sgt. Kitzmiller is serving with the 118th Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron in Nashville. Each year, the States and territories select and submit top performers from the Air Guard's 88 flying units and 579 mission support units to compete for this prestigious award. Out of more than 93,000 enlisted Airmen in the Air National Guard, only six are selected for the final competition.

Kitzmiller has participated in multiple overseas deployments including Operation Northern Watch (Macedonia), Operation Southern Watch (Saudi Arabia), Operation Iraqi Freedom (Kuwait, Baghdad, and twice in Balad), and Operation Enduring Freedom. She also is very active improving her local community and volunteers with the Tennessee Drug Task Force Team and YMCA, serving as a drill instructor during summer camps for troubled youth. She has spent countless hours volunteering with Military Kids Support Programs and Homeless Veterans Associations helping veterans find shelter and employment.

Master Sgt. Kitzmiller hails from Springfield, Tenn., and is currently studying at Austin Peay State University working toward her bachelor's degree. She attended Dickson County High School and left for Navy basic training 10 days after graduation. Upon discharge 4 years later, she joined the Army Reserve, served in several units before transferring to the Tennessee Army National Guard, and then finally to the State's Air National Guard. In December 2005, she was selected as a First Sergeant, fulfilling a dream to follow in her father's footsteps.

Tennessee is very proud of the accomplishments and service of Master Sgt. Lorene Kitzmiller and I proudly recognize her today in the U.S. House of Representatives. Individuals like Kitzmiller continue to give the United States military a reputation of excellence and commitment to their State and their Nation while at home or deployed around the world. On behalf of the great State of Tennessee, I honor Master Sgt. Lorene Kitzmiller for her accomplishments and dedication to Tennessee and the United States of America.

RESTORING CONFIDENCE IN ABSENTEE VOTING

HON. CANDICE S. MILLER

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Madam Speaker, before I came to Congress, I had the privilege of serving 8 years as Michigan's Secretary of State. In that job, one of my key responsibilities was to serve as the state's Chief Elections Officer. During my tenure, we made great strides in improving the accuracy and security of the elections system in our state.

However, as any former or current Secretary of State can tell you, one of the greatest challenges you have is convincing non-voters—those who are eligible to vote, and may be registered, but fail to participate in the electoral process. One of the common challenges in changing the views of these citizens is countering the belief that the system doesn't work either due to corruption or negligence or some other issue. So, these citizens fail to exercise their Constitutionally-given rights to choose their government, and they don't vote.

As elected officials, we need to take whatever measures we can to increase the public's confidence in the voting system. One of the greatest achievements of my tenure as Secretary of State was the creation of the Qualified Voter File, which provided for easy determination of who is and is not a registered voter. In fact, the Ford-Carter Commission on Federal Election Reform cited Michigan as a national model in this area. This device was critical to ensuring that we have full voter participation and that no one is needlessly disenfranchised.

Absentee ballots, historically, have been an area that has contributed to this perception. Many have seen these ballots as ripe for corruption and many voters are unsure what happens with their ballots after they mail them in. The bill we are considering today will go a long way towards correcting these perceptions.

H.R. 2510, the Absentee Ballot Track Receive and Confirm Act, authorizes grants to states that choose to establish procedures to track absentee mail-in ballots. These systems would allow voters to find out for themselves the status of their absentee ballot. Voters will now be able to determine when their ballot should arrive, if the elections office received it and whether it was counted.

Additionally, this measure protects the secrecy of the ballot by only marking the outside ballot envelopes. No other information about the voter or how that vote was cast will be recorded.

The right to vote is one of the most cherished rights that we have as citizens. This measure will reduce the potential for fraud and restore confidence in absentee voting among the public. Furthermore, absentee voters will gain the knowledge that their vote has been counted and they are not being disenfranchised through the process.

I urge my colleagues to support the measure.

INTRODUCING HEALTH FREEDOM LEGISLATIONHON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. PAUL. Madam Speaker, I rise to introduce two pieces of legislation restoring the First Amendment rights of consumers to receive truthful information regarding the benefits of foods and dietary supplements. The first bill, the Health Freedom Act, codifies the First Amendment by ending the Food and Drug Administration (FDA)'s efforts to censor truthful health claims. The second bill, the Freedom of Health Speech Act, codifies the First and Fifth Amendment by requiring the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to prove that health claims are false before it takes action to stop manufacturers and marketers from making the claims.

The American people have made it clear they do not want the federal government to interfere with their access to dietary supplements, yet the FDA and the FTC continue to engage in heavy-handed attempts to restrict such access. The FDA continues to frustrate consumers' efforts to learn how they can improve their health even after Congress, responding to a record number of constituents' comments, passed the Dietary Supplement and Health and Education Act of 1994 (DSHEA). FDA bureaucrats are so determined to frustrate consumers' access to truthful information that they are even evading their duty to comply with four federal court decisions vindicating consumers' First Amendment rights to discover the health benefits of foods and dietary supplements.

FDA bureaucrats have even refused to abide by the DSHEA section allowing the public to have access to scientific articles and publications regarding the role of nutrients in treating diseases by claiming that every article concerning this topic is evidence of intent to sell an unapproved and unlawful drug.

Because of the FDA's censorship of truthful health claims, millions of Americans may suffer with diseases and other health care problems they may have avoided by using dietary supplements. For example, the FDA prohibited consumers from learning how folic acid reduces the risk of neural tube defects for four years after the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommended every woman of childbearing age take folic acid supplements to reduce neural tube defects. This FDA action contributed to an estimated 10,000 cases of preventable neural tube defects.

The FDA also continues to prohibit consumers from learning about the scientific evidence that glucosamine and chondroitin sulfate are effective in the treatment of osteoarthritis; that omega-3 fatty acids may reduce the risk of sudden death heart attack; that calcium may reduce the risk of bone fractures; and that vitamin D may reduce the risk of osteoporosis, hypertension, and cancer.

The Health Freedom Act will force the FDA to at last comply with the commands of Congress, the First Amendment, numerous federal courts, and the American people by codifying the First Amendment prohibition on prior restraint. Specifically, the Health Freedom Act stops the FDA from censoring truthful claims about the curative, mitigative, or preventative effects of dietary supplements. The Health Freedom Act also stops the FDA from prohibiting the distribution of scientific articles and publications regarding the role of nutrients in protecting against disease. The FDA has proven that it cannot be trusted to protect consumers' rights to make informed choices. It is time for Congress to stop the FDA from censoring truthful health information.

The Freedom of Health Speech Act addresses the FTC's violations of the First Amendment. Under traditional constitutional standards, the federal government bears the burden of proving an advertising statement false before censoring that statement. However, the FTC shifted the burden of proof to industry. The FTC presumes health advertising is false and compels private parties to prove the ads (and everything the regulators say the ads imply) to be true to a near conclusive degree. This violation of the First and Fifth Amendments is harming consumers' by blocking innovation in the health foods and dietary supplement marketplace.

The Freedom of Health Speech Act requires that the government actually prove that speech is false before the FTC acts against the speaker. This is how it should be in a free society where information flows freely in order to foster the continuous improvement that benefits us all. The bill also requires that the FTC warn parties that their advertising is false and give them a chance to correct their mistakes before the FTC censors the claim and imposes other punishments.

Madam Speaker, if we are serious about putting people in charge of their health care, then shouldn't we stop federal bureaucrats from preventing Americans from learning about simple ways to improve their health. I therefore call on my colleagues to stand up for good health and the Constitution by cosponsoring the Health Freedom Act and the Freedom of Health Speech Act.

EARMARK DECLARATION

HON. SPENCER BACHUS

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BACHUS. Madam Speaker, pursuant to the Republican Leadership standards on earmarks, I am submitting the following information regarding funding that I requested as part of H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Southern Research Institution

Address of Requesting Entity: 757 Tom Martin Drive, Birmingham, AL 35211

Description of Request: Provide $3,000,000 to provide a needed testbed platform for evaluation of advanced sensor technologies in a cost-effective and countermeasure development for threat systems. The Captive Carry Sensor Testbed addresses the unfunded requirement for enhancing weapon system effectiveness through the development and integration of a UAV-based captive carry sensor testbed and characterization of realistic flight conditions. The project's total budget is $4,000,000. Specifically within the budget, $600,000 will go toward system procurement, $200,000 will go toward system integration, $1,500,000 will go to an Alabama subcontractor for software and systems, $900,000 will go toward SRI Program Management, and $800,000 will go toward Army project management and administration. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army Account. The Southern Research Institute will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: University of Alabama at Birmingham

Address of Requesting Entity: 1802 6th Avenue South, Birmingham, AL 35249

Description of Request: Provide $1,500,000 for development of a medical training simulation using a supercomputer-based, immersive virtual environment to train military personnel in medical skills. The simulation will focus on combat search and rescue, mass casualty, confined space, and other challenging environments and scenarios to enhance training. The training simulation capability would allow military personnel to quickly and cost effectively adapt, train, and develop responses for a variety of emerging threats and emergencies. The project's total budget is $3,837,000. Specifically within the budget, $1,500,000 will go toward personnel, $1,200,000 will go toward IT equipment, $200,000 will go toward software, $75,000 will go toward administrative expenses, $25,000 will go toward travel, and $837,000 will go toward indirect costs. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army Account. The University of Alabama at Birmingham will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: Auburn University

Address of Requesting Entity: 202 Samford Hall, Auburn University, AL 36849

Description of Request: Provide $1,500,000 to develop and demonstrate logistical fuel processor-fuel cell combinations that operate at significantly higher efficiencies than currently used by the Army. System improvements include: overall efficiency, fuel flexibility, activity maintenance and poison tolerance of the various catalysts, startup/shutdown times-scales, process strength, reliability, safety, thermal/acoustic signature and integration, and reductions in overall weight and volume. This project directly supports the war fighting capabilities of the entire U.S. military. Moreover, it focuses on more efficient power generation from readily available existing fuels, and develops and underpins dual use technologies critical to the energy security of the U.S. The project's total budget is $6,970,000. Specifically within the budget, $2,230,000 will go toward Auburn personnel costs, $1,200,000 will go toward research expense and supplies, $900,000 will go toward supplies, $1,090,000 will go to a subcontractor, $300,000 will go to Anniston Army Depot for tech support for Army vehicle retrofits, and $1,250,000 will go toward Army project management and administration. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army Account. Auburn University will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

Requesting Member: Congressman SPENCER BACHUS

Bill Number: H.R. 3326—Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010

Account: Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army

Legal Name of Requesting Entity: University of Alabama at Birmingham

Address of Requesting Entity: 1530 3rd Avenue South, AB 720E, Birmingham, AL 35294

Description of Request: Provide $1,500,000 to focus on rapid development and application insertion of emerging design, materials, and manufacturing technologies to provide solution options for many important military needs. Particular research projects will focus on encapsulated-ceramic armor using metallic thermoplastic matrices, metal matrix composites, modeling of casting and deformation processing for non-ferrous and ferrous alloys, and thermo-mechanical processing of magnesium and other alloys. The project's total budget is $4,000,000. Specifically within the budget, $1,200,000 will go toward engineering, $1,800,000 will go toward equipment, $100,000 will go toward travel, $300,000 will go toward supplies, $500,000 will go toward component fabrication, and $100,000 will go toward services. This request is consistent with the intended and authorized purpose of the Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army Account. The University of Alabama at Birmingham will meet or exceed all statutory requirements for matching funds where applicable.

TESTIMONY GIVEN BY ROGER WINTER ON U.S. SUDAN POLICY

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I would like to share with our colleagues testimony that Roger Winter, former U.S. State Department special representative on Sudan, gave today before the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Africa and Global Health on the critical issue of U.S. Sudan policy, specifically as it relates to implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA).

I deeply respect Roger's viewpoint as a consummate Sudan expert and plan to submit the testimony of the other highly qualified witnesses from today's hearing, in the days ahead.

Chairman Payne, Ranking member Smith and Members of the Subcommittee, thank you for inviting me to be here with you today. And to you, Mr. Payne, your consistent and persistent leadership on Sudan has honestly made you one of my heroes. I mean that sincerely.

To paraphrase one of my favorite authors, I often wonder with awe at the willingness of good people, especially Americans, to suspend all their protective instincts and to accept some of the worst killers in the human race into their midst. I remembered that thought when seeing photos of the Khartoum delegation that arrived recently to discuss Sudan's Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). Perhaps I have seen too much in the Sudan over these last 28 years and have become jaundiced. Still, a necrology of three million dead civilians in Sudan, targeted victims of the policies and actions of the National Congress Party (or National Islamic Front) since its coup in 1989, has got to be noteworthy, especially as the leadership of the NCP have as yet never been held accountable for their crimes. Surely three million is unambiguously a Holocaust number. The gentleman who headed the NCP delegation to Washington recently and received substantial public exposure (e.g. in the Washington Times) has one of the worst track records of all. Surely three million deaths is unambiguously a Holocaust number, a reality for which he makes no apology whatsoever.

Not only has the NCP not paid a price for that body count, its leadership now controls much of Sudan's economy; its indicted President is politically protected by the morally-challenged leadership of the African Union and the Arab League; and it continues to undermine both the CPA itself and also the Sudan Peoples Liberation Movement, its "Partner" in the National Unity government established by the CPA. The NCP has a 100% perfect record. It NEVER ever keeps the agreements it signs with its opponents. The pattern is clear. Take, for example, the issue of the volatile town of Abyei. President Bashir's three-year-long refusal to implement the Abyei Protocol of the CPA after signing it on multiple occasions was followed by his Sudan Armed Forces 31st Brigade's destruction of Abyei town in May of last year. Again, he and his Party have paid no price. In fact, he's essentially been rewarded and now is now threatening to undermine the CPA's promised Referendum on Abyei's future.

Just one month ago, President Bashir celebrated his twentieth anniversary as President. He came to power by coup and, ever since, he and his Party have been at war with the Sudanese people, North, South, East and West. The National Islamic Front/NCP leadership team has been the same since it took power. Since then that able and well-experienced team has confronted a revolving door of U.S. diplomats and "special envoys" who do their best to end Khartoum's destructive behavior. Often they think that Khartoum can be successfully appealed to "to do the right thing" on behalf of the marginalized people of Sudan. It's just not so. Khartoum reads us very well.

Personally, I have changed my perspective on Sudan. As someone who worked for our Government on the CPA, I believed in the vision of "New Sudan". I believed the "democratic transformation" of Sudan had a chance to succeed. I believed that "maybe" there was a faint chance the NCP "might be" willing to "make unity attractive" and so sustain a unified state of Sudan. But Khartoum has killed all that. Those goals are not in any way achievable any longer. In my view there are only two general directions that are supportable by the people of South Sudan at this point: (1) The South will vote overwhelmingly for separation in the Referendum provided for by the CPA or (2) The South will be forced into unilaterally declaring its independence because its CPA-mandated Referendum is frustrated by Khartoum's actions and/or the hollow commitments of the International Community. The International Community's wishy-washy approach to the CPA has helped assure that either option will be messy. However, delay or abandonment of the Referendum would be the worst-possible outcome. I believe, in such a case, return to war would be essentially guaranteed.

Because I believe the Referendum must happen timely and in at least reasonably good form in order for there to be any viable chance for peace and development in the region, I believe it is mandatory that the U.S. fully embrace the people of the South and Abyei, and that we escalate our efforts to achieve a soft-landing as the result of a successfully-held Referendum. The U.S. must be clear and upfront that we will support and protect the outcome of that Referendum; many people died to achieve that right.

It is no secret that South Sudan and Abyei are plagued with serious problems but, under the circumstances, they have come a long way against incredible odds.

For twenty years I was the CEO of a non-profit which was then was called the U.S. Committee for Refugees. In that role I was personally exposed to virtually every human rights and humanitarian disaster in the world. I can assert with great confidence my view that, before the CPA, South Sudan and Abyei were the most destroyed places in the entire world. For more than 80% of the time Sudan has been an independent state Khartoum has fostered war in South Sudan and Abyei. Khartoum has not been a genuine government but has generally functioned partisanly on behalf of a narrow range of Arab interests. As a clear result, calling the South "marginalized" became an understatement. It is amazing what forty-seven years of war can do to people. I would visit Abyei which was essentially denuded of its population and overgrown by bush. I would travel during the war throughout the South seeing the unspeakable conditions, but survivors had to live in it. I'll not focus on it except to say it wasn't only infrastructure that was destroyed, it was much of humanity and human society.

At the time the CPA was signed, there was great optimism about the future. The international community made many promises. Khartoum was playing charades and winning. The SPLM and the newly created Government of Southern Sudan were hopeful. The problems they faced were overwhelming and mostly man-made. Because the South had become quiet and Darfuris were being exterminated in growing numbers by Khartoum forces, attention shifted away from the implementation of the CPA and the delivery of an adequate peace dividend for the South's war-affected civilians. Khartoum, despite signing the CPA, has consistently undermined it. Supporting violence in the South, destroying Abyei in May 2008, regularly withholding funds due the South and Abyei to cripple the functioning of governance, and activating its friends and 'fellow travelers' in the South to foster civil unrest have all been part of Khartoum's pattern of behavior.

Despite Khartoum, the South has come a very long way and has received substantial international assistance, including major support from the U.S. The South has a functional government, substantial growth in education, health services, roads, and other critical services, all in fifty-five months since the CPA was signed. Candidly, however, the South's progress is also being undermined by internal forces, especially in terms of some civil violence, some official corruption, and some serious weaknesses in governance. My use of the word 'some' here, is to be fair. These problems are serious, especially as they erode popular confidence, but they do not eclipse the progress that has been made, given where they started from and the constant undermining by Khartoum. Let me mention one example of how Khartoum routinely works: Abyei.

Khartoum signed the CPA, including the Abyei Protocol, on January 9, 2005. Khartoum never implemented the Protocol. That meant there was NO government in Abyei and no government services for three years. In May 2008, Khartoum forces completely burned to the ground the market place and all residential areas. One hundred percent of the population, who were all returned displaced people, were again displaced. Subsequently Khartoum forces blew up the SPLM facilities in Abyei. Forced by international neglect of these developments in Abyei, the SPLM agreed to international arbitration by the Permanent Court of Arbitration (PCA) in the Hague. While the PCA was moving forward, an Abyei administration was finally created. That administration was intended to provide services to the population funded by a percentage of oil revenues as specified in the CPA. The Abyei administration's budget was to begin October 1, 2008; it never happened. After much pressure, the Abyei administration got only a small "advance" in February 2009 and another in April. Effectively Abyei administration personnel have not been paid since last January; there is little money for services; the hospital is basically empty. There is still no approved budget for Abyei for the fiscal year now almost over. This is how Khartoum implements the CPA in the single most volatile location in Sudan, with clear intention to undermine stability. This is also typical of how Khartoum has dealt with every important issue in the CPA. To top it off, many of the officers of the 31st Brigade (now renamed) and related militias that destroyed Abyei in May 2008 were promoted, and today hundreds of those men, commanded by thugs like Lt. Col. Thomas Thiel Malual Awak, Major Moyak Mobil Ajak and Captain Joseph Garang Nyoul, among others, are just a short distance north of Abyei town waiting for the next instruction from President Bashir to do their evil deeds. And, in my view, he is preparing to do just that. He has already announced in a very threatening way how he will try to torpedo the Abyei Referendum in 2011.

This is how Khartoum behaves across the board on every important issue. This is the Government our Administration is seeking to "make nice" with. Comparing the problems of the GOSS with those of Khartoum, which really is the failed state? Is it Khartoum, the one rolling in cash, thoroughly corrupt, a killer regime whom WE have accused rightly of genocide, the 'government' that undermines all the marginalized populations in Sudan and never keeps its agreements? Or is it the four-and-a-half year old GOSS, struggling to reconstruct a war-devastated South with an almost 100% war-traumatized population of survivors minus several million that didn't survive? Morally, by any assessment, the South wins hands down. And morally, that's where America's heart should be.

Why? I believe that with all their shortcomings, the SPLM and the GOSS politically are fundamentally democrats and genuinely want to provide development for all the populations for which they have governing responsibility. In my view it is in advancing precisely those commitments that U.S. national interests are ultimately located.

To me that requires a U.S. surge in coming along side in a full-blown partnership with the struggling GOSS to improve its performance in terms of governance quality so it can deliver services to and inspire the hopes of the people of South Sudan and Abyei. While I cannot be comprehensively prescriptive on specific programmatic solutions, there are some that are obvious: improved financial management, establishment of corruption detection and prosecution mechanisms, preparation for managing the South's petroleum sector, enhancing their public information capacity so the public is well-informed, increased training of police, and capacity-building in reducing inter-community violence. For the remaining timeline of the CPA and for sometime thereafter, the U.S. should stimulate capacity transfer by an infusion of capable American, Indian and other nationality expertise to work along side their Sudanese counterparts. It also means Washington confronting Khartoum when in big or little ways they obstruct CPA requirements and undermine GOSS capacity.

To me this is an approach of which the American people ultimately will be proud. It will free the people of Abyei and the South and will also best secure our own fundamental interests.

RECOGNIZING GAIL BELMONT FROM VALLEY SPRINGS, CA

HON. DANIEL E. LUNGREN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. Madam Speaker, I am honored to recognize a constituent of mine, Gail Belmont from Valley Springs, CA. Gail is an Operation Officer in the Quilts of Valor Foundation. She will be in Washington, DC next month.

A "Quilt of Valor" is a wartime quilt made to honor our War Wounded. It is given to all wounded service men and women to show these brave young men and women how much their sacrifice and service is appreciated. These quilts are meant to provide comfort, love and healing to those who have given so much. It is a tangible way to say, "Thank you for your sacrifice and service for our country." It is not a charity quilt nor a service quilt. It is a beautifully pieced and quilted wartime quilt. It is a wartime quilt made by wartime quilters. Over 22,000 quilts have been given to the wounded. Gail has quilted over 350 of those herself.

Gail is a native Californian, born in Dos Palos. After graduation from high school she entered the Women's Army Corp Band playing trumpet. She served 7 years active and reserve. She then spent 25 years in civil service; law enforcement; warehousing and production control at Sharp Depot.

Shortly after leaving Sharp Depot, Gail's parents had purchased a longarm quilting machine and curiosity had Gail trying her hand at running it. It was an instant success and led to establishing a full-time business, at first in the family garage. Quickly outgrowing the garage necessitated a move to the present location on Stabilus Road in Valley Springs.

Gail has won numerous awards at Machine Quilters Showcase and all the local Fairs and Quilt Shows. Her work is well known in this community in all charity affairs. Quilts have come to her from all over the nation for her special expertise which is free hand quilting and then have been sent all over the world.

When Gail left Valley Springs for Camp Lejeune NC, she and others had 200 Quilts of Valor with them. They stopped at different towns across the country picking up quilts and delivered them to Camp Lejeune, North Carolina where they awarded 1,354 quilts to the 3rd Battalion, 8th Marines who just returned from Afghanistan. While in DC, Gail will join Catherine Roberts who founded this organization as they award the Women's Veterans Memorial at Arlington a quilt and will be honored at the Commandant's evening Parade at the Marine Corps Barracks.

On a previous trip to Washington, Gail awarded the Pentagon a quilt she had quilted which is called the "Pentagon Pride Eagle of Valor Quilt of Valor". This quilt is on display at the Pentagon in the 9/11 display case.

IDLING REDUCTION TAX CREDIT
ACT OF 2009

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 2009

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Madam Speaker, each year, long-duration idling of truck engines consumes over 1 billion gallons of diesel fuel and emits 11 million tons of carbon dioxide, 200,000 tons of oxides of nitrogen, and 5,000 tons of particulate matter into the air. Also, idling can increase engine maintenance costs, shorten engine life, adversely affect driver well-being, and create elevated noise levels. Some surveys show that trucks idle anywhere from 6-8 hours a day for as many as 250 to 300 days each year.

This legislation provides an important incentive to protect our environment, reduce fuel consumption, and ease the burden of compliance on the trucking community.

The Idling Reduction Tax Credit Act of 2009 provides a 50% credit for the purchase of an idling reduction unit, capped at $3,000. These units are part of the Environmental Protection Agency's "Smartway" program, which is geared toward improving energy efficiency, reducing greenhouse gas and air pollutant emissions, and improving energy security for our transportation system.

According to the EPA, idling reduction units can reduce fuel consumption by 8% each year and generate additional air quality savings by eliminating up to 2,400 hours of idling time each year. Unfortunately, these units can cost up to $8,500. While there are loan programs available for some truckers to help defray this cost, most are unable to take advantage of those programs. The Idling Reduction Tax Credit Act would make the federal government a full partner in this effort. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Thursday, July 30, 2009 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Thursday, July 30, 2009

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
July 30, 2009.

I hereby appoint the Honorable EARL BLUMENAUER to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Lord God Almighty, You lead Your people, guide them, and help them in their every need. You respond to their faith in many ways. You may use any one or anything to come to the aid of Your people.

At times You bring government or charitable organizations to assist Your people. At other times, family members or neighbors help as they are able. At other times, You empower a person from within with greater imagination or intuition, with more education, or the ability to change direction. Sometimes all anyone can do is to pray.

So today we pray for all those who are overwhelmed by personal or social difficulties. We pray for those drowning in debt, those threatened by firestorms or foreclosure on their homes, by illness, by depression, unemployment or lack of faith. Be faithful, Lord, to Your people, even when they are unfaithful and help those most in need. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. JACKSON) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. JACKSON of Illinois led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to 10 requests for 1-minute speeches on each side of the aisle.

THERE IS NOTHING MORE IMPORTANT THAN HEALTH CARE

(Mr. COHEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. COHEN. Mr. Speaker, Daniel Webster reminds us on a daily basis in a plaque, a stone engraved above the Speaker's rostrum, that in our time here in Congress we're supposed to do something that's worth being remembered, something valuable. Forty-four years ago today Medicare was signed into law. That Congress did something worthwhile. The Congress that produced Medicaid did something worthwhile. Both those Congresses were vilified, and people said both of those programs were socialism.

Well, they were wrong; they were American. They were caring programs that have helped with people in sickness and getting them healthy in an affordable manner. This Congress can do something worthy of being remembered by passing national health care and taking care of people and extending Medicare and Medicaid to another group of Americans and making sure that we're no longer the only civilized industrialized country in the world that doesn't have health care for all of its citizens.

It's time that we act and we do what Daniel Webster charges us to, and that's to do something worthy of being remembered. Nothing is more important than health care.

PUT VIETNAM BACK ON THE CPC LIST NOW

(Mr. CAO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CAO. Mr. Speaker, how much longer must we tolerate Vietnam's outrageous and continuous violations of its people's religious freedom and human rights? Just over a week ago, the Vietnamese government assaulted, arrested and imprisoned dozens of Catholics in the Diocese of Vinh for erecting a temporary place of worship on Tam Toa Parish Church that was destroyed during the Vietnam War. If this is not sufficiently egregious and reprehensible to draw our attention and condemnation, I do not know what is. However, the sad reality is that this is just one of the many audacious and concerning violations perpetrated by the Vietnamese government since it was removed from the list of Countries of Particular Concern in 2006.

Arrests of religious leaders and political activists, intimidation of worshippers, and collusion in labor trafficking have become a common practice by the Vietnamese government. We cannot continue to tolerate unjust, inhumane and illegal practices. Vietnam must be put back on the CPC list, and I urge the State Department to do so expeditiously.

H.R. 3326

(Mr. NYE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. NYE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of our troops and our military families and in support of a provision in the manager's amendment to the Defense appropriations bill which will help our military families.

Mr. Speaker, injured military personnel and veterans, including many who live in my district, often have to travel far from home to receive specialized medical treatment, taking them away from their families during a difficult time. The Fisher House Foundation is a public-private partnership which provides housing to allow military family members to be close to their loved ones during hospitalizations or medical treatment. Each year the Fisher House program serves about 10,000 families at no charge, enabling them to focus on their husbands and wives, parents, sons and daughters.

This amendment includes a provision which I offered to give more support to the Fisher House Foundation to provide housing to more military families. Mr. Speaker, the troops I worked with in Iraq and Afghanistan were willing to put their lives on the line for our country, and we should do everything in our power to ease the burden on our wounded warriors and their families. I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this valuable program and in supporting our military families.

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, here are a few thoughts on the Democrat health tax bill by Democrats:

"This bill . . . does not strike the balance between preserving what works in our current system and fixing what does not work."

Another: "To try to pay for health care reform on the backs of small businesses, I can't support that."

Finally: "The (House) bill being presented, with a poorly defined public option, is a Trojan horse leading to government-controlled health care, and it is not in the best interests of the public."

These are the words and concerns of some of our Democrat colleagues. The Democrat plan raises taxes and mandates on small businesses, killing jobs. It creates a government takeover of health care that will knock millions of Americans, including senior citizens on Medicare, off their current plans.

There is a better way to help Americans afford health care, and it starts with empowering the people, not Big Government.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September the 11th in the global war on terrorism.

JUST DON'T GET SICK

(Ms. SHEA-PORTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SHEA-PORTER. Mr. Speaker, here's the problems Americans are facing today: no money, no insurance, get sick, disaster; preexisting condition, no insurance, get sick, disaster; laid off, no insurance, get sick, disaster; employer drops coverage, no insurance, get sick, disaster.

This is what the Democrats are trying to fix. This is what the public option and the exchange will fix. It allows people who like their insurance to keep it, and it will cover those who do not have insurance. The Republican health plan very simply is: just don't get sick.

HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Ms. MCCOLLUM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, reforming our Nation's health care system is an urgent national priority. Ensuring high-quality, affordable, access to health care for all Americans is our task here in Congress. Yet, opponents of reform are working to kill the bill and to do nothing about exploiting health care costs other than help insurance companies profit.

Democrats are working for real reform that empowers patients and their doctors to make the right choices for you. Democrats want health insurance for all Americans with a focus on saving and in investing and prevention for our children. Democrats want to make prescription drugs affordable and guarantee that preexisting conditions will be treated and not denied by insurance company bean counters. Democrats want a system that ensures all patients will receive evidence-based, quality care that's the standard.

My State of Minnesota has proven that high-quality, low-cost health care is a possibility here in the United States, and it should be the standard for all Americans. The time for action is now. We need to pass real health care reform.

YOU'RE JUST TOO OLD

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, when government runs health care, senior citizens sometimes are refused treatment because of their age. In Sweden, an 83-year-old woman was refused medical surgery by the government-run hospital. They said she was just too old for treatment. Marianne Skogh had pain and numbness in her legs for 5 years. She waited more than a year trying to get approval for back surgery to cure the problem. She was rejected by the government. Without the operation, she would be living in incredible turmoil. She said, "What kind of life is that?"

Despite her long wait, Marianne was told her ailment was treatable but she was just too old for surgery. The government-run hospital said since she had previous heart surgery, they were denying her the back surgery. They told her just to take some pain pills. When the pain pills didn't help, the government still wouldn't let her have the surgery. Marianne ended up paying for the operation herself with some private funds and funds she received from friends. She's now pain-free.

Government-run health care lets bureaucrats decide who receives rationed care and who doesn't, who lives and who just dies. And that's just the way it is.

AMERICA NEEDS QUALITY AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, America faces a vital decision to improve health care for all, both its quality and affordability. But follow the money. Ask yourself, Who's making the big bucks off the current arrangement? Aren't you tired of all those expensive medicine ads on TV? If you weren't sick before you watch them you're sick afterwards.

Pharmaceutical companies are the third most profitable industry in our country. They don't even manufacture most of those medicines here anymore. They outsourced them long ago. And their CEOs grab millions of dollars a year in salaries and bonuses from our middle class that's struggling more each year just to pay for insurance. And the insurance companies? They're raking in your health insurance dollars too. They don't deliver an ounce of care, but they've become the ninth most profitable industry in our country. Go to any state capital. Who owns the highest buildings in those towns? Insurance companies. That says it all. America needs quality, affordable health care, not insurance and pharmaceutical kingdoms.

LISTEN TO THE SENIORS

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I have a lot of friends on the Democrat side of the aisle, and we, as Republicans, really care about your future, so I'd like for you to know that one of the largest voting blocs in the country is that of the senior citizens. When they read this and find out about it—and we are going to make sure they do—they're going to really hold you accountable.

So, when you go home, listen to your seniors because they're going to know what's in this bill, and I don't want you guys to lose. I really don't.

DOING NOTHING IS NOT AN OPTION

(Ms. CHU asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. CHU. Mr. Speaker, not in six decades have we been this close to achieving the most crucial task of reforming our health care system. Let me be clear: we would be derelict in our duty to the American people if we let this opportunity go to waste.

Now, our colleagues on the other side of the aisle claim that this legislation amounts to the government takeover of health care and that Americans will be stripped of their choices of doctors and plans, but the reality is that everybody in this country will lose if they don't have health care reform.

People like Mary Smith, a 45-year-old with diabetes who just lost her job, she will no longer have to worry about whether she can get insurance again.

Certainly, in my district, everybody will benefit, the 155,000 who lack health care coverage but, also, the majority of my constituents who are insured. They will have stability, security and peace of mind in having health care that they can count on no matter what happens. You will always have options for coverage even if you change or lose your job. You will never be denied coverage if you get sick.

Doing nothing is not an option.

BETTER ALTERNATIVE FOR HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Mr. FLEMING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. Speaker, as a doctor, one of the main reasons I came to Congress was to push for health care reform, that is, commonsense reform, not nonsense reform as proposed by our Democrat colleagues. That's why I'm proud to be an original cosponsor of the Empowering Patients First Act, a Republican bill for reform.

This bill contains all of the essential elements of good health care reform, including expanding private insurance to all Americans who want it, removing preexisting illnesses, improving portability, subsidies to the working poor, access to excellent primary and specialty care and, of course, instituting lawsuit reform. All of this is accomplished without a government takeover, without gutting Medicare, without long lines or bureaucrats interfering in the sacred doctor-patient relationship; and it is budget neutral.

It is obvious that private insurance, no matter who pays for it, is the gold standard. As we return to our districts and debate this important issue, I believe we will find that Americans truly want private insurance options, not the government takeover of health care with the Soviet-style central planning of our economy.

THE RECOVERY ACT IS CREATING JOBS

(Mr. SCHRADER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SCHRADER. Mr. Speaker, I've come to the floor this week to dispel the assertion by Republican colleagues that the Recovery Act is not creating jobs. It's simply not accurate. I would like to talk to you about the first four construction transportation projects under way in my district.

Oregon 22, one of the few roads that connects the Willamette Valley to the Oregon coast, is getting two overlay construction projects, employing 44 and 80 workers respectively. These projects make sure that freight and tourists can keep our economy going.

Twenty workers are being put to work replacing the concrete barriers on Interstate 5, a major valley thoroughfare. This makes our highways safe. There are 120 workers who are being put to work paving and rebuilding sections of Highway 101, the only north-south road that connects the small Oregon coastal communities.

Mr. Speaker, those are 261 jobs under way in my district alone at this early stage of the recovery, and there are more in the works.

BRING FISCAL DISCIPLINE BACK TO WASHINGTON

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, in December 2007, our economy slipped into a recession, and since then, the recession has only gotten worse. The American people are hurting.

President Obama and Democrats in Congress promised that their stimulus plan would bring "immediate" relief. Unfortunately for the American people, the results are rolling in. Two million American jobs have been lost since the stimulus was signed into law. More than 400,000 jobs were lost in the month of June alone.

Just when you thought it was clear that we can't spend, borrow and tax our way to a growing economy, Democrats propose a government takeover of health care that will lead to higher taxes, to more government spending, and to even further job losses.

The American people deserve a real plan for real recovery, not another excuse to increase spending, to raise taxes, and to grow government. The Republican economic recovery plan brings fiscal discipline back to Washington, and it puts money back into the hands of the American people.

JOBS AND STIMULUS

(Mrs. MALONEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, President Obama inherited a labor market in free fall. When President Bush left office in January, job losses peaked as employers slashed a stunning 741,000 jobs.

Congress worked quickly with the new administration to restore financial stability and to pass a recovery package that is beginning to take hold. The pace of job losses has eased from its decline at the end of the Bush administration. Last week, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke testified that the unemployment rate would be higher right now without the legislation Congress enacted.

By restoring financial stability and by implementing stimulus measures and a responsible budget, we will make the investments necessary to lay the foundation for economic recovery that will put Americans back to work now and that will create the jobs of the future.

HEALTH CARE

(Mr. REICHERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. REICHERT. Mr. Speaker, when the House Ways and Means Committee recently considered the health care overhaul proposal, I supported an amendment that said if our constituents must join the government-run public plan, so should Members of Congress. Unfortunately, the Democrats rejected this amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I ask today: If the government-run plan is great enough for the American people, why isn't it good enough for the Members of Congress?

Americans deserve the freedom to choose their health care. This plan doesn't give them that choice. It will force Americans into a plan that supporters of the bill simply don't want.

We need to work together to protect and to strengthen the health care of every American, not take away choice and drive up costs. I urge my colleagues to reject this bill, to work together on a plan that will lower costs, while maintaining the freedoms of Americans to choose their health care.

And that is just some straight shooting from the sheriff.

IT IS TIME TO ENACT REAL HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, it is time to speak a little truth to power, to the powerful special interests and to the insurance companies that are willing to deep-six health care reform for millions of Americans by spreading misinformation and by scaring people. All the while, these big insurance companies raise deductibles, premiums, and copays. They drop people with preexisting conditions. They limit coverage, and they reap billions in excessive salaries, profits, and bonuses.

Look at the facts: United Health earned $2.9 billion last year. WellPoint reported profits of $2.5 billion. For CEO pay, United Health Group's Stephen Hemsley made $3.2 million. WellPoint's Angela Braly made $9.8 million. It doesn't stop there. Former United Health Group's CEO, Bill McGuire, left his job in 2006 and still took home $1.1 billion. That's a lot of zeros.

Who are we kidding, Mr. Speaker? This is all about money—campaign contributions, CEO salaries, millions in advertising to kill reform, and billions in profits. That's what's at stake here.

It's time to stop this nonsense and enact real reform that includes a public insurance option based on Medicare rates and with a network of providers to lower costs and to provide quality care.

THE SEVEN DIRTY WORDS WE CAN'T USE

(Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, this year, we lost a comedian of some note named George Carlin. One of the marks of his career was when he challenged the FCC with the seven dirty words. We're now engaged in a debate on health care, and we've been told that there are a number of phrases that we can't use because we're attempting to speak truth to power, power being the Democratic leadership here in the House.

What are these dirty words or phrases we can't use to describe the leading Democratic health care proposal?

We can't call it "government-run" even though that's what it's going to be inevitably. We can't call it "single-payer" even though that's where they're going. We can't call it "socialized medicine." I don't know why not, but we can't. We can't call it "ObamaCare." We can't call it "rationed care" even though rationing is an absolutely essential element to their plan. We can't call it the "government mandate care" even though it's full of mandates. The word "shall" appears, I believe, 100 times in the bill. "Shall" means "must," which means a mandate. You can't call it "keep your change care" because, frankly, there won't be any change for you to keep.

The seven dirty words we can't use.

THE URGENCY OF HEALTH CARE REFORM

(Mr. CARSON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CARSON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, I rise today to speak to the urgency of health care reform. I want to share the story of Holly, an Indianapolis woman who has courageously fought and won two bouts with breast cancer. Thankfully, Holly's medical costs were largely covered by insurance. While she praises the care and treatment she received, Holly is rightly worried about the future.

Due to her history of recurring cancer, Holly will be uninsurable if she ever loses her job and, with it, her employer-based health insurance plan. Holly and thousands of people across my district know that the status quo will leave millions more uninsured, in some cases even fighting for their lives.

We must push forward with overhauling our health care system, not only for the 47 million who are uninsured but for the millions more who will be added to these rolls unless we act. Now is not the time for fear-mongering. Now is not the time for political posturing or for narcissistic behavior. We must be Representatives in the true sense of the word and act on behalf of the American people.

HONORING ST. ANN'S 150TH ANNIVERSARY

(Mr. LANCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LANCE. Madam Speaker, I rise this morning in honor of the 150th anniversary of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church in Hampton, Hunterdon County, New Jersey.

St. Ann's was officially established in 1859, and Father Claude Rolland of France was named its first resident pastor.

Throughout its history, St. Ann's has faithfully fulfilled its mission while, at the same time, helping to establish eight other Catholic churches in Hunterdon and Warren Counties. Due to its contribution to the history of our State in 2003, the church was designated by New Jersey as a Site of Historical Note. Today, St. Ann's Parish is enjoying a period of significant growth under the leadership of its current pastor, Father Michael Saharic.

I congratulate St. Ann's Church for its 150 years of service to the communities of Hampton, Glen Gardner and surrounding areas and as a pillar of faith.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO OFFER RESOLUTION RAISING A QUESTION OF THE PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE

Mr. BROWN of Georgia. Madam Speaker, pursuant to clause 2(a)(1) of the IX, I hereby notify the House of my intention to offer a resolution as a question of the privileges of the House.

The form of my resolution is as follows:

Whereas the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. Broun submitted an amendment to the Committee on Rules to H.R. 3326, Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010;

Whereas that gentleman's amendment would have required that none of the funds made available in this Act be used to standardize the design of future ground combat uniforms across the military branches;

Whereas defense appropriations have typically been used to provide funding for various types of equipment such as uniforms;

Whereas the gentleman's amendment complied with all applicable Rules of the House for amendments to appropriations measures and would have been in order under an open amendment process, but regrettably the House Democratic leadership has dramatically and historically reduced the opportunity for open debate on this Floor; and

Whereas the Speaker, Ms. Pelosi, the Democratic leadership, and the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Obey, prevented the House from voting on the amendment by excluding it from the list of amendments made in order under the rule for the bill: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That H. Res. 685, the rule to accompany H.R. 3326, be amended to allow the gentleman from Georgia's amendment to be considered and voted on in the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. EDWARDS of Maryland). Under rule IX, a resolution offered from the floor by a Member other than the majority leader or the minority leader, as a question of the privileges of the House, has immediate precedence only at a time designated by the Chair within 2 legislative days after the resolution is properly noticed.

Pending that designation, the form of the resolution noticed by the gentleman from Georgia will appear in the RECORD at this point.

The Chair will not at this point determine whether the resolution constitutes a question of privilege. That determination will be made at the time designated for consideration of the resolution.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2010

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 685 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 3326.

□ 1031

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 3326) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, and for other purposes, with Mr. BLUMENAUER (Acting Chair) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Acting CHAIR. When the committee of the whole rose on Wednesday, July 29, 2009, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered read for amendment under the 5-minute rule and the bill shall be considered read through page 147, line 4.

The text of that portion of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 3326

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, for military functions administered by the Department of Defense and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I

RESERVE PERSONNEL, NAVY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Navy Reserve on active duty under section 10211 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States

Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $1,918,111,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, MARINE CORPS

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Marine Corps Reserve on active duty under section 10211 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty, and for members of the Marine Corps platoon leaders class, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $610,580,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Air Force Reserve on active duty under sections 10211, 10305, and 8038 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $1,600,462,000.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, ARMY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Army National Guard while on duty under section 10211, 10302, or 12402 of title 10 or section 708 of title 32, United States Code, or while serving on duty under section 12301(d) of title 10 or section 502(f) of title 32, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $7,525,628,000.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Air National Guard on duty under section 10211, 10305, or 12402 of title 10 or section 708 of title 32, United States Code, or while serving on duty under section 12301(d) of title 10 or section 502(f) of title 32, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $2,949,899,000.

TITLE II

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Army, as authorized by law; and not to exceed $12,478,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of the Army, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes, $30,454,152,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Navy and the Marine Corps, as authorized by law; and not to exceed $14,657,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of the Navy, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes, $34,885,932,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments), as authorized by law, $27,929,377,000: Provided, That not more than $50,000,000 may be used for the Combatant Commander Initiative Fund authorized under section 166a of title 10, United States Code: Provided further, That of the funds provided under this heading, not less than $29,732,000 shall be made available for the Procurement Technical Assistance Cooperative Agreement Program, of which not less than $3,600,000 shall be available for centers defined in 10 U.S.C. 2411(1)(D): Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used to plan or implement the consolidation of a budget or appropriations liaison office of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the office of the Secretary of a military department, or the service headquarters of one of the Armed Forces into a legislative affairs or legislative liaison office.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Army Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $2,621,196,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Navy Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $1,280,001,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, MARINE CORPS RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Marine Corps Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $228,925,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Air Force Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $3,079,228,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY NATIONAL GUARD

For expenses of training, organizing, and administering the Army National Guard, including medical and hospital treatment and related expenses in non-Federal hospitals; maintenance, operation, and repairs to structures and facilities; hire of passenger motor vehicles; personnel services in the National Guard Bureau; travel expenses (other than mileage), as authorized by law for Army personnel on active duty, for Army National Guard division, regimental, and battalion commanders while inspecting units in compliance with National Guard Bureau regulations when specifically authorized by the Chief, National Guard Bureau; supplying and equipping the Army National Guard as authorized by law; and expenses of repair, modification, maintenance, and issue of supplies and equipment (including aircraft), $6,353,627,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR NATIONAL GUARD

For expenses of training, organizing, and administering the Air National Guard, including medical and hospital treatment and related expenses in non-Federal hospitals; maintenance, operation, and repairs to structures and facilities; transportation of things, hire of passenger motor vehicles; supplying and equipping the Air National Guard, as authorized by law; expenses for repair, modification, maintenance, and issue of supplies and equipment, including those furnished from stocks under the control of agencies of the Department of Defense; travel expenses (other than mileage) on the same basis as authorized by law for Air National Guard personnel on active Federal duty, for Air National Guard commanders while inspecting units in compliance with National Guard Bureau regulations when specifically authorized by the Chief, National Guard Bureau, $5,888,741,000.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

For salaries and expenses necessary for the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, $13,932,000, of which not to exceed $5,000 may be used for official representation purposes.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, ARMY (INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of the Army, $415,864,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of the Army shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental res-

TITLE VIII
GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 8001. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 8002. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense: Provided, That salary increases granted to direct and indirect hire foreign national employees of the Department of Defense funded by this Act shall not be at a rate in excess of the percentage increase authorized by law for civilian employees of the Department of Defense whose pay is computed under the provisions of section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, or at a rate in excess of the percentage increase provided by the appropriate host nation to its own employees, whichever is higher: Provided further, That this section shall not apply to Department of Defense foreign service national employees serving at United States diplomatic missions whose pay is set by the Department of State under the Foreign Service Act of 1980: Provided further, That the limitations of this provision shall not apply to foreign national employees of the Department of Defense in the Republic of Turkey.

SEC. 8003. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 8004. No more than 20 percent of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last 2 months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of reserve components or summer camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8005. Upon determination by the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, he may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed $4,000,000,000 of working capital funds of the Department of Defense or funds made available in this Act to the Department of Defense for military functions (except military construction) between such appropriations or funds or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which funds are requested has been denied by the Congress: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority or any other authority in this Act: Provided further, That no part of the funds in this Act shall be available to prepare or present a request to the Committees on Appropriations for reprogramming of funds, unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which reprogramming is requested has been denied by the Congress: Provided further, That a request for multiple reprogrammings of funds using authority provided in this section shall be made prior to June 30, 2010: Provided further, That transfers among military personnel appropriations shall not be taken into account for purposes of the limitation on the amount of funds that may be transferred under this section: Provided further, That no obligation of funds may be made pursuant to section 1206 of Public Law 109-163 (or any successor provision) unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the congressional defense committees prior to any such obligation.

SEC. 8006. (a) With regard to the list of specific programs, projects, and activities (and the dollar amounts and adjustments to budget activities corresponding to such programs, projects, and activities) contained in the tables titled "Explanation of Project Level Adjustments" in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives accompanying this Act, the obligation and expenditure of amounts appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act for those programs, projects, and activities for which the amounts appropriated exceed the amounts requested are hereby required by law to be carried out in the manner provided by such tables to the same extent as if the tables were included in the text of this Act.

(b) Amounts specified in the referenced tables described in subsection (a) shall not be treated as subdivisions of appropriations for purposes of section 8005 of this Act: Provided, That section 8005 shall apply when transfers of the amounts described in subsection (a) occur between appropriation accounts.

SEC. 8007. (a) Not later than 60 days after enactment of this Act, the Department of Defense shall submit a report to the congressional defense committees to establish the baseline for application of reprogramming and transfer authorities for fiscal year 2010: Provided, That the report shall include—

(1) a table for each appropriation with a separate column to display the President's budget request, adjustments made by Congress, adjustments due to enacted rescissions, if appropriate, and the fiscal year enacted level;

(2) a delineation in the table for each appropriation both by budget activity and program, project, and activity as detailed in the Budget Appendix; and

(3) an identification of items of special congressional interest.

(b) Notwithstanding section 8005 of this Act, none of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for reprogramming or transfer until the report identified in subsection (a) is submitted to the congressional defense committees, unless the Secretary of Defense certifies in writing to the congressional defense committees that such reprogramming or transfer is necessary as an emergency requirement.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8008. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds: Provided further, That transfers may be made between working capital funds and the "Operation and Maintenance" appropriation accounts in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, except that such transfers may not be made unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress of the proposed transfer. Except in amounts equal to the amounts appropriated to working capital funds in this Act, no obligations may be made against a working capital fund to procure or increase the value of war reserve material inventory, unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress prior to any such obligation.

SEC. 8009. Funds appropriated by this Act may not be used to initiate a special access program without prior notification 30 calendar days in advance to the congressional defense committees.

SEC. 8010. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available to initiate: (1) a multiyear contract that employs economic order quantity procurement in excess of $20,000,000 in any one year of the contract or that includes an unfunded contingent liability in excess of $20,000,000; or (2) a contract for advance procurement leading to a multiyear contract that employs economic order quantity procurement in excess of $20,000,000 in any one year, unless the congressional defense committees have been notified at least 30 days in advance of the proposed contract award: Provided, That no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to initiate a multiyear contract for which the economic order quantity advance procurement is not funded at least to the limits of the Government's liability: Provided further, That no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to initiate multiyear procurement contracts for any systems or component thereof if the value of the multiyear contract would exceed $500,000,000 unless specifically provided in this Act: Provided further, That no multiyear procurement contract can be terminated without 10-day prior notification to the congressional defense committees: Provided further, That the execution of multiyear authority shall require the use of a present value analysis to determine lowest cost compared to an annual procurement:

Provided further, That none of the funds provided in this Act may be used for a multiyear contract executed after the date of the enactment of this Act unless in the case of any such contract—

(1) the Secretary of Defense has submitted to Congress a report within 30 days of enactment of this Act that certifies full funding of units to be procured through the contract and, in the case of a contract for procurement of aircraft, that includes, for any aircraft unit to be procured through the contract for which procurement funds are identified in that report for production beyond advance procurement activities in the fiscal year 2010 budget, full funding of procurement of such unit in that fiscal year;

(2) cancellation provisions in the contract do not include consideration of recurring manufacturing costs of the contractor associated with the production of unfunded units to be delivered under the contract;

(3) the contract provides that payments to the contractor under the contract shall not be made in advance of incurred costs on funded units; and

(4) the contract does not provide for a price adjustment based on a failure to award a follow-on contract.

Funds appropriated in title III of this Act may be used for a multiyear procurement contract as follows:

F-18 aircraft variants.

SEC. 8011. Within the funds appropriated for the operation and maintenance of the Armed Forces, funds are hereby appropriated pursuant to section 401 of title 10, United States Code, for humanitarian and civic assistance costs under chapter 20 of title 10, United States Code. Such funds may also be obligated for humanitarian and civic assistance costs incidental to authorized operations and pursuant to authority granted in section 401 of chapter 20 of title 10, United States Code, and these obligations shall be reported as required by section 401(d) of title 10, United States Code: Provided, That funds available for operation and maintenance shall be available for providing humanitarian and similar assistance by using Civic Action Teams in the Trust Territories of the Pacific Islands and freely associated states of Micronesia, pursuant to the Compact of Free Association as authorized by Public Law 99-239: Provided further, That upon a determination by the Secretary of the Army that such action is beneficial for graduate medical education programs conducted at Army medical facilities located in Hawaii, the Secretary of the Army may authorize the provision of medical services at such facilities and transportation to such facilities, on a nonreimbursable basis, for civilian patients from American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, Palau, and Guam.

SEC. 8012. (a) During fiscal year 2010, the civilian personnel of the Department of Defense may not be managed on the basis of any end-strength, and the management of such personnel during that fiscal year shall not be subject to any constraint or limitation (known as an end-strength) on the number of such personnel who may be employed on the last day of such fiscal year.

(b) The fiscal year 2011 budget request for the Department of Defense as well as all justification material and other documentation supporting the fiscal year 2011 Department of Defense budget request shall be prepared and submitted to the Congress as if subsections (a) and (b) of this provision were effective with regard to fiscal year 2011.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to military (civilian) technicians.

SEC. 8013. None of the funds made available by this Act shall be used in any way, directly or indirectly, to influence congressional action on any legislation or appropriation matters pending before the Congress.

SEC. 8014. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for the basic pay and allowances of any member of the Army participating as a full-time student and receiving benefits paid by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs from the Department of Defense Education Benefits Fund when time spent as a full-time student is credited toward completion of a service commitment: Provided, That this section shall not apply to those members who have reenlisted with this option prior to October 1, 1987: Provided further, That this section applies only to active components of the Army.

SEC. 8015. (a) None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to convert to contractor performance an activity or function of the Department of Defense that, on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, is performed by more than 10 Department of Defense civilian employees unless—

(1) the conversion is based on the result of a public-private competition that includes a most efficient and cost effective organization plan developed by such activity or function;

(2) the Competitive Sourcing Official determines that, over all performance periods stated in the solicitation of offers for performance of the activity or function, the cost of performance of the activity or function by a contractor would be less costly to the Department of Defense by an amount that equals or exceeds the lesser of—

(A) 10 percent of the most efficient organization's personnel-related costs for performance of that activity or function by Federal employees; or

(B) $10,000,000; and

(3) the contractor does not receive an advantage for a proposal that would reduce costs for the Department of Defense by—

(A) not making an employer-sponsored health insurance plan available to the workers who are to be employed in the performance of that activity or function under the contract; or

(B) offering to such workers an employer-sponsored health benefits plan that requires the employer to contribute less towards the premium or subscription share than the amount that is paid by the Department of Defense for health benefits for civilian employees under chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code.

(b)(1) The Department of Defense, without regard to subsection (a) of this section or subsection (a), (b), or (c) of section 2461 of title 10, United States Code, and notwithstanding any administrative regulation, requirement, or policy to the contrary shall have full authority to enter into a contract for the performance of any commercial or industrial type function of the Department of Defense that—

(A) is included on the procurement list established pursuant to section 2 of the Javits-Wagner-O'Day Act (41 U.S.C. 47);

(B) is planned to be converted to performance by a qualified nonprofit agency for the blind or by a qualified nonprofit agency for other severely handicapped individuals in accordance with that Act; or

(C) is planned to be converted to performance by a qualified firm under at least 51 percent ownership by an Indian tribe, as defined in section 4(e) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b(e)), or a Native Hawaiian Organization, as defined in section 8(a)(15) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(a)(15)).

(2) This section shall not apply to depot contracts or contracts for depot maintenance as provided in sections 2469 and 2474 of title 10, United States Code.

(c) The conversion of any activity or function of the Department of Defense under the authority provided by this section shall be credited toward any competitive or outsourcing goal, target, or measurement that may be established by statute, regulation, or policy and is deemed to be awarded under the authority of, and in compliance with, subsection (h) of section 2304 of title 10, United States Code, for the competition or outsourcing of commercial activities.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8016. Funds appropriated in title III of this Act for the Department of Defense Pilot Mentor-Protege Program may be transferred to any other appropriation contained in this Act solely for the purpose of implementing a Mentor-Protege Program developmental assistance agreement pursuant to section 831 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991 (Public Law 101-510; 10 U.S.C. 2302 note), as amended, under the authority of this provision or any other transfer authority contained in this Act.

SEC. 8017. None of the funds in this Act may be available for the purchase by the Department of Defense (and its departments and agencies) of welded shipboard anchor and mooring chain 4 inches in diameter and under unless the anchor and mooring chain are manufactured in the United States from components which are substantially manufactured in the United States: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, the term "manufactured" shall include cutting, heat treating, quality control, testing of chain and welding (including the forging and shot blasting process): Provided further, That for the purpose of this section substantially all of the components of anchor and mooring chain shall be considered to be produced or manufactured in the United States if the aggregate cost of the components produced or manufactured in the United States exceeds the aggregate cost of the components produced or manufactured outside the United States: Provided further, That when adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis, the Secretary of the service responsible for the procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes.

SEC. 8018. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense may be used to demilitarize or dispose of M-1 Carbines, M-1 Garand rifles, M-14 rifles, .22 caliber rifles, .30 caliber rifles, or M-1911 pistols, or to demilitarize or destroy small arms ammunition or ammunition components that are not otherwise prohibited from commercial sale under federal law.

SEC. 8019. No more than $500,000 of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act shall be used during a single fiscal year for any single relocation of an organization, unit, activity or function of the Department of Defense into or within the National Capital Region: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the congressional defense committees that such a relocation is required in the best interest of the Government.

SEC. 8020. In addition to the funds provided elsewhere in this Act, $15,000,000 is appropriated only for incentive payments authorized by section 504 of the Indian Financing Act of 1974 (25 U.S.C. 1544): Provided, That a prime contractor or a subcontractor at any tier that makes a subcontract award to any subcontractor or supplier as defined in section 1544 of title 25, United States Code, or a small business owned and controlled by an individual or individuals defined under section 4221(9) of title 25, United States Code, shall be considered a contractor for the purposes of being allowed additional compensation under section 504 of the Indian Financing Act of 1974 (25 U.S.C. 1544) whenever the prime contract or subcontract amount is over $500,000 and involves the expenditure of funds appropriated by an Act making Appropriations for the Department of Defense with respect to any fiscal year: Provided further, That notwithstanding section 430 of title 41, United States Code, this section shall be applicable to any Department of Defense acquisition of supplies or services, including any contract and any subcontract at any tier for acquisition of commercial items produced or manufactured, in whole or in part by any subcontractor or supplier defined in section 1544 of title 25, United States Code, or a small business owned and controlled by an individual or individuals defined under section 4221(9) of title 25, United States Code.

SEC. 8021. Funds appropriated by this Act for the Defense Media Activity shall not be used for any national or international political or psychological activities.

SEC. 8022. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to perform any cost study pursuant to the provisions of OMB Circular A-76 if the study being performed exceeds a period of 24 months after initiation of such study with respect to a single function activity or 30 months after initiation of such study for a multi-function activity, commencing on the date on which the preliminary planning for the study begins through the date on which a performance decision is rendered with respect to the function, excluding time during which the study is suspended because of protests before the Government Accountability Office or United States Court of Federal Claims but including time during which the study is performed subsequent to such protests.

SEC. 8023. During the current fiscal year, the Department of Defense is authorized to incur obligations of not to exceed $350,000,000 for purposes specified in section 2350j(c) of title 10, United States Code, in anticipation of receipt of contributions, only from the Government of Kuwait, under that section: Provided, That upon receipt, such contributions from the Government of Kuwait shall be credited to the appropriations or fund which incurred such obligations.

SEC. 8024. (a) Of the funds made available in this Act, not less than $34,756,000 shall be available for the Civil Air Patrol Corporation, of which—

(1) $26,433,000 shall be available from "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force" to support Civil Air Patrol Corporation operation and maintenance, readiness, counter-drug activities, and drug demand reduction activities involving youth programs;

(2) $7,426,000 shall be available from "Air-craft Procurement, Air Force"; and

(3) $897,000 shall be available from "Other Procurement, Air Force" for vehicle procurement.

(b) The Secretary of the Air Force should waive reimbursement for any funds used by the Civil Air Patrol for counter-drug activities in support of Federal, State, and local government agencies.

SEC. 8025. (a) None of the funds appropriated in this Act are available to establish a new Department of Defense (department) federally funded research and development center (FFRDC), either as a new entity, or as a separate entity administrated by an organization managing another FFRDC, or as a nonprofit membership corporation consisting of a consortium of other FFRDCs and other non-profit entities.

(b) No member of a Board of Directors, Trustees, Overseers, Advisory Group, Special Issues Panel, Visiting Committee, or any similar entity of a defense FFRDC, and no paid consultant to any defense FFRDC, except when acting in a technical advisory capacity, may be compensated for his or her services as a member of such entity, or as a paid consultant by more than one FFRDC in a fiscal year: Provided, That a member of any such entity referred to previously in this subsection shall be allowed travel expenses and per diem as authorized under the Federal Joint Travel Regulations, when engaged in the performance of membership duties.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds available to the department from any source during fiscal year 2010 may be used by a defense FFRDC, through a fee or other payment mechanism, for construction of new buildings, for payment of cost sharing for projects funded by Government grants, for absorption of contract overruns, or for certain charitable contributions, not to include employee participation in community service and/or development.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the funds available to the department during fiscal year 2010, not more than 5,582 staff years of technical effort (staff years) may be funded for defense FFRDCs, not more than 3,236 staff years may be funded for the systems engineering and integration FFRDCs and not more than 1,264 staff years may be funded for laboratory FFRDCs: Provided, That of the specific amount referred to previously in this subsection, not more than 1,082 staff years may be funded for the defense studies and analysis FFRDCs: Provided further, That this subsection shall not apply to staff years funded in the National Intelligence Program (NIP) and the Military Intelligence Program (MIP).

(e) The Secretary of Defense shall, with the submission of the department's fiscal year 2011 budget request, submit a report presenting the specific amounts of staff years of technical effort to be allocated for each defense FFRDC during that fiscal year and the associated budget estimates.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the total amount appropriated in this Act for FFRDCs is hereby reduced by $125,200,000.

SEC. 8026. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act shall be used to procure carbon, alloy or armor steel plate for use in any Government-owned facility or property under the control of the Department of Defense which were not melted and rolled in the United States or Canada: Provided, That these procurement restrictions shall apply to any and all Federal Supply Class 9515, American Society of Testing and Materials (ASTM) or American Iron and Steel Institute (AISI) specifications of carbon, alloy or armor steel plate: Provided further, That the Secretary of the military department responsible for the procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes: Provided further, That these restrictions shall not apply to contracts which are in being as of the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 8027. For the purposes of this Act, the term "congressional defense committees" means the Armed Services Committee of the House of Representatives, the Armed Services Committee of the Senate, the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 8028. During the current fiscal year, the Department of Defense may acquire the modification, depot maintenance and repair of aircraft, vehicles and vessels as well as the production of components and other Defense-related articles, through competition between Department of Defense depot maintenance activities and private firms: Provided, That the Senior Acquisition Executive of the military department or Defense Agency concerned, with power of delegation, shall certify that successful bids include comparable estimates of all direct and indirect costs for both public and private bids: Provided further, That Office of Management and Budget Circular A-76 shall not apply to competitions conducted under this section.

SEC. 8029. (a)(1) If the Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the United States Trade Representative, determines that a foreign country which is party to an agreement described in paragraph (2) has violated the terms of the agreement by discriminating against certain types of products produced in the United States that are covered by the agreement, the Secretary of Defense shall rescind the Secretary's blanket waiver of the Buy American Act with respect to such types of products produced in that foreign country.

(2) An agreement referred to in paragraph (1) is any reciprocal defense procurement memorandum of understanding, between the United States and a foreign country pursuant to which the Secretary of Defense has prospectively waived the Buy American Act for certain products in that country.

(b) The Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Congress a report on the amount of Department of Defense purchases from foreign entities in fiscal year 2010. Such report shall separately indicate the dollar value of items for which the Buy American Act was waived pursuant to any agreement described in subsection (a)(2), the Trade Agreement Act of 1979 (19 U.S.C. 2501 et seq.), or any international agreement to which the United States is a party.

(c) For purposes of this section, the term "Buy American Act" means title III of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes", approved March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a et seq.).

SEC. 8030. During the current fiscal year, amounts contained in the Department of Defense Overseas Military Facility Investment Recovery Account established by section 2921(c)(1) of the National Defense Authorization Act of 1991 (Public Law 101-510; 10 U.S.C. 2687 note) shall be available until expended for the payments specified by section 2921(c)(2) of that Act.

SEC. 8031. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Air Force may convey at no cost to the Air Force, without consideration, to Indian tribes located in the States of Nevada, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota relocatable military housing units located at Grand Forks Air Force Base, Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mountain Home Air Force Base, and Minot Air Force Base that are excess to the needs of the Air Force.

(b) The Secretary of the Air Force shall convey, at no cost to the Air Force, military housing units under subsection (a) in accordance with the request for such units that are submitted to the Secretary by the Operation Walking Shield Program on behalf of Indian tribes located in the States of Nevada, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota.

(c) The Operation Walking Shield Program shall resolve any conflicts among requests of Indian tribes for housing units under subsection (a) before submitting requests to the Secretary of the Air Force under subsection (b).

(d) In this section, the term "Indian tribe" means any recognized Indian tribe included on the current list published by the Secretary of the Interior under section 104 of the Federally Recognized Indian Tribe Act of 1994 (Public Law 103-454; 108 Stat. 4792; 25 U.S.C. 479a-1).

SEC. 8032. During the current fiscal year, appropriations which are available to the Department of Defense for operation and maintenance may be used to purchase items having an investment item unit cost of not more than $250,000.

SEC. 8033. (a) During the current fiscal year, none of the appropriations or funds available to the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds shall be used for the purchase of an investment item for the purpose of acquiring a new inventory item for sale or anticipated sale during the current fiscal year or a subsequent fiscal year to customers of the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds if such an item would not have been chargeable to the Department of Defense Business Operations Fund during fiscal year 1994 and if the purchase of such an investment item would be chargeable during the current fiscal year to appropriations made to the Department of Defense for procurement.

(b) The fiscal year 2011 budget request for the Department of Defense as well as all justification material and other documentation supporting the fiscal year 2011 Department of Defense budget shall be prepared and submitted to the Congress on the basis that any equipment which was classified as an end item and funded in a procurement appropriation contained in this Act shall be budgeted for in a proposed fiscal year 2011 procurement appropriation and not in the supply management business area or any other area or category of the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds.

SEC. 8034. None of the funds appropriated by this Act for programs of the Central Intelligence Agency shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, except for funds appropriated for the Reserve for Contingencies, which shall remain available until September 30, 2011: Provided, That funds appropriated, transferred, or otherwise credited to the Central Intelligence Agency Central Services Working Capital Fund during this or any prior or subsequent fiscal year shall remain available until expended: Provided further, That any funds appropriated or transferred to the Central Intelligence Agency for advanced research and development acquisition, for agent operations, and for covert action programs authorized by the President under section 503 of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, shall remain available until September 30, 2011.

SEC. 8035. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds made available in this Act for the Defense Intelligence Agency may be used for the design, development, and deployment of General Defense Intelligence Program intelligence communications and intelligence information systems for the Services, the Unified and Specified Commands, and the component commands.

SEC. 8036. Of the funds appropriated to the Department of Defense under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", not less than $12,000,000 shall be made available only for the mitigation of environmental impacts, including training and technical assistance to tribes, related administrative support, the gathering of information, documenting of environmental damage, and developing a system for prioritization of mitigation and cost to complete estimates for mitigation, on Indian lands resulting from Department of Defense activities.

SEC. 8037. (a) None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be expended by an entity of the Department of Defense unless the entity, in expending the funds, complies with the Buy American Act. For purposes of this subsection, the term "Buy American Act" means title III of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes", approved March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a et seq.).

(b) If the Secretary of Defense determines that a person has been convicted of intentionally affixing a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in America, the Secretary shall determine, in accordance with section 2410f of title 10, United States Code, whether the person should be debarred from contracting with the Department of Defense.

(c) In the case of any equipment or products purchased with appropriations provided under this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that any entity of the Department of Defense, in expending the appropriation, purchase only American-made equipment and products, provided that American-made equipment and products are cost-competitive, quality-competitive, and available in a timely fashion.

SEC. 8038. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for a contract for studies, analysis, or consulting services entered into without competition on the basis of an unsolicited proposal unless the head of the activity responsible for the procurement determines—

(1) as a result of thorough technical evaluation, only one source is found fully qualified to perform the proposed work;

(2) the purpose of the contract is to explore an unsolicited proposal which offers significant scientific or technological promise, represents the product of original thinking, and was submitted in confidence by one source; or

(3) the purpose of the contract is to take advantage of unique and significant industrial accomplishment by a specific concern, or to insure that a new product or idea of a specific concern is given financial support: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to contracts in an amount of less than $25,000, contracts related to improvements of equipment that is in development or production, or contracts as to which a civilian official of the Department of Defense, who has been confirmed by the Senate, determines that the award of such contract is in the interest of the national defense.

SEC. 8039. (a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c), none of the funds made available by this Act may be used—

(1) to establish a field operating agency; or
(2) to pay the basic pay of a member of the Armed Forces or civilian employee of the department who is transferred or reassigned from a headquarters activity if the member or employee's place of duty remains at the location of that headquarters.

(b) The Secretary of Defense or Secretary of a military department may waive the limitations in subsection (a), on a case-by-case basis, if the Secretary determines, and certifies to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and Senate that the granting of the waiver will reduce the personnel requirements or the financial requirements of the department.

(c) This section does not apply to—

(1) field operating agencies funded within the National Intelligence Program; or

(2) an Army field operating agency established to eliminate, mitigate, or counter the effects of improvised explosive devices, and, as determined by the Secretary of the Army, other similar threats.

SEC. 8040. The Secretary of Defense, notwithstanding any other provision of law, acting through the Office of Economic Adjustment of the Department of Defense, may use funds made available in this Act under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide" to make grants and supplement other Federal funds in accordance with the guidance provided in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives accompanying this Act.

(RESCISSIONS)

SEC. 8041. Of the funds appropriated in Department of Defense Appropriations Acts, the following funds are hereby rescinded from the following accounts and programs in the specified amounts:

"Other Procurement, Army, 2009/2011", $131,900,000;

"Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 2009/2013", $177,767,000;

"Other Procurement, Navy, 2009/2011", $18,844,000;

"Aircraft Procurement, Air Force, 2009/2011", $687,071,000;

"Missile Procurement, Air Force, 2009/2011", $60,000,000;

"Other Procurement, Air Force, 2009/2011", $36,400,000;

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy, 2009/2010", $20,000,000;

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force, 2009/2010", $70,000,000;

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide, 2009/2010", $189,357,000.

SEC. 8042. None of the funds available in this Act may be used to reduce the authorized positions for military (civilian) technicians of the Army National Guard, Air National Guard, Army Reserve and Air Force Reserve for the purpose of applying any administratively imposed civilian personnel ceiling, freeze, or reduction on military (civilian) technicians, unless such reductions are a direct result of a reduction in military force structure.

SEC. 8043. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be obligated or expended for assistance to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea unless specifically appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 8044. Funds appropriated in this Act for operation and maintenance of the Military Departments, Combatant Commands and Defense Agencies shall be available for reimbursement of pay, allowances and other expenses which would otherwise be incurred against appropriations for the National Guard and Reserve when members of the National Guard and Reserve provide intelligence or counterintelligence support to Combatant Commands, Defense Agencies and Joint Intelligence Activities, including the activities and programs included within the National Intelligence Program and the Military Intelligence Program: Provided, That nothing in this section authorizes deviation from established Reserve and National Guard personnel and training procedures.

SEC. 8045. During the current fiscal year, none of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to reduce the civilian medical and medical support personnel assigned to military treatment facilities below the September 30, 2003, level: Provided, That the Service Surgeons General may waive this section by certifying to the congressional defense committees that the beneficiary population is declining in some catchment areas and civilian strength reductions may be consistent with responsible resource stewardship and capitation-based budgeting.

SEC. 8046. (a) None of the funds available to the Department of Defense for any fiscal year for drug interdiction or counter-drug activities may be transferred to any other department or agency of the United States except as specifically provided in an appropriations law.

(b) None of the funds available to the Central Intelligence Agency for any fiscal year for drug interdiction and counter-drug activities may be transferred to any other department or agency of the United States except as specifically provided in an appropriations law.

SEC. 8047. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used for the procurement of ball and roller bearings other than those produced by a domestic source and of domestic origin: Provided, That the Secretary of the military department responsible for such procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate, that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes: Provided further, That this restriction shall not apply to the purchase of "commercial items", as defined by section 4(12) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act, except that the restriction shall apply to ball or roller bearings purchased as end items.

SEC. 8048. None of the funds in this Act may be used to purchase any supercomputer which is not manufactured in the United States, unless the Secretary of Defense certifies to the congressional defense committees that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes that is not available from United States manufacturers.

SEC. 8049. None of the funds made available in this or any other Act may be used to pay the salary of any officer or employee of the Department of Defense who approves or implements the transfer of administrative responsibilities or budgetary resources of any program, project, or activity financed by this Act to the jurisdiction of another Federal agency not financed by this Act without the express authorization of Congress: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to transfers of funds expressly provided for in Defense Appropriations Acts, or provisions of Acts providing supplemental appropriations for the Department of Defense.

SEC. 8050. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year may be obligated or expended to transfer to another nation or an international organization any defense articles or services (other than intelligence services) for use in the activities described in subsection (b) unless the congressional defense committees, the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate are notified 15 days in advance of such transfer.

(b) This section applies to—

(1) any international peacekeeping or peace-enforcement operation under the authority of chapter VI or chapter VII of the United Nations Charter under the authority of a United Nations Security Council resolution; and

(2) any other international peacekeeping, peace-enforcement, or humanitarian assistance operation.

(c) A notice under subsection (a) shall include the following—

(1) A description of the equipment, supplies, or services to be transferred.

(2) A statement of the value of the equipment, supplies, or services to be transferred.

(3) In the case of a proposed transfer of equipment or supplies—

(A) a statement of whether the inventory requirements of all elements of the Armed Forces (including the reserve components) for the type of equipment or supplies to be transferred have been met; and

(B) a statement of whether the items proposed to be transferred will have to be replaced and, if so, how the President proposes to provide funds for such replacement.

SEC. 8051. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense under this Act shall be obligated or expended to pay a contractor under a contract with the Department of Defense for costs of any amount paid by the contractor to an employee when—

(1) such costs are for a bonus or otherwise in excess of the normal salary paid by the contractor to the employee; and

(2) such bonus is part of restructuring costs associated with a business combination.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8052. During the current fiscal year, no more than $30,000,000 of appropriations made in this Act under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide" may be transferred to appropriations available for the pay of military personnel, to be merged with, and to be available for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred, to be used in support of such personnel in connection with support and services for eligible organizations and activities outside the Department of Defense pursuant to section 2012 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 8053. During the current fiscal year, in the case of an appropriation account of the Department of Defense for which the period of availability for obligation has expired or which has closed under the provisions of section 1552 of title 31, United States Code, and which has a negative unliquidated or unexpended balance, an obligation or an adjustment of an obligation may be charged to any current appropriation account for the same purpose as the expired or closed account if—

(1) the obligation would have been properly chargeable (except as to amount) to the expired or closed account before the end of the period of availability or closing of that account;

(2) the obligation is not otherwise properly chargeable to any current appropriation account of the Department of Defense; and

(3) in the case of an expired account, the obligation is not chargeable to a current appropriation of the Department of Defense under the provisions of section 1405(b)(8) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, as amended (31 U.S.C. 1551 note): Provided, That in the case of an expired account, if subsequent review or investigation discloses that there was not in fact a negative unliquidated or unexpended balance in the account, any charge to a current account under the authority of this section shall be reversed and recorded against the expired account: Provided further, That the total amount charged to a current appropriation under this section may not exceed an amount equal to 1 percent of the total appropriation for that account.

SEC. 8054. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau may permit the use of equipment of the National Guard Distance Learning Project by any person or entity on a space-available, reimbursable basis. The Chief of the National Guard Bureau shall establish the amount of reimbursement for such use on a case-by-case basis.

(b) Amounts collected under subsection (a) shall be credited to funds available for the National Guard Distance Learning Project and be available to defray the costs associated with the use of equipment of the project under that subsection. Such funds shall be available for such purposes without fiscal year limitation.

SEC. 8055. Using funds available by this Act or any other Act, the Secretary of the Air Force, pursuant to a determination under section 2690 of title 10, United States Code, may implement cost-effective agreements for required heating facility modernization in the Kaiserslautern Military Community in the Federal Republic of Germany: Provided, That in the City of Kaiserslautern such agreements will include the use of United States anthracite as the base load energy for municipal district heat to the United States Defense installations: Provided further, That at Landstuhl Army Regional Medical Center and Ramstein Air Base, furnished heat may be obtained from private, regional or municipal services, if provisions are included for the consideration of United States coal as an energy source.

SEC. 8056. None of the funds appropriated in title IV of this Act may be used to procure end-items for delivery to military forces for operational training, operational use or inventory requirements: Provided, That this restriction does not apply to end-items used in development, prototyping, and test activities preceding and leading to acceptance for operational use: Provided further, That this restriction does not apply to programs funded within the National Intelligence Program: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that it is in the national security interest to do so.

SEC. 8057. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to approve or license the sale of the F-22A advanced tactical fighter to any foreign government.

SEC. 8058. (a) The Secretary of Defense may, on a case-by-case basis, waive with respect to a foreign country each limitation on the procurement of defense items from foreign sources provided in law if the Secretary determines that the application of the limitation with respect to that country would invalidate cooperative programs entered into between the Department of Defense and the foreign country, or would invalidate reciprocal trade agreements for the procurement of defense items entered into under section 2531 of title 10, United States Code, and the country does not discriminate against the same or similar defense items produced in the United States for that country.

(b) Subsection (a) applies with respect to—

(1) contracts and subcontracts entered into on or after the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(2) options for the procurement of items that are exercised after such date under contracts that are entered into before such date if the option prices are adjusted for any reason other than the application of a waiver granted under subsection (a).

(c) Subsection (a) does not apply to a limitation regarding construction of public vessels, ball and roller bearings, food, and clothing or textile materials as defined by section 11 (chapters 50-65) of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule and products classified under headings 4010, 4202, 4203, 6401 through 6406, 6505, 7019, 7218 through 7229, 7304.41 through 7304.49, 7306.40, 7502 through 7508, 8105, 8108, 8109, 8211, 8215, and 9404.

SEC. 8059. (a) None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to support any training program involving a unit of the security forces of a foreign country if the Secretary of Defense has received credible information from the Department of State that the unit has committed a gross violation of human rights, unless all necessary corrective steps have been taken.

(b) The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall ensure that prior to a decision to conduct any training program referred to in subsection (a), full consideration is given to all credible information available to the Department of State relating to human rights violations by foreign security forces.

(c) The Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Secretary of State, may waive the prohibition in subsection (a) if he determines that such waiver is required by extraordinary circumstances.

(d) Not more than 15 days after the exercise of any waiver under subsection (c), the Secretary of Defense shall submit a report to the congressional defense committees describing the extraordinary circumstances, the purpose and duration of the training program, the United States forces and the foreign security forces involved in the training program, and the information relating to human rights violations that necessitates the waiver.

SEC. 8060. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act to the Department of the Navy shall be used to develop, lease or procure the T-AKE class of ships unless the main propulsion diesel engines and propulsors are manufactured in the United States by a domestically operated entity: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes or there exists a significant cost or quality difference.

SEC. 8061. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this or other Department of Defense Appropriations Acts may be obligated or expended for the purpose of performing repairs or maintenance to military family housing units of the Department of Defense, including areas in such military family housing units that may be used for the purpose of conducting official Department of Defense business.

SEC. 8062. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds appropriated in this Act under the heading "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide" for any new start advanced concept technology demonstration project or joint capability demonstration project may only be obligated 30 days after a report, including a description of the project, the planned acquisition and transition strategy and its estimated annual and total cost, has been provided in writing to the congressional defense committees: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying to the congressional defense committees that it is in the national interest to do so.

SEC. 8063. The Secretary of Defense shall provide a classified quarterly report beginning 30 days after enactment of this Act, to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, Subcommittees on Defense on certain matters as directed in the classified annex accompanying this Act.

SEC. 8064. During the current fiscal year, none of the funds available to the Department of Defense may be used to provide support to another department or agency of the United States if such department or agency is more than 90 days in arrears in making payment to the Department of Defense for goods or services previously provided to such department or agency on a reimbursable basis: Provided, That this restriction shall not apply if the department is authorized by law to provide support to such department or agency on a nonreimbursable basis, and is providing the requested support pursuant to such authority: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that it is in the national security interest to do so.

SEC. 8065. Notwithstanding section 12310(b) of title 10, United States Code, a Reserve who is a member of the National Guard serving on full-time National Guard duty under section 502(f) of title 32, United States Code, may perform duties in support of the ground-based elements of the National Ballistic Missile Defense System.

SEC. 8066. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used to transfer to any non-governmental entity ammunition held by the Department of Defense that has a center-fire cartridge and a United States military nomenclature designation of "armor penetrator", "armor piercing (AP)", "armor piercing incendiary (API)", or "armor-piercing incendiary-tracer (API-T)", except to an entity performing demilitarization services for the Department of Defense under a contract that requires the entity to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Department of Defense that armor piercing projectiles are either: (1) rendered incapable of reuse by the demilitarization process; or (2) used to manufacture ammunition pursuant to a contract with the Department of Defense or the manufacture of ammunition for export pursuant to a License for Permanent Export of Unclassified Military Articles issued by the Department of State.

SEC. 8067. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, or his designee, may waive payment of all or part of the consideration that otherwise would be required under section 2667 of title 10, United States Code, in the case of a lease of personal property for a period not in excess of 1 year to any organization specified in section 508(d) of title 32, United States Code, or any other youth, social, or fraternal nonprofit organization as may be approved by the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, or his designee, on a case-by-case basis.

SEC. 8068. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the support of any nonappropriated funds activity of the Department of Defense that procures malt beverages and wine with nonappropriated funds for resale (including such alcoholic beverages sold by the drink) on a military installation located in the United States unless such malt beverages and wine are procured within that State, or in the case of the District of Columbia, within the District of Columbia, in which the military installation is located: Provided, That in a case in which the military installation is located in more than one State, purchases may be made in any State in which the installation is located: Provided further, That such local procurement requirements for malt beverages and wine shall apply to all alcoholic beverages only for military installations in States which are not contiguous with another State: Provided further, That alcoholic beverages other than wine and malt beverages, in contiguous States and the District of Columbia shall be procured from the most competitive source, price and other factors considered.

SEC. 8069. Funds available to the Department of Defense for the Global Positioning System during the current fiscal year may be used to fund civil requirements associated with the satellite and ground control segments of such system's modernization program.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8070. Of the amounts appropriated in this Act under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Army", $106,754,000 shall remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to transfer such funds to other activities of the Federal Government: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense is authorized to enter into and carry out contracts for the acquisition of real property, construction, personal services, and operations related to projects carrying out the purposes of this section: Provided further, That contracts entered into under the authority of this section may provide for such indemnification as the Secretary determines to be necessary: Provided further, That projects authorized by this section shall comply with applicable Federal, State, and local law to the maximum extent consistent with the national security, as determined by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 8071. Section 8106 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1997 (titles I through VIII of the matter under subsection 101(b) of Public Law 104-208; 110 Stat. 3009-111; 10 U.S.C. 113 note) shall continue in effect to apply to disbursements that are made by the Department of Defense in fiscal year 2010.

SEC. 8072. In addition to amounts provided elsewhere in this Act, $5,000,000 is hereby appropriated to the Department of Defense, to remain available for obligation until expendent: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, these funds shall be available only for a grant to the Fisher House Foundation, Inc., only for the construction and furnishing of additional Fisher Houses to meet the needs of military family members when confronted with the illness or hospitalization of an eligible military beneficiary.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8083. In addition to the amounts appropriated or otherwise made available elsewhere in this Act, $88,700,000 is hereby appropriated to the Department of Defense: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall make grants in the amounts specified as follows: $20,000,000 to the United Service Organizations; $30,000,000 to the Red Cross; $6,000,000 to the SOAR Virtual School District; $5,000,000 to The Presidio Heritage Center; $5,000,000 to the Paralympics Military Program; $4,800,000 to the Arrest Deterioration of Ford Island Aviation Control Tower, Pearl Harbor, HI; $2,000,000 to the Go For Broke program; $1,000,000 to Our Military Kids; $3,000,000 to the New Jersey Technology Center; $2,000,000 to the Women in Military Service for America Memorial; $500,000 to the Marshall Legacy Institute; $1,000,000 to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund for Demining Activities; $7,400,000 to the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the Senate; and $1,000,000 for the Riverside General Hospital in Houston, Texas, for the treatment of psychological health issues.

SEC. 8084. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act shall be used to reduce or disestablish the operation of the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron of the Air Force Reserve, if such action would reduce the WC-130 Weather Reconnaissance mission below the levels funded in this Act: Provided, That the Air Force shall allow the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron to perform other missions in support of national defense requirements during the non-hurricane season.

SEC. 8085. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for integration of foreign intelligence information unless the information has been lawfully collected and processed during the conduct of authorized foreign intelligence activities: Provided, That information pertaining to United States persons shall only be handled in accordance with protections provided in the Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution as implemented through Executive Order No. 12333.

SEC. 8086. (a) At the time members of reserve components of the Armed Forces are called or ordered to active duty under section 12302(a) of title 10, United States Code, each member shall be notified in writing of the expected period during which the member will be mobilized.

(b) The Secretary of Defense may waive the requirements of subsection (a) in any case in which the Secretary determines that it is necessary to do so to respond to a national security emergency or to meet dire operational requirements of the Armed Forces.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8087. The Secretary of Defense may transfer funds from any available Department of the Navy appropriation to any available Navy ship construction appropriation for the purpose of liquidating necessary changes resulting from inflation, market fluctuations, or rate adjustments for any ship construction program appropriated in law: Provided, That the Secretary may transfer not to exceed $100,000,000 under the authority provided by this section: Provided further, That the Secretary may not transfer any funds until 30 days after the proposed transfer has been reported to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate, unless a response from the Committees is received sooner: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided by this section is in addition to any other transfer authority contained elsewhere in this Act.

SEC. 8088. For purposes of section 612 of title 41, United States Code, any subdivision of appropriations made under the heading "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy" that is not closed at the time reimbursement is made shall be available to reimburse the Judgment Fund and shall be considered for the same purposes as any subdivision under the heading "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy" appropriations in the current fiscal year or any prior fiscal year.

SEC. 8089. (a) None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to transfer research and development, acquisition, or other program authority relating to current tactical unmanned aerial vehicles (TUAVs) from the Army.

(b) None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to institute an inter-Service common contract for acquisition of MQ-1 or MQ-1C UAVs until 30 days after the Secretary of Defense certifies to the congressional defense committees that a common contract would achieve cost savings, be interoperable with, and not create undue sustainment costs compared to the current fleet.

SEC. 8090. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or regulation, the Secretary of Defense may adjust wage rates for civilian employees hired for certain health care occupations as authorized for the Secretary of Veterans Affairs by section 7455 of title 38, United States Code.

SEC. 8091. Up to $15,000,000 of the funds appropriated under the heading, "Operation and Maintenance, Navy" may be made available for the Asia Pacific Regional Initiative Program for the purpose of enabling the Pacific Command to execute Theater Security Cooperation activities such as humanitarian assistance, and payment of incremental and personnel costs of training and exercising with foreign security forces: Provided, That funds made available for this purpose may be used, notwithstanding any other funding authorities for humanitarian assistance, security assistance or combined exercise expenses: Provided further, That funds may not be obligated to provide assistance to any foreign country that is otherwise prohibited from receiving such type of assistance under any other provision of law.

SEC. 8092. None of the funds appropriated by this Act for programs of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, except for funds appropriated for research and technology, which shall remain available until September 30, 2011.

SEC. 8093. For purposes of section 1553(b) of title 31, United States Code, any subdivision of appropriations made in this Act under the heading "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy" shall be considered to be for the same purpose as any subdivision under the heading "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy" appropriations in any prior fiscal year, and the 1 percent limitation shall apply to the total amount of the appropriation.

SEC. 8094. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, that not more than 35 percent of funds provided in this Act for environmental remediation may be obligated under indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity contracts with a total contract value of $130,000,000 or higher.

SEC. 8095. The Secretary of Defense shall create a major force program category for space for the Future Years Defense Program of the Department of Defense. The Secretary of Defense shall designate an official in the Office of the Secretary of Defense to provide overall supervision of the preparation and justification of program recommendations and budget proposals to be included in such major force program category.

SEC. 8096. The Director of National Intelligence shall include the budget exhibits identified in paragraphs (1) and (2) as described in the Department of Defense Financial Management Regulation with the congressional budget justification books.

(1) For procurement programs requesting more than $20,000,000 in any fiscal year, the P-1, Procurement Program; P-5, Cost Analysis; P-5a, Procurement History and Planning; P-21, Production Schedule; and P-40 Budget Item Justification.

(2) For research, development, test and evaluation projects requesting more than $10,000,000 in any fiscal year, the R-1, RDT&E Program; R-2, RDT&E Budget Item Justification; R-3, RDT&E Project Cost Analysis; and R-4, RDT&E Program Schedule Profile.

SEC. 8097. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds made available in this Act may be used to pay negotiated indirect cost rates on a contract, grant, or cooperative agreement (or similar arrangement) entered into by the Department of Defense and an entity in excess of 35 percent of the total cost of the contract, grant, or agreement (or similar arrangement): Provided, That this limitation shall apply only to funds made available in this Act for basic research.

SEC. 8098. The Secretary of Defense shall maintain on the homepage of the Internet website of the Department of Defense a direct link to the Internet website of the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 8099. (a) Not later than 60 days after enactment of this Act, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence shall submit a report to the congressional intelligence committees to establish the baseline for application of reprogramming and transfer authorities for fiscal year 2010: Provided, That the report shall include—

(1) a table for each appropriation with a separate column to display the President's budget request, adjustments made by Congress, adjustments due to enacted rescissions, if appropriate, and the fiscal year enacted level;

(2) a delineation in the table for each appropriation by Expenditure Center and project; and

(3) an identification of items of special congressional interest.

(b) None of the funds provided for the National Intelligence Program in this Act shall be available for reprogramming or transfer until the report identified in subsection (a) is submitted to the congressional intelligence committees, unless the Director of National Intelligence certifies in writing to the congressional intelligence committees that such reprogramming or transfer is necessary as an emergency requirement.

SEC. 8100. The Director of National Intelligence shall submit to Congress each year, at or about the time that the President's budget is submitted to Congress that year under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, a future-years intelligence program (including associated annexes) reflecting the estimated expenditures and proposed appropriations included in that budget. Any such future-years intelligence program shall cover the fiscal year with respect to which the budget is submitted and at least the four succeeding fiscal years.

SEC. 8101. For the purposes of this Act, the term "congressional intelligence committees" means the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives, the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate, the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, and the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

SEC. 8102. The Department of Defense shall continue to report incremental contingency operations costs for Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom on a monthly basis in the Cost of War Execution Report as prescribed in the Department of Defense Financial Management Regulation Department of Defense Instruction 7000.14, Volume 12, Chapter 23 "Contingency Operations", Annex 1, dated September 2005.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8103. (a) CONTINUATION OF STOP-LOSS SPECIAL PAY.—In addition to the amounts appropriated or otherwise made available elsewhere in this Act, $8,300,000 is hereby appropriated to the Secretary of Defense to carry out this section. Such amount shall be made available to the Secretaries of the military departments only to provide special pay during fiscal year 2010 to members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps, including members of their reserve components, who, at any time during fiscal year 2010, serve on active duty while the members' enlistment or period of obligated service is extended, or whose eligibility for retirement is suspended, pursuant to section 123 or 12305 of title 10, United States Code, or any other provision of law (commonly referred to as a "stop-loss authority") authorizing the President to extend an enlistment or period of obligated service, or suspend an eligibility for retirement, of a member of the uniformed services in time of war or of national emergency declared by Congress or the President.

(b) SPECIAL PAY AMOUNT.—The amount of the special pay paid under subsection (a) to or on behalf of an eligible member shall be $500 per month for each month or portion of a month during fiscal year 2010 that the member is retained on active duty as a result of application of the stop-loss authority.

(c) TREATMENT OF DECEASED MEMBERS.—If an eligible member described in subsection (a) dies before the payment required by this section is made, the Secretary concerned shall make the payment in accordance with section 2771 of title 10, United States Code.

(d) CLARIFICATION OF RETROACTIVE STOP-LOSS SPECIAL PAY AUTHORITY.—Section 310 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 111-32) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(i) EFFECT OF SUBSEQUENT REENLISTMENT OF VOLUNTARY EXTENSION OF SERVICE.—Members of the Armed Forces, retired members, and former members otherwise described in subsection (a) are not eligible for a payment under this section if the members—

"(1) voluntarily reenlisted or extended their service after their enlistment or period of obligated service was extended, or after their eligibility for retirement was suspended, pursuant to a stop-loss authority; and

"(2) received a bonus for such reenlistment or extension of service."

SEC. 8104. Appropriations available to the Department of Defense for the purchase of heavy and light armored vehicles for force protection purposes may be used for such purchase, up to a limit of $262,000 per vehicle, notwithstanding other limitations applicable to the purchase of passenger carrying vehicles.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8105. During the current fiscal year, not to exceed $10,000,000 from each of the appropriations made in title II of this Act for "Operation and Maintenance, Army," "Operation and Maintenance, Navy," and "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force" may be transferred by the military department concerned to its central fund established for Fisher Houses and Suites pursuant to section 2493(d) of title 10, United States Code.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8106. Of the funds appropriated in the Intelligence Community Management Account for the Program Manager for the Information Sharing Environment, $24,000,000 is available for transfer by the Director of National Intelligence to other departments and agencies for purposes of Government-wide information sharing activities: Provided, That the funds transferred under this provision are to be merged with, and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That the Office of Management and Budget must approve any transfers made under this provision.

SEC. 8107. (a) None of the funds provided for the National Intelligence Program in this or any prior appropriations Act shall be available for obligation or expenditure through a reprogramming of funds in accordance with section 102A(d) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 403-1(d)) unless the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate are notified 15 days in advance of the reprogramming that—

(1) creates or initiates a new program, project or activity;

(2) eliminates a program, project or activity;

(3) augments funds for existing projects in excess of 10 percent or more; or,

(4) reduces by 10 percent or more funding or personnel for a project;

(b) None of the funds provided for the National intelligence Program in this or any prior appropriations Act shall be available for obligation or expenditure through a reprogramming of funds in accordance with section 102A(d) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 403-1(d)) made after August 1, 2010, except in extraordinary circumstances and after the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate are notified 30 days in advance of the reprogramming.

SEC. 8108. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act, or that remain available for obligation for the Department of Defense from the Consolidated Security, Disaster Assistance, and Continuing Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 110-329), the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5), and the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 111-32), may be used to award to a contractor or convert to performance by a contractor any functions performed by Federal employees pursuant to a study conducted under Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-76, as of the date of enactment of this Act.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8109. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense may transfer to the appropriation "Foreign Currency Fluctuations, Defense" unobligated amounts of funds appropriated for operation and maintenance for fiscal year 2007, 2008, or 2009 and unobligated amounts of funds appropriated for military personnel for any of such fiscal years if such unobligated amounts are not necessary for the liquidation of obligations or for the making of authorized adjustments to such appropriations for obligations incurred during the period of availability of such appropriations: Provided, That the amount in the appropriation "Foreign Currency Fluctuations, Defense" may not exceed the amount specified in subsection 2779(d) of title 10, United States Code, as a result of the transfer: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided by this section is in addition to any other transfer authority contained in this Act.

SEC. 8110. The amounts appropriated in Title II of this Act are hereby reduced by $289,570,000 to reflect excess cash balances in Department of Defense Working Capital Funds.

SEC. 8111. (a)(1) No National Intelligence Program funds appropriated in this Act may be used for a mission critical or mission essential business management information technology system that is not registered with the Director of National Intelligence. A system shall be considered to be registered with that officer upon the furnishing notice of the system, together with such information concerning the system as the Director of the Business Transformation Office may prescribe.

(2) During the current fiscal year no funds may be obligated or expended for a financial management automated information system, a mixed information system supporting financial and non-financial systems, or a business system improvement of more than $1,000,000, within the Intelligence Community until the Director of National Intelligence certifies to the congressional intelligence committees that the system is being developed and managed in accordance with the Business Transformation requirements.

(b) The Director of the Business Transformation Office shall provide the congressional intelligence committees notification of approvals under paragraph (1) no later than 30 days after certification. Each such notification shall include a statement confirming that the following steps have been taken with respect to the system:

(1) Business process reengineering.

(2) An analysis of alternatives and an economic analysis that includes a calculation of the return on investment.

(3) Assurance the system is compatible with the enterprise-wide business architecture.

(4) Performance measures.

(5) An information assurance strategy consistent with the Chief Information Officer of the Intelligence Community.

(c) This section shall not apply to any programmatic or analytic systems or programmatic or analytic system improvements.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8112. (a) In addition to funds made available elsewhere in this Act, there is hereby appropriated $439,615,000 to remain available until transferred: Provided, That these funds are appropriated to the "Tanker Replacement Transfer Fund" (referred to as "the Fund" elsewhere in this section): Provided further, That the Secretary of the Air Force may transfer amounts in the Fund to "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", "Aircraft Procurement, Air Force", and "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force", only for the purposes of proceeding with a tanker acquisition program: Provided further, That funds transferred shall be merged with and be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations or fund to which transferred: Provided further, That this transfer authority is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Air Force shall, not fewer than 15 days prior to making transfers using funds provided in this section, notify the congressional defense committees in writing of the details of any such transfer: Provided further, That the Secretary shall submit a report no later than 30 days after the end of each fiscal quarter to the congressional defense committees summarizing the details of the transfer of funds from this appropriation.

(b) The Secretary of Defense is directed to award one or more contracts for the aerial refueling tanker replacement program according to either of the following alternatives:

(1) A contract to a single offeror based on a best value or lowest cost source selection derived from full and open competition, subject to the condition that non-development aircraft produced under such contract must be finally assembled in the United States. Such competition and source selection shall include evaluation of the life-cycle costs of each aircraft over a 40-year period (including costs of fuel consumption, military construction and other factors normally associated with operation and support of tanker aircraft) and shall include an independent 40-year life-cycle cost estimate conducted by a federally funded research and development center; or

(2) Contracts awarded to each of the two offerors that responded to Request for Proposal No. FA8625-07-R-6470 (as released on January 29, 2007) subject to the condition that all non-development aircraft produced under any such contracts must be finally assembled in the United States.

(c) The Secretary of Defense shall certify in writing to the congressional defense committees by October 1, 2009, which of the procurement alternatives in subsection (b) represents the most cost-effective and expeditious tanker replacement strategy that best responds to United States national security requirements. The certification shall be accompanied by a report to the congressional defense committees detailing the rationale for such certification.

SEC. 8113. (a) Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary concerned shall provide any member or former member of the Armed Forces with the benefits specified in subsection (b) if the member or former member would, on any day during the period beginning on January 19, 2007, and ending on the date of the implementation of the Post-Deployment/Mobilization Respite Absence (PDMRA) program by the Secretary concerned, have qualified for a day of administrative absence under the Post-Deployment/Mobilization Respite Absence program had the program been in effect during such period.

(b) BENEFITS.—The benefits authorized under this section are the following:

(1) In the case of an individual who is a former member of the Armed Forces at the time of the provision of benefits under this section, payment of an amount not to exceed $200 for each day the individual would have qualified for a day of administrative absence as described in subsection (a) during the period specified in that subsection.

(2) In the case of an individual who is a member of the Armed Forces at the time of the provision of benefits under this section, either one day of administrative absence or payment of an amount not to exceed $200, as selected by the Secretary concerned, for each day the individual would have qualified for a day of administrative absence as described in subsection (a) during the period specified in that subsection.

(c) EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN FORMER MEMBERS.—A former member of the Armed Forces is not eligible under this section for the benefits specified in subsection (b)(1) if the former member was discharged or released from the Armed Forces under other than honorable conditions.

(d) MAXIMUM NUMBER OF DAYS OF BENEFITS.—Not more than 40 days of benefits may be provided to a member or former member of the Armed Forces under this section.

(e) FORM OF PAYMENT.—The paid benefits authorized under this section may be paid in a lump sum or installments, at the election of the Secretary concerned.

(f) CONSTRUCTION WITH OTHER PAY AND LEAVE.—The benefits provided a member or former member of the Armed Forces under this section are in addition to any other pay, absence, or leave provided by law.

(g) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) The term "Post-Deployment/Mobilization Respite Absence program" means the program of a military department to provide days of administrative absence not chargeable against available leave to certain deployed or mobilized members of the Armed Forces in order to assist such members in reintegrating into civilian life after deployment or mobilization.

(2) The term "Secretary concerned" has the meaning given that term in section 101(5) of title 37, United States Code.

(h) TERMINATION.—(1) The authority to provide benefits under this section shall expire on the date that is 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) Expiration under this subsection of the authority to provide benefits under this section shall not affect the utilization of any day of administrative absence provided a member of the Armed Forces under subsection (b)(2), or the payment of any payment authorized a member or former member of the Armed Forces under subsection (b), before the expiration of the authority in this section.

SEC. 8114. (a) RESETTLEMENT SUPPORT AND OTHER PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR CERTAIN IRAQI REFUGEES.—Section 1244(g) of the Refugee Crisis in Iraq Act of 2007 (subtitle C of title XII of division A of Public Law 110-181; 122 Stat. 398) is amended by striking "for a period not to exceed eight months" and inserting "to the same extent, and for the same periods of time, as such refugees".

(b) RESETTLEMENT SUPPORT AND OTHER PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR CERTAIN AFGHAN AL-

LIES.—Section 602(b)(8) of the Afghan Allies Protection Act of 2009 (title VI of division F of Public Law 111-8; 123 Stat. 809) is amended by striking "for a period not to exceed 8 months" and inserting "to the same extent, and for the same periods of time, as such refugees".

SEC. 8115. (a) With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled "Explanation of Project Level Adjustments" in the Report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of Rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded to a for profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition.

(b) For profit entities previously awarded a contract with the Department of Defense which remains in effect during fiscal year 2010, to provide such programs projects or activities as described in subsection (a), shall be considered to have satisfied the conditions of full and open competition, provided that any such contract was awarded under full and open competition.

SEC. 8116. The amounts appropriated in title II of this Act are hereby reduced from the specified accounts in the specified amounts:

"Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $192,000,000;

"Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps", $28,000,000;

"Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $188,000,000;

"Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", $142,000,000.

SEC. 8117. In carrying out Congressionally Directed Medical Research programs related to breast cancer research, the Secretary of Defense shall ensure the following:

(a) The selection process for choosing an individual to serve as a member of an integration panel shall be fair and representative of the interested community so that the integration panel consists of a diverse representation of the breast cancer survivor and advocacy community; and

(b) An individual serving as a member of an integration panel may not be an employee, serve on the board of, or have a financial relationship with the same organization (including any organization related to such organization through common board membership, financial support, or other similar relationship) as that of another individual serving as a member of such panel.

SEC. 8118. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act, or that remain available for obligation for the Department of Defense from the Consolidated Security, Disaster Assistance, and Continuing Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 110-329), the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5), and the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2009 (Public Law 111-32), may be used to eliminate any personnel positions from the 194th Regional Support Wing of the United States Air National Guard as of the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 8119. (a) None of the funds made available in this or any prior Act may be used to release an individual who is detained, as of April 30, 2009, at Naval Station, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, into the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, the District of Columbia, or any of the United States territories of Guam, American Samoa (AS), the United States Virgin Islands (USVI), the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI).

(b) None of the funds made available in this or any prior Act may be used to transfer an individual who is detained, as of April 30, 2009, at the Naval Station, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, into the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, the District of Columbia, or any of the United States territories of Guam, American Samoa (AS), the United States Virgin Islands (USVI), the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI), for the purposes of detaining or prosecuting such individual until 2 months after the plan detailed in subsection (c) is received.

(c) The President shall submit to the Congress, in writing, a comprehensive plan regarding the proposed disposition of each individual who is detained, as of April 30, 2009, at Naval Station, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, who is not covered under subsection (d). Such plan shall include, at a minimum, each of the following for each such individual:

(1) The findings of an analysis regarding any risk to the national security of the United States that is posed by the transfer of the individual.

(2) The costs associated with not transferring the individual in question.

(3) The legal rationale and associated court demands for transfer.

(4) A certification by the President that any risk described in paragraph (1) has been mitigated, together with a full description of the plan for such mitigation.

(5) A certification by the President that the President has submitted to the Governor and legislature of the State or territory (or, in the case of the District of Columbia, to the Mayor of the District of Columbia) to which the President intends to transfer the individual a certification in writing at least 30 days prior to such transfer (together with supporting documentation and justification) that the individual does not pose a security risk to the United States.

(d) None of the funds made available in this or any prior Act may be used to transfer or release an individual detained at Naval Station, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, as of April 30, 2009, to the country of such individual's nationality or last habitual residence or to the freely associated States of the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM), the Republic of the Marshall Islands (RMI), or the Republic of Palau, or to any other country other than the United States, unless the President submits to the Congress, in writing, at least 30 days prior to such transfer or release, the following information:

(1) The name of any individual to be transferred or released and the country to which such individual is to be transferred or released.

(2) An assessment of any risk to the national security of the United States or its citizens, including members of the Armed Services or the United States, that is posed by such transfer or release and the actions taken to mitigate such risk.

(3) The terms of any agreement with another country for acceptance of such individual, including the amount of any financial assistance related to such agreement.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS TITLE

SEC. 9001. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds made available in this title are in addition to amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for the Department of Defense for fiscal year 2010.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 9002. Upon the determination of the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, the Secretary may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer up to $3,000,000,000 between the appropriations or funds made available to the Department of Defense in this title, with the exception of the "Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund": Provided, That the Secretary shall notify the Congress promptly of each transfer made pursuant to the authority in this section: Provided further, That the authority provided in this section is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense and is subject to the same terms and conditions as the authority provided in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010: Provided further, That the amount in this section is designated as being for overseas deployments and other activities pursuant to section 423(a)(1) of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2010.

SEC. 9003. Supervision and administration costs associated with a construction project funded with appropriations available for operation and maintenance or the "Afghanistan Security Forces Fund" provided in this Act and executed in direct support of overseas contingency operations in Afghanistan or Iraq, may be obligated at the time a construction contract is awarded: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, supervision and administration costs include all in-house Government costs.

SEC. 9004. From funds made available in this title, the Secretary of Defense may purchase motor vehicles for use by military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense in Iraq and Afghanistan, up to a limit of $75,000 per vehicle, notwithstanding other limitations applicable to passenger carrying motor vehicles.

SEC. 9005. Not to exceed $1,300,000,000 of the amount appropriated in this title under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Army" may be used, notwithstanding any other provision of law, to fund the Commander's Emergency Response Program, for the purpose of enabling military commanders in Iraq and Afghanistan to respond to urgent humanitarian relief and reconstruction requirements within their areas of responsibility: Provided, That not later than 15 days after the end of each fiscal year quarter, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report regarding the source of funds and the allocation and use of funds during that quarter that were made available pursuant to the authority provided in this section or under any other provision of law for the purposes described herein: Provided further, That, of the funds provided, $500,000,000 shall not be available until 5 days after the Secretary of Defense has completed a thorough review of the Commander's Emergency Response Program and provided a report on his findings to the congressional defense committees.

SEC. 9006. Funds available to the Department of Defense for operation and maintenance may be used, notwithstanding any other provision of law, to provide supplies, services, transportation, including airlift and sealift, and other logistical support to coalition forces supporting military and stability operations in Iraq and Afghanistan: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall provide quarterly reports to the congressional defense committees regarding support provided under this section.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 9007. During fiscal year 2010 and from funds in the "Defense Cooperation Account", as established by 10 U.S.C. 2608, the Secretary of Defense may transfer not to exceed $6,500,000 to such appropriations or funds of the Department of Defense as the Secretary shall determine for use consistent with the purposes for which such funds were contributed and accepted: Provided, That such amounts shall be available for the same time period as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided further, That the Secretary shall report to the Congress all transfers made pursuant to this authority: Provided further, That the amount in this section is designated as being for overseas deployments and other activities pursuant to section 423(a)(1) of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2010.

SEC. 9008. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this or any other Act shall be obligated or expended by the United States Government for a purpose as follows:

(1) To establish any military installation or base for the purpose of providing for the permanent stationing of United States Armed Forces in Iraq.

(2) To exercise United States control over any oil resource of Iraq.

(3) To establish any military installation or base for the purpose of providing for the permanent stationing of United States Armed Forces in Afghanistan.

SEC. 9009. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used in contravention of the following laws enacted or regulations promulgated to implement the United Nations Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (done at New York on December 10, 1984):

(1) Section 2340A of title 18, United States Code.

(2) Section 2242 of the Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998 (division G of Public Law 105-277; 112 Stat. 2681-822; 8 U.S.C. 1231 note) and regulations prescribed thereto, including regulations under part 208 of title 8, Code of Federal Regulations, and part 95 of title 22, Code of Federal Regulations.

(3) Sections 1002 and 1003 of the Department of Defense, Emergency Supplemental Appropriations to Address Hurricanes in the Gulf of Mexico, and Pandemic Influenza Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-148).

SEC. 9010. (a) REPORT ON IRAQ TROOP DRAW-DOWN STATUS, GOALS, AND TIMETABLE.—In recognition and support of the policy of President Barack Obama to withdraw all United States combat brigades from Iraq by August 31, 2010, and all United States military forces from Iraq on December 31, 2011, Congress directs the Secretary of Defense (in consultation with other members of the National Security Council) to prepare a report that identifies troop drawdown status and goals and includes—

(1) a detailed, month-by-month description of the transition of United States military forces and equipment out of Iraq; and

(2) a detailed, month-by-month description of the transition of United States contractors out of Iraq.

(b) ELEMENTS OF REPORT.—At a minimum, the Secretary of Defense shall address the following:

(1) How the Government of Iraq is assuming the responsibility for reconciliation initiatives as the mission of the United States Armed Forces transitions.

(2) How the drawdown of military forces complies with the President's planned withdrawal of combat brigades by August 31, 2010, and all United States forces by December 31, 2011.

(3) The roles and responsibilities of remaining contractors in Iraq as the United States mission evolves, including the anticipated number of United States contractors to remain in Iraq after August 31, 2010, and December 31, 2011.

(c) SUBMISSION.—

(1) Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 90 days thereafter through September 30, 2010, the Secretary of Defense shall submit the report required by subsection (a) and a classified annex to the report, as necessary.

(2) The Secretary may submit the report required by subsection (a) separately as provided in paragraph (1) or include the information required by this report when submitting reports required of the Secretary under section 9204 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2008 (Public Law 110-252; 122 Stat. 2410).

The Acting CHAIR. No amendment shall be in order except the amendments printed in House report 111-233. Each amendment in part A of the report may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered read, and shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; not to exceed eight of the amendments printed in part B of the report if offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) or his designee, shall be in order, may be offered only in the order printed in the report, shall be considered as read, and shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; an en bloc amendment, if offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) or his designee, consisting of all the amendments printed in part B of the report, shall be in order, shall be considered read, and shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; not to exceed two of the amendments printed in part C of the report if offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL) or his designee, shall be in order, which may be offered only in the order printed in the report, shall be considered read, and shall be debatable for 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

After disposition of the amendments specified in the first section of House Resolution 685, the Chair and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations or their designees each may offer one pro forma amendment to the bill for the purpose of debate, which shall be controlled by the proponent.

The amendments specified in the first section of House Resolution 685 shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question.

PART A AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. MURTHA

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 1 printed in part A of House Report 111-233.

Mr. MURTHA. I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part A amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. MURTHA:

Page 8, line 11, before the period at the end, insert the following: “: Provided, That $60,199,000 shall be made available for the Joint POW/MIA Accounting Command”.

Page 103, line 3, strike “$10,000,000” and insert “$12,000,000”.

Page 118, after line 15, insert the following new sections:

SEC. 8120. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be used for advance procurement of the F-22 aircraft: Provided, That $368,800,000 of the funds made available in title III under the heading “Aircraft Procurement, Air Force” may be available for the following programs in the following amounts:

(1) $64,000,000 for production line shut down activities for the F-22.

(2) $138,800,000 for spare engines for F-22 and C-17 aircraft.

(3) $79,000,000 for LAIRCM kits for the Air National Guard.

(4) $37,000,000 for advanced targeting pods.

(5) $50,000,000 for advanced radar development.

SEC. 8121. The amount appropriated in title VI under the heading “Defense Health Program” for operation and maintenance is hereby reduced by $26,000,000 and the amount appropriated under such heading for research, development, test, and evaluation is hereby increased by $26,000,000.

SEC. 8122. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be used to award to a contractor, or convert to performance by a contractor, the provision of utilities at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

SEC. 8123. The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available under title II under the heading “Operation and Maintenance, Air Force”, and increasing the amount available under title VI under the heading “Chemical Agents and Munitions Destruction, Defense”, by $50,000,000.

SEC. 8124. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be used by the Secretary of the Army to convert government-owned ammunition production assets to the private sector.

Page 122, line 3, strike “Provided, That” and insert “Provided, That up to $241,503,000 of the amount under this heading shall be transferred to the Coast Guard ‘Operating Expenses’ account: Provided further, That”.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) and a Member opposed each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURTHA. This amendment provides $60,199,000 to be made available for a joint POW/MIA account, $2 million additional funding for the Fisher House, for a total of $12 million, for re-directing $368,800 otherwise available for advanced procurement of additional F-22 aircraft spare parts. Let me explain—well, some money shifting from the health program and some chemical agents and so forth. In other words, some amendments we couldn’t get to in the floor.

The major difference is that I had advanced funding for the F-22 in the bill, and obviously the Senate, in its wisdom, defeated the possibility of the F-22 passing. So what I’ve done is say, okay, if we’re not going to have an F-22, let’s at least fund the original 187 airplanes at the fullest robust level. And that’s the only difference, actually, that we have between myself and Mr. YOUNG.

So with that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition to the manager’s amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, as Chairman MURTHA suggested, we basically support this manager’s amendment. We have no opposition, and in fact, support it except for the one item that has to do with the air superiority aircraft, the F-22.

We support the original position that Chairman MURTHA offered to the subcommittee and the subcommittee agreed to, and that was to be able to keep the production line open for the F-22. We’re just really concerned that 187 aircraft cannot guarantee that we will control the air over the battlefield if that situation develops.

I now include a chart that I discussed yesterday in general debate on the number of aircraft, fighter aircraft, that we have bought over the years, and how many of them we have lost through attrition, through accidents, and through actual combat.

AIRCRAFT HISTORY

F-4: Production: 1958 to 1979 by McDonnell Douglas; Built: 4,138 (2,874 USAF; 1,264 Navy and MC); Lost: 71 combat losses plus 54 lost in accidents (3%).

F-14: Production: 1970 to 1992 by Northrop Grumman; Built: 679; Lost: 121 (18%); Retired in 2007.

F-15: Production: 1974 to 1985 by McDonnell Douglas/Boeing; Built: 1,118; Destroyed: 117 (10%); Active Today: 618.

F-16: Production: 1978 by General Dynamics/Lockheed Martin; Built: 2,230; Destroyed: 334 (15%) includes 25 destroyed due to battle damage; Active Today: 1,167.

F-18: Production: 1983 by McDonnell Douglas/Boeing; Built: 1,048; Lost in accidents: 170 (includes 2 shot down in Gulf War); Stricken for maintenance and exceeding life limits: 246 (40%); Active Today: 632.

F-22: Production: 2001 to 2009 by Lockheed Martin; Building: 187; Projected losses: 6, leaving only 181 (3% like the F-4); 19, leaving only 168 (10% like the F-15); 28, leaving only 159 (15% like the F-16); 34, leaving only 153 (18% like the F-14); 75, leaving only 112 (40% like the F-18).

187 just doesn’t really, in my opinion, doesn’t guarantee that we will have what we need. Hopefully, we’ll never need them, but we just don’t know that we might not need them. And if we need them and don’t have them, where are we and where is the soldier on the ground? If we need them and don’t have them, somebody else’s airplane may be over that battlefield.

So it would have been better if we could have had a straight up-or-down vote on the F-22 issue, and I requested of the Rules Committee to make such an amendment in order, and they chose not to do so.

So I will vote against this manager’s amendment—again, not because we’re opposed to the manager’s amendment, but we think that we are threatening the future security of air control and air superiority over the battlefield.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I yield myself 2 minutes.

I certainly agree with what the gentleman said. I have a great concern about air superiority, but the problem is we need 292 votes in the House. The President is hard over on this issue. We need 66 votes in the Senate, and there is no chance of us getting that kind of a vote.

So what I’m trying to do is make sure that that is robustly funded, the ones that are there, because the very thing Mr. YOUNG mentioned, the fact that these airplanes have high maintenance, they cost about $50,000 an hour to maintain, and it’s very expensive and very burdensome. So I want to make sure they have the spare parts they need, the engines they need in order so the ones we have, have what they need.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield now to a very distinguished member of the subcommittee, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN) for 3 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I rise in opposition to the amendment authored by our chairman. I don’t quarrel with many of the provisions of the Murtha amendment. He’s absolutely right on in most regards. But, Mr. Chairman, I ask my colleagues to remember one day, April 15, 1953. On that date is the last time a U.S. soldier, sailor or marine was killed by an attack from the air. It’s nearly 60 years ago, during the Korean War.

Air dominance has been the game changer that has allowed our ground troops to execute their missions. We have air dominance today. Our job here is to make sure we have it tomorrow, and certainly the committee is going to do that. But air dominance is fragile and could slip away quickly. As we gather here today, the Russians are producing advanced fighter aircraft. We know that. The Chinese are apparently working to reverse engineer some of those advanced fighters for their own use, and we know certain countries are producing and selling very sophisticated air defense systems; more accurate, more lethal, more mobile, more difficult to neutralize than any systems our Air Force and Navy has ever faced. Hence, the need for the F-22.

The Air Force has 187 F-22 Raptors. It does not have 187 for combat deployment. We would like that to be the case. About 130 or so are ready, what we call combat coded with the full package, and they're ready for those missions. Approximately 60 are maintained, as I understand, for training and testing purposes.

And the question, of course, arises—and I support the F-25 Joint Strike Fighter. It's on its way, but when and how soon. The Joint Strike Fighter, as we know, is not the Raptor, doesn't have those capabilities. I think we need to keep the F-22 assembly line alive and warm. Once it's shut down, there is virtually no prospect that we can bring it back again. You can't flip the switch to bring the Raptor back into production.

So I rise in reluctant opposition to the amendment. I respect the chairman's desire to sort of keep the line open, have spare parts, but I do oppose the amendment.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I will yield to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON), a member of the subcommittee, for 2 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. I thank the gentleman from Georgia and the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

I wanted to speak about the F-22 issue because, as we know, the Senate has cut off funding for it, but I do have some concerns about our fighter fleet.

Currently, the military inventory is 3,500 fighter aircraft. That's 2,400 for the Air Force, 1,100 for the Navy and the Marine Corps. Most of these aircraft were purchased at high annual rates during the 1980s. These aircraft will reach the end of their service in the next 10 years.

So what we're talking about is something that maybe could be more important in the next decade or within the next decade than might be to people today, but the Air Force will replace the A-10, the F-16, and the F-15 with the F-22 and the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter.

To give you an idea of some of these ages, there are 350 A-10s with an average age of 28 years, 470 F-15s with an average of 26 years, 220 F-15s with an average of 17 years, 1,200 F-16-S's with an average of 20 years. We have roughly 140 Raptors to replace the fleet and have no F-35-S's and will not have them until 2013. And of course the F-22 production line will end in 2011. That's the Air Force.

Now, as respects the Navy, the Navy will replace the carriers and F/A-18 Hornets with Super Hornets and the F-35-Js, Joint Strike Fighters. The reason they're doing this is to have 125 carriers with an average age of 14 years each, 620 Hornets with an average age of 19 years.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield the gentleman from Georgia 1 additional minute.

Mr. KINGSTON. I thank the gentleman.

What I will do, I will submit some of these statistics for the record. But I guess the bottom line is that we're very concerned with the need to replace the aging fleet in the Navy and in the Air Force, and I believe keeping the F-22 line open resolves some of this.

The Defense Committee has worked very hard on this. There's been a lot of good bipartisan dialogue. I know both sides care about it, whether you're for or against this amendment, but I think that at this time we need to go on this very cautiously and very slowly.

I appreciate the chairman's and the ranking member's leadership on this issue and look forward to continue working with you.

Mr. MURTHA. I just want to reiterate what I said.

The political climate has changed substantially. We're in a situation where the President's hard over, and we are doing the best we can to have robust funding for the fleet. That's what I intend to do, or I hope, when this amendment passes, that's what we'll have done.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1045

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I now yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP).

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. I appreciate the difficulty we're in; but once again, to have air superiority requires two things: technical superiority, which the F-22 provides, as well as numerical superiority, which was why originally we were going to build 750. Up until last year, 381 was the minimum. Everyone from Air Combat Command, to Air National Guard, to every study says 243 is the number. There is no data that says 187 is the correct number, other than the Secretary. If the Russians are going to build a new generation and sell 200 to 300 at the same time we cut 250 legacy planes from our Air Force, at the same time we stop the F-22, at the same time the F-35 is not going to be available until 2014 at the earliest and still has problems, we may find ourselves on the wrong side of history if we do not stand up for the F-22. If we can spend $5 billion on ACORN but complain about $2 billion for 18,000 jobs to continue on a plane that we need, there is something in our prioritization that needs to be reviewed.

I appreciate the position of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, but here is the time we need to make a statement that the future is essential.

Mr. MURTHA. I yield myself 1 minute.

I will say to the gentleman, as I have said before, we're doing the best we can with what we have. Politically, it's changed so dramatically that we just have no alternative than to make sure that what we have is robustly funded.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, can I inquire as to how much time I have remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Florida has 2 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Pennsylvania has 7 minutes remaining.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of the time.

I want to say and to make sure that Members understand that I know that Mr. MURTHA is not opposed to the F-22 and that he supports it because it was in his original mark that he presented to the subcommittee. And I understand the change in political mode that we have experienced. But you know, from the time that I came here, we were fighting about the F-14. There were those who didn't want to do the F-14, which was a very important aircraft for our fleet protection. Most of our new aircraft have been opposed by certain quarters in the country. The M1 tank, which is by far the world's best tank, was opposed by certain groups of people. Well, we cannot afford to allow an enemy to control the air over our troops. It's as simple as that. We have never sent our soldiers into battle with only 187 fighter aircraft in our inventory that have the capability to control the air over the battlefield. So yes, it's expensive. Freedom doesn't come free. I'm not really opposed to this amendment, but I'm going to vote against it because of the F-22 issue.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I yield back the balance of my time and call for an affirmative vote on the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania will be postponed.

PART A AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. CONAWAY

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in part A of House Report 111-233.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part A amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. CONAWAY:

Page 8, line 11, after the dollar amount, insert the following: “(increased by $1,000,000) (reduced by $1,000,000)”.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CONAWAY. I thank the Chair. I appreciate that, and I will endeavor to not use all the 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONAWAY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURTHA. We're willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Chairman, thank you for accepting the amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONAWAY. Yes, sir, I will.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, we support this amendment and are happy to accept it.

Mr. CONAWAY. Thank you very much.

Let me briefly explain what it does because on the surface, it looks like it's just an in-and-out with no real issue. I will be quick. The issue allows me to talk about financial management, internal controls, and clean audits at the Department of Defense. This is, as it should be, a high priority that is reflected in the priorities set by the Secretary of Defense himself. It's not really up to the Appropriations Committee to find these funds. These funds ought to come out of hide. It's important they do that.

Yesterday or the day before, the Secretary announced a $60 billion savings search for the Department of Defense. He can't find that money without good internal controls. The authorization committee has said this is now a priority. We've accelerated the movement by 4 years, the point at which the Department of Defense needs to have clean, audited financial statements. Sarbanes-Oxley made that function of internal control a high priority when it was passed. Businesses had to do what was referred to as section 404 reviews. It was difficult, it was painful, and it was expensive. But almost every one of those publicly held companies will tell you today that after they put those new controls in place, that they are better. Their financial statements are better. Their decisions based on financial information are better. The same thing would apply to the Department of Defense if they would make this a priority. It has to be a priority for the Secretary of Defense, the appropriations committee and the authorization committee.

Mr. MURTHA. Would the gentleman take yes for an answer?

Mr. CONAWAY. I did. I just want to get this on record. I did take yes for an answer. The importance of financial statement auditing is important. It needs to be a priority.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. Does any Member seek time in opposition?

If not, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CONAWAY).

The amendment was agreed to.

PART A AMENDMENT NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in part A of House Report 111-233.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk designated as No. 596 in part A.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part A amendment No. 3 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

Page 35, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert “(reduced by $160,000,000)”.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. I thank the Chair. Before I start with this amendment, I want to say that I support the part of the manager's amendment that the gentleman from Pennsylvania offered with regard to the F-22 program. I'm glad that we're doing what we're doing there, and I commend the committee for sticking with what the President wanted there. I think we've done the right thing.

This amendment would remove $160 million in funding for the U.S.-made first responder radios for use by Mexico's police force. This request is not classified as an earmark but is programmatic funding, and it came to my attention last week when it was featured in a story by the Washington Post. According to the article, 12 Members of Congress requested this funding which is to be used for radios with certain specifications. The article goes on to say that while no specific company is named in the bill, Motorola, which makes radios that fit the parameters set forth in the bill and which is based in Illinois, home to seven of the requesting Members, appeared to be the intended beneficiary of this funding. At the same time, the article points out that because this request is not considered to be an earmark, the Members who requested it are not required to publicly report it. Typically they have to sign a certification saying they have no financial interest in the earmark, and that was not the case here.

Mr. Chairman, if it looks like an earmark, sounds like an earmark, I think it's an earmark. It ought to be disclosed under House rules, and it isn't here. Even if we accept that funding directed to a nameless company based on a certain set of requirements that only one company could provide is not an earmark, then we're met with an inconvenient problem: Why bother to make the earmark process more open and transparent when it would be just as easy to request the funding—in this case, funding that is several times more expensive than the average earmark—by calling the beneficiary a program and tailoring its description to suit the needs of one company? It's bad enough that this bill includes over 500 earmarks directed at private companies. The sponsors of those earmarks are all required to disclose their requests on their Web sites; and they even certify, as I mentioned, that they have no financial interest. But that is not the case here. They write letters, but it doesn't show up as an earmark.

The Post article quotes Bill Allison, senior fellow at the Sunlight Foundation, as saying, “It kind of makes a mockery of the disclosure requirements we have. They will disclose the little things, the $1 million projects; but when you have big-ticket items, you don't have Members willing to take responsibility for those.” I agree with Mr. Allison's assessment. If we truly want to drain the swamp and make the earmark process more transparent, we can't continue to allow private companies to be funded outside the current House rules.

I urge support for my amendment and reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FLAKE. I would inquire of the gentleman on the subcommittee if he believes that this is an earmark; and if it is, why Members aren't required to certify that they have no financial interest if they're requesting money for it?

I yield the gentleman time to respond.

Mr. MURTHA. I will use my own time.

Mr. FLAKE. May I inquire as to the time remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona has 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. FLAKE. I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I have the right to close, and I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. We have a process here that I think over the years has been abused severely. We see that whenever we pick up the paper. We see examples of earmarks that have gone out of this place in prior years with no notice at all. Last year we didn't even have any opportunity to offer any amendments. The Appropriations Committee didn't even mark up the Defense bill. We see story after story from prior years of what happens when we don't have adequate disclosure and transparency. I would submit that that's what we're continuing here. We have a programmatic request that 12 Members signed a letter. Seven of those Members represent the State in which the recipient of the earmark clearly will receive a huge contract, and yet we don't have to file the disclosure requirements that we do for regular earmarks. I would say that we should not fund this programmatic request, which is really a stealth earmark, and get back to the process that we at least pretend to follow here, where we have disclosure and accountability. I would urge support of the amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition to the amendment. I am trying to figure out what the gentleman is trying to do. This was in the table from the White House, from the administration, the Defense Department. This would delete $160 million in drug interdiction and counter-drug activities which go to Mexico, Afghanistan and Colombia. The Defense Department has the authority to train and equip foreign governments for counter-drug activities since Congress enacted section 1004 of the '91 National Defense Authorization Act. This funding will enable the Department of Defense to provide digital communication equipment to our allies in order to fight the increasing drug trade and execute this funding at the discretion of the Department of Defense.

I mean, I can't imagine anything that's more important to us and our troops in Afghanistan than the amount of money that we're putting in for anti-drug interdiction. So I would urge the Members to vote against this amendment.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART A AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. SESSIONS

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 4 printed in part A of House Report 111-233.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part A amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. SESSIONS:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 1001. Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress a report on the use of hyperbaric oxygen therapy (in this section referred to as "HBOT") under the Secretary of Defense. Such report shall include the following:

(1) The number of members of the Armed Forces, veterans, and civilians being treated with HBOT.

(2) The types of conditions being treated with HBOT and the respective success rates for each condition.

(3) The current inventory of all hyperbaric chambers being used by the Secretary of Defense (including the locations, the purposes, and the rate of use of such chambers).

(4) Any plans for expanding the use of HBOT for treatment.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Texas Mr. (Sessions) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

□ 1100

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Chairman, thank you very much, and I appreciate the opportunity for you to recognize me.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman yield?

Mr. SESSIONS. I would yield to the gentleman.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, we are very familiar with this amendment. We know of the great work Mr. SESSIONS has done relative to the hyperbaric chambers for treatment of all types of wounds and diseases, and we are very pleased to accept this amendment.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the gentleman, and I appreciate his help.

Mr. MURTHA. If the gentleman would yield, I agree with the amendment.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the gentleman, the chairman of the committee, Mr. MURTHA.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say that this committee, as well as the Rules Committee, has been very open to receiving information about the current status of hyperbaric oxygen treatment as an opportunity for us to learn more about how we will help our returning veterans and those who have been injured in conflicts around the globe.

This body has worked very closely with not only Secretary Gates, General Casey, the Chief of Staff of the United States Army, but also with their designee, General Lori Sutton, who is working very closely with the Congress to make sure that we pay attention to the head trauma injuries of our soldiers as they engage in trying to help the United States win the war on terror.

I want to personally thank not only the gentleman, Mr. YOUNG, and the gentleman, Mr. MURTHA, but also the appropriators, Mr. WAMP and Mr. EDWARDS. I would also like to thank the chairwoman of the Rules Committee, Ms. SLAUGHTER, for not only making this amendment in order, but also the words of support that have been expressed on behalf of the Armed Services Committee, but also the Rules Committee.

I thank both these gentlemen for accepting my amendment.

I yield back my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS).

The amendment was agreed to.

PART A AMENDMENT NO. 5 OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

The Acting CHAIR. It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in part A of House Report 111-233.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part A amendment No. 5 offered by Mr. TIERNEY:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in title IV under the heading "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide" shall be available for the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program, and the amount otherwise provided under such heading is hereby reduced by $80,000,000.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, my colleague, Congressman HOLT, and I are offering this amendment striking $80 million that's in the bill for the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program. Mr. HOLT and I believe that the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program no longer warrants Congress' support, and we are not alone in that assessment.

The Bush administration made the initial decision to terminate the KEI program in its fiscal year 2010 Program Objectives Memorandum last fall. Then, President Obama did not include funding for it in his budget proposal, and both the House Armed Services Committee and the Senate Armed Services Committee did not specify funding for it in their respective authorization bills.

Secretary Gates has testified that "the missile's 38 or 39 feet long. It weighs 12 tons. There's no extant ship we can put it on. We would have to design a new ship."

The head of the Missile Defense Agency, Lieutenant General O'Reilly, has said that the KEI program is being terminated because "its capability is inconsistent with the missile defense mission to counter rogue nation threats."

The KEI program was intended to be a 5-year development program that is now a 16-year development program.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say the majority leader is fond of saying that it is never too late to do the right thing, and here is our opportunity to do the right thing.

We have to, at some point in time, start looking at all of our budgets, and that includes the Defense budget, to make sure that we're not putting money out that needs to be put towards other priorities.

Here you have the Missile Defense Agency's director itself saying that this program should be terminated. You have the Secretary of Defense in two administrations saying the program should be terminated. You have, from what I can hear from people, the silence of those that say they are against this amendment, not arguing that in fact this is a program that should move forward.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I continue to reserve.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to my colleague from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT).

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I thank my friend from Massachusetts.

Almost no one believes that the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program is necessary or that it will be completed successfully. The Director of the Missile Defense Agency, the Secretary of Defense, and the President have all called for the termination of the program. House and Senate Armed Services Committees have supported that position.

I understand the desire of the chairman of the subcommittee (Mr. MURTHA) to get something of value from all the money that has been already spent, but stringing this program along is not the answer. Even after the removal of this money there will be plenty of funding to learn from the mistakes of the program.

Mr. Chairman, even if the KEI were successful, it will never work well enough to change our strategy. Missile defense systems must be perfect to achieve their professed goals, and we can never get that perfection.

The fact that we don't need them against our friends and that they will only encourage our enemies to build more offensive systems to get around, this so-called shield are the arguments against this missile defense. The best this flawed system could ever provide is a provocative, yet permeable defense. I urge my colleagues to adopt the amendment.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve.

Mr. TIERNEY. I am happy, I guess, to keep on talking. I think that the desire to have the final word without any rebuttal is somewhat indicative of the strength of an argument, but if that is the gentleman's choice, certainly you are able to do that.

I would note that the administration urges the Congress to support the President's initiative to terminate or reduce programs that fund narrowly focused activities and duplicate existing programs and that have outlived their usefulness. It particularly mentions the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program as one of those, indicating that we can better target scarce resources and redirect funds to programs with a greater potential for results. And that, of course, is in the Statement of Administration Policy with respect to this bill.

Let me, if I can, Mr. Chairman, just read what the Director of the Missile Defense Agency says about this, and he said this on May 21, 2009:

"The original KEI mission grew from a boost phase only mission to a boost and mid-course mission. The development schedule grew from 5½ years to 12 to 14 years (depending on spirals), program cost grew from $4.6 billion to $8.9 billion, and the missile average unit production cost grew from $25 million to over $50 million per interceptor. Technical issues delayed the first booster flight test date (established in 2007) by over a year," and this year any further testing is highly unlikely.

"Given the above and that 15 percent of the $8.9 billion worth of work on contract till 2018 has been accomplished, the KEI program was terminated."

And further, you have the Secretary of Defense, Mr. Gates, indicating that this is one decision that he didn't have to make or take credit for. The Missile Defense Agency itself, under the Bush administration, essentially eliminated the Kinetic Energy Interceptor, or thought that it had.

First of all, he said this has been a 5-year development program that now looks like it's about to be a 16-year development program. There has not been a single flight test. There has been little work on the third stage of the kill vehicle, which is obviously critical. A big part of the program is that it needs to be close to the launch site to be able to be effective, and the 38- or 39-foot size of the instrument and the weight of 12 tons means that we have no extant ship that could actually be used to get close enough. It would be virtually of limited or no use against Iran or Russia or the Chinese. It has very limited capability, and that is why this is not a productive way to proceed on this matter.

There may be some argument by some here—and we will never know until after we're finished talking, of course—that we want to keep some of this money in for research purposes. Let me suggest to my colleagues that there is a significant amount of money in research, development and testing within the entire Department of Defense budget as well as within the budget for the Missile Defense Program.

I urge my colleagues to support this motion and thank the chairman for the time.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition to the amendment. It will strike $80 million out of the Kinetic Energy Interceptor program.

In my estimation, what I said to the Defense Department over and over again, all at once, after all these years of no oversight in the Defense Department, they get nothing from the program. We've got the same thing in the Presidential helicopter. We've got the same thing in many of these other programs. What I'm trying to convince them is they have to have oversight earlier in a research program.

Now, the Under Secretary tells me that in the new research programs he is going to try to have a cost cap or some kind of effectiveness so that they measure it, benchmarks of some sort so that they can measure these earlier.

We may have to adjust this in conference if this amendment doesn't pass, but I ask the Members to vote "no" on this amendment, and we will see what we can work out. The program has already spent $1 billion, and we ought to get something out of it.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts will be postponed.

It is now in order to consider amendments printed in part B of House Report 111-233.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk designated as No. 1 in part B.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Enhanced Navy Shore Readiness Integration.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Let me just state, since the gentleman wouldn't yield time at the end of his statement for me to ask, with the last earmark amendment I had, the only information we have from the committee says that the money is to go to Mexico for a program in Mexico, for radios for Mexico. Afghanistan was never mentioned. If it is covered, we don't know that.

But when the Appropriations Committee takes 18 minutes to mark up the bill and then brings it to the floor and then the chairman of the subcommittee won't answer a question about it, to just say, Well, it's for Afghanistan as well, that doesn't help with this process at all. And I think that will be the pattern today, whether to simply reserve time and then not yield any so we can have any kind of colloquy to find out what really is at the heart of these earmarks or what these are really for.

So I hope that changes. I hope we have a real discussion here because we didn't get it in the Appropriations Committee. Remember, 18 minutes to approve a bill unanimously, with more than 1,000 earmarks in it that nobody in the full body had seen, and we only got a copy of days before the bill came out. Eighteen minutes.

Anyway, this amendment would prohibit $5 million from going to fund Enhanced Navy Shore Readiness Integration. The earmark is going to Concurrent Technologies. Now, most people who have been following this process will know that name and know it well because Concurrent has drawn considerable attention due to its proclivity for earmarks. According to Taxpayers for Common Sense, Concurrent received more than $200 million in earmarks between 2001 and 2006.

Concurrent technically is a nonprofit organization, with revenues in the hundreds of millions of dollars. And it is receiving earmark after earmark after earmark after earmark, although questions are raised all over the place. According to the Center for Responsive Politics, Concurrent Technologies' employees have donated more than $113,000 to current members of the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee since 1998.

Let me just use a chart here. This chart kind of explains the phenomenon that we will see over and over and over again. And with every earmark amendment I am offering today, this pattern exists where Members of Congress will earmark dollars; the earmark spending goes to the earmark recipient; the earmark recipient will then turn around; and lobbying firms representing the earmark recipient, PACs there, executives from the lobbying firm, executives from the company itself, contribute handsomely to Members of Congress, and it recycles again and again and again. Circular fund-raising, that's what we're talking about here.

Now, I will point out that when Members of Congress request an earmark, they are forced to sign a certification letter saying that they have no financial interest. This kind of circular fund-raising is not illegal, and that's not what I'm alleging at all. But is it right? And should we, as Members of Congress, tolerate it again and again and again when these companies like Concurrent Technologies are in the news for having problems explaining what they've done with the earmark money that they've received again and again? And here we go saying, Now we have transparency and accountability, and we've changed the earmark process, and yet here we are again appropriating more money through an earmark to Concurrent Technologies.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Washington is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DICKS. I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, when we were discussing earmarks earlier in the appropriation cycle, one Member defending his earmark came to the floor and said he was getting an earmark for a university. Based on things I've read in the papers, this college does not have a lobbyist, either a Federal or State lobbyist. No one from the school has donated to my campaign; nothing at the school is named after me or is proposed to be named after me. To my knowledge, the school has never received an earmark of any sort from the Federal Government prior to this.

I would ask the gentleman, the sponsor of the earmark, if he can make the same statement with regard to this earmark. Have moneys come back from the recipient of the earmark?

And I would yield him time to do so.

□ 1115

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I reserved my time and I will answer this on my own time.

Mr. FLAKE. Roll Call has noted that PMA, and we will get to another PMA earmark a little later, has been—well, let me step back just a bit. Sunlight Foundation has noted that Concurrent Technologies paid PMA $320,000 in lobbying fees in 2008 and received more than $14 million in earmarks sponsored by five Members, including the sponsor of this amendment. This signifies an impressive 4,463 percent return on investment. It's no wonder this process of circular fund-raising continues.

According to the Center for Responsive Politics, the sponsor of this earmark is reportedly among the five top recipients of PMA contributions. Roll Call noted that PMA has been the largest source of campaign contributions since 2001 and PMA and its client have provided the sponsor of this earmark with nearly $200,000 in campaign contributions since 2001.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment offered by Mr. FLAKE.

In addressing my colleagues, I want to begin by clarifying what the funds designated for Enhanced Navy Shore Readiness Integration are directed to.

Several years ago the Navy adopted a significantly different approach to managing all of its installations on U.S. soil. The commander of Navy Installations Command operates an $8 billion enterprise for the Nation. Now, you can imagine that when making changes in such a vast enterprise, its leaders want to explore innovative options; but they need to carefully evaluate ideas to find the best ones. They also need to test out an idea as a pilot project, and that's exactly what happened here.

The Concurrent Technologies Corporation is a nonprofit. In fact, they just had a competitive bid which they won a few months ago. They do great work for the United States Navy. The Navy often matches the money that Congress puts up because the work is of such high quality. And this company is located in Bremerton, Washington, one of its branch offices. They do great work for Navy Region Northwest.

I don't have anything named after me. My family has no interest in this in any way, shape, or form. This is a good, solid program; and this company this year has no one representing it. It doesn't have a lobbying firm. Well, the gentleman wants to make various insinuations, but I still funded it because it was quality work. It was work that was meritorious. And Congress has the right to do this.

Congress also has the right to review national programs. National programs should be considered by Congress. We can either increase the funding for them or decrease the funding for them. We have the right to do that. Congress has the power of the purse, and we can't give it away because it's in the Constitution. And this is an important issue.

Now, all I can tell my colleagues here is that this is a good operation in Bremerton. They're doing fine work for the United States Navy, and I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 258 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk designated as No. 258 in part B.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 258 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. ____ . None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reduced Manning Situational Awareness.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, before I get to the substance of the amendment, if people out there want to know why members of the Appropriations Committee, and particularly the Defense Subcommittee, are loathe to talk about these earmarks and to talk about this process and why the markup in the full committee took a full 18 minutes, this might explain it.

If you look here to the left of this chart, 33 percent of the dollar value of the earmarks in the Defense Appropriations bill go to just under 4 percent of the Members of this body. One-twenty-fifth of the Members in this body take home 33 percent of the earmarked dollars in this appropriations bill. So I don't blame them for wanting to get through this quickly, for having an 18-minute markup where nobody really talks about anything; you just shove it on through and it's a unanimous vote. If you want to know why, here it is.

But this Congress, the rest of the body, the rank-and-file Members who aren't on that committee ought to be concerned, particularly when over and over again there are press stories that are unflattering about what happens when earmarks go in this fashion. The Washington Post's top story above the fold today is another one, talking about how Members are loathe to get rid of these pork projects in the bill or these earmarks.

So I would submit that if anybody out there is wondering why this process goes so quickly and Members are so disinclined to debate, why not? If you can do it, do it. If 4 percent of the Members in this body can take home 24 percent of the earmarks, that's a pretty good gig. But the rest of us ought to be concerned, and I think the country is concerned, certainly the press is reporting that there is an issue there.

This amendment would remove $5 million for funding for the Reduced Manning Situational Awareness program. According to the sponsor of this program, it's a command and control system with smart sensors, 3-D visualization, video analytics, and bandwidth management.

I'm not here to argue the merits of the program. I frankly don't have much knowledge in that area. But what we see here again is an earmark going to a private company. Sometimes Members will say, I'm just working for my district; I'm just getting earmarks for economic development in my district. In this case the company is not even located in the sponsor's district.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise to claim time in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I am not going to talk about the amendment because the gentleman has conceded that the program it would fund is essential to force protection, and that is the case.

But I think the point that I want to make is there has been a lot of misleading information suggested here, not necessarily intentionally and I don't think with any attempt to besmirch anyone's character. We have heard on the cap-and-trade bill "read the bill." We have heard on the health bill, if we ever see one, "read the bill." And I agree with all of that. We ought to be reading the bills.

I don't think my friend from Arizona has read this bill, and it is not nearly as big as the cap-and-trade bill was or the health bill will be. But had he read the bill, he would have found on page 113, section 8115(a) that it says: "Those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition."

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I'm glad the gentleman brought up this phrase in the bill that it should be opened to full competition. The reason for the earmark is to get around competition. We all know that. Now we can have language in the bill that requires that. But I had a meeting with some Defense Department procurement officials and the Comptroller General a while ago, and I asked the Defense Department officials, What is your process with these earmarks? And they said, We subject them to full competition, basically except when we don't. So I asked them, Can you do a random sample of earmarks in the 2009 or 2008 Defense bill and come back to me and let me know how many went to the intended recipient for the earmark?

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FLAKE. I yield.

Mr. DICKS. The gentleman obviously hasn't read the bill because it's in the bill that you have to compete these projects if it is done by a for-profit company. Congress has passed a law saying you have to compete these. So the gentleman is wrong in so many ways, but on this one you are really wrong.

Mr. FLAKE. I thank the gentleman for trying to clarify that. But I would submit that that is the process that the Defense Department says that they follow now. So they will take this language and say that's what we do already, except when we don't. And when they don't subject it to full competition, they simply issue what's called a J&A. And the J&A is the justification for why that earmark was not subject to competition.

I have asked for months and months and months, and I'm still waiting for some of those J&As. But we know with uncanny precision these earmarks end up with the intended recipient and simply putting in language in here, which my guess is will be taken out in the Senate anyway, though it doesn't mean much in the first place, it will not likely survive the Senate; but if it does, the Defense Department will say we do that anyway.

If it's subject to full competition, the gentleman mentioned with Concurrent Technologies that they had won in open competition for another pot of money. Well, great. If they're so good, why do we have to earmark money for them? Why don't we say compete on your own like everybody else? That is the purpose of these earmarks, to get around competition. That is the purpose of it. So to say, well, we inserted language in it and that will solve it all, it simply doesn't because the Defense Department knows who butters their bread. They know that they need to follow with uncanny precision the intended recipient.

The Acting CHAIR. The time of the gentleman has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 315 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 315 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. ____ . None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Body Armor Improved Ballistic Protection, Research and Development.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, let me just finish the thought I had before.

President Bush a couple of years ago said that earmarks that end up in the report language and not in the bill itself, like these earmarks, that he would instruct the Federal agencies to ignore them and to simply openly compete contracts out there. This Appropriations Committee inserted language after the President did that and said that the President or the Federal agencies should have to follow the language in the report even though it wasn't legislative language.

So if we're all keen on competition here, why in the world, until the public started to focus on it, did we instruct the Federal agencies and say you have to take the language that's in the report as if it were law?

Anyway, let's get to this amendment.

This amendment would remove $2.2 million in funding for KDH Defense, for a Body Armor Improved Ballistic Protection.

I have not come here to debate the merits of the earmark. Again, I'm not an expert in improved ballistic protection defense. But I should say again I think people in our military are and the Pentagon is and that they should probably make this decision rather than a single Member of Congress.

As reported by Roll Call earlier this week, KDH Defense has received millions in earmarks to produce an underwater swimmer detection sonar system for the Navy to be used to protect its docks and ships. KDH's expertise lies in sewing bulletproof vests, but reportedly this earmark project was the first product to be delivered by KDH Electronic Systems, a startup company affiliated with KDH.

After several years and a series of botched agreements with subcontractors, KDH has yet to deliver this product. Based on the statements made by the president of KDH, it doesn't appear as though they ever will. And yet we are here today again ready to provide KDH with millions more in taxpayer dollars.

I would ask why are we doing this when we already have information that some of the individuals or companies that will be associated with this earmark haven't exactly done well in the past, haven't produced what they said they would, in some cases have little expertise in the area that they say they do in order to get the earmark?

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1130

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, again, here we have the same pattern of circular fund-raising. Again, I am not alleging any illegal activity here. This is legal. It is unfortunate, but it is legal for Members to sign a certification that they have no financial interest in the earmark. But our same Ethics Committee issues guidance to the Members saying campaign contributions do not necessarily reflect or constitute financial interest.

That, I would submit, Mr. Chairman, is the wrong approach, and we are going to continue to see story after story where earmark recipients simply don't have the capability or the inclination to deliver on the product that they said they would deliver on, and yet they still continue, even in this environment with investigations swirling around all over, to receive these same earmarks.

By now, my colleagues are familiar with the PMA scandal that has plagued this body for months. There is an investigation, at least they are looking into it, we are told, by our own Ethics Committee here.

I am unconvinced that the PMA scandal will be the last scandal we see in this body. I am convinced that there will be earmarks that we approve today that later investigation will determine were not aboveboard, that these companies receiving these earmarks simply weren't delivering, because we have seen that again and again and again, and yet we go through this same process as if nothing were amiss.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, an editorial in The New York Times, entitled "Political Animal 101," referred to the "relationship between campaign dollars and the customized appropriations they are fed by grateful lawmakers" as "the ultimate in symbiotic survival and cynical influence trading."

That is The New York Times. There have been editorials in the Washington Post. They have been in Roll Call and The Hill and just about everywhere. The mainstream media has done a great job investigating this and showing that this process leaves a lot to be desired.

Again, it doesn't have to be illegal to be something that Members of this body should stand up and say, you know, our House should have a higher standard here. We ought to have a higher standard than whether we can survive an investigation going on by the Justice Department right now, that we ought to leave some confidence with the public that we are doing things right here. And I would submit when you have more than 1,000 earmarks, more than 500 of which represent no-bid contracts to private companies like this one, then we have got a problem.

I urge support of the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. MURTHA. Let me read again to the gentleman from Arizona. "With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled Explanation of Project Level Adjustment in the report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered Congressional earmarks for purpose of rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded for a profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition."

Now, let me tell you, you talk about old awards. KDH was awarded on 14 July 2090, a competitive $39.4 million contract for 65,000 vests for the Army and Air Force. They must be doing a good job or they wouldn't have been made that award.

I went to Iraq. They were short—would the gentleman, I know the staff has a lot of information for him, but I would like him to listen to what I am saying.

I went to Iraq and I found with the First Division a 44,000 shortage of armor. The biggest complaint I get from the troops in the field—I don't know how often you visit the field, Mr. FLAKE. I don't know how often you come to the people that do this work.

When I go in the factories, their sons and daughters are working in this place. They love the work that they do. They know they are doing work that is under very specific guidelines set by the government.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. The Chair would remind Members to address their remarks in debate to the Chair.

Mr. MURTHA. You are absolutely right. I am sorry, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I want you to know that when I go to visit these plants and I see these people working, whose sons and daughters are fighting, they know how important these vests are. They know how important the work that they do is for the Defense Department.

I remember 20 years ago when I brought defense companies into my district and I had 24 percent unemployment. We didn't have the specifications. We didn't have any small business that could do the work. We didn't get any awards. Once we learned the ISOs, once we were able to perfect it, once we were able to compete—the people of my district are hardworking—we got the unemployment down to below the national level and diversified the economy.

All I can do is bring people in. I can't direct them where to do the business of the Defense Department. They do it on their own. They are the ones that award the contracts. I visit those plants and I see those hardworking people. I see what they do for this great country. Not only the troops serving in Iraq and Afghanistan, but the public who work in these defense organizations do everything they can to help this great country.

We put money into the budget. We have an obligation to take care of our district. We have an obligation to take care of this great country. And the people working in my district work hard.

I visit these plants and these bases all the time. I visit the troops and I ask them, What are your biggest problems? The biggest problem is employment, Mr. Chairman. The biggest problem is the fact that the vests are too heavy for Afghanistan. They are working on trying to get vests that aren't so heavy.

I just went out to the hospital the other day. I don't know how often Mr. FLAKE goes to the hospital. I am sure he goes quite often. Every week he probably goes to the hospital. But I will tell you this. I go to the hospital.

I saw a young fellow who was wounded two years ago. His organs were outside of his body for 10 days. He had a bag for about 6 months. He got rid of the bag. They did another operation.

This goes on continuously. Nobody has done more work for the medical profession, putting earmarks in for breast cancer, ovarian cancer, all of those things, because we feel so strongly about it.

We want a great defense in this country, and the people working in the defense industry do a great job. We don't appropriate this money for anybody except the people that do the work, and if they do the work, they are awarded the contracts. And they are competitive contracts, and it is very clear in our bill, and it doesn't come out of the bill. It has been in title X of the bill ever since I can remember. They have to be competitive if they are pro-profit.

With that, I yield back the balance of my time and ask for a "no" vote on the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The amendment was rejected.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 389 OFFERED BY FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk designated as No. 389 in part B.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 389 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. __. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I want to respond a little to what the chairman of the Defense Subcommittee said.

He mentioned some of the horrible things that are happening in Iraq and Afghanistan. I have attended funerals myself of members who were killed by an IED or some other measure out there that they need greater protection from. But that is not what we are talking about here.

The reason we are here and the reason I offered the last amendment is it is going to a firm that, according to press reports, doesn't have the expertise to do what they intend to do and in the past have not delivered on the promises that were made before.

We see stories again and again and again on that same theme, that earmarks go to such companies. In fact, there is a trial going on, I believe, right now in Florida where an earmark recipient has pled guilty, I believe, to distributing earmark money to contractors who had no intention of following through and delivering on the contract. That is why we are here.

So we can talk all we want about the needs of our troops in the field, and that is why I am offering these, because this money should be going to our troops in the field. Instead, it is being bled off, in some cases, according to press reports, to companies who don't know enough about what they are doing to receive the earmark. But they are getting an earmark and getting around competition despite the language in this year's bill which claims that these will be subject to free and open competition.

This particular amendment, Mr. Chairman, would remove $3 million from funding for a Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability project. Again, I am here not knowing the specifics of the technology here, but I would submit that there are people in the Defense Department that perhaps might know better than some Members. And in this case, I would think that the chairman of the Defense Subcommittee would concede that we shouldn't be giving money to companies that have been implicated, at least it has been alleged, that they are under investigation.

The Wall Street Journal reviewed real estate records and reported that many of the facilities that ProLogic, the recipient of this earmark, uses are partly owned by the family of the CEO, and ProLogic pays the CEO monthly rent that is higher than prevailing local rates. ProLogic was also subpoenaed in a broader Federal investigation into earmarks going to West Virginia, where ProLogic is headquartered.

The Wall Street Journal also noted that four of ProLogic's six facilities were located in the congressional districts of senior members of the House Appropriations Committee. CBS News reported that ProLogic has spent more than $880,000 lobbying and contributed more than $400,000 to congressional campaigns.

I should note this company has denied allegations of wrongdoing and the status of the investigation is currently unknown.

But here we have a company that press reports say is either under investigation or cooperating with an investigation, and we are still giving it an earmark, a no-bid contract. Despite what is said about this will be open to free and open competition, we are giving them an earmark and saying this company at this address should get this money.

I just don't see where this connects with the speech about the needs of our men and women in the military. Again, I will stipulate, we need to make sure that our men and women are armed, that they have force protection, that they have the arms and everything else they need. And that is why I am so against this process that we have here, because we bleed off money that should be going to our military into companies, through no-bid contracts, who in too many cases simply aren't doing the work that they were contracted to do.

With that, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I will claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I don't know about the company and the concerns that Mr. FLAKE has about the company. I don't even know the company, but I know the issue and I know the needs for the Eglin Range. The Air Force and the Navy use the eastern part of the Gulf of Mexico for just tremendous amounts of training.

Members will recall that during the debates over oil drilling and drilling for natural gas and doing other kinds of commercial activities in the eastern Gulf of Mexico, we always protected the Gulf of Mexico east of the military mission line because it was so critical to training for our national defense, to train those pilots and those people who are on seaborne missions, to train them so, if they do have to go into harm's way, they will have the proper training.

This is for range sensors to help with the training of those military training programs of the Air Force and Navy. If you recall, the debate was very, very aggressive on that issue, and the Congress on numerous occasions agreed that we had to protect the eastern Gulf of Mexico so that we were free to use those areas for training.

Now, I am not going to vote for this amendment. The interesting thing here is, I think, if Mr. FLAKE were a member of the Armed Services Committee or the Appropriations Committee, he would have a better knowledge of how that works. He may never have even heard of what we call unfunded requirements. He may never have heard of witnesses coming to testify before these committees on the issue of the request by the administration for appropriations and then giving you and giving the members of the committees a list of unfunded requirements, things that they need that were not included by OMB in the budget request.

The Members that have been here for a while might remember that when I first became chairman of this subcommittee, I identified every unfunded requirement that I could and I put it on a scroll and we rolled it across the front of this Chamber so people, Members, could see what the military said they needed but didn't have in the budget request.

I will give you one example. In talking about bombers at a particular hearing some years ago, an Air Force officer said to me, You know, these bombers are really important, but you guys aren't paying attention to something else really important.

I said, Tell us about it. What are you talking about?

□ 1145

He said, do you know that the tugs that we use to pull the bombers out of the hangars to take them out to the runway, we don't have enough? And so, if we have a large mission, we have bombers and aircraft waiting in line to get a tug to pull them out. Well, that's an unfunded requirement, and the committee tries to take care of those unfunded requirements. The Defense Department, under the language that I read earlier, must compete, no matter what the bill says, no matter what the report says about where the committee thinks that the work ought to go, the Defense Department has to compete it.

Now, I don't know how much more transparency we can give to Mr. FLAKE if the projects are competed. But I agree with him. If someone, some company is not doing the job properly, then they ought to be investigated, and they ought to be taken off the list of contractors. In fact, in my own district I had a request for an earmark in this year's bill, and the Inspector General decided to pay that company a visit to see about something. I'm not even sure what it was about because they keep these investigations pretty secret.

But I pulled the request for that earmark until we work it out, until we find out what happened here, what went wrong, what are they investigating. And I think we ought to do that. And I don't think we ought to be providing contracts to anyone who hasn't treated the public trust properly. So Mr. FLAKE and I aren't totally in disagreement, but we're in disagreement on this amendment because that Eastern Gulf of Mexico range that is so important to training Air Force and Navy pilots especially, and seaborne vehicles, is very, very important, and those sensors are part of that training.

I yield back my time.

Mr. FLAKE. I would disagree with the gentleman. I think we're in total agreement on this amendment. CBS News reported ProLogics businesses are getting a lot of attention, a lot of it from the FBI, which is investigating whether it diverted public money for its own private profit. This company is reported to be under investigation. And so should we be giving it an earmark?

The gentleman mentioned that he doesn't know the company. But this we do know; that this company, it's reported by CBS and by others, that it is under investigation, and we're giving an earmark. So when the gentleman says that he thinks that we are in agreement that we shouldn't give earmarks to companies that it's alleged that there's some impropriety going on, I would submit that that's what we have here, according to the press. And unless we know completely that they're clean and doing good work, then we shouldn't give them an earmark. We should instead say to the Department of Defense: you decide. The gentleman mentioned that he doesn't know the company. Does he know if this company is the only company that can provide these services outlined?

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Chair, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

I stand in vigorous support of my request for a Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability. This capability will convey enormous long-term benefits and provide weapons systems in a cost effective manner on time.

DISTRICT INTRODUCTION

For those of you that don't know, I represent the First District of Florida, which is home to Eglin Air Force Base, Air Force Special Operations Command, Naval Air Stations Pensacola and Whiting Field, Cory Station, which hosts the Center for Information Dominance and is the proud future home of the Joint Strike Fighter.

ARGUMENT/JUSTIFICATION

The project fulfills a critical need. Specifically at Eglin Air Force Base, the 46th Range Group has a need for a capability for remote test, collection, storage and relay of various types of data. This capability can be accomplished with a Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability. This capability is needed to support test events which occur over large geographic areas on both land and sea. Examples of this testing include Live, Virtual, Constructive test events, large footprint weapons testing, Directed Energy testing, and hypersonic testing.

This capability does not exist because there is a shortfall across this nation in both adequate range space and instrumentation to realistically test today's long-range stand-off weapons. This problem is expanding with the enhanced performance of weapons in development. The Eglin range remains one of the only locations to test these weapons over its enormous land and water area. The instrumentation shortfalls can and should be addressed today. This project would develop mobile data acquisition capabilities to address the need for cost efficient operations involving remote areas with multiple ranges across the nation. As a simple example, extending a datalink, much like a wireless network, over 150 nautical miles into the Gulf would greatly support test operations. Test professionals need this capability and it will help ensure that our defense test and evaluation capabilities field cost-effective systems.

Developmental test and evaluation brings new capabilities to the battlefield and saves lives. I have had the opportunity to watch some of the magnificent testing conducted on the Eglin range. The 46th Test Wing completed testing last year on the small diameter bomb and it is now being employed for F-15E Strike Eagles in Afghanistan because it offers unique low-collateral damage capability. This testing could be expedited and improved with the instrumentation capability we are discussing now. Future weapons testing includes Tomahawk, Joint Direct Attack Munition, Non-Line of Sight-Launch System, and continued testing of the Small Diameter Bomb. These programs will all benefit from increased safety, shorter tests, and a better product. In the end, this will convey benefits to Military activities across the nation, as we eventually link geographically separate ranges.

The T&E infrastructure, whether administered by a military service or by a Defense Department entity, continues to be a target for budget cuts year after year. In a recent letter I sent to the Secretary of Defense, and the Undersecretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics, I questioned why the 2010 funding for Test and Evaluation is $57.9 million below last year's level and noted that such a lack of funding could negatively impact numerous critical Department of Defense programs.

Five senators, including Senator MARTINEZ and Senator NELSON, recently sent a letter to Chairman INOUE and Senator COCHRAN identifying two Test and Evaluation budget shortfalls in the FY2010 Budget. In fact, Congress created the Director of Test Resource Management in 2003 and in conjunction with the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation, the DTRMC is supposed to be afforded the opportunity to certify each military service's budget every year before it is submitted to Congress. Due to the new Administration and different budget submission timelines, the DTRMC was not able to certify the services' budgets for the Fiscal Year 2010 submission. In the wake of acquisition reform, the Administration must fund areas that contribute to long-term cost savings.

I am looking forward to seeing the contributions of the Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability to future weapon systems. This capability is a critical need because a shortage exists across the nation of adequate instrumentation systems. However, investments in test and evaluation infrastructure provide magnified benefits because they affect so many weapon systems. The right test resources provide weapon systems on time, in a cost-effective manner.

Mr. FLAKE. I yield back.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 432 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk designated as No. 432 in part B.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 432 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Ultra Low Profile EARS Gunshot Localization System.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Just in reference to the last amendment, let me finish my thought there. Here we have, and the ranking minority member on the subcommittee concedes that we shouldn't be giving an earmark to a company if there's allegations out there that they're not doing the job that they're supposed to do, or that there's some cloud hanging over, I would assume. And yet that's what this earmark is for.

And so I seem to hear that, yeah, that we shouldn't do that and that my amendment would be agreed to. But all I heard were noes when my amendment was offered. So I would hope that when it comes time to vote, that Members will say, you know, regardless of everything else, perhaps if it's reported that a company is under investigation, perhaps we shouldn't be giving it an earmark until that's cleared up. And so I would hope that that's remembered when it comes time to vote later this day.

This amendment would strike $1.5 million from the Ultra Low Profile EARS Gunshot Localization System. According to the sponsor's Web site, funding for this localization will produce a completely covert detection system which will enhance situational awareness and survivability of our military.

Mr. Chairman, this sounds like a worthwhile project. Even though the military did not request it, it may be something that we will ultimately benefit from. But why are we earmarking funds again here for a private, for-profit company that will not have to compete, regardless of the language that's in the House bill—that will likely not survive the Senate anyway, but which complies with regulations that the Defense Department says they already have about competition?

According to the sponsor's Web site, Planning Systems, Incorporated, will be the recipient of these funds. What's not included is justification for use of taxpayer dollars to an entity that the receiving entity of these funds was a client of now-defunct PMA Group. We're all familiar, all too familiar with the PMA Group. The PMA Group, and the companies it represented, donated more than $270,000 to the sponsor of this earmark in the 2008 cycle alone. Collectively, employees of the PMA

Group and its clients have contributed nearly $1 million to the sponsor since 1998.

According to the Center for Responsive Politics, this earmark sponsor was the third-highest recipient of contributions from PMA since 1998. And that's not all. The recipient of this earmark, Planning Systems, Incorporated, has contributed more than $35,000 to the campaign of the sponsor of this earmark, again, according to the Center for Responsive Politics.

Again, there is nothing in our House rules that prohibit this. I'm not alleging that there are. But I'm saying that we have to stop this process of circular fund-raising. It just looks too bad outside of this body when we have a process where Members of Congress will earmark spending to an earmark recipient, and that earmark recipient, through its employees, through a PAC, through its lobbyists or through its executives, will contribute very handsomely back to the Member of Congress' campaign committee.

There is no other way to look at this outside of this body, I would say, than to say we shouldn't be doing that, particularly in a process where we're told that there are more than 1,000 earmarks in the bill, just days before the bill comes to the floor, and we know that 552 of those earmarks are no-bid contracts to private companies like this one.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. I rise in opposition to the amendment. I thank the gentleman from Arizona for his conscientious scrutiny, particularly of the appropriations process. I trust perhaps some day he will look at the tax process, the Tax Code, which many of your colleagues are very much aware, has far more earmarks of greater amount. But in deference to the gentleman's concern, again, I would underscore the fact that in this appropriations bill, we make clear, in legislation, that when there is an earmark awarded to a for-profit entity, it shall be awarded under full and open competition.

Now, that's legislative language. It's not intent or report language. It's the law. I appreciate the fact that the gentleman has raised this earmark because otherwise no attention would be given to it since it represents about $\frac{1}{1000}$ of 1 percent of the entire bill, a very small amount, \$1.5 million.

Normally it would go without notice. But fortunately, the gentleman has raised it, so it gives me an opportunity to explain what it does. And it is quite true that Mr. Alan Friedman's firm, who is a terrific person, CEO, and scientist, was represented by PMA, which, in fact, is located in my Congressional district. And I'm proud to have their support, frankly, because they too were conscientious in making sure that their earmarks were fully investigated, vetted, and competitively bid. And, in fact, for the last three straight years, this system was competitively bid and won.

What this system is is called the SWAT system. It is very strongly supported by our military because it saves lives. What it does is to enable people, special operations primarily, and intelligence assets, that are in denied territory, and I don't need to go into detail any further than that, to find out exactly where gunshots are coming from, how far away, and how many snipers there are. And it's worked exceptionally well.

What Mr. Friedman does with this small amount of money is to address one problem with this system, which is that it's bulky. It's very visible. It has radars, and so it's too easily detected by the enemy so, to some extent, our people can be an easier target as a result. What this does is to make this system virtually invisible. And for $1.5 million it's going to save hundreds of lives in our expectation; that's why we are more than confident that when it is competitively bid, which is required by this legislation, it will win this bid.

If the gentleman was actually to look at this system, he, even, would vote to include the money in this bill to ensure this system is available for our military in some of the roughest, most dangerous terrain, so as to save their lives.

I reserve the balance of my time, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. FLAKE. I would simply ask, and maybe when he has his time back, to explain why, if it was open to competition in the last 3 years, why we had to earmark it this year.

The gentleman made the point that's been made again, that these have to be subject to fair and open competition. Let me say again, the Defense Department has said that all along. For years they've said the same thing. We subject these earmarks to full and open competition, but that doesn't stop Members of Congress. As soon as this bill is passed today, there will be a flurry of press releases, I guarantee it, where Members will say, I was successful in securing funding for this particular program. And if it's open to competition, how do you know that you've secured funding?

Let me just read from a couple of the press releases in the past:

I was pleased to secure funding to assist these small businesses in Prince George's County working on projects that will benefit our Nation's military and the safety of our troops.

That was somebody who knows the process pretty well. It's the majority leader. He put out a press release as soon as legislation was passed, not waiting for the competition that supposedly comes when the project gets to the Defense Department. And like I said, tomorrow you'll see a round of those same press releases: I was able to secure funds, because Members know, with uncanny precision, the Defense Department will follow these earmarks.

I would say, again, with this particular earmark it sounds like a great program. The sponsor of the earmark indicated that this was open to competition in the last couple of years. That's great. Why do we have to earmark it this year?

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1200

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. May I inquire how much time I have, Mr. Chairman.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman has 2½ minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, again, in case it wasn't fully understood—this may resolve the gentleman's concern.

In the legislation, it says, again, that all earmarks, when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition.

I can't stress that enough.

Now, to address the gentleman's concern, first of all, I've never made a press announcement about this. In fact, truth be known, I haven't talked to Mr. Friedman for probably a year, and I certainly didn't even let him know that this earmark was in. It was in because we checked with military personnel, vetted it, and found that this was a system that was a substantial improvement over what the military is currently using, which is called the SMART System. This is the EARS System. These are acronyms. This, as I explained, will be a much safer, less visible system that will protect lives.

Now, Mr. Friedman is no longer represented by PMA, and I haven't had contact with him. The fact is, at least in quite some time, this has been in here because of the merits of the project. It's only $1.5 million, but it is highly meritorious. That's why it is in.

I grant you I know about it because it takes place, the work is done, in my congressional district. It also represents jobs, but they're not simply jobs for the sake of keeping people employed; they're jobs to protect our military and civilian personnel in the most dangerous terrain and in the most dangerous places on the planet. That's what this does for $1.5 million.

Now, again, I have enormous respect for the people in the Pentagon, but they don't always move with blazing speed when they are making a change from one system to another. Oftentimes, you go with the status quo. Even though there are deficiencies, it is the easiest thing. What this does and the reason we put many of these earmarks in is that it adds a new level of technology to do a better job of accomplishing its underlying purpose.

With that, I again thank the gentleman for raising this issue.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 439 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR (Mr. HOLDEN). The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 439 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for AARGM Counter Air Defense Future Capabilities.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would prohibit $2.5 million from being directed to Alliant Tech Systems, or ATK, for AARGM Counter Air Defense Future Capabilities.

According to ATK's Web site, AARGM is a supersonic, medium-range, air-launched tactical missile used by the U.S. and by allied forces. The sponsor's Web site and certification letter state that the funds directed to this project in the bill would enable ATK to continue to demonstrate improvements to AARGM, particularly at longer ranges.

Now, here again, I am not going to argue the merits of the problem; neither are most of us here. It's possible that ATK's missile system is the best one out there, but we don't know that. I would suggest that nobody in this body knows that, not even the sponsor of the earmark.

We don't know that because there is no way the Appropriations Committee thoroughly vetted each of the 1,102 earmarked projects in this bill during its 18-minute markup. We don't know that because Members of Congress, in general, don't have the kind of expertise required to make that determination.

In cases like these, when we're determining the kind of missiles that best work for our Armed Forces, it seems to me that the decision is best made by experts at the Department of Defense. Once that determination is made, just like with any other procurement, the contract to make these missiles ought to be competitively bid through the DOD.

But as is the case with nearly 550 of these earmarks, we have a handpicked private company being handed Federal funds for a project based solely on the discretion of one Member of Congress. This is a no-bid contract. This alone should be troubling enough, but there is an additional facet.

I mentioned the problem with circular fundraising that has been detailed by so many media organizations out there. It's getting tiring reading these stories every day. The Associated Press reported that an ongoing FBI investigation is "highlighting the close ties between special interest spending provisions, known as earmarks, and the raising of campaign cash."

As I mentioned, in every one of the individual earmarks that we're discussing today, there are examples of funding going to the earmark recipient, and then the executives from the company, their lobbyists and the PACs are contributing large amounts of campaign dollars back to the sponsors of the earmark. That simply doesn't look right. It may be legal. It is.

Our Ethics Committee has said that you can get campaign contributions in close proximity to earmarks; but Members of this body, I would think, would want to have a higher standard here. We ought to say, you know, maybe we don't know exactly the kind of missile systems that ought to be used. We ought to leave that to those with a little more expertise instead of giving a no-bid contract to a private company which happens to be in the district or doesn't but which is simply willing to provide a lot of campaign contributions.

So I would say, Mr. Chairman, we have to stop this process. We have to say we can no longer afford to award no-bid contracts to private companies, as we have done in the past, regardless of the language that is inserted which says that all of these have to be subject to competition.

We know how it works in the Defense Department because they say now, over the past several years, these have to be subject to competition. Yet, time and time again, when you look, there is an uncanny alignment between the earmark recipient designated by the sponsor of the earmark and the company that eventually gets the dollars.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, again, I would say we can no longer continue to give no-bid contracts to private companies. I would say, as I mentioned, that for those who say we have language now in the bill—and I would certainly yield time to the gentleman, to the chairman of the Subcommittee on Defense—I would hope that he would agree, if they really believe in this language and that if the Senate knocks the language out, that we will not agree to a conference report that has these no-bid contracts in it.

If that is the case, if we are so willing to believe that this language actually has any force—and I don't believe it does because the Defense Department already says that they subject these earmarks to full competition—for those who are placing so much stock in this language, I would assume that they agree so strongly and that they will say these are going to be subject to competition. If the Senate strikes that language out, I would like to hear from those here that the House will also nullify those no-bid contracts, because we have designated who those recipients should be.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Let me read to the gentleman, Mr. Chairman:

"With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled 'Explanation of Project Level Adjustments' in the Report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition."

This amendment would prohibit $2.5 million for AARGM Counter Air Defense Future Capabilities. Now, I know that Members of Congress represent their districts. I know that Arizona gets $9.7 billion in defense. I'm sure that this Member is not worried about the fact that some of this money may go someplace else. I know that's not his reason for this. It's $9.7 billion. It's fifth in the number of defense industries throughout the country. Let me tell the Chair a story:

When I first took over the committee in 1989, I looked at one of the projects that the Navy was working on. They made consoles for all of the ships in the Navy, and they were paid $850,000 for those consoles. We said, You've got to compete them. We had probably 25 to 30 hearings that year. We had 51 trips that we sent the troops on, which is the same as we had this year. We had 37 hearings this year, and we had hundreds and hundreds of meetings.

This one particular program was called the Q-70. We forced them to compete it, and it's a very interesting thing. The Navy went to the Air Force and said, Look, we want you to buy this particular program, and we'll buy it from you. This is so they wouldn't have to compete. Well, the staff found out about it; and in the end, that didn't work and they competed.

That particular console now costs $125,000 per unit. We've saved over $1 billion. They happen to make that in my district. Some people would say that was an earmark. We saved over $1 billion in one contract. On another submarine torpedo contract, we saved over a half a billion dollars.

So small business is the backbone of industry in this country. All the growth has been in small business. These folks are working diligently. They pay taxes. They go home every day, and they know how important it is to do good work. They meet super-specifications from the military. They complain all the time that the specifications are too tough and that competition is too tough.

The first time that I brought defense companies to my district, I had 24 percent unemployment, and we couldn't get any business out of them because none of my companies knew how to do defense work. Now, in Arizona, they obviously know how to do defense work. They've got $9.7 billion worth of business in Arizona. Pennsylvania is not even on the list for the amount of defense work. That's embarrassing with all of the troops that we send. We send more National Guard members to Iraq and Afghanistan than any other National Guard unit in the country. I've lost 19 people in my congressional district, so I feel very strongly about this.

Small business is the backbone. These people that I visit are working hard. They know how tough it is. They know that they meet the specifications, and they bid on these contracts, and they win these contracts, and I'm proud to represent them. With that, I ask for a "no" vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 449 OFFERED BY MR.

FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part B amendment No. 449 offered by Mr. FLAKE:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for AN/SLQ-25D Integration.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would prohibit $8 million from being directed to Argon ST, which is a private systems engineering and development company headquartered in Fairfax, Virginia.

The sponsor's Web site and certification letters say that the funding from this earmark would be used to upgrade current naval torpedo defense capabilities that would enhance ship survivability against the modern threat of a torpedo attack.

This isn't the first time that this company has received Federal funding for a project. This project, itself, received two earmarks, totaling $8.7 million in 2007, and $7.5 million was also allocated to such a system in 2006.

The FEC records indicate that, since 2006, employees of the earmark recipient, Argon ST, have donated more than $47,000 in campaign contributions to the sponsor of the earmark. According to the Center for Responsive Politics, the Argonne PAC made $23,000 in donations to the sponsor's campaign and to his leadership PAC in the 2008 election cycle.

□ 1215

According to the FEC, this represented more than a third of all donations of Argon's PAC made during the election cycle. In addition, during the 2008 cycle, Argon ST was reported to be the second highest contributor to the earmark sponsor's PAC. The funding for this earmark may very well be vital to national defense or it may not be. We just don't know here, I would suggest. But the earmarking system is so opaque that the purposes and justifications for more than 1,100 earmarks in this bill are a mystery to just about everyone.

Again, the committee took a whole 18 minutes to accept this bill on to the floor with a unanimous vote. Had this earmark been closely examined, it would have been revealed that this earmark recipient acquired Coherent Systems in 2007. Coherent Systems' former president and CEO now faces Federal charges for soliciting kickbacks from a defense contractor.

Argon ST is cooperating with Federal authorities in the investigation and is not facing any charges. But in the wake of the Abramoff scandal and the burgeoning PMA scandals, I would simply ask whether Congress should be providing no-bid contracts to private companies involved in Federal investigations. I would submit that it should not.

There is more than $2.7 billion in earmark spending in this bill. We've had less than 2 weeks to go over 1,100 earmarks that comprise this spending. We simply can't continue to do this.

I know the Member will stand up and say these have to be competed out. And I will again ask the Member, and I will actually yield him the rest of my time, if he will stand and say that if the Senate removes this language that requires open competition, if then we will then remove these no-bid contracts.

And I will yield to the gentleman for that. He doesn't have to take my time. He can take his own.

Again, what I am asking is if the Senate removes the language that Members put, I think, too much stock in because the Defense Department says they already subject these contracts to full and open competition, but if the Senate should remove that language, will the Members of this body remove the no-bid contracts, 552 of them, I believe, from the bill.

And I would yield for an answer.

I yield back my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Let me read again to the Chair.

"With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled 'Explanation of Project Level Adjustments' in the Report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of Rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition."

In this particular case, this company is doing very well. Reuters gave them a very high rating. But what we look at is the people that work in those places, the awarding of these contracts, the fact that the Defense Department has such high levels of specification that they insist on.

When you go to a defense company, they have all kinds of things that are added that are not true in most places, and small business is the best you can get at doing this kind of work.

During World War II, we produced 83,000 airplanes in 1 year during 1943, 30,000 tanks. There were some abuses, I'm sure. Today, we don't have that capacity. What we worry about, if we don't have small business doing this, it's going to go overseas, and if it goes overseas, we're going to lose those businesses, we'll lose the ability. We continually put "buy American" in our provisions, and it turns out that it still goes overseas. Much of the airplane parts are built overseas. Much of the parts—if we weren't careful, some of the body armor would be built overseas because some of the companies would be cheaper.

So we insist they be built in this country. We insist Americans do it. And those Americans are so proud of the work that they do, they have Americans flags there. They have pictures of the troops. They have letters from the troops about how proud of the work they are doing, and the government checks continually to make sure they're doing that kind of work, and they meet those specifications.

With that, I would ask for a "no" vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

PART B AMENDMENT NO. 553 OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. I have an amendment at the desk designated number 553 in part B.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, let me note before I start this amendment, again I ask the chairman that if the Senate nullified the language requiring free and open competition, that the House would say, Okay, we will remove these no-bid contracts. I didn't hear an answer to that.

I would suggest that we know full well the Senate will remove that language. I think we put too much stock in the language anyway, but the Senate will surely remove it, because not to remove it might force some Senators to think they might not be able to secure funding for their earmark, and we know that's not going to happen.

So, if we were serious about this language, if we were serious about free and open competition, we wouldn't be earmarking in this fashion. Full stock.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask unanimous consent that this amendment be modified in the form I placed at the desk.

Mr. MURTHA. I object.

The Acting CHAIR. Objection is heard.

Mr. FLAKE. This amendment would prohibit nearly $200 million for more than 70 earmarks for former clients of the PMA Group that would be funded in this bill.

We are now all familiar with the PMA scandal that I think is in the beginning stages and certainly not the end. PMA Group was a prominent lobbying firm that specialized in obtaining defense earmarks for its clients, whose offices were recently raided by the FBI, according to The Hill, as part of a Federal investigation into politically corrupt—potentially corrupt political contributions. The lobbying firm has ceased operations and shuttered its political action committee, but not before, according to The New York Times, leaving a detailed blueprint of how the political money churn works in Congress.

PMA is emblematic of the troubling circular fund-raising that's become entrenched in the current earmarking process. CQ Today noted that the firm has charged $107 million in lobbying fees from 2000 to 2008. Safe to say, the PMA Group was associated with showering Members of Congress with campaign cash.

According to the Center for Responsive Politics, since 1998, the firm and its clients have given $40.3 million total to the candidate committees and leadership PACs of 514 lawmakers, nearly every Member of the current Congress. The Center also reported that members of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee have collected nearly $1 million in campaign cash since 1998 from PMA employees and the firm's PAC. If you include contributions from employees and PACs of the parent companies and subsidiaries of PMA clients, the total jumps to nearly $8 million over the last decade.

In review of the 2008 PMA earmarks, the Sunlight Foundation noted that 40 organizations whose sole lobbyist was PMA had an average return on their lobbying fee investment of more than 2,700 percent. Clients of the firm received at least $300 million worth of earmarks in fiscal year 2009 appropriations legislation, including several that were approved even after news that the FBI raided the firm's office and the justice investigation into the firm was well known. That was earlier this year.

The omnibus spending bill that we approved in January, had money for PMA clients in there just weeks after it was revealed that the PMA's offices had been raided, and we still didn't scrub them out. I would submit if we're not going to do it then, when would we do it?

I believe there are 70 earmarks in this bill for former clients of PMA. And we have had several privileged resolutions, of which I think at one count 29 members of the majority party, and nearly all members of the majority party, agreed that we should have the ethics committee look into the relationship between PMA and campaign dollars that have come to this Congress.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. FLAKE. May I inquire as to the time remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. FLAKE. I would yield the remainder of my time to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK).

Mr. KIRK. I rise in support of this amendment. Coming from Illinois, we know the pace and timing of a Federal investigation. I think it's fairly clear that PMA and several principals will now be indicted.

To protect this House and to protect the Appropriations Committee, I think having a strategic pause in the spending of this money is necessary. It's clear that PMA and its key folks with so many Federal resources now dedicated to this investigation are going to face Federal criminal prosecution.

So to protect this House, this is a wise amendment to put forward to make sure that we can be beyond reproach. As someone who comes from Governor Blagojevich's State and already knows how Federal prosecutions and work goes forward, so many resources have been put forward on this case already that it is clear that an indictment is coming forward. And to protect this House, I think we should adopt the amendment.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition to the amendment. Let me read to the House again—the one Member keeps mentioning over and over again the same thing I'm going to mention.

“With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled ‘Explanation of Project Level Adjustments’ in the Report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of Rule XXI of the House of Representatives, when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition.

As I mentioned, I hope that there is no Member that's trying to protect their own Defense money—$9.7 billion in Arizona—that this is not the reason that there is opposition to these things.

But I don't say that under any circumstances. One thing I say is we put money in for projects. We don't put it in because of any one Representative.

Last year—this PMA is defunct, and this year, we've put the projects in that we thought were worthwhile, not because they're from a Representative, because they don't represent them any more. Those projects are in the budget because Members, themselves, thought they were good projects.

And with that, I ask a "no" on the amendment.

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona. Mr. Chair, my voting record has consistently demonstrated my support for a full investigation of The PMA Group, its lobbying activities, and the relationship between Member budget requests and campaign contributions by the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. I also publicly maintain that all budget requests that The PMA Group lobbied on behalf of should not be funded by the taxpayers. I intend to vote "aye" on this amendment.

Mr. MURTHA. I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

EN BLOC AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FLAKE

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an en bloc amendment made in order under the rule.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 214

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Mobile Integrated Diagnostic and Data Analysis.

AMENDMENT NO. 215

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Mobile Mesh Network Node.

AMENDMENT NO. 216

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Mobile Power 30 kW System Power Control Unit Development Project.

AMENDMENT NO. 217

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Model for Green Laboratories and Clean Rooms.

AMENDMENT NO. 218

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Mortar Anti-Personnel/Anti-Material Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 219

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a MOTS All Sky Imager.

AMENDMENT NO. 220

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Multi-layer Co-extrusion for High Performance Packaging.

AMENDMENT NO. 221

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Multiplexed Human Fungal Infection Diagnostics.

AMENDMENT NO. 222

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Nanocrystal Source Display.

AMENDMENT NO. 223

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Nanofluid Coolants.

AMENDMENT NO. 224

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Nanotechnology for Potable Water and Water Treatment.

AMENDMENT NO. 225

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Nanotechnology Fuze.

AMENDMENT NO. 226

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Nanotechnology-Enabled Self-Healing Anti-Corrosion Coating Products.

AMENDMENT NO. 227

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Networked Reliability and Safety Early Evaluation System.

AMENDMENT NO. 228

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Neural Control of External Devices.

AMENDMENT NO. 229

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Next Generation Communications System.

AMENDMENT NO. 230

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Next Generation Green, Economical and Automated Production of Composite Structures for Aerospace.

AMENDMENT NO. 231

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Next Generation Wearable Video Capture System.

AMENDMENT NO. 232

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Night Vision and Electronic Sensors Directorate.

AMENDMENT NO. 233

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Non-Leaching Antimicrobial Surface for Orthopedic Devices.

AMENDMENT NO. 234

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Novel Zinc Air Power Sources for Military Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 235

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an OMNI Active Vibration Control System.

AMENDMENT NO. 236

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Optimization of the US Army Topographic Data Management Enterprise.

AMENDMENT NO. 237

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Optimizing Natural Language Processing of Open Source Intelligence.

AMENDMENT NO. 238

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Pacific Command Renewable Energy Security Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 239

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Personal Miniature Thermal Viewer.

AMENDMENT NO. 240

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Personal Status Monitor.

AMENDMENT NO. 241

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Plasma Sterilizer.

AMENDMENT NO. 242

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Polymeric Web Run-Flat Tire Inserts for Convoy Protection.

AMENDMENT NO. 243

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Portable Fuel Cell Power Source.

AMENDMENT NO. 244

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Portable Mobile Emergency Broadband Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 245

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Portable Sensor for Toxic Gas Detection.

AMENDMENT NO. 246

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Power Efficient Microdisplay Development for US Army Night Vision.

AMENDMENT NO. 247

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Precision Guidance Kit Technology Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 248

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Precision Guided Airdropped Equipment.

AMENDMENT NO. 249

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Predictive Casting Modeling for Rapid Production of Critical Defense Components.

AMENDMENT NO. 250

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Printed and Conformal Electronics for Military Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 251

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Protein Hydrogel for Surgical Repair of Battlefield Injuries.

AMENDMENT NO. 252

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Qualification and Insertion of New High Temperature Domestic Sourced PES for Military Aircraft.

AMENDMENT NO. 253

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Rapid Response Force Projection Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 254

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Rapid Wound Healing Cell Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 255

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Rare Earth Mining Separation and Metal Production.

AMENDMENT NO. 256

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reactive Materials.

AMENDMENT NO. 257

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Recovery, Recycle, and Reuse of DOE Metals for DoD Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 258

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reduced Manning Situational Awareness.

AMENDMENT NO. 259

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reducing First Responder Casualties with Physiological Monitoring.

AMENDMENT NO. 260

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Remote Bio-Medical Detector.

AMENDMENT NO. 261

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Scalable Efficient Power for Armament Systems and Vehicles Dual Use.

AMENDMENT NO. 262

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Self Powered Prosthetic Limb Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 263

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Sensor Tape Physiological Monitoring.

AMENDMENT NO. 264

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Shared Vision.

AMENDMENT NO. 265

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a SHARK Precision Guided Artillery Round—105mm.

AMENDMENT NO. 266

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Silent Watch, IB NPS 1160 Lithium-Ion Advanced Battery.

AMENDMENT NO. 267

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Silver Fox and Manta Unmanned Aerial Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 268

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Smart Machine Platform Initiative.

AMENDMENT NO. 269

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Smart Oil Sensor.

AMENDMENT NO. 270

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Smart Wound Dressing for MRSA Infected Battlefield Wounds.

AMENDMENT NO. 271

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Soldier Situational Awareness Wristband.

AMENDMENT NO. 272

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Solid Oxide Fuel Cell Powered Tactical Charger.

AMENDMENT NO. 273

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Solid State Process of Titanium Alloys for Advanced Material Armaments.

AMENDMENT NO. 274

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Specialized Compact Automated Mechanical Clearance Platform.

AMENDMENT NO. 275

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Standard Ground Station—Enhancement Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 276

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Superlattice Semiconductors for Mobile SS Lighting and Solar Power Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 277

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Surveillance Augmentation Vehicle.

AMENDMENT NO. 278

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Tactical Cogeneration System.

AMENDMENT NO. 279

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Tactical Metal Fabrication System (TacFab).

AMENDMENT NO. 280

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Tamper Proof Organic Packaging as Applied to Remote Armament Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 281

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Technologies for Military Equipment Replenishment.

AMENDMENT NO. 282

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Telepharmacy Robotic Medicine Device Unit.

AMENDMENT NO. 283

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Testing of Microneedle Device for Multiple Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 284

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Tire to Track Transformer System for Light Vehicles.

AMENDMENT NO. 285

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Treatment of Battlefield Spinal Cord and Burn Injuries.

AMENDMENT NO. 286

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Tungsten Heavy Alloy Penetrator and Warhead Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 287

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for UH-60 Transmission/Gearbox Galvanic Corrosion Reduction.

AMENDMENT NO. 288

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Ultra Light Metallic Armor.

AMENDMENT NO. 289

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Ultra Light Weight Transmissions.

AMENDMENT NO. 290

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Universal Control.

AMENDMENT NO. 291

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Unmanned Robotic System Utilizing a Hydrocarbon Fueled Solid Oxide Fuel Cell System.

AMENDMENT NO. 292

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Vanadium Safety Readiness.

AMENDMENT NO. 293

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Video Compression Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 294

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Voice Recognition and Cross Platform Speech Interface Upgrades.

AMENDMENT NO. 295

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for VTOL Man-Rated UAV and UGV for Medical Multi-Missions and CASEVAC.

AMENDMENT NO. 296

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Waterside Wide Area Tactical Coverage and Homing.

AMENDMENT NO. 297

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Wireless HUMS for Condition Based Maintenance of Army Helicopters.

AMENDMENT NO. 298

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Wireless Medical Monitoring System.

AMENDMENT NO. 299

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for 3D Bias Woven Perform Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 300

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Propulsion Non-Tactical Vehicle.

AMENDMENT NO. 301

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Electromagnetic Location of IEDs Defeat System.

AMENDMENT NO. 302

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Deformable Mirrors for High Energy Laser Weapons.

AMENDMENT NO. 303

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Electronic Components for Sensor Arrays.

AMENDMENT NO. 304

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Lithium Battery Scale-up and Manufacturing.

AMENDMENT NO. 305

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Modular Avionics for Operationally Responsive Satellite Use.

AMENDMENT NO. 306

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Vehicle Propulsion Center.

AMENDMENT NO. 307

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for ALC Logistics Integration Environment.

AMENDMENT NO. 308

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Algae-Derived Jet Fuel for Air Force Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 309

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for AT-6B Demonstration for ANG.

AMENDMENT NO. 310

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for B-1 AESA Radar Operational Utility Evaluation.

AMENDMENT NO. 311

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for B-52 Tactical Data Link Capability.

AMENDMENT NO. 312

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Ballistic Missile Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 313

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a BATMAV Program Miniature Digital Data Link.

AMENDMENT NO. 314

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Big Antennas Small Structures Efficient Tactical UAV.

AMENDMENT NO. 315

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Body Armor Improved Ballistic Protection, Research and Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 316

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Command and Control Service Level Management (C2SLM) Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 317

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Corrosion Detection and Visualization Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 318

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for COTS Technology for Space Command and Control.

AMENDMENT NO. 319

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Cyber Attack and Security Environment.

AMENDMENT NO. 320

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Development and Testing of Advanced Hybrid Rockets for Space Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 321

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Distributed Mission Interoperability Toolkit (DMIT).

AMENDMENT NO. 322

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Domestic Manufacturing of 45nm Electronics.

AMENDMENT NO. 323

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Efficient Utilization of Transmission Hyperspace.

AMENDMENT NO. 324

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Eglin AFB Range Operations Control Center.

AMENDMENT NO. 325

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Transportable Renal Replacement Therapy for Battlefield Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 326

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for EMI Grid Fabrication Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 327

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Florida National Guard Total Force Integration.

AMENDMENT NO. 328

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Gallium Nitride (GaN) Microelectronics and Materials.

AMENDMENT NO. 329

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for GAPS/AWS Horizontal Integration.

AMENDMENT NO. 330

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the Hawaii Microalgae Biofuel Project.

AMENDMENT NO. 331

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for High Bandwidth, High Energy Storage, Exawatt Laser Glass Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 332

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for High Energy Li-Ion Technology for Aviation Batteries.

AMENDMENT NO. 333

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a High Pressure Pure Air Generator System.

AMENDMENT NO. 334

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Hybrid Bearings.

AMENDMENT NO. 335

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Hybrid Nanoparticle-based Coolant Technology Development and Manufacturing.

AMENDMENT NO. 336

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Integrated Engine Starter/Generator.

AMENDMENT NO. 337

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Integrated Propulsion Analysis and Spacecraft Engineering Tools (IPAT/ISSET).

AMENDMENT NO. 338

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Large Area, APVT Materials Development for High Power Devices.

AMENDMENT NO. 339

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Laser Peening for Friction Stir Welded Aerospace Structures.

AMENDMENT NO. 340

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Long-Loiter, Load Bearing Antenna Platform for Pervasive Airborne Intelligence.

AMENDMENT NO. 341

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Low-Defect Density Gallium Nitride Materials for High-Performance Electronic Devices.

AMENDMENT NO. 342

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Micro-machined Switches for Next Generation Modular Satellites.

AMENDMENT NO. 343

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Multilingual Text Mining Platform for Intelligence Analysts.

AMENDMENT NO. 344

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Multi-Mode Propulsion Phase IIA; High Performance Green Propellant.

AMENDMENT NO. 345

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Multiple UAS Cooperative Concentrated Observation and Engagement Against a Common Ground Object.

AMENDMENT NO. 346

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Open Source Research Centers.

AMENDMENT NO. 347

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Planar Lightwave Circuit Development for High Power Military Laser Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 348

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Predator C.

AMENDMENT NO. 349

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Production of Nanocomposites for Aerospace Applications.

AMENDMENT NO. 350

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reconfigurable Secure Computing.

AMENDMENT NO. 382

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for End to End Semi Fab Alpha Tool.

AMENDMENT NO. 383

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Enhancement of Geo-location Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 384

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Environmentally Friendly Nanometal Electroplating Processes for Cadmium and Chromium Replacement.

AMENDMENT NO. 385

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Facility Security Using Tactical Surveys.

AMENDMENT NO. 386

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Flashlight Soldier-to-Soldier Combat Identification System.

AMENDMENT NO. 387

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a GMTI Radar for Class II UAVs.

AMENDMENT NO. 388

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Hand-held, Lethal Small Unmanned Aircraft System.

AMENDMENT NO. 389

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Gulf Range Mobile Instrumentation Capability.

AMENDMENT NO. 390

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Hand-Held Apparatus for Mobile Mapping and Expedited Reporting.

AMENDMENT NO. 391

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for helicopter Cable Warning and Obstacle Avoidance.

AMENDMENT NO. 392

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for High Accuracy Network Determination System—Intelligent Optical Networks.

AMENDMENT NO. 393

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for High Speed Optical Interconnects for Next Generation Supercomputing.

AMENDMENT NO. 394

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Hybrid Power Generating System.

AMENDMENT NO. 395

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for HyperAcute Vaccine Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 396

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Improving Support to the Warfighter.

AMENDMENT NO. 397

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Integrated Analysis Environment.

AMENDMENT NO. 398

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Integrated Rugged Checkpoint Container.

AMENDMENT NO. 399

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Intelligence, Surveillance, and Reconnaissance Global Sensors Architecture (ISR-GSA).

AMENDMENT NO. 400

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Joint Gulf Range Complex Test and Training.

AMENDMENT NO. 401

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Joint Services Aircrew Mask Don/Doff Inflight Upgrade.

AMENDMENT NO. 402

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Lifetime Power for Wireless Control Sensors.

AMENDMENT NO. 403

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Low Cost Stabilized Turret.

AMENDMENT NO. 404

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Material, Design and Fabrication Solutions for Advanced SEAL Delivery System External Structural Components.

AMENDMENT NO. 405

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for MEMS Sensors for Real-Time Sensing of Weaponized Pathogens.

AMENDMENT NO. 406

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Miniature Day Night Sight for Crew Served Weapons.

AMENDMENT NO. 407

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Miniaturized Chemical Detector for Chemical Warfare Protection.

AMENDMENT NO. 408

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Mismatch Repair Derived Antibody Medicines to Treat Staphylococcus-derived Bioweapons.

AMENDMENT NO. 409

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Missile Activity and Characteristics—Releasable.

AMENDMENT NO. 410

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Moldable Fabric Armor.

AMENDMENT NO. 411

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Mosaic Camera Technology Transition.

AMENDMENT NO. 412

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Multi-target Shipping Container Interrogation System Mobile Continuous Air Monitor.

AMENDMENT NO. 413

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for National Radio Frequency Research, Development and Technology Transfer.

AMENDMENT NO. 414

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Optical Surveillance Equipment.

AMENDMENT NO. 415

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Portable Device for Latent Fingerprint Identification.

AMENDMENT NO. 416

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Portable Rapid Bacterial Warfare Detection Unit.

AMENDMENT NO. 417

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Potent Human Monoclonal Antibodies Against BoNT A, B and E Suited for Mass Production and Treatment of Large Populations.

AMENDMENT NO. 418

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Protective Self-Decontaminating Surfaces.

AMENDMENT NO. 419

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Radio Inter-Operability System.

AMENDMENT NO. 420

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Reduced Cost Supply Readiness.

AMENDMENT NO. 421

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Regenerative Filtration System for CBRN Defense.

AMENDMENT NO. 422

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Remote VBIED Detection and Defeat System.

AMENDMENT NO. 423

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Rigid Aeroshell Variable Bouyancy Air Vehicle.

AMENDMENT NO. 424

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) Initiative.

AMENDMENT NO. 425

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Sea Catcher UAS Launch and Recovery System.

AMENDMENT NO. 426

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Secure, Miniaturized, Hybrid, Free Space, Optical Communications.

AMENDMENT NO. 427

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Self-decontaminating Polymer System for Chemical and Biological Warfare Agents.

AMENDMENT NO. 428

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Tactical, Cargo, and Rotary Wing Aircraft Decon.

AMENDMENT NO. 429

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Thermal Pointer/Illuminator for Force Protection.

AMENDMENT NO. 430

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Total Perimeter Surveillance.

AMENDMENT NO. 431

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for UAV Directed Energy Weapons Systems Payloads.

AMENDMENT NO. 432

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Ultra Low Profile EARS Gunshot Localization System.

AMENDMENT NO. 433

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Under-Vehicle Inspection System.

AMENDMENT NO. 434

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Unified Management Infrastructure System.

AMENDMENT NO. 435

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a United States Special Operations Command—USSOCOM/STAR-TEC Partnership Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 436

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a United States Special Operations Command—SOC-RATES High Assurance Platform Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 437

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an X-Band/W-Band Solid State Power Amplifier.

AMENDMENT NO. 438

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a 76mm Swarbuster Capability.

AMENDMENT NO. 439

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for AARGM Counter Air Defense Future Capabilities.

AMENDMENT NO. 440

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Accelerating Fuel Cells Manufacturability.

AMENDMENT NO. 441

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Battery System for Military Avionics Power Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 442

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Capacity Build 12 and 14.

AMENDMENT NO. 443

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Advanced Composite Manufacturing for Composite High-Speed Boat Design.

AMENDMENT NO. 444

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Fuel Filtration System.

AMENDMENT NO. 445

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Logistics Fuel Reformer for Fuel Cells (Phase II).

AMENDMENT NO. 446

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Advanced Manufacturing for Submarine Bow Domes and Rubber Boats.

AMENDMENT NO. 447

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Aegis Research and Development.

AMENDMENT NO. 448

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Air Readiness/Effectiveness Measurement Program.

AMENDMENT NO. 449

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for AN/SLQ-25D Integration.

AMENDMENT NO. 450

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Arc Fault Circuit Breaker with Arc Location.

AMENDMENT NO. 451

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Automated Missile Tracking.

AMENDMENT NO. 452

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Autonomous Anti-Submarine Warfare Vertical Beam Array Sonar.

AMENDMENT NO. 453

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Autonomous UUV Delivery and Communication System Integration.

AMENDMENT NO. 454

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Bow Lifting Body Project.

AMENDMENT NO. 455

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Common Command and Control System Module.

AMENDMENT NO. 456

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Common Digital Sensor Architecture.

AMENDMENT NO. 457

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Common Safety System Controller.

AMENDMENT NO. 458

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Continuous Active Sonar for Torpedo DCL Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 459

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Cooperative Engagement Capability.

AMENDMENT NO. 460

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Countermining LIDAR UAV-Based Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 461

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Electronic Motion Actuation Systems.

AMENDMENT NO. 462

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an EP-3E Requirements Capability Migration Systems Integration Lab.

AMENDMENT NO. 463

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Floating Area Network Littoral Sensor Grid.

AMENDMENT NO. 464

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Flow Path Analysis Tool.

AMENDMENT NO. 465

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Gallium Nitride (GaN) Power Technology.

AMENDMENT NO. 466

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an HBCU Applied Research Incubator.

AMENDMENT NO. 467

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for High Density Power Conversion and Distribution Equipment.

AMENDMENT NO. 468

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a High Power Density Motor Drive.

AMENDMENT NO. 469

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Highly Integrated Siloxane Optical Interconnect for Military Avionics.

AMENDMENT NO. 470

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a High-Shock 100 Amp Current Limiting Circuit Breaker.

AMENDMENT NO. 471

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a High-Temperature Superconductor Trap Field Magnet Motor.

AMENDMENT NO. 472

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Hybrid Propulsion/Power Generation for Increased Fuel Efficiency for Surface Combatants.

AMENDMENT NO. 473

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Image-Based Navigation and Precision Targeting.

AMENDMENT NO. 474

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Improved Kinetic Energy Cargo Round.

AMENDMENT NO. 475

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Infrared Materials Laboratory.

AMENDMENT NO. 476

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Integrated Advanced Ship Control.

AMENDMENT NO. 477

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Integrated Condition Assessment and Reliability Engineering.

AMENDMENT NO. 478

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Integrated Power System Power Dense Harmonic Filter Design.

AMENDMENT NO. 479

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Integrated Psycho-Social Healthcare Demonstration Project.

AMENDMENT NO. 480

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an Integration of Advanced Wide Field of View Sensor with Reusable, Reconfigurable Payload Processing Testbed System.

AMENDMENT NO. 481

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for Intelligent Retrieval of Imagery.

AMENDMENT NO. 482

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for an IP over Power Line Carrier Network Integration with ICAS.

AMENDMENT NO. 483

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for a Joint Explosive Ordnance Disposal Diver Situational Awareness System.

AMENDMENT NO. 484

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arizona. Mr. FLAKE. I thank the chairman. As my colleagues are aware, I submitted 553 amendments to the Rules Committee, each seeking to strike an earmark that was listed by the sponsoring Member as going to a private for-profit earmark—553 amendments. Nearly half of these—I'm sorry. There are 1,102 earmarks representing $2.7 billion. This is not chump change. This is a lot of money going out the door. I'm sorry. I said 553. 552 are listed as going to for-profit companies. If a dollar amount is attached to these earmarks, it's $1.3 billion, comprising nearly half of the earmarked dollars in the bill. I simply do not believe, and I think the country agrees, that we should be doing no-bid contracts for private companies. As much as the Members on the other side of the aisle, and this side aisle, as much of the members of the Appropriations Subcommittee will say that these are going to be competed out, we know that they won't be. We had testimony from the Comptroller General's office in the Government Reform Committee. He said there is no automated database that provides insight into the extent of competition achieved on congressional earmarks. I have been trying for literally months to get some insight into this process. And we were told, as I mentioned, we were told we do compete these out, but then when I asked them to do a random sample of earmarks in a prior bill, they came back and confessed that with uncanny precision, these earmarks find their way to the intended recipients. This process will not change because language has been submitted in this bill just saying they must now be competed. If the Members really believe that statement, then they would agree that if the Senate nullifies that language, that they would strike these no-bid contracts and say that the Defense Department should simply make them all open to competition.

But we know that they're not going to do that because the Members here know the Senate is not going to agree to that language. Even if they did, the Defense Department confesses here: There is no way to really track these, but with uncanny precision, even though they've had a process that they claim subjects these earmarks to open competition, they aren't subjected to open competition. They know that unless they follow the guidelines in these conference reports that they may not get funding next year.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FLAKE. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. If, in fact, we do wind up competing these projects, which is the intent of our committee, wouldn't the gentleman say that that is a major step forward in correcting his concern, if they were, in fact, competed?

Mr. FLAKE. If they were, in fact, competed, we wouldn't need to earmark them. That's the point. An earmark is a way around competition. We've seen it in other appropriations bills, and it's no different here in defense. You earmark dollars because you want that company, either in your district or out, to be sure to receive that funding. That's why in the certification letters the Members say, This earmark is to go to this recipient at this address.

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield on that point?

Mr. FLAKE. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. DICKS. Because, again, the gentleman may not understand the process. It is because that is the company that has made the request of the Member of Congress. The Member of Congress now realizes that it is going to be competed, that it isn't going to necessarily go to that company. I think that is a good reform. I supported it in the Appropriations Committee.

Also, by the way, for the gentleman's knowledge, all of these earmarks, every single earmark, was vetted with the Department of Defense before the committee staff and Members considered those amendments. They were looked at by the Department of Defense.

Mr. FLAKE. Reclaiming my time, I would submit that if it's going to be subjected to competition, there is no reason to name the recipient organization that's to get the earmark.

Mr. DICKS. They're the ones that made the request.

Mr. FLAKE. Excuse me. I have very limited time.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona controls the time.

Mr. FLAKE. May I inquire as to the time remaining?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Arizona has 45 seconds remaining.

Mr. FLAKE. As I mentioned, I have very little time. I will say that if we believe in that language, then we would agree that if the Senate nullifies it, then we would take out these no-bid contracts. Would the gentleman agree to that?

Mr. DICKS. I think we ought to fight for that language in conference to do the very best we can to prevail and to keep that language.

Mr. FLAKE. I would submit that the gentleman knows full well that the Senate will not retain that language, that that bill will come back to the House without that language, and that we, unless we take a stand here—and we can with this amendment—and simply strike funding for those, if these companies are great—some of them are, I'm sure—then they'll win these contracts. If they're not, they won't. But the Member won't be earmarking and saying, This money needs to go to this company at this address. That is a no-bid contract. That's what the Member is seeking; and that, unfortunately, is what happens when it gets to the Defense Department.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I claim the time in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I know that the gentleman from Arizona, who is my friend, listened to the comments that I made when I read from the bill earlier and when others have read from the bill. But I don't think he heard. He listened, but he didn't hear. The intent of this legislation is that any money provided here will be competitively bid.

Now I've gone to the Senate in conference many, many times and have returned so frustrated many, many times. I don't know what the Senate will do on this language or anything else in this bill. But I know if I were a Senator and I was being accused on the floor today, I would be really offended by the fact that he is suggesting that the Senate doesn't want competition. I am not prepared to say that. I think the Senators believe in competition, just like the House.

Mr. FLAKE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. No, I won't. If I have the time, I might; but right now I don't have time.

As we participate in this debate, anyone listening might think that Congress is all a bunch of crooks and that American free enterprise is sneaking in the back door to make money and that the Congress and the Department of Defense are at odds all the time. Well, that's not true. Congress is full of good people. The Defense Department secures our Nation. But they don't have all of the knowledge, and they don't have all of the wisdom. Neither does the administration, neither does the Congress. That's why we work together. I think that's one reason that the drafters of the Constitution included article I, section 9 to say how appropriations should be handled. Now maybe you don't like the way the appropriations are handled. People can make that decision in the House every 2 years. Article I, section 9 says very simply, "No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law." Now what that means is, Congress appropriates the people's money. The Constitution—read it thoroughly—does not say that Congress can only appropriate money requested by the administration. It does say that the administration can only spend money that has been appropriated by the Congress. Now if you don't like that, offer a constitutional amendment. Amend the Constitution. But somebody's got to be responsible, and the Constitution makes Congress responsible.

I said that the Pentagon is not the fountain of all knowledge. I will give you a couple of examples of where Congress has insisted, over objection on the part of the Pentagon, for certain types of appropriations. With the leadership of Jerry Lewis who was the chairman of the subcommittee at the time, this subcommittee and the Congress insisted that we buy, produce and deploy unmanned aerial vehicles. We call it the Predator; and next to the American soldier on the ground, al Qaeda fears that Predator more than any other weapon that we have. The Pentagon didn't want it. It was not in any budget request. Congress insisted, and it has become one of the most effective weapons that we have in the war against terror in Iraq and in Afghanistan.

Then on another side of it—not taking out the enemy but saving our own people—without any support from the administration, Congress created something we refer to as the Bone Marrow Transplant Program. It is a life-saving program that has saved the lives of thousands of people. The administration didn't like it. They just thought we were wasting our time trying to do it, but we did it anyway. They told us we would never develop probably, maybe 50,000 people willing to donate their bone marrow to save the life of another human being, but we prevailed. Today there are over 7 million people in the registry that we created with an earmark that are saving lives every day not only in America but in many countries around the world. We have relationships with 13 other countries where we exchange patients and exchange bone marrow over the oceans to save people's lives, to give them a chance for life. That was a congressional earmark.

The Acting CHAIR. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona will be postponed.

It is now in order to consider amendments printed in part C of House Report 111-233.

PART C AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. CAMPBELL

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, I have at the desk Campbell amendment No. 1.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part C amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. CAMPBELL:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in title II under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps" shall be available for the MGPTS Type III or Rapid Deployable Shelter project, and the amount otherwise provided under such heading is hereby reduced by $3,000,000.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would strike the $3 million earmark for the Rapid Deployable Shelter project, which money would go to Johnson Outdoors Inc. Mr. Chairman, during the debate on the previous earmark, there's been a lot of discussion on all the previous earmarks about how the earmarks say that they are to be competitively bid. I guess the question that I would have is: If, in fact, the earmarks are to be competitively bid, why did the author/sponsor of this earmark send in his certification letter to the ranking member and the chairman of the Appropriations Committee to say, "The entity to receive funding for this project is Johnson Outdoors Inc., 625 Conklin Road, Binghamton, New York, 13903."

So I would ask the question of the sponsor: If these are to be competitively bid, how do you reconcile that with the statement that "the entity to receive funding for this project is"?

Mr. DICKS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CAMPBELL. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. I think it's a very simple answer. It's the company that made the request. But that doesn't mean that when there is a competition that this funding is going to necessarily go to that company. But if you want the people to certify that they don't have a financial interest, you've got to put down the name of the company that made the request.

Mr. CAMPBELL. If I can reclaim my time, and I understand—the gentleman from Washington and I have discussed this. Frankly, some day I hope—maybe after this, which is the last appropriations bill—we can sit down and see if we can figure something out here. Because this says, "The entity to receive the funding for the project is." If that's not dispositive, I don't know what is.

Mr. DICKS. We might want to change that language to "will compete for the project."

Mr. CAMPBELL. Well, then, don't list the entity. If somebody requested the money, and the expectation is that they're going to get it, then where is the competitive bidding? Shouldn't we just simply say, Here is a project. Here is what it is. There is no name. There is no indication. Let whoever wants to bid for this thing compete for it, and require that there be a minimum of three bidders or the earmark doesn't go out. Because sometimes these things are written to a specific product that perhaps only one company makes.

I understand the gentleman from Washington's point on this, but I hope you understand mine. Mr. Chairman, this is a stain on this House. I don't want to be doing this. We've all got better things to do. There happens to be a recession going on. There are a lot of people out of work. There happens to be a big and legitimate debate about how health care should go forward in this country. We have a lot of things to do. But this has been a stain on this House, these earmarks, particularly the ones on private companies. I don't do any earmarks; and arguably, if I were king, I don't think we should do any in this House at all. I understand the legitimate argument for them, but I absolutely reject any thought or idea that earmarks that go to private entities like this, with a direction to a private entity, are anything but a stain in this House.

Mr. Chairman, there are former Members of this body in jail today because of earmarks to private entities. I wish I could say that there will never be any more, but I don't know that. But the way we won't have any more is if we stop this practice, and we don't do this sort of thing again in the future. This really is about this House and the integrity of this House and the view of the integrity of this House to the outside world, to our constituents, and to the people of the United States.

I would ask a couple of more questions. I am almost out of time. But did the company submit for defense procurement and was turned down, is that why you have this earmark? How did you determine the price, that $3 million is the right price? And will you, as other Members have, commit that you have not received and will not accept campaign contributions from company executives, employees, shareholders or lobbyists on this entity? Other Members on this floor have made that commitment.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I will yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I just want to make it clear that we're dealing with a situation here which is critically important to military personnel both here in the United States and in many places around the world.

□ 1245

I'm sure that the sponsor of this amendment doesn't realize what it's like not to have a roof over your head, but if you're in the military and you're stationed out in places that are difficult and hazardous to deal with, it's important to have these tents.

The particular entity with which we are focusing attention on in this particular earmark to provide these tents is a company that has done so over and over again in the context of bidding—and bidding successfully—for it. The Army and Marine Corps, just as an example, currently have unmet needs for shelters, and those unmet needs are growing.

This year, the tent and shelter industry was informed by the Marine Corps—just by the Marine Corps—of a need of 9,000 tents. Unfortunately, those real priorities are not resulting in production orders. And the main reason they're not resulting in production orders is due to the way in which the Department of Defense has focused on other things and not dealing with this particular aspect of the needs of military personnel in a number of places, here and in a lot of other places which are dangerous around the world, Iraq, Afghanistan, places like that, for example. So without this stop-gap funding for these shelter programs, our troops could literally be without that roof over their head.

The Defense Logistics Agency had stated that the tent and shelter industry is a critical part of the U.S. defense industrial base, and they did that in the context of a report to the Congress. So supporting this amendment by Mr. CAMPBELL will leave the United States military with a smaller, less competitive, and potentially foreign source of this essential material which is needed by our military personnel.

You're dealing with something that is fundamentally essentially important. And in the context of this particular situation, if we didn't deal with it in this particular way, perhaps these manufacturing operations would come from places outside the United States. There are a lot of people here, apparently, who are opposed to many of the things that we're doing, who are not opposed to having manufacturing activities in other parts of the world and not here.

So this is what we are intending to do, to make sure that the military gets the security, the safety that they need and, at the same time, to ensure in every way that we can that the manufacturing process is done here in the United States so that these jobs are going to be an important part of our dealing with this economic recession, which was put forward over the course of the previous 8 years and is now something that we are dealing with effectively.

So if you're opposed to this earmark, it really doesn't make any sense. If you're opposed to the amendment, that makes perfect sense. And that is exactly what we're doing, for all of the good reasons that I have stipulated, and that's why this amendment should remain as an important part of this absolutely essential piece of legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The Acting CHAIR. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

PART C AMENDMENT NO. 8 OFFERED BY MR. CAMPBELL

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, I have amendment No. 8 at the desk.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Part C amendment No. 8 offered by Mr. CAMPBELL:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following:

TITLE X—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in title IV under the heading "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army" shall be available for the Model for Green Laboratories and Clean Rooms project, and the amount otherwise provided under such heading is hereby reduced by $1,500,000.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL) and a Member opposed each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, first, before I discuss this amendment, I would like to make a comment relative to the gentleman from New York's defense of his earmark before.

If, in fact, these shelters are necessary—and I'm not going to dispute that point with the gentleman, they may in fact be—then why do we not have a designation that the Defense Department shall procure 9,000, 90,000, whatever it is, items of shelter, and they should procure them from a U.S.-based source, and they should do it under competitive bidding and get at least three bids and pick that which is deemed to be the highest quality and the lowest cost? Wouldn't that be an appropriate way to do this?

And that's what I am saying, and I think the gentleman from Arizona before me is saying. We are not here—and certainly I am not here—to say that it is not Congress' right to appropriate funds. It is, in fact, the right, as you have all pointed out, as enumerated in the Constitution. However, there is a right way to do that and there is a wrong way to do that. And with these 552 no-bid, going-to-private-companies earmarks, amounting to $1.3 billion, which if the 18 minutes of debate in committee were spent entirely on the earmarks means that each earmark received 2 seconds of debate, this is not the proper way to do it.

This particular earmark, Mr. Chairman, would strike $1.5 million designated for the Green Laboratories and Clean Rooms project and would reduce the overall funding of the bill by an equivalent amount, and this money is intended to go to Amethyst Technologies. And again, as we have discussed, if this is competitively bid, why does the sponsor's letter, which I have here, of certification of this earmark say, and I quote, "The contact name and address is Ms. Kimberly Brown, President, Amethyst Technologies, 1450 South Rolling Road, Suite 2041, Baltimore, Maryland, 21227?"

Mr. Chairman, again I would ask—and I don't think I see the author of the earmark—but let me ask someone over there, whoever is going to deal with this, why, again, is only one company listed if it is to be competitively bid?

If there is no response to that, then I guess I would ask, did this company submit this to the Defense Department for procurement? Did this company even try to go to the Defense Department and make their case with those in the military whose job it is to determine what is best for the military?

Mr. TAYLOR. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. CAMPBELL. I will yield, yes.

Mr. TAYLOR. I want to thank the gentleman. You ask a great question. The reason is, in the 6 years that he was Secretary of Defense, Don Rumsfeld decimated the defense acquisition community, fired tens of thousands of people who would have drawn those drafts and would have put it out for bid. We are trying to reconstitute that community right now.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Reclaiming my time, Donald Rumsfeld is no longer Secretary of Defense, has not been for some time, and there is a different President. We are dealing with appropriations for a fiscal year that begins later this year and goes into 2010.

Look, if you think this is necessary, just don't say it's for this company, that it's $1.5 million. Because another question I would have is, how do you determine the $1.5 million is the right price? What are you getting for $1.5 million, and how do you know you couldn't get the same thing somewhere else for half that?

And I will yield.

Mr. TAYLOR. You are exactly right. Because of the lack of trained professionals, there really isn't anyone in the DOD anymore who can say what something should cost. You don't learn that overnight. Now, we are trying to restore that—

Mr. CAMPBELL. Just reclaiming my time, I'm happy to exchange, but if there's nobody, then isn't that something the Armed Services Committee should be dealing with?

And I would yield.

Mr. TAYLOR. And we are dealing with it.

The other part is, on those major programs, starting with the big ones, whenever we buy something here going forward, we are demanding that when we buy something, we own the technical data package, that from now on we will own the specifications so that—

Mr. CAMPBELL. Reclaiming my time—

Mr. TAYLOR. If we think the contractor is not being fair with us, we can put it out for bid for someone else.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Reclaiming my time, could I inquire as to how much time I have remaining, Mr. Chairman?

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from California has 30 seconds remaining.

Mr. CAMPBELL. I am going to reserve the balance of my time, and I would ask that the gentleman please continue his argument on his time.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I reserve my time.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, one other question, one that didn't get answered on the last earmark, and I will ask it again on this particular earmark. I understand the sponsor is not here, but will the sponsor commit, as other people have done on this floor, that he has not received and will not accept campaign contributions from the company, its executives, its stockholders, employees, or lobbyists, or other people who can benefit directly from the earmark? Because, Mr. Chairman, if people won't do that, then as the gentleman from Arizona and others have suggested, that is where, perhaps, we can get in deeper trouble on these sorts of things in the future.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for an "aye" vote.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, let me read the policy of the committee. The full committee just brought me the policy which answers the gentleman's question.

Under the policies adopted by the great Appropriations Committee, "The use of Member earmarks awarded to for-profit entities as a functional equivalent of no-bid contracts is ended.

"In cases where the committee funds an earmark designated for a for-profit entity, the committee includes legislative language requiring the executive branch to nonetheless issue a request for proposal that gives other entities an opportunity to apply and requires the agency to evaluate all bids received and make a decision based on merit. The legislative language included in the bills requires 'full and open competition.'

"This gives the original designee an opportunity to be brought to the attention of the agency, but with the possibility that an alternative entity may be selected."

Now, let me read to the gentleman, Mr. Chairman: "With respect to the list of specific programs, projects and activities contained in the tables entitled 'Explanation of Project Level Adjustments' in the Report of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, those which are considered congressional earmarks for purposes of Rule XXI"—this is on page 113 of the bill—"when awarded to a for-profit entity, shall be awarded under full and open competition."

In this particular case, they strike $1.5 million from hospital maintenance and so forth. Nobody, there is no committee in the Congress—the authorizing committees work on different things. We work on making sure that the medical facilities are clean, making sure that they are taken care of. And Mr. BISHOP offers an amendment which wants to make sure that the funding would provide for development, renovation, maintenance, to test the environmental sustainable laboratories, hospitals, and clean rooms for drug development.

I ask for a "no" vote.

I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

Mr. TAYLOR. Again, I would remind the gentleman; the gentleman makes the point that we have had a new administration for 6 months. Don Rumsfeld, the guy who said he knew the Iraqis had weapons of mass destruction and he knew they were going to use them, decimated the acquisition force.

Unless you own the specs, you can't put it out for competition. We are in the process, in the Armed Services Committee, of getting the specifications of everything we buy from here on out—something Rumsfeld never did—so that we can have the kind of competition that the gentleman seeks. We are in the process of doing so, starting with the Littoral Combat Ship.

If the gentleman has a question, I would be more than happy to answer it.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. TAYLOR. Sure.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Does the gentleman see a problem with doing these in the future without a company name?

Mr. TAYLOR. Again, there will be times when someone who has invented something comes to Congress and says, I have something that is bigger, faster, smaller, faster—whatever the deal is. And if that person says, and by the way, I own the unique rights to this, do you want to buy it from me or not? That first time it makes sense for the Nation to buy it. It also makes sense for the Nation to say, from here on out, when we buy your product, we are buying the specifications with it so we can get it from somebody else in the future.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TAYLOR. Sure.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time and ask for a "no" vote.

The Acting CHAIR. The gentleman from Pennsylvania controls the time and he has yielded back his time.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL).

The question was taken; and the Acting Chair announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments printed in House Report 111-233 on which further proceedings were postponed, in the following order:

Amendment No. 1 printed in part A by Mr. MURTHA of Pennsylvania.

Amendment No. 3 printed in part A by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 5 printed in part A by Mr. TIERNEY of Massachusetts.

Amendment No. 1 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 258 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 389 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 432 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 439 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 449 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 553 printed in part B by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendments en bloc by Mr. FLAKE of Arizona.

Amendment No. 1 printed in part C by Mr. CAMPBELL of California.

Amendment No. 8 printed in part C by Mr. CAMPBELL of California.

The Chair will reduce to 2 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

 There is 1 minute remaining in this vote.

□ 1332

Mrs. MALONEY changed her vote from “aye” to “no.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Chair, during rollcall vote No. 663 on H.R. 3326, I mistakenly recorded my vote as “no” when I should have voted “aye.”

Stated against:

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Mr. Chair. Today, July 30, 2009, I was unavoidably detained on rollcall No. 663.

Had I voted, I would have voted “no” on rollcall No. 663.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE ACTING CHAIR

The Acting CHAIR (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining.

□ 1404

Mr. HALL of Texas changed his vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The Acting CHAIR. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the “Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2010”.

The Acting CHAIR. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. ALTMIRE) having assumed the chair, Mr. HOLDEN, Acting Chair of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3326) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 685, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Pursuant to House Resolution 685, the question on adoption of the amendments will be put en gros.

The question is on the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. In its present form, I am.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Frelinghuysen moves to recommit the bill H.R. 3326 to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendments:

Page 2, line 22, after the dollar amount, insert “(increased by $100,000,000)”

Page 26, line 9, after the dollar amount, insert “(increased by $304,800,000)”

Page 29, line 21, after the dollar amount, insert “(reduced by $404,800,000)”

In section 8120, strike “None of the funds appropriated” and all that follows through “$368,800,000 of the funds” and insert “Funds”.

In section 8120, strike paragraph (1) (and redesignate subsequent paragraphs accordingly):

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the motion to recommit be considered read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New Jersey is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The motion to recommit would restore funding originally included in the bill as reported by the Appropriations Committee for advanced procurement for 12 F-22 aircraft and allow the program to move forward. It would also provide an additional $100 million for the Army military personnel accounts. These increases are offset by cutting $400 million in unrequested funds for the Presidential helicopter, a troubled program that the President himself has proposed to eliminate.

My motion to recommit is consistent with the recently passed Defense authorization bill which recognized the continued vital need for the F-22 by authorizing an additional F-22 aircraft and, at the same time, did not authorize additional funding for the President's helicopter.

Mr. Speaker, while much is made of the President's threatened veto of this bill over the F-22, the fact of the matter is the President has also threatened a veto over funding for the Presidential helicopter. While I appreciate the President has a role in this process, it is Congress, not the President, that has the power of the purse. I do not believe that we should simply take the President's budget proposal and rubber-stamp it.

In addition, my motion to recommit begins to fill a known funding shortfall in the Army military and personnel accounts that resulted from Secretary Gates' recent decision to increase the total Army end strength by 22,000 troops to support the administration's Afghanistan policy.

My motion would also leave intact the additional funds added in the Murtha amendment for four of the Air Force's unfunded priorities.

I urge my colleagues to support this motion to recommit.

I yield to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. BISHOP), a member of the Armed Services Committee, for the remaining time.

Mr. BISHOP of Utah. Mr. Speaker, we all know that to maintain air superiority, which we have had since the Korean War, requires two elements: one is the technological ability, which we know the F-22 provides, but the other is the numerical superiority that we have to have, which is why, when this program was originally started, it was supposed to be 750 planes.

Even as late as last year, the military was telling us 381 maintains the status quo and 243 is the absolute minimum, a number still maintained by Air Combat Command, by the Air National Guard, by 30 of the military studies over the last 15 years. Even the Chief of Staff admitted the 243 is what they needed.

The only person that said 187 is the Secretary of Defense. There is no study to verify that number. That number is a political number, not a military number.

As we go into the future where the Russians are building a new generation fighter with 200 to 300 extra planes to sell to countries like Iran and Venezuela, when we then couple that by cutting 250 legacy planes already in the Air Force and stopping the F-22 and having an F-35 which will not be available under the best of circumstances until 2014, maybe even 2016 as we are talking about it, what we are doing is putting ourselves in danger 10 and 15 years out of being on the wrong side of history. We cannot do that.

This amendment mirrors what the House voted on the Defense authorization bill by putting back procurement money for 12 F-22s and adding $100 million for military personnel to help the anticipated shortfall in the upgrade in what we are doing in Afghanistan.

This is the right thing to do. This is what the military needs. We should not simply make a political decision, because I hate to say this in this crass of a way, but when we can authorize $5 billion for groups like ACORN but $2 billion to keep 18,000 jobs going and provide planes for another year that this country needs, we have something to do to look at our priorities. The $2 billion is for the defense of this country into the future. The military needs this plane.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Please support the motion to recommit.

I yield back.

Mr. MURTHA. I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MURTHA. I've said over and over again, I have been for the F-22. The point is we'd need 292 votes here in order to pass the F-22. We'd need 66 votes in the Senate. The Senate voted 58-40 against it. So we have no alternative.

Now, what I've done is try to robustly fund the program as it is. In other words, they have 187. Let's make sure it's funded adequately. Let's make sure they have what they need. They have a lot of maintenance questions about the F-22. There is no question about it, and so we need to make sure it's robustly funded.

The Presidential helicopter, $3.2 billion we spent on this thing. We ought to get something out of it. One of the Secretaries said to me the other day that they are going to spend another $2 billion if you get it right. I said, Wait a minute; how much do you think you will spend if you have to do another one?

I'm trying to work something out with the White House on that and other issues.

It took a little more time than I expected in this bill today, but I'd appreciate a "no" vote on this vote to recommit.

I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for electronic vote on the question of passage.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 169, noes 261, not voting 3, as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There are 2 minutes remaining in this vote.

□ 1432

Ms. BALDWIN changed her vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. BURGESS and Mrs. KIRKPATRICK of Arizona changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Under clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 400, nays 30, not voting 3, as follows:

NOT VOTING—3

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). There is 1 minute remaining in the vote.

□ 1440

Mr. GRIFFITH changed his vote from “yea” to “nay.”

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated against:

Mr. CONYERS. Madam Speaker, on July 30, 2009, I inadvertently cast a “yea” vote for H.R. 3326. I intended to vote “nay.”

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I request that the RECORD note that for rollcall No. 661, Murtha of Pennsylvania Part A Amendment No. 1, I voted “no”, but would like the RECORD to reflect, I intended to vote “aye.”

I request that the RECORD note that for rollcall No. 675, making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2010, I voted “yea”, but would like the RECORD to reflect, I intended to vote “nay.”

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 663 I inadvertently voted “no.” I intended to vote “yes.”

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announces a correction to an earlier vote tally. On rollcall vote No. 666, the ayes were 76 and the noes were 350.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2749, FOOD SAFETY ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2009

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 691 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 691

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 2749) to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to improve the safety of food in the global market, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived except those arising under clause 9 or 10 of rule XXI. In lieu of the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Energy and Commerce now printed in the bill, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as adopted. The bill, as amended, shall be considered as read. All points of order against provisions of the bill, as amended, are waived. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce; and (2) one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from New York is recognized for 1 hour.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlelady from North Carolina, Representative FOXX. All time yielded during consideration of the rule is for debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. SLAUGHTER. I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and insert extraneous materials into the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. JACKSON of Illinois). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, today the House will consider H.R. 2749, the Food Safety Enhancement Act, legislation that will help make our food supply safer and cleaner and provide much-needed peace of mind to American families.

Too often recently, we have watched horrible news reports showing stories of Americans who have become terribly sick or have died from eating the same simple foods that we take for granted and consume every day. Think about that for a minute. Our country, one of the wealthiest in the world with the most bountiful food supply and endless choices for consumers, has been in the grip of a food panic that shows no signs of easing up. Peanut butter, spinach, cookie dough, beef, tomatoes, sprouts, pistachios—every day it seems like it's something new.

We know that every year 76 million Americans are sickened from consuming contaminated food, and 5,000 of those persons die. This issue has probably touched every one of us in some way. In too many cases, they're not random, unpredictable events but widespread and systematic. And sadly, they are also preventable. They come about because of flaws in our food safety system. I am happy to say that these gaps in protection are closed by this legislation.

Under this bill, we give the FDA new authority, new tools, and a new source of funding to carry out its vital mission. Thanks to this bill, the FDA will make more frequent inspections of food processing facilities, develop a food trace-back system to pinpoint the source of food-borne illnesses, and have enhanced powers to ensure that imported foods are safe.

The bill provides the FDA better access to the records of food producers and manufacturers without having to wait for an outbreak of food-borne illness.

The bill provides strong, flexible enforcement tools and, importantly, it strengthens penalties imposed on food facilities that fail to comply with safety requirements.

We require food facilities to have safety plans in place to identify and mitigate hazards, one of the best ways to make an immediate improvement to food safety.

The legislation before us is bipartisan, and I think it is safe to say it will fundamentally change the way we protect the safety of our food supply.

It is worth noting the bill was approved by the Energy and Commerce Committee back on June 17 by voice vote. That is how broad the support was.

□ 1445

We know this bill enjoys a lot of support from all Members. It received 280 votes yesterday, including 50 Republican votes that I'm happy to have and very confident that the bill will enjoy the same level of support today.

I will enter a copy of an editorial from today's New York Times into the RECORD. The page made the following points:

"Under the current system, the FDA can only try to coax a food production facility to voluntarily recall its product after people have grown sick or even died. The legislation, the best in years, would give the agency a great deal more power and responsibility to prevent such outbreaks. The FDA would finally have the authority to set strong science-based safety standards for the growing, harvesting, and transporting of both domestic and imported food. The agency would then require each food production facility to come up with the best safety plan showing how it would meet those standards.

"Right now several years or more can elapse before the FDA does a full onsite inspection of a food facility. Most inspections are done by States and not all plants are visited. Under this bill so-called high-risk facilities, ones where there have been problems in the past or ones that handle easily spoiled items like raw seafood, would have to be inspected by the FDA every 6 to 12 months. Lower-risk facilities, which deal with items like dry packaged products with no history of causing problems, would be inspected every 18 months to 3 years."

As others have noted, the legislation is supported by a range of organizations including Consumers Union, Consumer Federation of America, American Public Health Association, Association of Schools of Public Health, Center for Science and the Public Interest, The Pew Charitable Trusts, Trust for America's Health, and the Grocery Manufacturers Association.

I was disappointed yesterday that some farm organizations seem unwilling to support the legislation even after the committee negotiated in good faith to address their concerns. That lack of support cost us the two-thirds support needed for passage.

I want to address a few other concerns, including one complaint that every farm has to pay an annual $500 fee. I would like to point out that that requirement does not apply to farms that sell directly to consumers, meaning most if not all small family organic farms would not be covered.

Another concern centered on what this bill would mean to small organic farmers and whether the larger FDA power would interfere with their operations. The bill specifically says the FDA can only issue standards for the riskiest products, and the FDA is also directed to take into consideration the impact on small-scale and diversified farms and on wildlife habitat, conservation practices, watershed protection efforts, and organic production methods.

Yet another issue centered on whether confidential farm records might be disclosed by the FDA to others. In fact, the only new records that the FDA can have access to relate only to fresh produce for which the FDA has issued a safety standard or that is the subject of an active investigation of a food-borne illness outbreak.

It is my hope that the small farmers in my district in upstate New York and elsewhere see this bill as a positive step forward in improving safety. Ultimately, we should feel confident about the quality of our food regardless of whether it comes from a big farm or a small family-run organic farm.

Let me touch on one other issue as well. The legislation does not include strong new language to restrict the current overuse, I would say abuse, of antibiotics by farmers who raise livestock for human consumption. We have legislation that has a strong and growing number of supporters who, like me, worry that the use of nontherapeutic antibiotics in our food supply poses an enormous and growing health risk for all Americans. It is my plan to make a strong push on this legislation later in the year, and I hope all my colleagues who are ready to vote for this food safety bill will be with us when we take up the Preservation of Antibiotics for Medical Treatment Act.

Let's approve this food safety bill right now and start taking steps to make sure that our food supply is as safe as it can be.

[From The New York Times, July 30, 2009]

VOTE FOR SAFER FOOD

Far too many Americans are falling ill after eating foods tainted with salmonella,

E. coli and other pathogens. The Food and Drug Administration, which is charged with protecting much of the nation's food supply, doesn't have the authority or the tools to do its job. The House of Representatives can start to fix that problem if it votes this week to approve the Food Safety Enhancement Act.

Under the current system, the F.D.A. can only try to coax a food production facility to voluntarily recall its product after people have grown sick or even died. The legislation, the best in years, would give the agency a great deal more power and responsibility to prevent such outbreaks.

The F.D.A. would finally have the authority to set strong science-based safety standards for the growing, harvesting and transporting of both domestic and imported food. The agency would then require each food production facility to come up with the best safety plan showing how it would meet those standards.

To investigate possible food problems, the F.D.A. would be able to demand far more information during inspections, and it would be required to set up a process for tagging food to make it easier to trace the source of a food-borne illness. The tomato business was devastated last year when tomatoes were blamed for an outbreak of salmonella that was really caused by tainted jalapeño and other peppers.

Right now, several years or more can elapse before the F.D.A. does a full on-site inspection of a food facility. Most inspections are done by states, and many plants are not visited at all. Under this bill, so-called high-risk facilities—ones where there have been problems in the past or ones that handle easily spoiled items like raw seafood—would have to be inspected by the F.D.A. every 6 to 12 months. Lower-risk facilities, which deal with items like dry packaged products with no history of causing problems, would be inspected every 18 months to three years. For that reason, the F.D.A. will need more inspectors, but it is unclear whether new license fees of $500 a year per food facility will be enough to pay for them.

The bill does not solve all of the problems of food safety, of course. There will still be a patchwork of federal inspection programs done by a variety of different agencies. In the future, one food agency that works for consumers and food producers makes more sense. Right now, the F.D.A. has the responsibility for 80 percent of the nation's food supply, and this bill would give it a lot more of the muscle it needs to do that job.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to thank my colleague from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), Chair of the Rules Committee, for yielding time. This is a bill I know she feels strongly about.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is being brought to the floor as a rule bill today because it failed to win enough votes to pass under the Suspension Calendar yesterday. It's being brought to the floor under a closed rule. This is yet another closed rule on top of an entire appropriation season filled with closed rules. And I come before you today deeply concerned by the closed rule we have before us.

After promising the American people during campaign season that this would be the most open and honest Congress in history, Speaker PELOSI has gone back on her word by making this the most closed and restrictive Congress in history. Instead of having their ideas heard, the American people are being silenced with Speaker PELOSI's justification that "we won the election; so we decide."

Majority Leader HOYER stated this past February his agreement with restoring the House to the regular order process of legislating. He said, "I think that is a very important pursuit . . . our committees and Members are served on both sides of the aisle by pursuing regular order. Regular order gives to everybody the opportunity to participate in the process in a fashion which will affect, in my opinion, the most consensus and the best product."

If the majority leader believes this, then why, Mr. Speaker, are we faced with another closed rule today? As my colleagues have expressed time and time again, bringing this number of bills to the floor under closed rules is unprecedented. It does an injustice to both Democrats and Republicans who want to have the opportunity to offer amendments and participate in debate with their colleagues over pressing issues of our time. By choosing to operate in this way, the majority has cut off the minority and their own colleagues from having appropriate input in the legislative process. This is not the way the greatest deliberative body in the world should operate.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I now yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, based upon yesterday's vote on H.R. 2749, the Food Safety Enhancement Act, one would think that the Democrat leadership would say, wait, maybe we have some issues here that need to be taken care of. Maybe we should refer this bill to the Committee on Agriculture and get some of these problems cleaned up. Instead of taking the lesson from yesterday's defeat on this bill on the Suspension Calendar, the Democrat leadership has decided to run this bill through the House under a closed rule with no debate and no amendments.

I would ask: What's the problem with referring this bill to a committee of jurisdiction to make technical, yet necessary, changes? Why not allow an amendment to clean up some of the bill's problems regarding production agriculture and other rural businesses?

All of us want to support a food safety bill. I will say that again: All of us, including me, want to support a food safety bill. I also believe that if the majority would allow a referral to the Committee on Agriculture, this food safety bill would receive wide and bipartisan support. However, the Democrat leadership has taken its my-way-or-the-highway approach that leaves those of us from rural America unable to support this legislation.

Yesterday when H.R. 2749 was on suspension, I raised issues that concern farmers and ranchers. The primary concern is an inadequate exemption for grain farmers and livestock producers. True, the bill exempts grain farmers from performance standards and record-keeping from growing and harvesting activities, but it fails to exempt on-farm grain storage and transportation activities. So while I thank the members of the Energy and Commerce Committee for trying to accommodate us, it's still not right and more needs to be done.

Another problem I would like to raise today involves the grain-handling industry, which affects thousands of small grain elevators across the country where farmers deliver their grain. Many of these facilities are already subject to USDA grain inspections. Many are also subject to State and Federal warehouse licensing fees.

However, this bill gives duplication authority to the FDA to do its inspections. It also imposes a one-size-fits-all registration fee for grain-handling facilities large and small. What's the point of the fee? Grain elevators are already subject to licensing fees; so it must be to impose another revenue-raising tax.

A country-of-origin labeling is included in this bill, but we don't need country-of-origin labeling for grain. Unlike meat, grain is a fungible product, and while it's possible, although difficult, to identify a steak, giving identity to tiny individual kernels of grain, which are blended with billions of other tiny kernels of grain, is next to impossible.

I would like to point out that of the many food safety concerns Members and their constituents have raised, I have yet to hear a complaint about the grain industry. This is because we already have a system that works. Instead of strengthening that system, this bill overlays another system of unnecessary bureaucracy.

Mr. Speaker, I oppose the rule and I oppose the bill and would ask once again that the Committee on Agriculture utilize its jurisdiction to correct the flaws so that all of us can vote "yes."

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I would now yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS).

Mr. LUCAS. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 2749, the Food Safety Enhancement Act of 2009.

Let me begin by saying that yesterday Members from both sides of the aisle rejected the bill that was attempted to be rushed through Congress. Yet today we find ourselves considering the same legislation under a closed rule. Once again we are barred from offering amendments. I simply have to ask: What's the majority leadership afraid of?

We have said before, and I will continue to say again today, this country has the safest food supply in the world. Does that mean that there isn't room for improvement? No. Does that mean that we shouldn't continue to examine our regulatory systems and find ways to make it better? No. I don't think there is a single Member of Congress who wouldn't support reasonable proposals that improve the safety of what is already the safest supply of food in the world. But this legislation is woefully inadequate. It fails to achieve what we are all seeking for our consumers: an improved food safety system.

The biggest challenge that I can point to is the fact that the bill expands the reach and authority of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration but does not require further accountability. This legislation does not require FDA to spend any additional funds on the inspection of food.

Beyond that there are other provisions that are troublesome. One in particular would mandate FDA to set on-farm production performance standards. I'm stunned that more people are not outraged by this concept, that the Federal Government will tell our farmers and ranchers how to do something that they have been doing since the dawn of mankind. Even after changes that will limit the intrusion of the Federal Government on the farm, the bill still goes too far in the direction of trying to produce food from a bureaucrat's chair in Washington, D.C.

There remains a host of other problems with this bill. For example, has anyone considered if it's wise to have the Federal Government grant licenses and charge fees for processing food? This would mean that the Federal Government could arbitrarily withdraw that license for technical violations of the law that ultimately would shut down an operation. Has anyone even considered the consequences of the provisions of this bill? Has anyone thought about how this would increase the cost of food for consumers and force food production out of the country?

□ 1500

Furthermore, the bill's quarantine authority allows FDA to quarantine the entire Nation if there is evidence or just simply justification or information that a food commodity poses a health risk. No consideration is given to economic losses suffered by food producers, processors or distributors. In particular, if the FDA ultimately lifts the quarantine because it was wrong, the agency has no obligation, no authority or means to indemnify producers for their losses.

Mr. Speaker, let me revisit my original point. We have the safest food supply in the world. We need to constantly work to improve our food safety system. But if we are sincere in making those improvements, then we must have a bill before us that is not the product of a rushed legislative process where all the committees of jurisdiction were not allowed to fully participate. Yesterday, with the votes of Members on both sides of the aisle, we rejected that process, and today we find ourselves considering the same legislation under a closed rule, once again, barred from offering amendments.

I repeat, what is the majority afraid of? Food safety should not be a partisan or political issue. This should not be a fight. It should be a constructive process.

Defeat this rule. Bring H.R. 2749 back to the committees. Let all the committees of jurisdiction work their will and work their way so that we can create a bill that serves farmers, ranchers, processors, retailers and, yes, consumers. Tell me what is wrong with that. Tell me what is wrong with that.

Let's defeat the rule. Let's finish the process. Let's do better.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to ask a question: If everybody is doing things so well in the United States, why do 76 million Americans get sick every single year from contaminated food and 5,000 of them die?

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR).

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairwoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise with mixed emotions but in support of the rule. I represent the Salinas Valley, which is one of the most productive agricultural regions of the world. We are the "Salad Bowl Capital" of the world. And when you produce fresh produce, for example, lettuce, you don't have a kill step. You can't boil it before you eat it, so you have to be very careful about how you grow this material—lettuce, broccoli, brussels sprouts and all of those things—so you don't have contamination coming from the field.

We have had recalls, the E. coli recall, a very serious recall, and the difficulty we have had over the years is that essentially the Federal responsibility for food safety is in the Food and Drug Administration, the FDA. The responsibility for poultry inspection and meat inspection is in the Department of Agriculture. So you have a split responsibility in this country, and it has been that way for a long, long time.

What you hear in this bill is we need to have some national standards. The authority for those standards lies, for other than meat and poultry, with the Food and Drug Administration. So if you are going to get these standards and get some national credibility and an equal playing field, then you are going to have to work on the food safety for agriculture and organic and all of those others in this legislation.

We have been trying to do that, and the author of the bill, JOHN DINGELL, has been a tremendous help in trying to understand the nuances of small farmers, of organic farmers and others that are selling to farmers' markets.

But I hear from all my ag folks that they may not want the FDA, who don't know much about growing practices, to be out there. They do agree we need to have these national standards, that this is the only way we are going to ensure that all food we serve in this country, which has the safest food in the world, is going to be even safer.

So I share the concerns raised by the minority, but I think that the best answer to the problem is to work in a constructive way so that we can develop constructive regulations that benefit everyone, and that is an equal playing field, not a split between the USDA and the FDA.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to my colleague, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlelady from North Carolina for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule and the underlying legislation. This bill was brought to the floor yesterday under an expedited rule in order to push the measure through with minimal debate. The bill failed to pass under a two-thirds vote, and that is why we are considering it again today.

I have three main objections to the bill in its current form: the cost to our farmers, the jurisdictional overreach of FDA, and the process the majority has taken to bring this to the floor today.

Let me begin by saying that food safety is among the highest priorities of our farmers, the USDA and the Agriculture Committee. In my view, having a safe and abundant domestic food supply is a crucial public health matter and it is equally imperative to our national security.

Although America has the safest food supply in the world, there are clearly improvements that need to be made to our system. However, this legislation is not a step in the right direction. The bill would do little, if anything at all, to improve food safety, yet will have a substantial impact upon the Nation's 2.2 million farms, many of which are family owned and operated.

Specifically, I am concerned with the increased costs this bill will charge farms in the form of unnecessary fees and registrations. Farmers will not be able to sell their products without paying expensive annual registration fees. Enacting this legislation could place significant new financial and administrative burdens on the Food and Drug Administration. The bill provides the FDA with more regulatory authority over farming activities, when currently such activities are already regulated by the agriculture experts at USDA.

USDA is doing great outreach work on food safety and has a presence in every county across this country. In other words, USDA already is doing a great deal of work on improving food safety, and therefore food safety does not need to be additionally regulated by the FDA. I admit that some modest steps were taken to improve the bill, specifically regarding livestock and row crops, but the minor improvements did not go far enough to improve the overall bill.

The United States Department of Agriculture has a strong record. They work hard to partner with industry, they work hard to provide mechanisms for consumer input, and they work hard on consumer education regarding food safety. Frankly, my confidence lies with the USDA rather than the FDA.

I also have substantial concerns with the process taken to bring this measure to the floor. This legislation bypassed regular order and was not considered by the committee of jurisdiction. This legislation has the greatest impact on our farmers, but never received consideration by the committee tasked with agricultural oversight.

I again strongly urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the rule.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), chairman emeritus of the Energy and Commerce Committee and dean of the House.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, we are hearing much fiction and little fact. I want to say what I say with great respect and affection for the gentleman from Oklahoma, but giving an understanding of what it is we are doing and why is very important here.

I represent farmers and I represent consumers. Almost all of us have some farmers, and all of us represent consumers. The safety of both is important.

Understand that Food and Drug has been starved of authority and starved of money for a long time. The last meaningful reform in Food and Drug occurred in 1938. America's food is the safest in the world, but it is not as safe as it should be. It should be known that much of the lack of safety of American food comes because of foreign producers, whose production cannot be traced and checked.

We are going to hear complaints about the tomato pepper problem that we had a few years ago. That occurred because there is no way of tracing or finding how these goods move through commerce. Similar situations have occurred with regard to seafood and shellfish, with regard to berries and grapes, with regard to all manner of leafy vegetables and foods. It occurs because Food and Drug cannot control what enters this country, and it occurs because Food and Drug does not have the authority to properly deal with it.

In the instance of major failures, it has occurred because the Food and Drug Administration does not have sufficient authority to focus on the specific wrongdoers and wrongdoing. So every American producer is hurt. We have enabled Food and Drug and required them to address this by a focused effort.

Now, with regard to the authorities given, first of all, we have assiduously avoided any intrusion into the authority of the Agriculture Committee. Extensive discussions were held between the Commerce Committee members and the Committee on Agriculture; respectful, open, friendly discussions.

If there are troubles inside the Agriculture Committee, that is not a matter that the Commerce Committee can address. But we have achieved the approval of the chairman of the committee, who spoke yesterday, as my colleagues will remember, in favor of the legislation which we now discuss.

What does the legislation do? First of all, it keeps the FDA off the farm. Second of all, it is aimed at seeing to it that we have a responsible program for control. It requires registration of producers and manufacturers. That is very important, because without that, Food and Drug doesn't know who is doing what and has no real control to assure that good manufacturing practices, a word of art, are applied by the industry at every phase.

The Chinese are notoriously sloppy in their handling of food: melamine in milk products, unsafe seafood, unsafe shellfish, unsafe meats, mushrooms that are unsafe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. I yield the gentleman 2 additional minutes.

Mr. DINGELL. So, if the manufacturer or the processor pays no fee and does not register, he can't bring the food in this country to poison Americans.

Just recently, we had a major peanut scare. Eight people died, that we know of. Large numbers were sickened. We had a similar problem with other nut products, and the result has been that, again, people were sickened. I mentioned the other kinds of problems that we have confronted, including berries. Americans are dying because Food and Drug does not have the authority to protect them, and American producers and American agriculture is being hurt in enormous amounts because of this.

We will shortly be seeing an attempt by my Republican colleagues to come forward with a motion to recommit that will raise money that American manufacturers and producers are contributing to assure that Food and Drug can protect the consuming public and can protect the farmers, manufacturers and producers against unfair competition.

The bill makes it possible for us to track foods from the point where they are grown to the point where they reach the hands of the consumer. That is extremely important, because without that, a disaster impends with regard to the people who are sickened or killed, but it also is going to impact upon the farmers, the producers, and people in the industry.

This is a balanced, honest, fair, and friendly attempt to see to it that everyone gets the protection that Food and Drug can give. The Department of Agriculture, its inspection and its operations, is not impaired by this. And if my good friends on the Agriculture Committee on the minority side have business that they want to do with regard to their concerns on agriculture, I would urge them to do so, but not to raid the funds, not to oppose good legislation, not to prevent the protection of American consumers. The country deserves better.

□ 1515

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has again expired.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. I yield an additional 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. DINGELL. I will use that minute wisely, Madam Chairman, first, to thank you for an excellent rule; second, to thank you for the leadership that you have shown, not only on this matter but many other difficult matters of concern, especially to the American consuming public. The bill is not a new piece of legislation. It has been around and has been the source of a number of investigations by the Commerce Committee, where we find that people are being killed by the inadequacy of authority of Food and Drug, by its inability to protect the American people.

This is a good bill. As I have pointed out, it's old enough to vote. It has gone through many iterations. Now, I hear my friends on the Republican side complaining about the bill. But the harsh fact of the matter is that the changes about which they complain are changes that were made to meet the concerns of the Agriculture Committee as expressed by its chairman, and changes that were made to meet the concerns of producers, manufacturers and growers. I urge my colleagues to support the rule and to support the bill.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I now yield 3 minutes to the former chairman of the Agriculture Committee, Mr. GOODLATTE.

Mr. GOODLATTE. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding. I thank her and the gentleman from Oklahoma for their leadership in attempting to address this issue, even though we bring a bill to the floor under a closed rule, with no opportunity, not only on the floor of the House, but also in the House Agriculture Committee, to mark up a bill that proposes to make food safer. Unfortunately, this bill does little, if anything, to enhance food safety.

The legislation does not require the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to spend one additional penny on the inspection of food; yet the legislation imposes significant regulatory burdens on small businesses without properly holding the regulatory agency accountable. The bill contains an expanded registration requirement that effectively creates a Federal license to be in the food business.

Like the Democrat stimulus bill, cap-and-trade, and the proposed health care bill, this is another example of broadening the size and scope of government, raising new taxes on small businesses, and intruding in the private lives of Americans.

On-farm performance standards: New language added to the bill would exclude row crop producers from FDA regulatory authority over growing and harvesting of crops. Language was also improved that would relieve livestock producers from some of the burdens of the law. Although these are needed changes, they do not go far enough to make the bill acceptable. This bill still leaves our Nation's fruit and vegetable producers subject to objectionable regulatory burdens. We can still expect to have an agency of the Federal Government telling our farmers how to do their jobs.

Registration of food-processing facilities was originally envisioned as a commonsense way of helping the FDA identify facilities under the bioterrorism act in 2002. This provision turns registration into a Federal license for any food business to operate by charging exorbitant fees, making it unlawful to sell food without a registration license and allowing the FDA to suspend a company's registration.

Traceability is another issue. It does not make food safer. Traceability simply adds enormous regulatory burden without even knowing if it can be done in the first place. There is no requirement that the system developed by the FDA be feasible or affordable.

Recordkeeping: Broad recordkeeping authorities will impose significant regulatory burdens. Minimal consideration is given to risks associated with the product produced at the regulated facility when developing the recordkeeping requirements. The language lacks protections from disclosure of proprietary information.

The issue of quarantine authority. The bill's quarantine authority allows the Food and Drug Administration to quarantine a geographic area if there is credible evidence that food poses a health risk. No consideration is given to economic losses suffered by food producers, processors or distributors in the quarantine area. It's my understanding that the ranking member of the Agriculture Committee will offer something that will help to correct that later on, and I hope everyone will support that measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Ms. FOXX. I yield the gentleman an additional 1 minute.

Mr. GOODLATTE. In particular, if the FDA ultimately lifts the quarantine for lack of confirmatory evidence, the agency has no obligation, authority or means to indemnify producers for their losses. Conversely, under the authority of the Animal Health Protection Act and Plant Protection Act, the USDA, which has jurisdiction over other sectors of our food safety and has done an outstanding job, must indemnify producers who have incurred such losses.

The language allows the FDA to act on suspicion to require a producer to cease distribution of food. Once again, no consideration is given in this legislation to indemnification for economic damages, particularly if the FDA was wrong.

From a public health and safety point of view, end product testing offers little protection or assurance. HAACP was introduced as a system whereby the manufacturer evaluates their process and institutes site and process specific controls, rather than attempt to detect problems by testing the finished product. That is the better way to go.

Mr. Speaker, I would urge my colleagues to oppose this rule, this closed rule, and this bad bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. I will reserve.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. The concern about closed rules is not just one expressed by Republicans. Democrats have expressed their own frustrations with the closed manner in which this Congress is being operated, but nothing has changed.

In February, a group of Democrats garnered more than 60 signatures on a letter to Majority Leader HOYER calling for a prompt return to regular order. In the letter, they stated that "Committees must function thoroughly and inclusively, and cooperation must ensue between the parties and the houses to ensure that our legislative tactics enable rather than impede progress." This was written by, as I said, over 60 Democratic Members.

They went on to say, "In general, we must engender an atmosphere that allows partisan games to cease and collaboration to succeed. We look forward to working with you to restore this institution." So not only does the closed rule process hurt and exclude Republican Members, it hurts and excludes Democrat Members as well.

By preferring to stifle debate, the Democrats in charge have denied their colleagues on both sides of the aisle the ability to do the job they've been elected to do, offer ideas that represent and serve their constituents. The Democrats in charge are denying Members the ability to offer improvements to legislation, and this is an injustice to all of their colleagues, and this rule and this bill are prime examples.

The Democrats in charge are limiting what ideas can be debated on the floor and what constituents can be represented in this House. Our constituents, in both Republican and Democrat districts, are struggling to make ends meet, are facing unemployment, and yet are simultaneously being shut out of participating in a debate over how their hard-earned taxpayer dollars are being borrowed and spent by the Federal Government.

Mr. Speaker, it's very concerning to me that the Democrat majority has chosen to silence their colleagues on both sides of the aisle yet again. In doing so, they have chosen to keep the millions of constituents we represent from having a voice on the floor of the people's House.

My colleagues have offered a lot of reasons why this bill underlying this rule is not a good bill and needs to be improved. But I want to make a couple of comments about that, also. This bill actually does very little to enhance food safety. In fact, I want to call attention, again, to the motto of the State of North Carolina, "To be, rather than to seem."

We have a bill here called the Food Safety Enhancement Act that does very little to enhance the safety of food. As my colleague from Virginia said just now, the FDA is not being required to spend one extra dime on inspecting food. But it gives unprecedented authority to the Food and Drug Administration by imposing mandatory recall, quarantine authority, recording requirements, warrantless inspection authority and country-of-origin labeling requirements.

By enacting user fees on inspections and licensing requirements on food facilities, this bill essentially places a tax on consumers by increasing the price of food. So much for the promise that taxes would not go up on people who make less than $250,000 a year.

This bill grants the FDA the authority to shut down or inspect businesses and determine what qualifies as a health concern.

This bill leaves our Nation's fruit and vegetable producers subject to regulatory burdens by allowing the FDA to regulate how crops are raised, dictating to farmers how they should farm. We've been farming since our earliest beginnings as a species, and we've done it without the regulatory guidance of the FDA. This bill reminds me of the tactics of the former Soviet Union, and we know how successful that was.

This bill requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to establish a tracing system for food. Each person who produces, manufactures, processes, packs, transports or holds such food would have to maintain the full pedigree of the origin and pre-use distribution history of the food. This bill does not explain how far foods will have to be traced back, or how it will be done for foods with multiple ingredients. Given these ambiguities, it's unclear how much it will cost farmers and taxpayers.

This bill also creates severe criminal and civil penalties, including prison terms of up to 10 years and/or fines of up to a total of $100,000 for individuals.

The bill would impose an annual registration fee of $500 on any facility that holds, processes or manufactures food. Even though farms are technically exempt, FDA has defined "farm" very narrowly. People making foods such as lacto-fermented vegetables, cheeses or breads would be required to register and pay the fee, which could drive small and start-up producers out of business during difficult economic times.

The bill would empower the FDA to regulate how crops are raised and harvested. It puts the Federal government right on the farm dictating to our farmers. And yet, Mr. Speaker, it never went through the Agriculture Committee. This bill that will directly impact American farmers was never vetted through the established processes in the Agriculture Committee, doing a great disservice to the American people. Why is the Democrat leadership refusing to allow a committee with jurisdiction over this matter to offer their ideas and join in on the legislative process?

This bill will cost taxpayers nearly $2.2 billion over 5 years. Every day I hear from constituents their concerns that the Federal Government in Washington is borrowing and spending too much. The American people know that in these tough times they should save, not spend money. However, the Federal Government does not reflect the common sense I see throughout my district. Instead, the Democrats in charge continue to borrow more and spend more, increasing our Federal deficit on the backs of our children and grandchildren.

This bill will increase the deficit even more by borrowing and spending money we do not have. We can no longer blame the deficit and economic difficulties today on the previous administration. The Democrats in charge have shown they do not care about the deficit by continuing to dig America into a bigger and bigger hole with more reckless spending. This borrowed money is all being spent by Speaker PELOSI and the Obama administration, and as a result, the unemployment rate will continue to rise and the deficit will continue to increase.

I urge my colleagues to vote down the previous question and the rule.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to close by reiterating what I have said before, that in the United States, every single year 76 million Americans get ill from contaminated food, and 5,000 die.

□ 1530

As a scientist, I, for one, would like once more to feel pride and confidence in the FDA.

I urge a "yes" vote on the previous question and on the rule.

I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

PROVIDING FOR AN ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF THE TWO HOUSES

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk a privileged concurrent resolution and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 172

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That, in consonance with section 132(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Friday, July 31, 2009, Saturday, August 1, 2009, or Sunday, August 2, 2009, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, September 8, 2009, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns on any day from Thursday, August 6, 2009, through Tuesday, August 11, 2009, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand recessed or adjourned until noon on Tuesday, September 8, 2009, or such other time on that day as may be specified in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Speaker of the House and the Majority Leader of the Senate, or their respective designees, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate if, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the concurrent resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on agreeing to House Concurrent Resolution 172 will be followed by 5-minute votes on the adoption of H. Res. 691 and motions to suspend the rules with regard to H.R. 2728, if ordered, and H.R. 2510, if ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 231, nays 191, not voting 11, as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (during the vote). Two minutes remain in this vote.

□ 1557

Messrs. GALLEGLY, BARTON of Texas, SESSIONS, MAFFEI, and KING of Iowa changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Mrs. DAHLKEMPER, Messrs. AL GREEN of Texas, ORTIZ, CLEAVER, and TEAGUE changed their vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Ms. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 676, had I been present, I would have voted “yea.”

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2749, FOOD SAFETY ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2009

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the vote on adoption of House Resolution 691, on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 249, nays 180, not voting 4, as follows:

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMUNICATION FROM CHAIR OF COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Chair of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE,
Washington, DC, May 15, 2009.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM SPEAKER: Pursuant to section 194 of title 14, United States Code, as Chairman of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I am required to designate three Members of the United States Coast Guard Academy Board of Visitors. I designate Representative Michael H. Michaud (Maine), Representative Mazie Hirono (Hawaii), and Ranking member John L. Mica (Florida) to serve on the Board of Visitors.

Since its founding in 1876, the Coast Guard Academy, based in New London, Connecticut has accomplished its mission of "educating, training, and developing leaders of character who are ethically, intellectually, professionally, and physically prepared to serve their country." The Board of Visitors meets annually with staff, faculty and cadets to review the Academy's programs, curricula, and facilities and to assess future needs. The Board of Visitors plays an important supervisory role in ensuring the continued success of the Academy and the tradition of excellence of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

JAMES L. OBERSTAR,
Chairman.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 3269, CORPORATE AND FINANCIAL
INSTITUTION COMPENSATION FAIRNESS ACT OF 2009

Ms. PINGREE of Maine, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 111-237) on the resolution (H. Res. 697) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 3269) to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to provide shareholders with an advisory vote on executive compensation and to prevent perverse incentives in the compensation practices of financial institutions, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

FOOD SAFETY ENHANCEMENT ACT
OF 2009

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to H. Res. 691, I call up the bill (H.R. 2749) to amend the Federal Food,

Drug, and Cosmetic Act to improve the safety of food in the global market, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 691, in lieu of the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Energy and Commerce now printed in the bill, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in House Report 111-235 is adopted, and the bill, as amended, is considered read.

The text of the bill, as amended, is as follows:

SEC. 4. RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.

(a) Nothing in this Act or the amendments made by this Act shall be construed to prohibit or limit—

- (1) any cause of action under State law; or
- (2) the introduction of evidence of compliance or noncompliance with the requirements of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.).

(b) Nothing in this Act or any amendment made by this Act shall be construed to—

- (1) alter the jurisdiction between the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, under applicable statutes and regulations;
- (2) limit the authority of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to issue regulations related to the safety of food under—

(A) the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act; or

(B) the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act; or

(3) impede, minimize, or affect the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to prevent, control, or mitigate a plant or animal health emergency, or a food emergency involving products regulated under the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), or the Egg Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 1031 et seq.).

SEC. 5. USDA EXEMPTIONS.

(a) USDA-REGULATED PRODUCTS.—Food is exempt from the requirements of this Act to the extent that such food is regulated by the Secretary of Agriculture under the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), or the Egg Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 1031 et seq.).

(b) LIVESTOCK AND POULTRY.—Livestock and poultry that are intended to be presented for slaughter pursuant to the regulations by the Secretary of Agriculture under the Federal Meat Inspection Act or the Poultry Products Inspection Act are exempt from the requirements of this Act. A cow, sheep, or goat that is used for the production of milk is exempt from the requirements of this Act.

(c) USDA-REGULATED FACILITIES.—A facility is exempt from the requirements of this Act to the extent such facility is regulated as an official establishment by the Secretary of Agriculture under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, or the Egg Products Inspection Act or under a program recognized by the Secretary of Agriculture as at least equal to Federal regulation under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, or the Egg Products Inspection Act.

(d) FARMS.—A farm is exempt from the requirements of this Act to the extent such farm raises animals from which food is derived that is regulated under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, or the Egg Products Inspection Act.

SEC. 6. ALCOHOL-RELATED FACILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—With the exception of the amendments made by section 101(a) and (b) and section 113 of this Act, nothing in this Act, or the amendments made by this Act, shall be construed to apply to a facility that—

(1) under the Federal Alcohol Administration Act (27 U.S.C. 201 et seq.) or chapter 51 of subtitle E of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 5291 et seq.) is required to obtain a permit or to register with the Secretary of the Treasury as a condition of doing business in the United States; and

(2) under section 415 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 350d), as amended by this Act, is required to register as a facility because such facility is engaged in manufacturing, processing, packing, or holding 1 or more alcoholic beverages.

(b) LIMITED RECEIPT AND DISTRIBUTION OF NON-ALCOHOL FOOD.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to a facility engaged in the distributing of any non-alcohol food, except that subsection (a) shall apply to a facility described in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a) that receives and distributes non-alcohol food provided such food is received and distributed—

(1) in a prepackaged form that prevents any direct human contact with such food; and

(2) in amounts that constitute not more than 5 percent of the overall sales of such facility, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This section shall not be construed to exempt any food, apart from distilled spirits, wine, and malt beverages, as defined in section 211 of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act (27 U.S.C. 211), from the requirements of this Act and the amendments made by this Act.

TITLE I—FOOD SAFETY

Subtitle A—Prevention

SEC. 101. CHANGES IN REGISTRATION OF FOOD FACILITIES.

(a) MISBRANDING.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(z) If it was manufactured, processed, packed, or held in a facility that is not duly registered under section 415, including a facility whose registration is canceled or suspended under such section.”.

(b) ANNUAL REGISTRATION.—

(1) DEFINITION OF FACILITY.—Paragraph (1) of section 415(b) (21 U.S.C. 350d(b)) is amended to read as follows:

“(1)(A) The term ‘facility’ means any factory, warehouse, or establishment (including a factory, warehouse, or establishment of an importer) that manufactures, processes, packs, or holds food.

“(B) Such term does not include farms; private residences of individuals; restaurants; other retail food establishments; nonprofit food establishments in which food is prepared for or served directly to the consumer; or fishing vessels (except such vessels engaged in processing as defined in section 123.3(k) of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, or any successor regulations).

“(C)(i) The term ‘retail food establishment’ means an establishment that, as its primary function, sells food products (including those food products that it manufactures, processes, packs, or holds) directly to consumers (including by Internet or mail order).

“(ii) Such term includes—

“(I) grocery stores;

“(II) convenience stores;

“(III) vending machine locations; and

“(IV) stores that sell bagged feed, pet food, and feed ingredients or additives over-the-counter directly to consumers and final purchasers for their own personal animals.

“(iii) A retail food establishment’s primary function is to sell food directly to consumers if the annual monetary value of sales of food products directly to consumers exceeds the annual monetary value of sales of food products to all other buyers.

“(D)(i) The term ‘farm’ means an operation in one general physical location devoted to the growing and harvesting of crops, the raising of animals (including seafood), or both.

“(ii) Such term includes—

“(I) such an operation that packs or holds food, provided that all food used in such activities is grown, raised, or consumed on such farm or another farm under the same ownership;

“(II) such an operation that manufactures or processes food, provided that all food used in such activities is consumed on such farm or another farm under the same ownership;

“(III) such an operation that sells food directly to consumers if the annual monetary value of sales of the food products from the farm or by an agent of the farm to consumers exceeds the annual monetary value of sales of the food products to all other buyers;

“(IV) such an operation that manufactures grains or other feed stuffs that are grown and harvested on such farm or another farm under the same ownership and are distributed directly to 1 or more farms for consumption as food by humans or animals on such farm; and

“(V) a fishery, including a wild fishery, an aquaculture operation or bed, a fresh water fishery, and a saltwater fishery.

“(iii) Such term does not include such an operation that receives manufactured feed from another farm as described in clause (ii)(IV) if the receiving farm releases the feed to another farm or facility under different ownership.

“(iv) The term ‘harvesting’ includes washing, trimming of outer leaves of, and cooling produce.

“(E) The term ‘consumer’ does not include a business.”

(2) REGISTRATION.—Section 415(a) (21 U.S.C. 350d(a)) is amended—

(A) in the first sentence of paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking “require that” and inserting “require that, on or before December 31 of each year,”; and

(ii) by striking “food for consumption in the United States” and inserting “food for consumption in the United States or for export from the United States”;

(B) in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1), by inserting “and pay the registration fee required under section 743” after “submit a registration to the Secretary” each place it appears;

(C) in the first sentence of paragraph (2), by inserting “in electronic format” after “submit”; and

(D) in paragraph (4), by inserting after the first sentence the following: “The Secretary shall remove from such list the name of any facility that fails to reregister in accordance with this section, that fails to pay the registration fee required under section 743, or whose registration is canceled by the registrant, canceled by the Secretary in accordance with this section, or suspended by the Secretary in accordance with this section.”.

(3) CONTENTS OF REGISTRATION.—Paragraph (2) of section 415(a) (21 U.S.C. 350d(a)), as amended by paragraph (1), is amended by striking “containing information” and all that follows and inserting the following: “containing information that identifies the following:

“(A) The name, address, and emergency contact information of the facility being registered.

“(B) The primary purpose and business activity of the facility, including the dates of operation if the facility is seasonal.

“(C) The general food category (as defined by the Secretary by guidance) of each food manufactured, processed, packed, or held at the facility.

“(D) All trade names under which the facility conducts business related to food.

“(E) The name, address, and 24-hour emergency contact information of the United States distribution agent for the facility, which agent shall have access to the information required to be maintained under section 414(d) for food that is manufactured, processed, packed, or held at the facility.

“(F) If the facility is located outside of the United States, the name, address, and emergency contact information for a United States agent.

“(G) The unique facility identifier of the facility, as specified under section 1011.

“(H) Such additional information pertaining to the facility as the Secretary may require by regulation.

The registrant shall notify the Secretary of any change in the submitted information not later than 30 days after the date of such change, unless otherwise specified by the Secretary.”.

(4) SUSPENSION AND CANCELLATION AUTHORITY.—Section 415(a) (21 U.S.C. 350d(a)), as amended by paragraphs (1) and (2), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“(5) SUSPENSION OF REGISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may suspend the registration of any facility registered under this section for a violation of this Act that could result in serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals.

“(B) NOTICE OF SUSPENSION.—Suspension of a registration shall be preceded by—

“(i) notice to the facility of the intent to suspend the registration; and

“(ii) an opportunity for an informal hearing, as defined in guidance or regulations issued by the Secretary, concerning the suspension of such registration for such facility.

“(C) REQUEST.—The owner, operator, or agent in charge of a facility whose registration is suspended may request that the Secretary vacate the suspension of registration when such owner, operator, or agent has corrected the violation that is the basis for such suspension.

“(D) VACATING OF SUSPENSION.—If, based on an inspection of the facility or other information, the Secretary determines that adequate reasons do not exist to continue the suspension of a registration, the Secretary shall vacate such suspension.

“(6) CANCELLATION OF REGISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Not earlier than 10 days after providing the notice under subparagraph (B), the Secretary may cancel a registration if the Secretary determines that—

“(i) the registration was not updated in accordance with this section or otherwise contains false, incomplete, or inaccurate information; or

“(ii) the required registration fee has not been paid within 30 days after the date due.

“(B) NOTICE OF CANCELLATION.—Cancellation shall be preceded by notice to the facility of the intent to cancel the registration and the basis for such cancellation.

“(C) TIMELY UPDATE OR CORRECTION.—If the registration for the facility is updated or corrected no later than 7 days after notice is provided under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall not cancel such registration.

“(7) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than March 30th of each year, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress a report, based on the registrations on or before December 31 of the previous year, on the following:

“(A) The number of facilities registered under this section.

“(B) The number of such facilities that are domestic.

“(C) The number of such facilities that are foreign.

“(D) The number of such facilities that are high-risk.

“(E) The number of such facilities that are low-risk.

“(F) The number of such facilities that hold food.

“(8) LIMITATION ON DELEGATION.—The authority conferred by this subsection to issue an order to suspend a registration or cancel a registration shall not be delegated to any officer or employee other than the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the Principal Deputy Commissioner, the Associate Commissioner for Regulatory Affairs, or the Director for the Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition, of the Food and Drug Administration.”.

(c) REGISTRATION FEE.—Chapter VII (21 U.S.C. 371 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end of subchapter C the following:

“PART 6—FEES RELATING TO FOOD

“SEC. 743. FACILITY REGISTRATION FEE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION.—Beginning in fiscal year 2010, the Secretary shall assess and collect an annual fee for the registration of a facility under section 415.

“(2) PAYABLE DATE.—A fee under this section shall be payable—

“(A) for a facility that was not registered under section 415 for the preceding fiscal year, on the date of registration; and

“(B) for any other facility—

“(i) for fiscal year 2010, not later than the sooner of 90 days after the date of the enactment of this part or December 31, 2009; and “(ii) for a subsequent fiscal year, not later than December 31 of such fiscal year.

“(b) FEE AMOUNTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The registration fee under subsection (a) shall be—

“(A) for fiscal year 2010, $500; and

“(B) for fiscal year 2011 and each subsequent fiscal year, the fee for fiscal year 2010 as adjusted under subsection (c).

“(2) ANNUAL FEE SETTING.—The Secretary shall, not later than 60 days before the start of fiscal year 2011 and each subsequent fiscal year, establish, for the next fiscal year, registration fees under subsection (a), as described in paragraph (1).

“(3) MAXIMUM AMOUNT.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a person who owns or operates multiple facilities for which a fee must be paid under this section for a fiscal year shall be liable for not more than $175,000 in aggregate fees under this section for such fiscal year.

“(c) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—For fiscal year 2011 and each subsequent fiscal year, the fee amount under subsection (b)(1) shall be adjusted by the Secretary by notice, published in the Federal Register, to reflect the greater of—

“(1) the total percentage change that occurred in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (all items; U.S. city average) for the 12-month period ending June 30 preceding the fiscal year for which fees are being established;

“(2) the total percentage change for the previous fiscal year in basic pay under the General Schedule in accordance with section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, as adjusted by any locality-based comparability payment pursuant to section 5304 of such title for Federal employees stationed in the District of Columbia; or

“(3) the average annual change in the cost, per full-time equivalent position of the Food and Drug Administration, of all personnel compensation and benefits paid with respect to such positions for the first 5 years of the preceding 6 fiscal years.

The adjustment made each fiscal year under this subsection shall be added on a compounded basis to the sum of all adjustments made each fiscal year after fiscal year 2010 under this subsection.

“(d) LIMITATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Fees under subsection (a) shall be refunded for a fiscal year beginning after fiscal year 2010 unless appropriations for salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration for such fiscal year (excluding the amount of fees appropriated for such fiscal year) are equal to or greater than the amount of appropriations for the salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration for fiscal year 2010 (excluding the amount of fees appropriated for such fiscal year) multiplied by the adjustment factor applicable to the fiscal year involved.

“(2) AUTHORITY.—If the Secretary does not assess fees under subsection (a) during any portion of a fiscal year because of paragraph (1) and if at a later date in such fiscal year the Secretary may assess such fees, the Secretary may assess and collect such fees, without any modification in the rate, for registration under section 415 at any time in such fiscal year.

“(3) ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—In this subsection, the term ‘adjustment factor’ applicable to a fiscal year is the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (all items; United States city average) for October of the preceding fiscal year divided by such Index for October 2009.

“(e) CREDITING AND AVAILABILITY OF FEES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Fees authorized under subsection (a) shall be collected and available for obligation only to the extent and in the amount provided in advance in appropriations Acts. Such fees are authorized to remain available until expended. Such sums as may be necessary may be transferred from the Food and Drug Administration salaries and expenses appropriation account without fiscal year limitation to such appropriation account for salaries and expenses with such fiscal year limitation.

“(2) COLLECTIONS AND APPROPRIATIONS ACTS.—The fees authorized by this section—

“(A) shall be retained in each fiscal year in an amount not to exceed the amount specified in appropriation Acts, or otherwise made available for obligation, for such fiscal year; and

“(B) shall only be collected and available to defray the costs of food safety activities.

“(3) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014, there are authorized to be appropriated for fees under this section such sums as may be necessary.

“(4) PUBLIC MEETINGS.—For each fiscal year, the Secretary shall hold a public meeting on how fees collected under this section will be used to defray the costs of food safety activities in order to solicit the views of the regulated industry, consumers, and other interested stakeholders.

“(f) COLLECTION OF UNPAID FEES.—In any case where the Secretary does not receive payment of a fee assessed under subsection (a) within 30 days after it is due, such fee shall be treated as a claim of the United States Government subject to subchapter II of chapter 37 of title 31, United States Code.

“(g) CONSTRUCTION.—This section may not be construed to require that the number of full-time equivalent positions in the Department of Health and Human Services, for officers, employees, and advisory committees not engaged in food safety activities, be reduced to offset the number of officers, employees, and advisory committees so engaged.

“(h) ANNUAL FISCAL REPORTS.—Beginning with fiscal year 2011, not later than 120 days after the end of each fiscal year for which fees are collected under this section, the Secretary shall prepare and submit to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate a report on the implementation of the authority for such fees during such fiscal year and the use, by the Food and Drug Administration, of the fees collected for such fiscal year.

“(i) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

“(1) The term ‘costs of food safety activities’ means the expenses incurred in connection with food safety activities for—

“(A) officers and employees of the Food and Drug Administration, contractors of the Food and Drug Administration, advisory committees, and costs related to such officers, employees, and committees and to contracts with such contractors;

“(B) laboratory capacity;

“(C) management of information, and the acquisition, maintenance, and repair of technology resources;

“(D) leasing, maintenance, renovation, and repair of facilities and acquisition, maintenance, and repair of fixtures, furniture, scientific equipment, and other necessary materials and supplies; and “(E) collecting fees under this section and accounting for resources allocated for food safety activities.

“(2) The term ‘food safety activities’ means activities related to compliance by facilities registered under section 415 with the requirements of this Act relating to food (including research related to and the development of standards (such as performance standards and preventive controls), risk assessments, hazard analyses, inspection planning and inspections, third-party inspections, compliance review and enforcement, import review, information technology support, test development, product sampling, risk communication, and administrative detention).”.

(d) TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS.—

(1) FEES.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall first impose the fee established under section 743 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (c), for fiscal years beginning with fiscal year 2010.

(2) MODIFICATION OF REGISTRATION FORM.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall modify the registration form under section 415 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 350d) to comply with the amendments made by this section.

(3) APPLICATION.—The amendments made by this section, other than subsections (b)(2) and (c), shall take effect on the date that is 30 days after the date on which such modified registration form takes effect, but not later than 210 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(4) SUNSET DATE.—Section 743 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (c), does not authorize the assessment or collection of a fee for registration under section 415 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 360) occurring after fiscal year 2014.

SEC. 102. HAZARD ANALYSIS, RISK-BASED PREVENTIVE CONTROLS, FOOD SAFETY PLAN, FINISHED PRODUCT TEST RESULTS FROM CATEGORY 1 FACILITIES.

(a) HAZARD ANALYSIS, RISK-BASED PREVENTIVE CONTROLS, FOOD SAFETY PLAN.—

(1) ADULTERATED FOOD.—Section 402 (21 U.S.C. 342) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(j) If it has been manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held under conditions that do not meet the requirements of sections 418 and 418A.”.

(2) REQUIREMENTS.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 418. HAZARD ANALYSIS AND RISK-BASED PREVENTIVE CONTROLS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall, in accordance with this section—

“(1) conduct a hazard analysis (or more than one if appropriate);

“(2) identify and implement effective preventive controls;

“(3) monitor preventive controls;

“(4) institute corrective actions when—

“(A) monitoring shows that preventive controls have not been properly implemented; or “(B) monitoring and verification show that such controls were ineffective;

“(5) conduct verification activities;

“(6) maintain records of monitoring, corrective action, and verification; and “(7) reanalyze for hazards.

“(b) IDENTIFICATION OF HAZARDS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall evaluate whether there are any hazards, including hazards due to the source of the ingredients, that are reasonably likely to occur in the absence of preventive controls that may affect the safety, wholesomeness, or sanitation of the food manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held by the facility, including—

“(A) biological, chemical, physical, and radiological hazards, natural toxins, pesticides, drug residues, filth, decomposition, parasites, allergens, and unapproved food and color additives; and

“(B) hazards that occur naturally or that may be unintentionally introduced.

“(2) IDENTIFIED BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary may, by regulation or guidance, identify hazards that are reasonably likely to occur in the absence of preventive controls.

“(3) HAZARD ANALYSIS.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall identify and describe the hazards evaluated under paragraph (1) or identified under paragraph (2), to the extent applicable to the facility, in a hazard analysis.

“(c) PREVENTIVE CONTROLS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall identify and implement effective preventive controls to prevent, eliminate, or reduce to acceptable levels the occurrence of any hazards identified in the hazard analysis under subsection (b)(3).

“(2) IDENTIFIED BY THE SECRETARY.—

“(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary may establish by regulation or guidance preventive controls for specific product types to prevent unintentional contamination throughout the supply chain. The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall implement any preventive controls identified by the Secretary under this paragraph.

“(B) ALTERNATIVE CONTROLS.—Such regulation or guidance shall allow the owner, operator, or agent of a facility to implement an alternative preventive control to one established by the Secretary, provided that, in response to a request by the Secretary, the owner, operator, or agent can present to the Secretary data or other information sufficient to demonstrate that the alternative control effectively addresses the hazard, including meeting any applicable performance standard.

“(C) LIMITATION.—Subparagraph (B) shall not apply to any preventive control described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (E) of subsection (i)(2).

“(d) MONITORING.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall monitor the implementation of preventive controls under subsection (c) to identify any circumstances in which the preventive controls are not fully implemented or verification shows that such controls were ineffective.

“(e) CORRECTIVE ACTIONS.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall establish and implement procedures to ensure that, if the preventive controls under subsection (c) are not fully implemented or are not found effective—

“(1) no affected product from such facility enters commerce; and

“(2) appropriate action is taken to reduce the likelihood of recurrence of the implementation failure.

“(f) VERIFICATION.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall ensure that—

“(1) the system of preventive controls identified under subsection (c) has been validated as scientifically and technically sound so that, if such system is implemented, the hazards identified in the hazard analysis under subsection (b)(3) will be prevented, eliminated, or reduced to an acceptable level;

“(2) the facility is conducting monitoring in accordance with subsection (d);

“(3) the facility is taking effective corrective actions under subsection (e); and

“(4) the preventive controls are effectively preventing, eliminating, or reducing to an acceptable level the occurrence of identified hazards, including through the use of environmental and product testing programs and other appropriate means.

“(g) REQUIREMENT TO REANALYZE AND RE-VISE.—

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall—

“(A) review the evaluation under subsection (b) for the facility and, as necessary, revise the hazard analysis under subsection (b)(3) for the facility—

“(i) not less than every 2 years;

“(ii) if there is a change in the process or product that could affect the hazard analysis; and

“(iii) if the Secretary determines that it is appropriate to protect public health; and

“(B) whenever there is a change in the hazard analysis, revise the preventive controls under subsection (c) for the facility as necessary to ensure that all hazards that are reasonably likely to occur are prevented, eliminated, or reduced to an acceptable level, or document the basis for the conclusion that no such revision is needed.

“(2) NONDELEGATION.—Any revisions ordered by the Secretary under this subsection shall be ordered by the Secretary or an official designated by the Secretary. An official may not be so designated unless the official is the director of the district under this Act in which the facility involved is located, or is an official senior to such director.

“(h) RECORDKEEPING.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall maintain, for not less than 2 years, records documenting the activities described in subsections (a) through (g).

“(i) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

“(1) FACILITY.—The term ‘facility’ means a domestic facility or a foreign facility that is required to be registered under section 415.

“(2) PREVENTIVE CONTROLS.—The term ‘preventive controls’ means those risk-based procedures, practices, and processes that a person knowledgeable about the safe manufacturing, processing, packing, transporting, or holding of food would employ to prevent, eliminate, or reduce to an acceptable level the hazards identified in the hazard analysis under subsection (b)(3) and that are consistent with the current scientific understanding of safe food manufacturing, processing, packing, transporting, or holding at the time of the analysis. Those procedures, practices, and processes shall include the following, as appropriate to the type of facility or food:

“(A) Sanitation procedures and practices.

“(B) Supervisor, manager, and employee hygiene training.

“(C) Process controls.

“(D) An allergen control program to minimize potential allergic reactions in humans from ingestion of, or contact with, human and animal food.

“(E) Good manufacturing practices.

“(F) Verification procedures, practices, and processes for suppliers and incoming ingredients, which may include onsite auditing of suppliers and testing of incoming ingredients.

“(G) Other procedures, practices, and processes established by the Secretary under subsection (c)(2).

“(3) HAZARD THAT IS REASONABLY LIKELY TO OCCUR.—A food safety hazard that is reasonably likely to occur is one for which a prudent person who, as applicable, manufactures, processes, packs, transports, or holds food, would establish controls because experience, illness data, scientific reports, or other information provides a basis to conclude that there is a reasonable possibility that the hazard will occur in the type of food being manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held in the absence of those controls.

“SEC. 418A. FOOD SAFETY PLAN.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Before a facility (as defined in section 418(i)) introduces or delivers for introduction into interstate commerce any shipment of food, the owner, operator, or agent of the facility shall develop and implement a written food safety plan (in this section referred to as a ‘food safety plan’).

“(b) CONTENTS.—The food safety plan shall include each of the following elements:

“(1) The hazard analysis and any reanalysis conducted under section 418.

“(2) A description of the preventive controls being implemented under subsection 418(c), including those to address hazards identified by the Secretary under subsection 418(b)(2).

“(3) A description of the procedures for monitoring preventive controls.

“(4) A description of the procedures for taking corrective actions.

“(5) A description of verification activities for the preventive controls, including validation that the system of controls, if implemented, will prevent, eliminate, or reduce to an acceptable level the identified hazards, review of monitoring and corrective action records, and procedures for determining whether the system of controls as implemented is effectively preventing, eliminating, or reducing to an acceptable level the occurrence of identified hazards, including the use of environmental and product testing programs.

“(6) A description of the facility’s record-keeping procedures.

“(7) A description of the facility’s procedures for the recall of articles of food, whether voluntarily or when required under section 422.

“(8) A description of the facility’s procedures for tracing the distribution history of articles of food, whether voluntarily or when required under section 414.

“(9) A description of the facility’s procedures to ensure a safe and secure supply chain for the ingredients or components used in making the food manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held by such facility.

“(10) A description of the facility’s procedures to implement the science-based performance standards issued under section 419.”.

(3) GUIDANCE OR REGULATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (referred to in this subsection as the “Secretary”) shall issue guidance or promulgate regulations to establish science-based standards for conducting a hazard analysis, documenting hazards, identifying and implementing preventive controls, and documenting the implementation of the preventive controls, including verification and corrective actions under sections 418 and 418A of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (as added by paragraph (2)).

(B) INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS.—In issuing guidance or regulations under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall review international hazard analysis and preventive control standards that are in existence on the date of the enactment of this Act and relevant to such guidelines or regulations to ensure that the programs under sections 418 and 418A of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (as added by paragraph (2)) are consistent, to the extent the Secretary determines practicable and appropriate, with such standards.

(C) AUTHORITY WITH RESPECT TO CERTAIN FACILITIES.—The Secretary may, by regulation, exempt or modify the requirements for compliance under this section and the amendments made by this section with respect to facilities that are solely engaged in—

(i) the production of food for animals other than man or the storage of packaged foods that are not exposed to the environment; or

(ii) the storage of raw agricultural commodities for further distribution or processing.

(D) SMALL BUSINESSES.—The Secretary—

(i) shall consider the impact of any guidance or regulations under this section on small businesses; and

(ii) shall issue guidance to assist small businesses in complying with the requirements of this section and the amendments made by this section.

(4) NO EFFECT ON EXISTING HACCP AUTHORITIES.—Nothing in this section or the amendments made by this section limits the authority of the Secretary under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) or the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 201 et seq.), as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, to revise, issue, or enforce product- and category-specific regulations, such as the Seafood Hazard Analysis Critical Controls Points Program, the Juice Hazard Analysis Critical Control Program, and the Thermally Processed Low-Acid Foods Packaged in Hermetically Sealed Containers standards.

(5) CONSIDERATION.—When implementing sections 418 and 418A of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by paragraph (2), the Secretary may take into account differences between food intended for human consumption and food intended for consumption by animals other than man.

(6) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(A) GENERAL RULE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) and this subsection shall take effect 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(B) EXCEPTIONS.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A)—

(i) the amendments made by subsection (a) and this subsection shall apply to a small business (as defined by the Secretary) after the date that is 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(ii) the amendments made by subsection (a) and this subsection shall apply to a very small business (as defined by the Secretary) after the date that is 3 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) FINISHED PRODUCT TEST RESULTS FROM CATEGORY 1 FACILITIES.—

(1) ADULTERATION.—Section 402 (21 U.S.C. 342), as amended by subsection (a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(k) If it is manufactured or processed in a facility that is in violation of section 418B.”

(2) REQUIREMENTS.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 418B. FINISHED PRODUCT TEST RESULTS FROM CATEGORY 1 FACILITIES.

“(a) AUTHORITY.—Beginning on the date specified in subsection (c), the Secretary shall require, after public notice and an opportunity for comment, the submission to the Secretary of finished product test results by the owner, operator, or agent of each category 1 facility subject to good manufacturing practices regulations documenting the presence of contaminants in food in the possession or control of such facility posing a risk of severe adverse health consequences or death.

“(b) CONSIDERATIONS.—The Secretary shall require submissions under subsection (a)—

“(1) as the Secretary determines feasible and appropriate; and

“(2) taking into consideration available data and information on the potential risks posed by the facility.

“(c) BEGINNING DATE.—The date specified in this subsection is the sooner of—

“(1) the date of completion of the pilot projects and feasibility study under subsections (d) and (e); and

“(2) the date that is 2 years after the date of the enactment of this section.

“(d) PILOT PROJECTS.—The Secretary shall conduct 2 or more pilot projects to evaluate the feasibility of collecting positive finished product testing results from category 1 facilities, including the value and feasibility of reporting corrective actions taken when positive finished product test results are reported to the Secretary.

“(e) FEASIBILITY STUDY.—The Secretary shall assess the feasibility and benefits of the reporting by facilities subject to good manufacturing practices regulations of appropriate finished product testing results from category 1 facilities to the Secretary, including the extent to which the collection of such finished product testing results will help the Secretary assess the risk presented by a facility or product category.

“(f) LIMITATIONS.—Nothing in this section shall be construed—

“(1) to require the Secretary to mandate testing or submission of test results that the Secretary determines would not provide useful information in assessing the potential risk presented by a facility or product category; or

“(2) to limit the Secretary’s authority under any other provisions of law to require any person to provide access, or to submit information or test results, to the Secretary, including the ability of the Secretary to require field or other testing and to obtain test results in the course of an investigation of a potential food-borne illness or contamination incident.

“(g) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘category 1 facility’ means a category 1 facility within the meaning of section 704(h).”

(c) FOOD DEFENSE.—

(1) ADULTERATION.—Section 402(j), as added by subsection (a), is amended by striking “and 418A” and inserting “, 418A, or 418C”.

(2) REQUIREMENTS.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 418C. FOOD DEFENSE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Before a facility (as defined in section 418(i)) introduces or delivers for introduction into interstate commerce any shipment of food, the owner, operator, or agent of the facility shall develop and implement a written food defense plan (in this section referred to as a ‘food defense plan’).

“(b) CONTENTS.—The food defense plan shall include each of the following elements:

“(1) A food defense assessment to identify conditions and practices that may permit a hazard that may be intentionally introduced, including by an act of terrorism. This assessment shall evaluate processing security, cybersecurity, material security (including ingredients, finished product, and packaging), personnel security, storage security, shipping and receiving security, and utility security.

“(2) A description of the preventive measures being implemented as a result of such assessment to minimize the risk of intentional contamination.

“(3) A description of the procedures to check for and identify any circumstances in which the preventive measures are not fully implemented or were ineffective.

“(4) A description of the procedures for taking corrective actions to ensure that when preventive measures have not been properly implemented or have been ineffective, appropriate action is taken—

“(A) to reduce the likelihood of recurrence of the failure; and “(B) to assess the consequences of the failure.

“(5) A description of evaluation activities for the preventive measures, including a review of records provided for under paragraph (6) and procedures to periodically test the effectiveness of the plan.

“(6) A description of the facility’s record-keeping procedures, including records documenting implementation of the procedures under paragraphs (3), (4), and (5).

“(c) HAZARD.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘hazard that may be intentionally introduced, including by an act of terrorism’ means a hazard for which a prudent person who, as applicable, manufactures, processes, packs, transports, or holds food, would establish preventive measures because the hazard has been identified by a food defense assessment by application of—

“(1) a targeting assessment tool recommended by the Secretary by guidance; or

“(2) a comparable targeting assessment tool.

“(d) FOOD DEFENSE HAZARDS IDENTIFIED BY THE SECRETARY.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary may establish by regulation or guidance preventive measures for specific product types to prevent intentional contamination throughout the supply chain. The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall implement any preventive measures identified by the Secretary under this paragraph.

“(2) ALTERNATIVE MEASURES.—Such regulation or guidance shall allow the owner, operator, or agent of a facility to implement an alternative preventive measure to one established by the Secretary, provided that, in response to a request by the Secretary, the owner, operator, or agent can present to the Secretary data or other information sufficient to demonstrate that the alternative measure effectively addresses the hazard.

“(e) REQUIREMENT TO REASSESS AND REVISE.—

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall—

“(A) review the food defense assessment under subsection (b)(1) for the facility and, as necessary, revise the food defense assessment under subsection (b)(1) for the facility—

“(i) not less than every 2 years;

“(ii) if there is a change in the process or product that could affect the food defense assessment; and

“(iii) if the Secretary determines that it is appropriate to protect public health; and

“(B) whenever there is a change in the food defense assessment, revise the preventive measures under subsection (b)(2) for the facility as necessary to ensure that for all hazards identified, the risk is minimized, or document the basis for the conclusion that no such revision is needed.

“(2) NONDELEGATION.—Any revisions ordered by the Secretary under this subsection shall be ordered by the Secretary or an official designated by the Secretary. An official may not be so designated unless the official is the director of the district under this Act in which the facility involved is located, or is an official senior to such director.

“(f) RECORDKEEPING.—The owner, operator, or agent of a facility shall maintain, for not less than 2 years, records documenting the activities described in subsections (b) and (e).

“(g) ACCESS TO PLAN.—

“(1) ON INSPECTION.—An officer or employee of the Secretary shall have access to the food defense plan of a facility under section 414(a) only if the Secretary, through an official who is the director of the district under this Act in which the facility is located or an official who is senior to such a director, provides notice under section 414(a)(1)(C).

“(2) NONDISCLOSURE.—A food defense plan, and any information derived from such a plan, shall be exempt from disclosure under section 552 of title 5, United States Code.”

(3) PROHIBITION.—Section 301(j) (21 U.S.C. 331(j)) is amended by inserting after “entitled to protection” the following: “or a food defense plan, or any information derived from such a plan, under section 418C”.

SEC. 103. PERFORMANCE STANDARDS.

(a) ADULTERATED FOOD.—Section 402 (21 U.S.C. 342), as amended by section 102, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(1) If it has been manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held under conditions that do not meet the standards issued under section 419.”

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended by section 102(b), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 419. PERFORMANCE STANDARDS.

“(a) PERFORMANCE STANDARDS.—The Secretary shall, not less frequently than every 2 years, review and evaluate epidemiological data and other appropriate sources of information, including research under section 123 of the Food Safety Enhancement Act of 2009, to identify the most significant food-borne contaminants and the most significant resulting hazards. The Secretary shall issue, as soon as practicable, through guidance or by regulation, science-based performance standards (which may include action levels) applicable to foods or food classes, as appropriate, to minimize to an acceptable level, prevent, or eliminate the occurrence of such hazards. Such standards shall be applicable to foods and food classes. Notwithstanding the timelines set forth in this paragraph, the Secretary shall as appropriate establish such science-based performance standards for identified contaminants as necessary to protect the public health.

“(b) LIST OF CONTAMINANTS.—Following each review under subsection (a), the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register a list of food-borne contaminants that have the greatest adverse impact on public health. In determining whether a particular food-borne contaminant should be added to such list, the Secretary shall consider the number and severity of illnesses and the number of deaths associated with the foods associated with such contaminants.

“(c) SAMPLING PROGRAM.—In conjunction with the establishment of a performance standard under this section, the Secretary may make recommendations to industry for conducting product sampling.

“(d) REVOCATION BY SECRETARY.—All performance standards of the Food and Drug Administration applicable to foods or food classes in effect on the date of the enactment of this section, or issued under this section, shall remain in effect until revised or revoked by the Secretary.”

(c) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress by March 30th of the year following each review under section 419 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (b), a report on the results of such review and the Secretary's plans to address the significant food-borne hazards identified, or the basis for not addressing any significant food-borne hazards identified, including any resource limitations or limitations in data that preclude further action at that time.

SEC. 104. SAFETY STANDARDS FOR PRODUCE AND CERTAIN OTHER RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES.

(a) ADULTERATED FOOD.—Section 402 (21 U.S.C. 342), as amended by sections 102 and 103(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(m) If it has been grown, harvested, processed, packed, sorted, transported, or held under conditions that do not meet the standards established under section 419A.”

(b) STANDARDS.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended by sections 102(b) and 103(b), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 419A. SAFETY STANDARDS FOR PRODUCE AND CERTAIN OTHER RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES.

“(a) STANDARDS.—The Secretary, in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, shall establish by regulation scientific and risk-based food safety standards for the growing, harvesting, processing, packing, sorting, transporting, and holding of those types of raw agricultural commodities—

“(1) that are a fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus; and

“(2) for which the Secretary has determined that such standards are reasonably necessary to minimize the risk of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals.

“(b) CONTENTS.—The regulations under subsection (a)—

“(1) may set forth such procedures, processes, and practices as the Secretary determines to be reasonably necessary—

“(A) to prevent the introduction of known or reasonably foreseeable biological, chemical, and physical hazards, including hazards that occur naturally, may be unintentionally introduced, or may be intentionally introduced, including by acts of terrorism, into raw agricultural commodities that are a fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus; and

“(B) to provide reasonable assurances that such commodity is not adulterated under section 402;

“(2) may include, with respect to growing, harvesting, processing, packing, sorting, transporting, and storage operations, standards for safety as the Secretary determines to be reasonably necessary;

“(3) may include standards addressing manure use, water quality, employee hygiene, sanitation and animal control, and temperature controls, as the Secretary determines to be reasonably necessary;

“(4) may include standards for such other elements as the Secretary determines necessary to carry out subsection (a);

“(5) shall provide a reasonable period of time for compliance, taking into account the needs of small businesses for additional time to comply;

“(6) may provide for coordination of education and enforcement activities;

“(7) shall take into consideration, consistent with ensuring enforceable public health protection, the impact on small-scale and diversified farms, and on wildlife habitat, conservation practices, watershed-protection efforts, and organic production methods;

“(8) may provide for coordination of education and training with other government agencies, universities, private entities, and others with experience working directly with farmers; and “(9) may provide for recognition through guidance of other existing publicly available procedures, processes, and practices that the Secretary determines to be equivalent to those established under paragraph (1).

“(c) EDUCATION AND COMPLIANCE.—The Secretary shall coordinate with the Secretary of Agriculture to provide for effective implementation of education and compliance activities. The Secretary may contract and coordinate with the agency or department designated by the Governor of each State to perform activities to ensure compliance with this section.”

(c) TIMING.—

(1) PROPOSED RULE.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall issue a proposed rule to carry out section 419A of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (b).

(2) FINAL RULE.—Not later than 3 years after such date, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall issue a final rule under such section.

(d) NO EFFECT ON EXISTING HACCP AUTHORITIES.—Nothing in this section or the amendments made by this section limits the authority of the Secretary under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) or the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 201 et seq.), as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, to revise, issue, or enforce product- and category-specific regulations, such as the Seafood Hazard Analysis Critical Controls Points Program, the Juice Hazard Analysis Critical Control Program, and the Thermally Processed Low-Acid Foods Packaged in Hermetically Sealed Containers standards.

(e) UPDATE EXISTING GUIDANCE.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall update the guidance document entitled “Guidance For Industry: Guide To Minimize Microbial Food Safety Hazards For Fresh Fruits And Vegetables” (issued on October 26, 1998) in accordance with this section and the amendments made by this section.

SEC. 105. RISK-BASED INSPECTION SCHEDULE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 704 (21 U.S.C. 374) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(h)(1) Each facility registered under section 415 shall be inspected—

“(A)(i) by one or more officers duly designated under section 702 or other statutory authority by the Secretary;

“(ii) for domestic facilities, by a Federal, State, or local official recognized by the Secretary under paragraph (2); or

“(iii) for foreign facilities, by an agency or a representative of a country that is recognized by the Secretary under paragraph (2); and “(B) at a frequency determined pursuant to a risk-based schedule.

“(2) For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the Secretary—

“(A) may recognize Federal, State, and local officials and agencies and representatives of foreign countries as meeting standards established by the Secretary for conducting inspections under this Act; and “(B) may limit such recognition to inspections of specific commodities or food types.

“(3) The risk-based schedule under paragraph (1)(B) shall be implemented beginning not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this subsection.

“(4) Such risk-based schedule shall provide for a frequency of inspections commensurate with the risk presented by the facility and shall be based on the following categories and inspection frequencies:

“(A) CATEGORY 1.—A category 1 food facility is a high-risk facility that manufactures or processes food. The Secretary shall randomly inspect a category 1 food facility at least every 6 to 12 months.

“(B) CATEGORY 2.—A category 2 food facility is a low-risk facility that manufactures or processes food or a facility that packs or labels food. The Secretary shall randomly inspect a category 2 facility at least every 18 months to 3 years.

“(C) CATEGORY 3.—A category 3 food facility is a facility that holds food. The Secretary shall randomly inspect a category 3 facility at least every 5 years.

“(5) The Secretary—

“(A) may, by guidance, modify the types of food facilities within a category under paragraph (4);

“(B) may alter the inspection frequencies specified in paragraph (4) based on the need to respond to food-borne illness outbreaks and food recalls; and

“(C) may inspect a facility more frequently than the inspection frequency provided by paragraph (4);

“(D) beginning 6 months after submitting the report required by section 105(b)(2) of the Food Safety Enhancement Act of 2009, may—

“(i) publish in the Federal Register adjustments to the inspection frequencies specified in subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (4) for category 2 and category 3 food facilities, which adjustments shall be in accordance with the Secretary's recommendations in such report; and

“(ii) after such publication, implement the adjustments; and

“(E) except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), may not alter the inspection frequency specified in paragraph (4)(A) for category 1 food facilities.

“(6) In determining the appropriate frequency of inspection, the Secretary shall consider—

“(A) the type of food manufactured, processed, packed, or held at the facility;

“(B) the compliance history of the facility;

“(C) whether the facility importing or offering for import into the United States food is certified by a qualified certifying entity in accordance with section 801(q); and “(D) such other factors as the Secretary determines by guidance to be relevant to assessing the risk presented by the facility.

“(7) Before establishing or modifying the categorization under paragraph (4) of any food facility or type of food facility, the Secretary shall publish a notice of the proposed categorization in the Federal Register and provide a period of not less than 60 days for public comment on the proposed categorization.”

(b) REPORTS ON RISK-BASED INSPECTIONS OF FOOD FACILITIES.—

(1) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than December 31 of each year, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit a report to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate describing—

(A) the number of foreign and domestic facilities, by risk category, inspected under the risk-based inspection schedule established under section 704(h) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), in the preceding fiscal year; and

(B) the costs of implementing the risk-based inspection schedule for the preceding 12 months.

(2) THIRD-YEAR REPORT.—Not later than 3 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit a report to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate describing recommendations on the risk-based inspection schedule under section 704(h) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), including recommendations for adjustments to the timing of the schedule and other ways to improve the risk-based allocation of resources by the Food and Drug Administration. In making such recommendations, the Secretary shall consider—

(A) the nature of the food products being processed, stored, or transported;

(B) the manner in which food products are processed, stored, or transported;

(C) the inherent likelihood that the products will contribute to the risk of food-borne illness;

(D) the best available evidence concerning reported illnesses associated with the foods processed, stored, held, or transported in the category of facilities; and

(E) the overall record of compliance with food safety law among facilities in the category, including compliance with applicable performance standards and the frequency of recalls.

SEC. 106. ACCESS TO RECORDS.

(a) RECORDS ACCESS.—Subsection (a) of section 414 (21 U.S.C. 350c) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) RECORDS ACCESS.—

“(1) RECORDS ACCESS DURING AN INSPECTION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), each person who manufactures, processes, packs, transports, distributes, receives, or holds an article of food in the United States or for import into the United States shall, at the request of an officer or employee duly designated by the Secretary, permit such officer or employee, upon presentation of appropriate credentials, at reasonable times and within reasonable limits and in a reasonable manner, to have access to and copy all records relating to such article bearing on whether the food may be adulterated, misbranded, or otherwise in violation of this Act, including all records collected or developed to comply with section 418 or 418A.

“(B) SCOPE OF RECORDS.—The requirement under subparagraph (A) applies to all records relating to the manufacture, processing, packing, transporting, distribution, receipt, holding, or importation of such article maintained by or on behalf of such person in any format (including paper and electronic formats) and at any location.

“(C) IMMEDIATE AVAILABILITY WITH NOTICE.—Records not required to be made available immediately on commencement of an inspection under subparagraph (A) shall nonetheless be made available immediately on commencement of such an inspection if, by a reasonable time before such inspection, the Secretary by letter to the person identifies the records to be made available during such inspection. Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as permitting a person to refuse to produce records required under and in accordance with subparagraph (A) due to failure of the Secretary to provide notice under this paragraph.

“(2) ADDITIONAL AUTHORITIES TO ACCESS RECORDS REMOTELY; SUBMISSION OF RECORDS TO THE SECRETARY.—

“(A) REMOTE ACCESS IN EMERGENCIES.—If the Secretary has a reasonable belief that an article of food presents a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals, the Secretary may require each person who manufactures, processes, packs, transports, distributes, receives, holds, or imports such article of food, or any article of food that the Secretary determines may be affected in a similar manner, to submit to the Secretary all records reasonably related to such article of food as soon as is reasonably practicable, after receiving written notice (including by notice served personally and outside normal business hours to an agent identified under subparagraph (E) or (F) of section 415(a)(2)) of such requirement.

“(B) REMOTE ACCESS TO RECORDS RELATED TO FOOD SAFETY PLANS.—With respect to a facility subject to section 418 and 418A, the Secretary may require the owner, operator, or agent of such facility to submit to the Secretary, as soon as reasonably practicable after receiving written notice of such requirement, the food safety plan, supporting information relied on by the facility to select the preventive controls to include in its food safety plan, and documentation of corrective actions, if any, taken under section 418(e) within the preceding 2 years.

“(C) ELECTRONIC SUBMISSION.—If the records required to be submitted to the Secretary under subparagraph (A) or (B) are available in electronic format, such records shall be submitted electronically unless the Secretary specifies otherwise in the notice under such subparagraph.

“(3) LIMITED RECORDS ACCESS ON FARMS.—

“(A) APPLICATION.—Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply with respect to farms, except as provided in this paragraph.

“(B) IN GENERAL.—A person who is the owner, operator, or agent of a farm (as defined in section 415) shall, at the request of an officer or employee duly designated by the Secretary, permit such officer or employee, at reasonable times and within reasonable limits and in a reasonable manner, to have access to and copy all records relating to an article of food produced, manufactured, processed, packed, or held on such farm as specified in paragraphs (1) and (2) if—

“(i) such article of food is a fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus that is the subject of a standard issued under section 419A; or “(ii) such article of food is the subject of an active investigation by the Secretary of a food borne illness outbreak and is not a grain or similarly handled commodity as defined in subsection (c)(4)(C)(ii).

“(C) RECORDS ACCESS ON FARMS PRIOR TO RULEMAKING.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after the enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall, in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, identify 1 or more fruits, vegetables, nuts, or fungi for which the Secretary shall have access to records on farms. Such identification shall be made by guidance, following notice and public comment.

“(ii) IDENTIFICATION OF RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES.—The Secretary, in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, shall make the identification in clause (i), based on any past food borne illness outbreak attributed to the fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus—

“(I) in the United States and the risk that a similar outbreak could occur again in the United States; or “(II) in a foreign country and the risk that a similar outbreak could occur in the United States.

“(iii) DURATION OF AUTHORITY.—The authority to have access to records for a fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus under this subparagraph shall begin on the date on which the Secretary identifies such fruit, vegetable, nut, or fungus under clause (i) and shall terminate on the effective date of a final rule issued by the Secretary under section 419A.

“(iv) SCOPE OF RECORDS ACCESS.—In the guidance under clause (i), and for the period specified in clause (iii), the Secretary, in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, shall determine the scope of the records to which the Secretary shall have access under this subparagraph.

“(D) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—This paragraph shall not be construed as limiting access to any records authorized under—

“(i) this Act or the Public Health Service Act, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this paragraph; or

“(ii) regulations issued under such Acts on any date before the date of the enactment of this paragraph.”

(b) REGULATIONS CONCERNING RECORD-KEEPING.—

(1) AMENDMENT.—Subsection (b) of section 414 (21 U.S.C. 350c) is amended to read as follows:

“(b) REGULATIONS CONCERNING RECORD-KEEPING.—The Secretary, in consultation and coordination, as appropriate, with other Federal departments and agencies with responsibilities for regulating food safety, shall by regulation establish requirements regarding the establishment and maintenance, for not longer than 3 years, of records by persons who manufacture, process, pack, transport, distribute, receive, or hold food in the United States or for import into the United States. The Secretary shall take into account the size of a business in promulgating regulations under this subsection. The Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Agriculture in promulgating regulations with respect to farms under this subsection and shall take into account the nature of and impact on farms in promulgating such regulations. The only distribution records which may be required of restaurants under this subsection are those showing the restaurant’s suppliers and subsequent distribution other than to consumers.”

(2) APPLICATION.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall promulgate revised regulations to implement section 414(b) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as amended by this subsection. Section 414(b) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and regulations thereunder, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, shall apply to acts and omissions occurring before the effective date of such revised regulations.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 704(a)(1) (21 U.S.C. 374(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) in the second sentence—

(A) by striking “(excluding farms or restaurants)” and inserting “(excluding farms, except as provided in section 414(a)(3))”;

(B) by inserting “receives,” before “holds”;

(C) by striking “described in section 414” and inserting “described in or required under section 414”; and

(D) by striking “when the Secretary has a reasonable belief that an article of food is adulterated and presents a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals” and inserting “bearing on whether such food is adulterated, misbranded, or otherwise in violation of this Act, including all records collected or developed to comply with section 418 or 418A”; and

(2) in the fourth sentence—

(A) by striking “the preceding sentence” and inserting “either of the preceding two sentences”; and

(B) by inserting “recipes for food,” before “financial data.”

SEC. 107. TRACEABILITY OF FOOD.

(a) PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301(e) (21 U.S.C. 331(e)) is amended by inserting “, the violation of any requirement of the food tracing system under section 414(c);” before “or the refusal to permit access to or verification or copying of any such required record”.

(b) IMPORTS.—Section 801(a) (21 U.S.C. 381(a)) is amended by inserting “or (4) the requirements of section 414 have not been complied with regarding such article,” before “then such article shall be refused admission”.

(c) PRODUCT TRACING FOR FOOD.—Section 414 (21 U.S.C. 350c), as amended by section 106, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (c) and (d) as subsections (d) and (e), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following:

“(c) TRACING SYSTEM FOR FOOD.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall by regulation establish a tracing system for food that is located in the United States or is for import into the United States.

“(2) INFORMATION GATHERING.—

“(A) TRACING TECHNOLOGIES.—Before issuing a proposed regulation under this subsection, the Secretary shall—

“(i) identify technologies and methodologies for tracing the distribution history of a food that are, or may be, used by members of different sectors of the food industry, including technologies and methodologies to enable each person who produces, manufactures, processes, pack, transports, or holds a food to—

“(I) maintain the full pedigree of the origin and previous distribution history of the food;

“(II) link that history with the subsequent distribution of the food;

“(III) establish and maintain a system for tracing the food that is interoperable with the systems established and maintained by other such persons; and

“(IV) use a unique identifier for each facility owned or operated by such person for such purpose, as specified under section 1011; and

“(ii) to the extent practicable, assess—

“(I) the costs and benefits associated with the adoption and use of such technologies;

“(II) the feasibility of such technologies for different sectors of the food industry; and “(III) whether such technologies are compatible with the requirements of this subsection.

“(B) PUBLIC MEETINGS.—Before issuing a proposed regulation under this subsection, the Secretary shall conduct not less than 2 public meetings in diverse geographical areas of the United States to provide persons in different regions an opportunity to provide input and information to the Secretary.

“(C) PILOT PROJECTS.—Before issuing a proposed regulation under this subsection, the Secretary shall conduct 1 or more pilot projects in coordination with 1 or more sectors of the food industry to explore and evaluate tracing systems for food. The Secretary shall coordinate with the Secretary of Agriculture in conducting pilot projects with respect to farms under this subsection.

“(3) REGULATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Taking into account information obtained through information gathering under paragraph (2), the Secretary shall issue regulations establishing a tracing system that enables the Secretary to identify each person who grows, produces, manufactures, processes, packs, transports, holds, or sells such food in as short a timeframe as practicable but no longer than 2 business days.

“(B) SCOPE OF REGULATION.—The Secretary may include in the regulations establishing a tracing system—

“(i) the establishment and maintenance of lot numbers;

“(ii) a standardized format for pedigree information; and

“(iii) the use of a common nomenclature for food.

“(C) COORDINATION REGARDING FARM IMPACT.—In issuing regulations under this paragraph that will impact farms, the Secretary—

“(i) shall coordinate with the Secretary of Agriculture; and “(ii) take into account the nature of the impact of the regulations on farms.

“(4) EXEMPTIONS AND LIMITATIONS.—

“(A) DIRECT SALES BY FARMS.—Food is exempt from the requirements of this subsection if such food is—

“(i) produced on a farm; and

“(ii) sold by the owner, operator, or agent in charge of such farm directly to a consumer or to a restaurant or grocery store.

“(B) FISHING VESSELS.—Food is exempt from the requirements of this subsection if such food is produced through the use of a fishing vessel as defined in section 3(18) of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act until such time as the food is sold by the owner, operator, or agent in charge of such fishing vessel.

“(C) GRAINS AND SIMILARLY HANDLED COMMODITIES.—

“(i) LIMITATION ON EXTENT OF TRACING.—In addition to the exemption under subparagraph (A), any tracing system established under this subsection with regard to any grain or similarly handled commodity shall be limited to enabling the Secretary to identify persons who received, processed, packed, transported, distributed, held, or sold the grain or similarly handled commodity from the initial warehouse operator that held the grain or similarly handled commodity for any period of time to the ultimate consumer.

“(ii) DEFINITIONS.—In this subparagraph:

“(I) The term ‘grain or similarly handled commodity’ means wheat, corn, grain sorghum, barley, oats, rice, wild rice, rye, soybeans, legumes, sugar cane, sugar beets, sunflower seed, rapeseed, canola, safflower, flaxseed, mustard seed, crambe, sesame seed, camelina, cottonseed, cocoa beans, grass hay, and honey. The term may include any other commodity as determined by the Secretary in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture.

“(II) The term ‘warehouse operator’ has the meaning given that term in section 2 of the United States Warehouse Act (7 U.S.C. 241), except that the term also includes any person or entity that handles or stores agricultural products for other persons or entities or, in the case of a cooperative, handles or stores agricultural products for its members, as determined by the Secretary in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture.

“(D) EXEMPTION OF OTHER FOODS.—The Secretary may by notice in the Federal Register exempt a food or a type of facility, farm, or restaurant from, or modify the requirements with respect to, the requirements of this subsection if the Secretary determines that a tracing system for such food or type of facility, farm, or restaurant is not necessary to protect the public health.

“(E) RECORDKEEPING REGARDING PREVIOUS SOURCES AND SUBSEQUENT RECIPIENTS.—For a food or person covered by a limitation or exemption under subparagraph (B), (C), or (D), the Secretary shall require each person who produces, receives, manufactures, processes, packs, transports, distributes, or holds such food to maintain records to identify the immediate previous sources of such food and its ingredients and the immediate subsequent recipients of such food.

“(F) RECORDKEEPING BY RESTAURANTS AND GROCERY STORES.—For a food covered by an exemption under subparagraph (A), restaurants and grocery stores shall keep records documenting the farm that was the source of the food.

“(G) RECORDKEEPING BY FARMS.—For a food covered by an exemption under subparagraph (A), farms shall keep records, in electronic or non-electronic format, for at least 6 months documenting the restaurant or grocery store to which the food was sold.”.

SEC. 108. REINSPECTION AND FOOD RECALL FEES APPLICABLE TO FACILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part 6 of subchapter C of chapter VII (21 U.S.C. 371 et seq.), as added by section 101(c), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 743A. REINSPECTION AND FOOD RECALL FEES APPLICABLE TO FACILITIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall assess and collect fees from each entity in a fiscal year—

“(1) that—

“(A) during such fiscal year commits a violation of any requirement of this Act relating to food, including any such requirement relating to good manufacturing practices; and

“(B) because of such violation, undergoes additional inspection by the Food and Drug Administration; or

“(2) during such fiscal year is subject to a food recall.

“(b) AMOUNT OF FEES.—The Secretary shall set the amount of the fees under this section to fully cover the costs of—

“(1) in the case of fees collected under subsection (a)(1), conducting the additional inspections referred to in such subsection; and

“(2) in the case of fees collected under subsection (a)(2), conducting food recall activities, including technical assistance, follow-up effectiveness checks, and public notifications, during the fiscal year involved.

“(c) CREDITING AND AVAILABILITY OF FEES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Fees authorized under subsection (a) shall be collected and available for obligation only to the extent and in the amount provided in advance in appropriations Acts. Such fees are authorized to remain available until expended. Such sums as may be necessary may be transferred from the Food and Drug Administration salaries and expenses appropriation account without fiscal year limitation to such appropriation account for salaries and expenses with such fiscal year limitation.

“(2) COLLECTIONS AND APPROPRIATIONS ACTS.—The fees authorized by this section—

“(A) shall be retained in each fiscal year in an amount not to exceed the amount specified in appropriation Acts, or otherwise made available for obligation, for such fiscal year; and

“(B) shall only be collected and available to defray the costs referred to in subsection (b).

“(3) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014, there are authorized to be appropriated for fees under this section such sums as may be necessary.

“(d) WAIVER.—The Secretary shall waive and, if applicable, refund the amount of any fee collected under this section from an entity as a result of a food recall that the Secretary determines was inappropriately ordered.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to additional inspections and food recall activities occurring after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 109. CERTIFICATION AND ACCREDITATION.

(a) MISBRANDING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343), as amended by section 101(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(aa) If it is part of a shipment offered for import into the United States and such shipment is in violation of section 801(q) (requiring a certification of compliance for certain food shipments).”.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by paragraph (1) shall apply to shipments offered for import on or after the date that is 3 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) CERTIFICATION OF COMPLIANCE FOR IMPORTS.—Chapter VIII (21 U.S.C. 381 et seq.) is amended—

(1) in section 801(a), as amended by section 107(b), by inserting after the third sentence the following: “If such article is food being imported or offered for import into the United States and is not in compliance with the requirement of subsection (q) (relating to certifications of compliance with this Act), then such article shall be refused admission.”;

(2) in the second sentence of section 801(b), by striking “the fourth sentence” and inserting “the fifth sentence”; and

(3) by adding at the end of section 801 the following:

“(q) CERTIFICATIONS CONCERNING IMPORTED ARTICLES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—

“(A) REQUIREMENT.—The Secretary may require, as an additional condition of granting admission to an article of food being imported or offered for import into the United States, that a qualified certifying entity provide a certification that the article complies with requirements of this Act as specified by the Secretary if—

“(i) for food imported from a particular country, territory, or region, the Secretary finds, based on scientific, risk-based evidence, that the government controls in such country, territory, or region are inadequate to ensure that the article is safe and that certification would assist the Secretary in determining whether to refuse to admit such article under subsection (a);

“(ii) for a type of food for which there is scientific evidence that there is a particular risk associated with the food that presents a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death, the Secretary finds that certification would assist the Secretary in determining whether to refuse to admit such article under subsection (a); or

“(iii) for an article imported from a particular country or territory, there is an agreement between the Secretary and the government of such country or territory providing for such certification.

“(B) FORM OF CERTIFICATION.—A certification under subparagraph (A) may take the form of a statement that the article or the facility or farm that manufactured, processed, packed, held, grew, harvested, sorted, or transported the article, as the case may be, complies with requirements of this Act as specified by the Secretary, or any other form as the Secretary may specify, including a listing of certified facilities or other entities. The Secretary may require that the cer-tification include additional information regarding compliance.

“(C) ADEQUATE GOVERNMENT CONTROLS.—

“(i) PROCESS.—Before requiring a certification under clause (ii) of subparagraph (A) with respect to a food, the Secretary shall establish a process by which a country or territory may demonstrate that its government controls are adequate to ensure that such food exported from its territory to the United States is safe.

“(ii) DEMONSTRATION.—The Secretary shall not require a certification under clause (ii) of subparagraph (A) for a food exported from a country or territory, if that country or territory has demonstrated, pursuant to the process established by the Secretary under clause (i), that its government controls are adequate to ensure that such food exported from its territory to the United States is safe.

“(D) NOTICE OF CANCELLATION OR SUSPENSION OF CERTIFICATION.—As a condition on acceptance of certifications from a qualified certifying entity, the Secretary shall require the qualified certifying entity to notify the Secretary whenever the qualified certifying entity cancels or suspends the certification of any facility or other entity included in a listing under subparagraph (B).

“(E) CONSISTENCY WITH INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS.—The Secretary shall apply this paragraph consistently with United States obligations under international agreements.

“(2) QUALIFIED CERTIFYING ENTITY.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘qualified certifying entity’ means—

“(A) an agency or a representative of the government of the country from which the article originated, as designated by such government or the Secretary; or

“(B) an individual or entity determined by the Secretary or an accredited body recognized by the Secretary to be qualified to provide a certification under paragraph (1).

“(3) NO CONFLICTS OF INTEREST.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall issue regulations to ensure that any qualified certifying entity and its auditors are free from conflicts of interest. In issuing these regulations, the Secretary may rely on or incorporate international certification standards.

“(B) REGULATIONS.—Such regulations shall require that—“(i) the qualified certifying entity shall have a committee or management structure for safeguarding impartiality;

“(ii) conflict of interest policies for a qualified certifying entity and auditors acting for the qualified certifying entity shall be written;

“(iii) the qualified certifying entity shall not be owned, operated, or controlled by a producer, manufacturer, processor, packer, holder, supplier, or vendor of any article of the type it certifies;

“(iv) the qualified certifying entity shall not have any ownership or financial interest in any product, producer, manufacturer, processor, packer, holder, supplier or vendor of the type it certifies;

“(v) no auditor acting for the qualified certifying entity (or spouse or minor children) shall have any significant ownership or other financial interest regarding any product of the type it certifies;

“(vi) the qualified certifying entity shall—

“(I) obtain and maintain annual declarations from all personnel who may be directly involved in the performance of audits as to whether they do or do not have direct financial interests in any producer, manufacturer, processor, packer, holder, supplier, or vendor of foods, and a list of any such companies in which they do have financial interests or by which they were employed in the past year; and

“(II) when an auditor is assigned to audit a facility, require that individual to affirm that he or she has no financial interest in the company that owns or operates that facility and was not employed by that facility in the previous year;

“(vii) neither the qualified certifying entity nor any of its auditors acting for the qualified certifying entity shall participate in the production, manufacture, processing, packing, holding, promotion, or sale of any product of the type it certifies;

“(viii) neither the qualified certifying entity nor any of its auditors shall provide consultative services to any facility certified by the qualified certifying entity, or the owner, operator, or agent in charge of such a facility, unless the qualified certifying entity has procedures in place, approved by the Secretary, to ensure separation of functions between auditors providing consultative services and auditors providing certification services under this subsection;

“(ix) no auditors acting for the qualified certifying entity shall participate in an audit of a facility they were employed by within the last 12 months;

“(x) fees charged or accepted shall not be contingent or based upon the report made by the qualified certifying entity or any personnel involved in the audit process;

“(xi) neither the qualified certifying entity nor any of its auditors shall accept anything of value from anyone in connection with the facility being audited other than the audit fee;

“(xii) the qualified certifying entity shall not be owned, operated, or controlled by a trade association whose member companies operate facilities that it certifies;

“(xiii) the qualified certifying entity and its auditors shall be free from any other conflicts of interest that threaten impartiality;

“(xiv) the qualified certifying entity and its auditors shall sign a statement attesting to compliance with the conflict of interests requirements under this paragraph; and “(xv) the qualified certifying entity shall ensure that any subcontractors that might be used (such as laboratories and sampling services) provide similar assurances, except that it shall not be a violation of this subsection to the extent such subcontractors perform additional nutritional testing services unrelated to the testing under this subsection.

“(C) DEFINITIONS.—In this paragraph:

“(i) The term ‘anything of value’ includes gifts, gratuities, reimbursement of non-audit-related expenses, entertainment, loans, or any other form of compensation in cash or in kind.

“(ii) The term ‘direct financial interest’ does not include any ownership of mutual funds that have a financial interest in a company.

“(4) RENEWAL AND REFUSAL OF CERTIFICATIONS.—The Secretary shall—

“(A) require that, to the extent applicable, any certification provided by a qualified certifying entity be renewed by such entity at such times as the Secretary determines appropriate; and

“(B) refuse to accept any certification if the Secretary determines that such certification is no longer valid or reliable.

“(5) ON-SITE AUDITS.—In evaluating whether an accreditation body meets, or continues to meet, the standards for recognition under this subsection, or whether to accept certications from a qualified certifying entity, the Secretary may—

“(A) observe on-site audits of qualified certifying entities by such accreditation body; or

“(B) for any facility that is certified by a qualified certifying entity, upon request of an officer or employee designated by the Secretary and upon presentation of appropriate credentials, at reasonable times and within reasonable limits and in a reasonable manner, conduct an on-site audit of the facility, which shall include access to, and copying and verification of, any related records.

“(6) ELECTRONIC SUBMISSION.—The Secretary shall provide, in coordination with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection, for the electronic submission of certifications under this subsection.

“(7) NO LIMIT ON AUTHORITY.—This subsection shall not be construed to limit the authority of the Secretary to conduct random inspections of imported articles or facilities of importers, issue import alerts for detention without physical examination, require submission to the Secretary of documentation or other information about an article imported or offered for import, or to take such other steps as the Secretary deems appropriate to determine the admissibility of imported articles.”.

SEC. 110. TESTING BY ACCREDITED LABORATORIES.

(a) PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(uu) The violation of any requirement of section 714 (relating to testing by accredited laboratories).”.

(b) LABORATORY ACCREDITATION.—Subchapter A of chapter VII (21 U.S.C. 371 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 714. TESTING BY ACCREDITED LABORATORIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—Whenever analytical testing of an article of food is conducted as part of testimony for the purposes of section 801(a), or for such other purposes as the Secretary deems appropriate through regulation or guidance, such testing shall be conducted by a laboratory that—

“(A) is accredited, for the analytical method used, by a laboratory accreditation body that has been recognized by the Secretary; and

“(B) samples such article with adequate controls for ensuring the integrity of the samples analyzed.

“(2) INDEPENDENCE OF LABORATORY.—

“(A) CERTAIN TESTS.—Tests required for purposes of section 801(a) or in response to a finding of noncompliance by the Secretary shall be conducted by a laboratory independent of the person on whose behalf such testing is conducted and analyzed.

“(B) CERTAIN PRODUCTS.—The Secretary may require that testing for certain products under paragraph (1) be conducted by a laboratory independent of the person on whose behalf such testing is conducted.

“(b) RECOGNITION OF LABORATORY ACCREDITATION BODIES.—The Secretary shall establish and implement a program for the recognition, based on standards the Secretary deems appropriate, of laboratory accreditation bodies that accredit laboratories to perform analytical testing for the purposes of this section. The Secretary shall issue regulations or guidance to implement this program.

“(c) ONSITE AUDITS.—In evaluating whether an accreditation body meets, or continues to meet, the standards for recognition under subsection (b), the Secretary may—

“(1) observe onsite audits of laboratories by such accreditation bodies; or

“(2) for any laboratory that is accredited by such accreditation body under this section, upon request of an officer or employee designated by the Secretary and upon presentation of appropriate credentials, at reasonable times and within reasonable limits and in a reasonable manner, conduct an on-site audit of the laboratory, which shall include access to, and copying and verification of, any related records.

“(d) PUBLICATION OF LIST OF RECOGNIZED ACCREDITATION BODIES.—The Secretary shall publish and maintain on the public Web site of the Food and Drug Administration a list of accreditation bodies recognized by the Secretary under subsection (b).

“(e) NOTIFICATION OF ACCREDITATION OF LABORATORY.—An accreditation body that has been recognized pursuant to this section shall promptly notify the Secretary whenever it accredits a laboratory for the purposes of this section and whenever it withdraws or suspends such accreditation.

“(f) ADVANCE NOTICE.—Whenever analytical testing is conducted pursuant to subsection (a), the person on whose behalf the testing is conducted shall notify the Secretary before any sample of the article is collected. Such notice shall contain information the Secretary determines is appropriate to identify the article, the location of the article, and each laboratory that will analyze the sample on the person's behalf.

“(g) CONTENTS OF LABORATORY PACKAGES.—Whenever analytical testing is conducted pursuant to subsection (a), the laboratory conducting such testing shall submit, directly to the Secretary—

“(1) the results of all analyses conducted by the laboratory on each sample of such article; and

“(2) all information the Secretary deems appropriate to—

“(A) determine whether the laboratory is accredited by a recognized laboratory accreditation body;

“(B) identify the article tested;

“(C) evaluate the analytical results; and “(D) determine whether the requirements of this section have been met.

“(h) EXIGENT CIRCUMSTANCES.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of subsection (a)(1)(A) (relating to analytical methods) on a laboratory or method basis due to exigent or other circumstances.

“(i) FEDERAL LABORATORY TESTING.—If Customs and Border Protection laboratory testing concludes that an article of food is adulterated or misbranded, the Secretary shall consider and utilize as appropriate the testing results issued by the Customs and Border Protection laboratories in making a decision about the admissibility of the product.

“(j) NO LIMIT ON AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit—

“(1) the ability of the Secretary to review and act upon information from the analytical testing of food (including under this section), including determining the sufficiency of such information and testing; or

“(2) the authority of the Secretary to conduct, require, or consider the results of analytical testing pursuant to any other provision of law.”.

SEC. 111. NOTIFICATION, NONDISTRIBUTION, AND RECALL OF ADULTERATED OR MISBRANDED FOOD.

(a) PROHIBITED ACTS.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), as amended by section 110, is amended by adding at the end the following: “(vv)(1) The failure to notify the Secretary in violation of section 420(a).

“(2) The failure to comply with any order issued under section 420.”.

(b) NOTIFICATION, NONDISTRIBUTION, AND RECALL OF ADULTERATED OR MISBRANDED FOOD.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended by sections 102, 103, and 104, is amended by adding at the end the following: “SEC. 420. NOTIFICATION, NONDISTRIBUTION, AND RECALL OF ADULTERATED OR MISBRANDED FOOD.

“(a) NOTIFICATION, NONDISTRIBUTION, AND RECALL OF ADULTERATED OR MISBRANDED FOOD.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A responsible party as that term is defined in section 417(a)(1) or a person required to register under section 801(s) that has reason to believe that an article of food when introduced into or while in interstate commerce, or while held for sale (regardless of whether the first sale) after shipment in interstate commerce, is adulterated or misbranded in a manner that presents a reasonable probability that the use or consumption of, or exposure to, the article (or an ingredient or component used in any such article) will cause a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals shall, as soon as practicable, notify the Secretary of the identity and location of the article.

“(2) MANNER OF NOTIFICATION.—Notification under paragraph (1) shall be made in such manner and by such means as the Secretary may require by regulation or guidance.

“(b) VOLUNTARY RECALL.—The Secretary may request that any person who distributes an article of food that the Secretary has reason to believe is adulterated, misbranded, or otherwise in violation of this Act voluntarily—

“(1) recall such article; and

“(2) provide for notice, including to individuals as appropriate, to persons who may be affected by the recall.

“(c) ORDER TO CEASE DISTRIBUTION.—If the Secretary has reason to believe that the use or consumption of, or exposure to, an article of food may cause serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals, the Secretary shall have the authority to issue an order requiring any person who distributes such article to immediately cease distribution of such article.

“(d) ACTION FOLLOWING ORDER.—Any person who is subject to an order under subsection (c) shall immediately cease distribution of such article and provide notification as required by such order, and may appeal within 24 hours of issuance such order to the Secretary. Such appeal may include a request for an informal hearing and a description of any efforts to recall such article undertaken voluntarily by the person, including after a request under subsection (b). Except as provided in subsection (f), an informal hearing shall be held as soon as practicable, but not later than 5 calendar days, or less as determined by the Secretary, after such an appeal is filed, unless the parties jointly agree to an extension. After affording an opportunity for an informal hearing, the Secretary shall determine whether the order should be amended to require a recall of such article. If, after providing an opportunity for such a hearing, the Secretary determines that inadequate grounds exist to support the actions required by the order, the Secretary shall vacate the order.

“(e) ORDER TO RECALL.—

“(1) AMENDMENT.—Except as provided under subsection (f), if after providing an opportunity for an informal hearing under subsection (d), the Secretary determines that the order should be amended to include a recall of the article with respect to which the order was issued, the Secretary shall amend the order to require a recall.

“(2) CONTENTS.—An amended order under paragraph (1) shall—

“(A) specify a timetable in which the recall will occur;

“(B) require periodic reports to the Secretary describing the progress of the recall; and

“(C) provide for notice, including to individuals as appropriate, to persons who may be affected by the recall.

In providing for such notice, the Secretary may allow for the assistance of health professionals, State or local officials, or other individuals designated by the Secretary.

“(3) NONDELEGATION.—An amended order under this subsection shall be ordered by the Secretary or an official designated by the Secretary. An official may not be so designated unless the official is the director of the district under this Act in which the article involved is located, or is an official senior to such director.

“(f) EMERGENCY RECALL ORDER.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary has credible evidence or information that an article of food subject to an order under subsection (c) presents an imminent threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals, the Secretary may issue an order requiring any person who distributes such article—

“(A) to immediately recall such article; and

“(B) to provide for notice, including to individuals as appropriate, to persons who may be affected by the recall.

“(2) ACTION FOLLOWING ORDER.—Any person who is subject to an emergency recall order under this subsection shall immediately recall such article and provide notification as required by such order, and may appeal within 24 hours after issuance such order to the Secretary. An informal hearing shall be held within as soon as practicable but not later than 5 calendar days, or less as determined by the Secretary, after such an appeal is filed, unless the parties jointly agree to an extension. After affording an opportunity for an informal hearing, the Secretary shall determine whether the order should be amended pursuant to subsection (e)(1). If, after providing an opportunity for such a hearing, the Secretary determines that inadequate grounds exist to support the actions required by the order, the Secretary shall vacate the order.

“(3) NONDELEGATION.—An order under this subsection shall be issued by the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the Principal Deputy Commissioner, or the Associate Commissioner for Regulatory Affairs of the Food and Drug Administration.

“(g) NOTICE TO CONSUMERS AND HEALTH OFFICIALS.—The Secretary shall, as the Secretary determines to be necessary, provide notice of a recall order under this section to consumers to whom the article was, or may have been, distributed and to appropriate State and local health officials.

“(h) SAVINGS CLAUSE.—Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as limiting—

“(1) the authority of the Secretary to issue an order to cease distribution of, or to recall, an article under any other provision of this Act or the Public Health Service Act; or “(2) the ability of the Secretary to request any person to perform a voluntary activity related to any article subject to this Act or the Public Health Service Act.”.

(c) ARTICLES SUBJECT TO REFUSAL.—The third sentence of subsection (a) of section 801 (21 U.S.C. 381), as amended by section 107(b), is amended by inserting “or (5) such article is subject to an order under section 420 to cease distribution of or recall the article,” before “then such article shall be refused admission”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Sections 301(vv)(1) and 420 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsections (a) and (b), shall apply with respect to articles of food as of such date, not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, as the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall specify.

SEC. 112. REPORTABLE FOOD REGISTRY; EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION.

(a) REPORTABLE FOOD REGISTRY.—Section 417 (21 U.S.C. 350f) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(1), by striking “means a person” and all that follows through the end of paragraph (1) and inserting the following: “means—

“(A) a person who submits the registration under section 415(a) for a food facility that is required to be registered under section 415(a), at which such food is manufactured, processed, packed, or held;

“(B) a person who owns, operates, is an agent of, or is otherwise responsible for such food on a farm (as such term is defined in section 1.227(b)(3) of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, or successor regulations) at which such food is produced for sale or distribution in interstate commerce;

“(C) a person who owns, operates, or is an agent of a restaurant or other retail food establishment (as such terms are defined in section 1.227(b)(11) and (12), respectively, of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, or successor regulations) at which such food is offered for sale; or

“(D) a person that is required to register pursuant to section 801(s) with respect to importation of such food.”;

(2) in subsection (b), by adding at the end the following:

“(3) REPORTING BY FARMS, RESTAURANTS, AND RETAIL FOOD ESTABLISHMENTS.—In addition to the electronic portal described in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall make available alternative means of reporting under this section with respect to farms, restaurants, and other retail food establishments with limited ability for such reporting.”;

(3) in subsection (d)(1)—

(A) in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by inserting “following a timely review of any reasonably available data and information,” after “reportable food,”;

(B) in subparagraph (A), by striking “and” at the end;

(C) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C); and

(D) by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following:

“(B) submit, with such report, through the electronic portal, documentation of results from any sampling and testing of such article, including—

“(i) analytical results from testing of such article conducted by or on behalf of the responsible party under section 418, 418A, 419, 419A, or 714;

“(ii) analytical results from testing conducted by or on behalf of such responsible party of a component of such article;

“(iii) analytical results of environmental testing of any facility at which such article, or a component of such article, is manufactured, processed, packed, or held; and

“(iv) any other information the Secretary determines is necessary to evaluate the adulteration of such article, any component of such article, any other article of food manufactured, processed, packed or held in the same manner as, or at the same facility as, such article, or any other article containing a component from the same source as a component of such article; and”;

(4) in subsection (e)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by inserting “if the responsible party is required to register” after “415(a)(3)”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

“(12) Such additional information as the Secretary deems appropriate.”.

(b) EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION.—Section 708 (21 U.S.C. 379) is amended—

(1) by striking “The Secretary” and inserting “(a) The Secretary”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(b)(1)(A) The Secretary may provide to any Federal agency acting within the scope of its jurisdiction any information relating to food that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to subsection (a) of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, by reason of subsection (b)(4) of such section, or that is referred to in section 301(j) or 415(a)(4).

“(B) Any such information provided to another Federal agency shall not be disclosed by such agency except in any action or proceeding under the laws of the United States to which the receiving agency or the United States is a party.

“(2)(A) In carrying out this Act, the Secretary may provide to a State or local government agency any information relating to food that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to section 552(a) of title 5, United States Code, by reason of subsection (b)(4) of such section, or that is referred to in section 301(j) or 415(a)(4).

“(B) Any such information provided to a State or local government agency shall not be disclosed by such agency.

“(3) In carrying out this Act, the Secretary may provide to any person any information relating to food that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to section 552(a) of title 5, United States Code, by reason of subsection (b)(4) of such section, if the Secretary determines that providing the information to the person is appropriate under the circumstances and the recipient provides adequate assurances to the Secretary that the recipient will preserve the confidentiality of the information.

“(4) In carrying out this Act, the Secretary may provide any information relating to food that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to section 552(a) of title 5, United States Code, by reason of subsection (b)(4) of such section, or that is referred to in section 301(j)—

“(A) to any foreign government agency; or

“(B) any international organization established by law, treaty, or other governmental action and having responsibility—

“(i) to facilitate global or regional harmonization of standards and requirements in an area of responsibility of the Food and Drug Administration; or

“(ii) to promote and coordinate public health efforts, if the agency or organization provides adequate assurances to the Secretary that the agency or organization will preserve the confidentiality of the information.

“(c) Except where specifically prohibited by statute, the Secretary may disclose to the public any information relating to food that is exempt from disclosure pursuant to section 552(a) of title 5, United States Code, by reason of subsection (b)(4) of such section, if the Secretary determines that such disclosure is necessary to protect the public health.

“(d) Except as provided in subsection (e), the Secretary shall not be required to disclose under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, or any other provision of law any information relating to food obtained from a Federal, State, or local government agency, or from a foreign government agency, or from an international organization described in subsection (b)(4), if the agency or organization has requested that the information be kept confidential, or has precluded such disclosure under other use limitations, as a condition of providing the information.

“(e) Nothing in subsection (d) authorizes the Secretary to withhold information from the Congress or prevents the Secretary from complying with an order of a court of the United States.

“(f) This section shall not affect the authority of the Secretary to provide or disclose information under any other provision of law.”.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 301(j) (21 U.S.C. 331(j)) is amended by striking “or to the courts when relevant in any judicial proceeding under this Act,” and inserting “to the courts when relevant in any judicial proceeding under this Act, or as specified in section 708.”.

SEC. 113. SAFE AND SECURE FOOD IMPORTATION PROGRAM.

Chapter VIII (21 U.S.C. 381 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 805. SAFE AND SECURE FOOD IMPORTATION PROGRAM.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may establish by regulation or guidance in coordination with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection a program that facilitates the movement of food through the importation process under this Act if the importer of such food—

“(1) verifies that each facility involved in the production, manufacture, processing, packaging, and holding of the food is in compliance with the food safety and security guidelines developed under subsection (b) with respect to such food;

“(2) ensures that appropriate safety and security controls are in place throughout the supply chain for such food; and

“(3) provides supporting information to the Secretary.

“(b) GUIDELINES.—

“(1) DEVELOPMENT.—For purposes of the program established under subsection (a), the Secretary shall develop in consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection safety and security guidelines applicable to the importation of food taking into account, to the extent appropriate, other relevant Federal programs, such as the Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (C-TPAT) programs under section 211 of the Security and Accountability for Every Port Act of 2006.

“(2) FACTORS.—Such guidelines shall take into account the following factors:

“(A) The personnel of the person importing the food.

“(B) The physical and procedural safety and security of such person's food supply chain.

“(C) The sufficiency of preventive controls for food and ingredients purchased by such person.

“(D) Vendor and supplier information.

“(E) Other programs for certification or verification by a qualified certifying entity used by the importer.

“(F) Such other factors as the Secretary determines necessary.”.

SEC. 114. INFANT FORMULA.

(a) MISBRANDING.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343), as amended by sections 101(a) and 109(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(bb) If it is a new infant formula and—

“(1) it is not the subject of a registration made pursuant to section 412(c)(1)(A);

“(2) it is not the subject of a submission made pursuant to section 412(c)(1)(B), or

“(3) at least 90 days have not passed since the making of such registration or of such submission to the Secretary.”.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Section 412 (21 U.S.C. 350a) is amended—

(1) in subsection (c)(1)(B), by striking “(c)(1)” at the end and inserting “(d)(1), subject to subsection (d)(2)(B)”; and

(2) in subsection (d)(1)—

(A) by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (C);

(B) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (D) and inserting “, and”; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(E) information on any new ingredient in accordance with paragraph (2)(A).”;

(3) in subsection (d), by redesignating paragraphs (2) and (3) as paragraphs (3) and (4), respectively; and

(4) by inserting after paragraph (1) of subsection (d) the following:

“(2)(A) The description of any new infant formula required under paragraph (1) shall include, for any new ingredient for use in the formula—

“(i) a citation to a prior approval by the Secretary of the new ingredient for use in infant formula under section 409;

“(ii) a citation to or information showing a prior consideration of the new ingredient for use in infant formula under any program established by the Secretary for the review of ingredients used in food; or

“(iii) for a new ingredient that is not a food additive or a color additive, information equivalent to that provided under any program established by the Secretary for the review of ingredients used in food.

“(B) If the information submitted under subparagraph (A) is the information described in clause (iii) of such subparagraph, the 90 day period provided by subsection (c)(1)(B) shall not commence until the Secretary has completed review of the information submitted under such clause and has provided the submitter notice of the results of such review.”.

Subtitle B—Intervention

SEC. 121. SURVEILLANCE.

(a) DEFINITION OF FOOD-BORNE ILLNESS OUTBREAK.—In this section, the term “food-borne illness outbreak” means the occurrence of 2 or more cases of a similar illness resulting from the ingestion of a food.

(b) FOOD-BORNE ILLNESS SURVEILLANCE SYSTEMS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this subtitle referred to as the “Secretary”), acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, shall enhance food-borne illness surveillance systems to improve the collection, analysis, reporting, and usefulness of data on food-borne illnesses by—

(1) coordinating Federal, State, and local food-borne illness surveillance systems, including complaint systems, and increasing participation in national networks of public health and food regulatory agencies and laboratories;

(2) facilitating sharing of findings on a more timely basis among governmental agencies, including the Food and Drug Administration, the Department of Agriculture, and State and local agencies, and with the public;

(3) developing improved epidemiological tools for obtaining quality exposure data, and microbiological methods for classifying cases;

(4) augmenting such systems to improve attribution of a food-borne illness outbreak to a specific food;

(5) expanding capacity of such systems, including fingerprinting and other detection strategies for food-borne infectious agents, in order to identify new or rarely documented causes of food-borne illness;

(6) allowing timely public access to aggregated, de-identified surveillance data;

(7) at least annually, publishing current reports on findings from such systems;

(8) establishing a flexible mechanism for rapidly initiating scientific research by academic institutions;

(9) integrating food-borne illness surveillance systems and data with other bio-surveillance and public health situational awareness capabilities at the Federal, State, and local levels; and

(10) other activities as determined appropriate by the Secretary.

(C) IMPROVING FOOD SAFETY AND DEFENSE CAPACITY AT THE STATE AND LOCAL LEVEL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall develop and implement strategies to leverage and enhance the food safety and defense capacities of State and local agencies in order to achieve the following goals:

(A) Improve food-borne illness outbreak response and containment.

(B) Accelerate food-borne illness surveillance and outbreak investigation, including rapid shipment of clinical isolates from clinical laboratories to appropriate State laboratories, and conducting more standardized illness outbreak interviews.

(C) Strengthen the capacity of State and local agencies to carry out inspections and enforce safety standards.

(D) Improve the effectiveness of Federal, State, and local partnerships to coordinate food safety and defense resources and reduce the incidence of food-borne illness.

(E) Share information on a timely basis among public health and food regulatory agencies, with the food industry, with health care providers, and with the public.

(2) REVIEW.—In developing the strategies required by paragraph (1), the Secretary shall, not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, complete a review of State and local capacities, and needs for enhancement, which may include a survey with respect to—

(A) staffing levels and expertise available to perform food safety and defense functions;

(B) laboratory capacity to support surveillance, outbreak response, inspection, and enforcement activities;

(C) information systems to support data management and sharing of food safety and defense information among State and local agencies and with counterparts at the Federal level; and

(D) other State and local activities and needs as determined appropriate by the Secretary.

SEC. 122. PUBLIC EDUCATION AND ADVISORY SYSTEM.

(a) PUBLIC EDUCATION.—The Secretary, in cooperation with private and public organizations, including the appropriate State entities, shall design and implement a national public education program on food safety. The program shall provide—

(1) information to the public so that individuals can understand the potential impact and risk of food-borne illness, take action to reduce their risk of food-borne illness and injury, and make healthy dietary choices;

(2) information to health professionals so that they may improve diagnosis and treatment of food-related illness and advise individuals whose health conditions place them in particular risk; and

(3) such other information or advice to consumers and other persons as the Secretary determines will promote the purposes of this Act.

(b) HEALTH ADVISORIES.—The Secretary shall work with the States and other appropriate entities to—

(1) develop and distribute regional and national advisories concerning food safety;

(2) develop standardized formats for written and broadcast advisories; and

(3) incorporate State and local advisories into the national public education program required under subsection (a).

SEC. 123. RESEARCH.

The Secretary shall conduct research to assist in the implementation of this Act, including studies to—

(1) improve sanitation and food safety practices in the production, harvesting, and processing of food products;

(2) develop improved techniques for the monitoring of food and inspection of food products;

(3) develop efficient, rapid, and sensitive methods for determining and detecting the presence of contaminants in food products;

(4) determine the sources of contamination of food and food products, including critical points of risk for fresh produce and other raw agricultural commodities;

(5) develop consumption data with respect to food products;

(6) draw upon research and educational programs that exist at the State and local level;

(7) utilize the DNA matching system and other processes to identify and control pathogens;

(8) address common and emerging zoonotic diseases;

(9) develop methods to reduce or destroy pathogens before, during, and after processing;

(10) analyze the incidence of antibiotic resistance as it pertains to the food supply and evaluate methods to reduce the transfer of antibiotic resistance to humans; and

(11) conduct other research that supports the purposes of this Act.

Subtitle C—Response

SEC. 131. PROCEDURES FOR SEIZURE.

Section 304(b) (21 U.S.C. 334(b)) is amended by inserting “and except that, with respect to proceedings relating to food, Rule G of the Supplemental Rules of Admiralty or Maritime Claims and Asset Forfeiture Actions shall not apply in any such case, exigent circumstances shall be deemed to exist for all seizures brought under this section, and the summons and arrest warrant shall be issued by the clerk of the court without court review in any such case” after “in any such case shall be tried by jury”.

SEC. 132. ADMINISTRATIVE DETENTION.

(a) AMENDMENTS.—Section 304(h) (21 U.S.C. 334(h)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(A), by striking “credible evidence or information indicating” and inserting “reason to believe”;

(2) in paragraph (1)(A), by striking “presents a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals” and inserting “is adulterated, misbranded, or otherwise in violation of this Act”;

(3) in paragraph (2), by striking “30” and inserting “60”;

(4) in paragraph (3), by striking the third sentence; and

(5) in paragraph (4)(A) by striking the terms “five” and “five-day” and inserting “fifteen” and “fifteen-day”, respectively.

(b) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall issue regulations or guidance to implement the amendments made by this section.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 133. AUTHORITY TO PROHIBIT OR RESTRICT THE MOVEMENT OF FOOD.

(a) PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), as amended by sections 110 and 111, is amended by adding at the end by adding the following:

“(ww) The violation of a prohibition or restriction under section 304(i).”.

(b) IN GENERAL.—Section 304 (21 U.S.C. 334) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(i) AUTHORITY TO PROHIBIT OR RESTRICT THE MOVEMENT OF FOOD WITHIN A STATE OR PORTION OF A STATE.—

“(1) AUTHORITY TO PROHIBIT OR RESTRICT THE MOVEMENT OF FOOD.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—

“(i) After consultation with the Governor or other appropriate official of an affected State, if the Secretary determines that there is credible evidence that an article of food presents an imminent threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals, the Secretary may prohibit or restrict the movement of an article of food within a State or portion of a State for which the Secretary has credible evidence that such food is located within, or originated from, such State or portion thereof.

“(ii) In carrying out clause (i), the Secretary may prohibit or restrict the movement within a State or portion of a State of any article of food or means of conveyance of such article of food, if the Secretary determines that the prohibition or restriction is a necessary protection from an imminent threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals.

“(2) NOTIFICATION PROCEDURES.—Subject to paragraph (3), before any action is taken in a State under this subsection, the Secretary shall—

“(A) notify the Governor or other appropriate official of the State affected by the proposed action;

“(B) issue a public announcement of the proposed action; and

“(C) publish in the Federal Register—

“(i) the findings of the Secretary that support the proposed action;

“(ii) a statement of the reasons for the proposed action; and “(iii) a description of the proposed action, including—

“(I) the area affected; and “(II) an estimate of the anticipated duration of the action.

“(3) NOTICE AFTER ACTION.—If it is not practicable to publish in the Federal Register the information required under paragraph (2)(C) before taking action under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall publish the information as soon as practicable, but not later than 10 business days, after commencement of the action.

“(4) APPLICATION OF LEAST DRASTIC ACTION.—No action shall be taken under paragraph (1) unless, in the opinion of the Secretary, there is no less drastic action that is feasible and that would be adequate to prevent the imminent threat of serious adverse health consequences or death to humans or animals.

“(5) NONDELEGATION.—An action under paragraph (1) may only be ordered by the Secretary or an official designated by the Secretary. An official may not be so designated unless the official is the Commissioner of Food and Drugs or the Principal Deputy Commissioner.

“(6) DURATION.—Fourteen days after the initiation of an action under paragraph (1), and each 14 days thereafter, if the Secretary determines that it is necessary to continue the action, the Secretary shall—

“(A) notify the Governor or other appropriate official of the State affected of the continuation of the action;

“(B) issue a public announcement of the continuation of the action; and

“(C) publish in the Federal Register the findings of the Secretary that support the continuation of the action, including an estimate of the anticipated duration of the action.

“(7) RULEMAKING.—The Secretary shall, consistent with national security interests and as appropriate for known hazards, establish by regulation standards for conducting actions under paragraph (1), including, as appropriate, sanitation standards and procedures to restore any affected equipment or means of conveyance to its status prior to an action under paragraph (1).”

SEC. 134. CRIMINAL PENALTIES.

Section 303(a) (21 U.S.C. 333) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking “Any” and inserting “Except as provided in paragraph (2) or (3), any”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), any person who knowingly violates paragraph (a), (b), (c), (k), or (v) of section 301 with respect to any food that is misbranded or adulterated shall be imprisoned for not more than 10 years or fined in accordance with title 18, United States Code, or both.”

SEC. 135. CIVIL PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS RELATING TO FOOD.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 303(f) (21 U.S.C. 331 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

“(2)(A) Any person who violates a provision of section 301 relating to food shall be subject to a civil penalty for each such violation of not more than—

“(i) $20,000 in the case of an individual, not to exceed $50,000 in a single proceeding; and

“(ii) $250,000 in the case of any other person, not to exceed $1,000,000 in a single proceeding.

“(B) Any person who knowingly violates a provision of section 301 relating to food shall be subject to a civil penalty for each such violation of not more than—

“(i) $50,000 in the case of an individual, not to exceed $100,000 in a single proceeding; and

“(ii) $500,000 in the case of any other person, not to exceed $7,500,000 in a single proceeding.

“(C) Each violation described in subparagraph (A) or (B) and each day during which the violation continues shall be considered to be a separate offense.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) applies to violations committed on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 136. IMPROPER IMPORT ENTRY FILINGS.

(a) PROHIBITED ACTS.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), as amended by sections 110, 111, and 133, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(xx) The submission of information relating to food that is required by or under section 801 that is inaccurate or incomplete.

“(yy) The failure to submit information relating to food that is required by or under section 801.”

(b) DOCUMENTATION FOR IMPORTS.—Section 801 (21 U.S.C. 381), as amended by section 109, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(r) DOCUMENTATION.—

“(1) SUBMISSION.—The Secretary may require by regulation or guidance the submission of documentation or other information for articles of food that are imported or offered for import into the United States. When developing any regulation or guidance in accordance with this paragraph, to the extent that the collection of documentation or other information involves Customs and Border Protection efforts or resources, the Secretary shall consult with Customs and Border Protection.

“(2) FORMAT.—A regulation or guidance under paragraph (1) may specify the format for submission of the documentation or other information.”

TITLE II—MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 201. FOOD SUBSTANCES GENERALLY RECOGNIZED AS SAFE.

Section 409 (21 U.S.C. 348) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“Substances Generally Recognized as Safe

“(k)(1) Not later than 60 days after the date of receipt by the Secretary, after the date of the enactment of this subsection, of a determination that a substance is a GRAS food substance, the Secretary shall post notice of such determination and the supporting scientific justifications on the Food and Drug Administration’s public Web site.

“(2) Not later than 60 days after the date of receipt of a request under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall acknowledge receipt of such request by informing the requester in writing of the date on which the request was received.

“(3) In this subsection, the term ‘GRAS food substance’ means a substance excluded from the definition of the term ‘food additive’ in section 201(s) because such substance is generally recognized, among experts qualified by scientific training and experience to evaluate its safety, as having been adequately shown through scientific procedures (or, in the case of a substance used in food prior to January 1, 1958, through either scientific procedures or experience based on common use in food) to be safe under the conditions of its intended use.”

SEC. 202. COUNTRY OF ORIGIN LABELING.

(a) MISBRANDING.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343), as amended by sections 101(a), 109(a), and 114(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(cc) In the case of a processed food, if the labeling of the food fails to identify the country in which the final processing of the food occurs.

“(dd) In the case of nonprocessed food, if the labeling of the food fails to identify the country of origin of the food.”

(b) REGULATIONS.—

(1) PROMULGATION.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall promulgate final regulations to carry out paragraphs (cc) and (dd) of section 403 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a).

(2) RELATION TO OTHER REQUIREMENTS.—Regulations promulgated under paragraph (1) shall provide that labeling meets the requirements of paragraphs (cc) and (dd) of section 403 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), if—

(A) in the case of a processed food, the label of the food informs the consumer of the country where the final processing of the food occurred in accordance with country of origin marking requirements of the United States Customs and Border Protection; or

(B) in the case of a nonprocessed food, the label of the food informs the consumer of the country of origin of the food in accordance with labeling requirements of the Department of Agriculture.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The requirements of paragraphs (cc) and (dd) of section 403 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), take effect on the date that is 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 203. EXPORTATION CERTIFICATE PROGRAM.

Section 801(e)(4) (21 U.S.C. 381) is amended—

(1) in the matter preceding clause (i) in subparagraph (A)—

(A) by inserting “from the United States” after “exports”; and

(B) by striking “a drug, animal drug, or device” and inserting “a food (including animal feed), drug, animal drug, or device”;

(2) in subparagraph (A)(i)—

(A) by striking “in writing”; and

(B) by striking “exported drug, animal drug, or device” and inserting “exported food, drug, animal drug, or device”;

(3) in subparagraph (A)(ii)—

(A) by striking “in writing”; and

(B) by striking “the drug, animal drug, or device” and inserting “the food, drug, animal drug, or device”; and

(C) by striking “the drug or device” and inserting “the food, drug, or device”;

(4) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C);

(5) by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following:

“(B) For purposes of this paragraph, a certification by the Secretary shall be made on such basis and in such form (such as a publicly available listing) as the Secretary determines appropriate.”; and

(6) by adding at the end the following:

“(D) Notwithstanding subparagraph (C), if the Secretary issues an export certification within the 20 days prescribed by subparagraph (A) with respect to the export of food, a fee for such certification shall not exceed such amount as the Secretary determines is reasonably related to the cost of issuing certificates under subparagraph (A) with respect to the export of food. The Secretary may adjust this fee annually to account for inflation and other cost adjustments. Fees collected for a fiscal year pursuant to this subparagraph shall be credited to the appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration and shall be available in accordance with appropriations Acts until expended, without fiscal year limitation. Such fees shall be collected in each fiscal year in an amount equal to the amount specified in appropriations Acts for such fiscal year and shall only be collected and available for the costs of the Food and Drug Administration to cover the cost of issuing such certifications. Such sums as necessary may be transferred from such appropriation account for salaries and expenses of the Food and Drug Administration without fiscal year limitation to such appropriation account for salaries and expenses with fiscal year limitation.”.

SEC. 204. REGISTRATION FOR COMMERCIAL IMPORTERS OF FOOD; FEE.

(a) REGISTRATION.—

(1) PROHIBITIONS.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), as amended by sections 110, 111, 133, and 136, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(zz) The failure to register in accordance with section 801(s).”.

(2) MISBRANDING.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343) as amended by sections 101(a), 109(a), 114(a), and 202, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(ee) If it is imported or offered for import by an importer not duly registered under section 801(s).”.

(3) REGISTRATION.—Section 801, as amended by sections 109 and 136, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(s) REGISTRATION OF IMPORTERS.—

“(1) REGISTRATION.—The Secretary shall require an importer of food—

“(A) to be registered with the Secretary in a form and manner specified by the Secretary; and

“(B) consistent with section 1011, to submit appropriate unique facility identifiers as a condition of registration.

“(2) GOOD IMPORTER PRACTICES.—The maintenance of registration under this subsection is conditioned on compliance with good importer practices in accordance with the following:

“(A) The Secretary, in consultation with Customs and Border Protection, shall promulgate regulations to establish good importer practices that specify the measures an importer shall take to ensure imported food is in compliance with the requirements of this Act.

“(B) The measures under subparagraph (A) shall ensure that the importer of a food—

“(i) has adequate information about the food, its hazards, and the requirements of this Act applicable to such food;

“(ii) has adequate information or procedures in place to verify that both the food and each person that produced, manufactured, processed, packed, transported, or held the food, including components of the food, are in compliance with the requirements of this Act; and

“(iii) has adequate procedures in place to take corrective action, such as the ability to appropriately trace, withhold, and recall articles of food, if a food imported by the importer is not in compliance with the requirements of this Act.

“(C) In promulgating good importer practices regulations, the Secretary may, as appropriate—

“(i) incorporate certification of compliance under section 801(q) and participation in the safe and secure food importation program under section 805; and “(ii) take into account differences among importers and the types of imports, including based on the level of risk posed by the imported food.

“(3) SUSPENSION OF REGISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Registration under this subsection is subject to suspension upon a finding by the Secretary, after notice and an opportunity for an informal hearing, of—

“(i) a violation of this Act; or

“(ii) the knowing or repeated making of an inaccurate or incomplete statement or submission of information relating to the importation of food.

“(B) REQUEST.—The importer whose registration is suspended may request that the Secretary vacate the suspension of registration when such importer has corrected the violation that is the basis for such suspension.

“(C) VACATING OF SUSPENSION.—If the Secretary determines that adequate reasons do not exist to continue the suspension of a registration, the Secretary shall vacate such suspension.

“(4) CANCELLATION OF REGISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Not earlier than 10 days after providing the notice under subparagraph (B), the Secretary may cancel a registration that the Secretary determines was not updated in accordance with this section or otherwise contains false, incomplete, or inaccurate information.

“(B) NOTICE OF CANCELLATION.—Cancellation shall be preceded by notice to the importer of the intent to cancel the registration and the basis for such cancellation.

“(C) TIMELY UPDATE OR CORRECTION.—If the registration for the importer is updated or corrected no later than 7 days after notice is provided under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall not cancel such registration.

“(5) EXEMPTIONS.—The Secretary, by notice published in the Federal Register—

“(A) shall establish an exemption from the requirements of this subsection for importations for personal use; and

“(B) may establish other exemptions from the requirements of this subsection.”.

(4) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 36 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services in consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection shall promulgate the regulations required to carry out section 801(s) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by paragraph (3). In establishing the effective date of a regulation promulgated under section 801(s), the Secretary shall, in consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection, as appropriate, provide a reasonable period of time for importers of food to comply with good importer practices, taking into account differences among importers and the types of imports, including based on the level of risk posed by the imported food.

(5) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the date that is 24 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) FEE.—Subchapter C of chapter VII (21 U.S.C. 379f et seq.) as added and amended by sections 101 and 108, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“PART 7—IMPORTERS OF FOOD

“SEC. 744. IMPORTERS OF FOOD.

“(a) IMPORTERS.—The Secretary shall assess and collect an annual fee for the registration of an importer of food under section 801(s).

“(b) AMOUNT OF FEE.—

“(1) BASE AMOUNTS.—The registration fee under subsection (a) shall be—

“(A) for fiscal year 2010, $500; and

“(B) for fiscal year 2011 and each subsequent fiscal year, the fee for fiscal year 2010 as adjusted under paragraph (2).

“(2) ADJUSTMENT.—For fiscal year 2011 and subsequent fiscal years, the fees established pursuant to paragraph (1) shall be adjusted by the Secretary by notice, published in the Federal Register, for a fiscal year to reflect the greater of—

“(A) the total percentage change that occurred in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (all items; United States city average), for the 12-month period ending

June 30 preceding the fiscal year for which fees are being established;

“(B) the total percentage change for the previous fiscal year in basic pay under the General Schedule in accordance with section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, as adjusted by any locality-based comparability payment pursuant to section 5304 of such title for Federal employees stationed in the District of Columbia; or

“(C) the average annual change in the cost, per full-time equivalent position of the Food and Drug Administration, of all personnel compensation and benefits paid with respect to such positions for the first 5 years of the preceding 6 fiscal years.

“(3) COMPOUNDED BASIS.—The adjustment made each fiscal year pursuant to this subsection shall be added on a compounded basis to the sum of all adjustments made each fiscal year after fiscal year 2010 under this subsection.

“(4) WAIVER FOR IMPORTERS REQUIRED TO PAY REGISTRATION FEE.—In the case of a person who is required to pay both a fee under section 743 for registration of one or more facilities under section 415 and a fee under this section for registration as an importer of food under section 801(s), the Secretary shall waive the fees applicable to such person under section 743 or the fee applicable to such person under this section.

“(c) CREDITING AND AVAILABILITY OF FEES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Fees authorized under subsection (a) shall be collected and available for obligation only to the extent and in the amount provided in advance in appropriations Acts. Such fees are authorized to remain available until expended. Such sums as may be necessary may be transferred from the Food and Drug Administration salaries and expenses appropriation account without fiscal year limitation to such appropriation account for salaries and expenses with such fiscal year limitation.

“(2) COLLECTIONS AND APPROPRIATIONS ACTS.—The fees authorized by this section—

“(A) shall be retained in each fiscal year in an amount not to exceed the amount specified in appropriation Acts, or otherwise made available for obligation, for such fiscal year; and

“(B) shall only be collected and available to cover the costs associated with registering importers under section 801(s) and with ensuring compliance with good importer practices respecting food.

“(3) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For each of fiscal years 2010 through 2014, there are authorized to be appropriated for fees under this section such sums as may be necessary.”.

(c) INSPECTION.—Section 704 (21 U.S.C. 374), as amended by section 105, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(i) IMPORTERS.—Every person engaged in the importing of any food shall, upon request of an officer or employee designated by the Secretary, permit such officer or employee at all reasonable times to inspect the facilities of such person and have access to, and to copy and verify, any related records.”.

SEC. 205. REGISTRATION FOR CUSTOMS BROKERS.

(a) REGISTRATION.—

(1) PROHIBITIONS.—Section 301(zz) (21 U.S.C. 331), as added by section 204, is amended by inserting “or 801(t)” after “801(s)”.

(2) MISBRANDING.—Section 403(ee) (21 U.S.C. 343), as added by section 204, is amended—

(A) by inserting “or a customs broker” after “by an importer”; and

(B) by inserting “or 801(t)” after “801(s)”.

(3) REGISTRATION.—Section 801, as amended by sections 109, 136, and 204, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(t) REGISTRATION OF CUSTOMS BROKER.—

“(1) REGISTRATION.—The Secretary shall require a customs broker, with respect to the importation of food—

“(A) to be registered with the Secretary in a form and manner specified by the Secretary; and

“(B) consistent with section 1011, to submit appropriate unique facility identifiers as a condition of registration.

“(2) CANCELLATION OF REGISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Not earlier than 10 days after providing the notice under subparagraph (B), the Secretary may cancel a registration that the Secretary determines was not updated in accordance with this section or otherwise contains false, incomplete, or inaccurate information.

“(B) NOTICE OF CANCELLATION.—Cancellation shall be preceded by notice to the customs broker of the intent to cancel the registration and the basis for such cancellation.

“(C) TIMELY UPDATE OR CORRECTION.—If the registration for the customs broker is updated or corrected no later than 7 days after notice is provided under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall not cancel such registration.

“(3) NOTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall notify the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection whenever the Secretary cancels a registration under this subsection.

“(4) EXEMPTIONS.—In consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection, the Secretary, by notice published in the Federal Register—

“(A) shall establish an exemption from the requirements of this subsection for importations for personal use; and

“(B) may establish other exemptions from the requirements of this subsection.

“(5) CIVIL PENALTIES.—Notwithstanding any other provision in this Act, a customs broker who violates section 301 because of a violation of section 403(ee), or who violates section 301(xx), 301(yy), or 301(zz), shall not be subject to a civil penalty under section 303(f)(2).”

(4) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 24 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, in consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection, shall promulgate the regulations required to carry out section 801(t) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by paragraph (2).

(5) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect on the date that is 24 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) INSPECTION.—Section 704 (21 U.S.C. 374), as amended by sections 105 and 204, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(j) BROKERS.—Every customs broker required to be registered with the Secretary shall, upon request of an officer or employee designated by the Secretary, permit such officer or employee at all reasonable times to inspect the facilities of such person and have access to, and to copy and verify, any related records.”

SEC. 206. UNIQUE IDENTIFICATION NUMBER FOR FOOD FACILITIES, IMPORTERS, AND CUSTOM BROKERS.

Chapter X (21 U.S.C. 391 et seq) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 1011. UNIQUE FACILITY IDENTIFIER.

“(a) REGISTRATION OF FACILITY OR ESTABLISHMENT.—A person required to register a facility pursuant to section 415 shall submit, at the time of registration, a unique facility identifier for the facility or establishment.

“(b) REGISTRATION OF IMPORTERS AND CUSTOM BROKERS.—A person required to register pursuant to section 801(s) or 801(t) shall submit, at the time of registration, a unique facility identifier for the principal place of business for which such person is required to register under section 801(s) or 801(t).

“(c) GUIDANCE.—The Secretary may, by guidance, and, with respect to importers and customs brokers, in consultation with the Commissioner responsible for Customs and Border Protection, specify the unique numerical identifier system to be used to meet the requirements of subsections (a) and (b) and the form, manner, and timing of a submission under such subsections. Development of such guidelines shall take into account the utilization of existing unique identification schemes and compatibility with customs automated systems, such as integration with the Automated Commercial Environment (ACE) and the International Trade Data System (ITDS), and any successor systems.

“(d) IMPORTATION.—An article of food imported or offered for import shall be refused admission unless the appropriate unique facility identifiers, as specified by the Secretary, are provided for such article.”

SEC. 207. PROHIBITION AGAINST DELAYING, LIMITING, OR REFUSING INSPECTION.

(a) ADULTERATION.—Section 402 (21 U.S.C. 342), as amended by section 102, 103(a), and 104(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(n) If it has been produced, manufactured, processed, packed, or held in any farm, factory, warehouse, or establishment and the owner, operator, or agent of such farm, factory, warehouse, or establishment, or any agent of a governmental authority in the foreign country within which such farm, factory, warehouse, or establishment is located, delays or limits an inspection, or refuses to permit entry or inspection, under section 414 or 704.”

(b) FOREIGN INSPECTIONS.—Section 704(a)(1) (21 U.S.C. 374(a)(1)), as amended by section 106(c), is amended—

(1) in the first sentence, by inserting “, including any such food factory, warehouse, or establishment whether foreign or domestic,” after “factory, warehouse, or establishment”; and

(2) in the third sentence, by inserting “, including any food factory, warehouse, establishment, or consulting laboratory whether foreign or domestic,” after “factory, warehouse, establishment, or consulting laboratory”.

SEC. 208. DEDICATED FOREIGN INSPECTORATE.

Section 704 (21 U.S.C. 374), as amended by sections 105, 204, and 205, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(k) DEDICATED FOREIGN INSPECTORATE.—The Secretary shall establish and maintain a corps of inspectors dedicated to inspections of foreign food facilities. This corps shall be staffed and funded by the Secretary at a level sufficient to enable it to assist the Secretary in achieving the frequency of inspections for food facilities as described in this Act.”

SEC. 209. PLAN AND REVIEW OF CONTINUED OPERATION OF FIELD LABORATORIES.

(a) SUBMISSION OF PLAN.—Not later than 90 days before the Secretary terminates or consolidates any laboratory, district office, or the functions (including the inspection and compliance functions) of any such laboratory or district office, specified in subsection (b), the Secretary shall submit a reorganization plan to the Comptroller General of the United States, the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate.

(b) SPECIFIED LABORATORIES AND OFFICES.—The laboratories and offices specified in this subsection are the following:

(1) Any of the 13 field laboratories responsible for analyzing food that were operated by the Office of Regulatory Affairs of the Food and Drug Administration as of January 1, 2007.

(2) Any of the 20 district offices of the Food and Drug Administration with responsibility for food safety functioning as of January 1, 2007.

(c) CONGRESSIONAL REVIEW.—A reorganization plan described in subsection (a) is deemed to be a major rule (as defined in section 804(2) of title 5, United States Code) for purposes of chapter 8 of such title.

SEC. 210. FALSE OR MISLEADING REPORTING TO FDA.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 301(q)(2) (21 U.S.C. 331(q)(2)) is amended by inserting after “device” the following: “, food.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to submissions made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 211. SUBPOENA AUTHORITY.

(a) PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301(f) is amended by inserting before the period “or the failure or refusal to obey a subpoena issued pursuant to section 311”.

(b) AMENDMENT.—Chapter III (21 U.S.C. 331 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 311. EXERCISE OF SUBPOENA AUTHORITY.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—For the purpose of—

“(1) any hearing, investigation, or other proceeding respecting a violation of a provision of this Act, the Public Health Service Act, or the Federal Anti-Tampering Act, relating to food; or

“(2) any hearing, investigation, or other proceeding to determine if a person is in violation of a specific provision of this Act, the Public Health Service Act, or the Federal Anti-Tampering Act, relating to food, the Commissioner may issue subpoenas requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of records and other things.

“(b) TIMING OF COMPLIANCE.—When the Commissioner deems that immediate compliance with a subpoena issued under this section is necessary to address a threat of serious adverse health consequences or death, the subpoena may require immediate production.

“(c) SERVICE OF SUBPOENA.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subpoenas of the Commissioner shall be served by a person authorized by the Commissioner by delivering a copy thereof to the person named therein or by certified mail addressed to such person at such person’s last known dwelling place or principal place of business.

“(2) CORPORATIONS AND OTHER ENTITIES.—Service on a domestic or foreign corporation, partnership, unincorporated association, or other entity that is subject to suit under a common name may be made by delivering the subpoena to an officer, a managing or general agent, or any other agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process.

“(3) PERSON OUTSIDE U.S. JURISDICTION.—Service on any person not found within the territorial jurisdiction of any court of the United States may be made in any manner as the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure prescribe for service in a foreign nation.

“(4) PROOF OF SERVICE.—A verified return by the person so serving the subpoena setting forth the manner of service, or, in the case of service by certified mail, the return post office receipt therefor signed by the person so served, shall be proof of service.

“(d) PAYMENT OF WITNESSES.—Witnesses subpoenaed under subsection (a) shall be paid the same fees and mileage as are paid witnesses in the district courts of the United States.

“(e) ENFORCEMENT.—In the case of a refusal to obey a subpoena duly served upon any person under subsection (a), any district court of the United States for the judicial district in which such person charged with refusal to obey is found, resides, or transacts business, upon application by the Commissioner, shall have jurisdiction to issue an order compelling compliance with the subpoena and requiring such person to appear and give testimony or to appear and produce records and other things, or both. The failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by the court as contempt thereof. If the person charged with failure or refusal to obey is not found within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia shall have the same jurisdiction, consistent with due process, to take any action respecting compliance with the subpoena by such person that such district court would have if such person were personally within the jurisdiction of such district court.

“(f) NONDISCLOSURE.—A United States district court for the district in which the subpoena is or will be served, upon application of the Commissioner, may issue an ex parte order that no person or entity disclose to any other person or entity (other than to an attorney to obtain legal advice) the existence of such subpoena for a period of up to 90 days. Such order may be issued on a showing that the records or things being sought may be relevant to the hearing, investigation, proceeding, or other matter and that there is reason to believe that such disclosure may result in—

“(1) furtherance of a potential violation under investigation;

“(2) endangerment to the life or physical safety of any person;

“(3) flight or other action to avoid prosecution or other enforcement remedies;

“(4) destruction of or tampering with evidence; or

“(5) intimidation of potential witnesses.

An order under this subsection may be renewed for additional periods of up to 90 days upon a showing that any of the circumstances described in paragraphs (1) through (5) continue to exist.

“(g) RELATION TO OTHER PROVISIONS.—The subpoena authority vested in the Commissioner and the district courts of the United States by this section is in addition to any such authority vested in the Commissioner or such courts by other provisions of law, or as is otherwise authorized by law.

“(h) NONDELEGATION.—The authority to issue a subpoena under this section is limited to the Secretary or an official designated by the Secretary. An official may not be so designated unless the official is the director of the district under this Act in which the article involved is located, or is an official senior to such director.”

SEC. 212. WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTIONS.

Chapter X (21 U.S.C. 391 et seq.), as amended by section 206, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 1012 PROTECTIONS FOR EMPLOYEES WHO REFUSE TO VIOLATE, OR WHO DISCLOSE VIOLATIONS OF, THIS ACT.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—No person who submits or is required under this Act or the Public Health Service Act to submit any information related to a food, or any officer, employee, contractor, subcontractor, or agent of such person may discharge, demote, suspend, threaten, harass, or in any other manner discriminate against an employee in the terms and conditions of employment because of any lawful act done by the employee, including within the ordinary course of the job duties of such employee—

“(1) to provide information, cause information to be provided, or otherwise assist in any investigation regarding any conduct which the employee reasonably believes constitutes a violation of this Act, or any other provision of Federal law relating to the safety of a food, if the information or assistance is provided to, or an investigation stemming from the provided information is conducted by—

“(A) a Federal regulatory or law enforcement agency;

“(B) any Member of Congress or any committee of Congress; or

“(C) a person with supervisory authority over the employee (or such other person working for the employer who has the authority to investigate, discover, or terminate the misconduct);

“(2) to file, cause to be filed, testify, participate in, or otherwise assist in a proceeding filed, or about to be filed (with any knowledge of the employer), in any court or administrative forum relating to any such alleged violation; or

“(3) to refuse to commit or assist in any such violation.

“(b) ENFORCEMENT ACTION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—An employee who alleges discharge or other discrimination in violation of subsection (a) may seek relief in accordance with the provisions of subsection (c) by—

“(A) filing a complaint with the Secretary of Labor; or

“(B) if the Secretary of Labor has not issued a final decision within 210 days of the filing of the complaint and there is no showing that such delay is due to the bad faith of the claimant, or within 90 days after receiving a final decision or order from the Secretary, bringing an action at law or equity for de novo review in the appropriate district court of the United States, which court shall have jurisdiction over such action without regard to the amount in controversy, and which action shall, at the request of either party to such action, be tried by the court with a jury.

“(2) PROCEDURE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Any action under paragraph (1) shall be governed under the rules and procedures set forth in section 42121(b) of title 49, United States Code.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—Notification in an action under paragraph (1) shall be made in accordance with section 42121(b)(1) of title 49, United States Code, except that such notification shall be made to the person named in the complaint, the employer, and the Commissioner of Food and Drugs.

“(C) BURDENS OF PROOF.—An action brought under paragraph (1)(A) or (1)(B) shall be governed by the legal burdens of proof set forth in section 42121(b) of title 49, United States Code.

“(D) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.—An action under paragraph (1)(A) shall be commenced not later than 180 days after the date on which the violation occurs.

“(c) REMEDIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—An employee prevailing in any action under subsection (b)(1) shall be entitled to all relief necessary to make the employee whole.

“(2) ISSUANCE OF ORDER.—If, in response to a complaint filed under paragraph (b)(1), the Secretary of Labor or the district court, as applicable, determines that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred, the Secretary or the court shall order the person who committed such violation—

“(A) to take affirmative action to abate the violation;

“(B) to—

“(i) reinstate the complainant to his or her former position together with compensation (including back pay); and

“(ii) restore the terms, conditions, and privileges associated with his or her employment; and “(C) to provide compensatory damages to the complainant.

If such an order is issued under this paragraph, the Secretary or the court, at the request of the complainant, shall assess against the person against whom the order is issued a sum equal to the aggregate amount of all costs and expenses (including attorney and expert witness fees) reasonably incurred, as determined by the Secretary, by the complainant for, or in connection with, the bringing of the complaint upon which the order was issued.

“(d) RIGHTS RETAINED BY EMPLOYEE.—Nothing in this section shall be deemed to diminish the rights, privileges, or remedies of any employee under any Federal or State law or under any collective bargaining agreement. The rights and remedies in this section may not be waived by any agreement, policy, form, or condition of employment.”

SEC. 213. EXTRATERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.

(a) PROHIBITED ACT.—Section 301 (21 U.S.C. 331), as amended by sections 110, 111, 133, 136, and 204, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(aaa) The production, manufacture, processing, preparation, packing, holding, or distribution of an adulterated or misbranded food with the knowledge or intent that such article will be imported into the United States.”

(b) JURISDICTION.—Chapter III (21 U.S.C. 331 et seq.), as amended by section 211, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 312. EXTRATERRITORIAL JURISDICTION.

“There is extraterritorial Federal jurisdiction over any violation of this Act relating to any article of food if such article was intended for import into the United States or if any act in furtherance of the violation was committed in the United States.”

SEC. 214. SUPPORT FOR TRAINING INSTITUTES.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services, acting through the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, shall provide financial and other assistance to appropriate entities to establish and maintain one or more university-affiliated food protection training institutes that—

(1) conduct training related to food protection activities for Federal, State, local, territorial, and tribal officials; and

(2) meet standards developed by the Secretary.

SEC. 215. BISPHENOL A IN FOOD AND BEVERAGE CONTAINERS.

(a) NOTICE OF DETERMINATION.—No later than December 31, 2009, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall notify the Congress whether the available scientific data support a determination that there is a reasonable certainty of no harm, for infants, young children, pregnant women, and adults, for approved uses of polycarbonate plastic and epoxy resin made with bisphenol A in food and beverage containers, including reusable food and beverage containers, under the conditions of use prescribed in current Food and Drug Administration regulations.

(b) NOTICE OF ACTIONS TO BE TAKEN.—If the Secretary concludes that such a determination cannot be made for any approved use, the Secretary shall notify the Congress of the actions the Secretary intends to take under the Secretary's authority to regulate food additives to protect the public health, which may include—

(1) revoking or modifying any of the approved uses of bisphenol A in food and beverage containers, including reusable food and beverage containers; and

(2) ensuring that the public is sufficiently informed of such determination and the steps the public may take in response to such determination.

(c) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing herein is intended or shall be construed to modify existing Food and Drug Administration authority, procedures, or policies for assessing scientific data, making safety determinations, or regulating the safe use of food additives.

SEC. 216. LEAD CONTENT LABELING REQUIREMENT FOR CERAMIC TABLEWARE AND COOKWARE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 403 (21 U.S.C. 343), as amended by sections 101(a), 109(a), 114(a), 202, and 204, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(ff) If it is ceramic tableware or cookware and includes a glaze or decorations containing lead for an intended functional purpose, unless—

“(1) the product and its packaging bear the statement: ‘This product is made with lead-based glaze consistent with Food and Drug Administration guidelines for such lead.’; or

“(2) the product is in compliance with the requirements applicable to ornamental and decorative ceramicware in section 109.16 of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulation).”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Section 403(ff) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by subsection (a), shall apply only to ceramic tableware or cookware that is manufactured on or after the date that is 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) CONSUMER EDUCATION.—Chapter IV (21 U.S.C. 341 et seq.), as amended by sections 102, 103, 104, and 111, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 421. CONSUMER EDUCATION ON THE CONTENT OF LEAD IN CERAMICWARE AND APPLICABLE LABELING REQUIREMENTS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall educate consumers on the safety of ceramicware for food use by posting information on the Web site of the Food and Drug Administration with regard to—

“(1) the content of lead in ceramicware and its glaze;

“(2) existing Federal laws and regulations governing lead in ceramicware;

“(3) as appropriate, existing industry practices and guidelines; and “(4) the labeling requirements applicable under this Act.

“(b) TOPICS.—The education under this section shall address—

“(1) the broad range of ceramicware types, including traditional pottery, ornamental and decorative ceramicware, cookware, and everyday dinnerware;

“(2) the safety of ceramicware that is aged or damaged;

“(3) the use of ceramicware in microwave ovens;

“(4) the storage of foods in ceramicware;

“(5) the use of home lead test kits by consumers;

“(6) the use of ceramicware by children and women of childbearing age; and

“(7) issues that are especially relevant to subpopulations of consumers who may preferentially use certain types of ceramicware made with lead.”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2749, the Food Safety Enhancement Act of 2009.

I remind my colleagues that this bill was up before us yesterday and got 280-something votes in favor of it. It is a good piece of legislation. It is bipartisan. It will fundamentally change the way in which we ensure the safety of our food supply and protect American consumers, farmers and business. I would note it came out of committee in a bipartisan fashion, unanimously, by voice vote.

A series of foodborne disease outbreaks have laid bare unacceptable gaps in our food-safety laws, and this will be the first major change in our food-safety laws with regard to food and drugs since 1938.

In the past 2 years alone, we have witnessed issues of melamine in infant formula and in milk products, and we have seen tainted peppers from Mexico, harmful seafood and shellfish from China, E. coli in spinach, and problems with strawberries and raspberries. Each year, in spite of the fact that we have the most careful and safe food in the world, we find that 76 million people contact a foodborne illness in the United States. According to CDC, some 5,000 die.

This legislation contains significant policy solutions that will address this situation. It is largely based upon legislation I introduced last year along with Energy and Commerce subcommittee Chairmen PALLONE and STUPAK.

We have worked for months with our Republican colleagues in a bipartisan fashion on the Committee on Energy and Commerce to get this bill right. We have worked with our colleagues on the Agriculture and the Ways and Means Committees to address their concerns, and I believe we have done so.

In the end, we have a bill that strikes an important balance; it does not create unnecessary burdens for farmers and small businesses, but it does allow FDA to retain all its existing authority. It takes no authority from the Department of Agriculture or the Committee on Agriculture, and it gives FDA new authorities that it needs to trace and prevent food-safety problems that may originate on the farm or in other sectors of the food supply chain. And we have carefully protected the farmers against intrusion by the Food and Drug Administration.

I want to talk about key provisions in the bill. Under the legislation, FDA has clear authority to issue and require manufacturers to meet strong, enforceable performance standards to ensure the safety of different types of food.

FDA will establish a food trace-back system so that the public health officials can easily determine the source of foodborne disease outbreaks and protect farmers and producers against unwise and inadequate judgments because of lack of personnel and money.

FDA is going to be required to inspect all food facilities more frequently. And the bill requires FDA to inspect the riskiest ones at least once per year.

FDA will be given new authority to ensure that imported foods are safe, a source of major concern and hazard to our people.

FDA will be given new tools—recalls, record access, penalties to punish bad actors, and the ability to act quickly when presented with a food-safety emergency.

FDA will get a new dedicated source of funding from a $500 million annual registration fee on food facilities to help it conduct its work of keeping America safe. And this provision and the rest of the bill are supported by American food producers.

FDA will not be the only cop on the beat. Our food producers will focus also on prevention and have a well-deserved and shared responsibility between FDA and food manufacturers to keep our food supplies safe.

The bill will require manufacturers to implement preventive systems to stop outbreaks before they occur. All food facilities will be required to conduct hazard analyses, assess potential food-safety risks, and develop plans to keep the food supply safe.

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing in this bill that is overly burdensome for farmers small or big. We have worked hard—and I believe we have succeeded—in protecting farms of the family size from burdens that could harm their business and their way of life. My own district has many small farms and people with whom I work closely on agricultural matters, and I believe that they will be satisfied with this legislation.

It is a fact here—and I want to address the concerns that I have heard—that farmers who sell a majority of their product direct to the consumers are exempt from the fee system in this bill. Farms that sell directly to consumers, restaurants, and grocery stores will also be exempt from the trace-back system.

Some have expressed concern that FDA will have access to confidential farm records and make them available for distribution. This is not so. FDA is already limited in the types of records they can access under the law, and they cannot access financial data, pricing data, personnel data, research data, or sales data other than shipment data regarding sales.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 additional minute.

I have also heard concern that FDA will have the authority to issue safety standards that will apply to farms and interfere with organic farming practices. I want to make it clear that that is not so. In fact, FDA is prohibited from imposing safety standards unless it determines those standards are "reasonably necessary to minimize the risk of serious adverse health consequences or death," a very, very high standard that they have to meet. This will ensure protection of the concerns of organic farmers and that they are taken into consideration before issuing standards. This is why it has the support of the distinguished chairman of the Agriculture Committee and members of that committee from both sides of the aisle.

Mr. Speaker, this is a product of bipartisan cooperation. It is supported by industry. It was approved unanimously by a voice vote in the Energy and Commerce Committee. It reflects findings of more than 20 hearings on the failure of our food system safety processes conducted by five different committees of the House over 3 years. It addresses weaknesses in the food-safety system at FDA that were identified under the Bush administration and included in concerns under the current administration.

H.R. 2749 is a well-vetted, mature piece of legislation. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2749. It is old enough to vote; it is over 21 years old.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. It is a good bill. It will protect the American people, the American consumers, and it will not hurt American industry, which supports this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I was a member of the Oversight and Investigation Subcommittee in the last Congress, serving 10 or 12 months in that position. And every time we had a hearing on some unsafe food product, another outbreak would occur. So we knew that we really had to get our heads together and try to address food-safety issues, and we think we've done that with this bill.

I want to thank Chairman Emeritus DINGELL and I want to thank Chairman WAXMAN, Chairman PALLONE and Chairman STUPAK for working with Ranking Member BARTON and DEAL and myself to really move the bill forward in a way that we could pass it on a voice vote. I just only wish—and I think we could do this, we could do this on energy and we could do this on health if we really sat down and tried to work out the differences.

This is not an easy bill to pass. And as Chairman Emeritus DINGELL said, 21 years he has been working on this. And this is not an easy thing to do. We did all we could. And I do appreciate the time that we spent on the floor and then with staff to work out the difficult options. And so we come here today with a pretty united bill, one that would have passed had it not been on the suspension calendar, and so we bring it up again today.

We have to have confidence in our food supply, and that's what we're trying to do in this bill. And this bill takes the necessary steps to move us forward.

The changes that we have made not just in the original text of the bill, but in addressing some of the concerns we think are very, very helpful. And I want to pledge to my ag Republican friends—and I'm from an agricultural district, and a lot of these groups that support them are good friends of mine. And we want to ensure that we continue to work forward and move forward as the bill does.

A couple of issues that Chairman Emeritus DINGELL said was, you know, the bill does not require farms to register with FDA, and as a result farms do not have to pay a registration fee. Access to farm records is significantly restricted. Livestock and poultry are exempt from the bill. Grain and related commodities are exempt from produce standards. USDA regulated farms, facilities, and products are not subject to the bill. It allows farms to be exempt from the traceability requirements.

We, as a committee, both in the Oversight and Investigation and then as a full committee, we just couldn't sit on the sidelines anymore as we saw case after case of food-borne illnesses. We had to come together in a way to address this.

□ 1630

I think we have done it. I think it's a good product. Can there be some fixes as it moves forward? Yes, there can. But I would ask all my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DINGELL. I want to thank the gentleman for his hard work both in the Investigations Subcommittee and on the legislation. He and Mr. DEAL and the ranking Republican member, our good friend Mr. BARTON, have been enormously valuable in the work that has been done to bring us to where we are. I commend him and I thank him.

Mr. Speaker, I yield at this time 2 minutes to the distinguished chairwoman of the Appropriations Subcommittee of jurisdiction on this matter, Ms. DELAURO.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, what is this bill about? What is it about?

Food-borne illness in the United States of America kills 5,000 people every single year.

We went to war in Iraq and Afghanistan when 3,000 people, unbeknownst that when they went to work that day that they weren't coming home, and we went to war in Afghanistan as a result.

We know that 5,000 people every year die of a food-borne illness and an illness, my friends, that can be prevented.

Stand with the mother and the father of a 2-year-old child, the parents who went to the grocery store and brought home spinach or lettuce or sprouts or tomatoes and their child died because of E.coli. Stand with the son and daughter of an elderly person in a nursing home who ate a peanut-based product and wound up dying because of that, having survived illness. That's what this bill is all about.

We can prevent food-borne illness in the United States of America. We can prevent 5,000 deaths every year. That's what this bill is focused on. It is of critical importance. It is about the health and the safety of American families. That health and safety is not only threatened in airports and border checkpoints or harbor containers. It's in fridges, on kitchen tables.

And for too long the cornerstone of our food safety system, the FDA, has only rudimentary, ancient tools and an outdated mandate at its disposal. This bill rectifies that oversight. It gives the FDA the means to deal with the dangers that are posed by our global food system. It enhances the agency's ability to stem microbial illnesses, prevent contamination before it happens.

It looks at risk-based inspection and says, what are the foods that are at highest risk? Let's set up some performance standards to deal with that. Let's put mechanisms in place so that we can trace the contamination and make sure we find it and find it quickly, protect the public health, and, yes, protect industry as well. That was part of this effort as well.

Performance standards are the backbone for monitoring an effective process and a control system. I would urge the FDA to develop testing protocols for each performance standard that it sets. This would include ongoing industry testing programs, supported by periodic sampling by the FDA.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield the distinguished gentlewoman an additional 30 seconds.

Ms. DELAURO. Thank you. We have an opportunity. The laws and the statutes at the Food and Drug Administration today are inadequate to protect the food and the safety of the American people and at the very same time they put at risk the industries that deal with these products. The industry has come forward and said, Give us standards. That's what this bill is all about.

We have an obligation today to pass this bill and to make sure that we say to the American people we are doing everything that we can to prevent 5,000 deaths every single year and particularly the most vulnerable, our children and the elderly.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. UPTON), who is ranking member on the Energy and Air Quality Subcommittee.

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Speaker, let's face it: the recent events have shown us that the current system regarding food safety is not working. And I want to compliment those Members that have been actively involved in this, those from our Committee on Oversight and Investigations that exposed many of the problems, obviously the leadership on both sides, Republicans and Democrats, as we moved this bill through our subcommittee and then full committee by a voice vote.

The Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee found severe problems. We are very aware of those problems because those problems have been exposed nationally. Obviously, we have a number of very bad actors, but they have jeopardized the whole food chain. We remember the peanut butter issue and spinach and tomatoes. We need to be deliberate to tackle the issue and obviously be bipartisan to resolve the issue, and that's what this legislation does.

As Mr. SHIMKUS indicated, farms are not required to register with the FDA. There are no large fees associated with this bill. There is no duplication with the USDA, as I understand it.

My district in southwest Michigan has a whole number of different food sources from fruits and vegetables to giant food processors and great companies like Kellogg's. Industry is united behind this legislation. It needs to happen so that consumers will know for sure that there is a mechanism in place to identify when a product, in fact, is bad, that needs to be recalled. And this bill, as it has moved through committee, has shown that bipartisan support.

I would urge my colleagues on both sides to support it.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield at this time 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. FARR).

Mr. FARR. I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to engage in a colloquy with my friend, the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL).

We are passing an historic food safety measure today, and I truly appreciate the effort that you and committee staff have made to move this legislation to the floor today. As a Member of Congress who represents the Salad Bowl of the World, Salinas Valley, I feel landmark legislation is long overdue and look forward to working with my colleague as the process moves to the Senate and to the conference committee.

Also as a member of the Agriculture Appropriations Committee, I look forward to working with the gentleman to allocate the resources necessary to make the safest food in the world even safer.

I'd be remiss if I didn't mention my concerns with the fee structure in this measure, and I appreciate the effort by the chairman and the committee, and it's my preference to find a more equitable fee that does not inhibit our farm families from taking advantage of new markets. As a member of the Organic Caucus, I have concerns about the interplay between this bill and the National Organic Program.

It is my understanding, Mr. Chairman, that this bill would not establish any requirements for organically produced or processed products which are in conflict with the requirements established in the Organic Foods Production Act of 1990 and USDA's National Organic Program regulations.

Mr. DINGELL. If the gentleman would yield, the answer to that question is, yes.

Mr. FARR. Thank you. And would this bill necessarily require small farms to participate in the expensive and unworkable electronic traceability system that FDA will set up?

Mr. DINGELL. The answer to that question is, no.

Mr. FARR. I yield to Mr. BLUMENAUER from Oregon, who has worked with Ms. KAPTUR and myself to make sure that the organic and small growers and processors' concerns have a voice.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I appreciate the gentleman's courtesy, as I appreciate the leadership of the chairman. And it's great to see food safety receive the full attention that it deserves.

I am especially concerned about the language regarding interaction between wildlife, livestock, and farming practices. Biodiversity is a prerequisite for a healthy farm. We should not penalize farmers for utilizing techniques such as naturescaping, floodplain restoration, and natural hedgerows to encourage crop health, control pests and invasive species, and enhance soil quality.

We should target reform and safety efforts towards practices which have been directly linked to food disease outbreaks rather than limiting approaches that farmers have used for centuries to reduce their dependence on pesticides, herbicides, and other carbon-intensive farming techniques.

I would like the assurance from the chairman that he will work with us as Food and Drug Administration develops these criteria so that they will consider the needs of small farms and the practices of organic farmers.

Mr. DINGELL. The answer to that question is, yes; and I will have a more detailed response.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for your courtesy.

Thank you, Mr. FARR, for permitting me to participate in this colloquy.

Mr. DINGELL. If the gentleman from California would yield, I would like to give a more exhaustive response to my friends.

First, we've been hearing complaints that the bill will put unfair, inappropriate, and unnecessary burdens on farmers, particularly small, diversified, and organic farms. We have worked hard to avoid doing that. I want to tell my good friends we would be extremely concerned if this bill created a conflict between food safety and other farm practices aimed at protecting and sustaining the environment. The bill therefore has a number of important provisions designed to prevent such conflicts.

For example, it requires FDA to take into consideration the impacts of any produced food safety standards on small-scale and diversified farms or on wildlife habitat, on conservation practices, watershed protection efforts, and organic production methods. It prohibits FDA from setting any such standards unless these standards are necessary to minimize the risk of serious adverse health consequences or death.

The bill also requires FDA to work in coordination with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to issue such standards. USDA administers the National Organic Program and will be working with FDA to ensure that the safety standards are compatible with organic standards.

Let me speak now to the question about the traceability system in the bill. The traceability provisions in the bill are a critically important part because they allow FDA to quickly track down the sources of food-borne outbreaks. Before FDA can establish any traceability requirements, the bill requires FDA to go through an extensive information-gathering process with public meetings and a pilot project.

As a part of the process, it requires FDA to consider the costs and the benefits and the feasibility for different sectors of the food industry of any traceability technologies under consideration. And for any regulation that would have an impact on farms, FDA must coordinate with USDA and take into account the nature of the impact on the regulation on farms.

Additionally, FDA will be prohibited from requiring farms selling food directly to consumers, restaurants, or grocery stores to participate in this system.

So I believe we can be confident that whatever traceability system is developed will appropriately take into account the needs and interests of the farmers. And I assure my two good friends that I will work with them to see to it that these commitments are kept.

Mr. FARR. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I really appreciate that.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Thank you, sir.

Mr. DINGELL. I thank my two colleagues for their valuable assistance to the committee.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, before I yield time to my colleague, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I want to recognize my colleagues Mr. PUTNAM and Mr. COSTA for their bill, the Safe FEAST Act, which I was an original cosponsor on, which got rolled into this bill, and it was of great help when they did that.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to my colleague from Florida (Mr. PUTNAM).

Mr. PUTNAM. I thank my friend from Illinois for his leadership on this issue and his original cosponsorship of that Safe FEAST Act, which has had a number of its key principles incorporated into the bill that we're debating today.

I rise in support of the bill that we are debating today. It is a bipartisan bill built on a bipartisan effort and a model that could and should be followed for the other big issues facing this Congress. It's unfortunate that the process that was taken did not adequately include our Agriculture Committee, and I would hope that as we move this issue forward that it will continue to improve upon that because it is important that our Agriculture Committee and our Representatives from rural America have input into this, and the bill will benefit from their input.

□ 1645

The scares that have undermined consumer confidence in our food supply over the last several years have as oftentimes been a result of international food products, imported food goods, as they have been domestic. This bill takes an important step forward in setting the same standards on imported food that we place upon domestically produced food as well. That is a major step in the right direction.

One only need look at the controversy over baby formula, at the economic devastation that came from the misleading public statements by the FDA about tomatoes that were grown in America, which turned out to have been food-borne illness resulting from jalapeños imported from Mexico, to learn the lesson that this legislation must apply the same standards to imported foods as it does to domestic.

This legislation implements risk-based assessments, something that is very important as we look at the breadth and depth of the food industry as it has become globalized. As the world has grown smaller, as America's tastes and preferences have changed and they desire produce from Latin America and spices from Asia, these challenges will continue to grow, and this, by placing risk-based science into the bill, will allow us to build up and maintain public confidence in our food supply.

And that is really the crux of the matter between our producers and our consumers, that on this issue of food safety, there is no distinction between the interests of the farmer and the shopper in the grocery store, because the farmer loses out if FDA and USDA cannot rapidly and accurately trace back the source of food-borne illness.

If they paint the industry with a broad brush, economic losses are severe, so the interests of the farmer are that we have a modern, effective regulatory system. The interests of the consumer are that we have a modern, effective regulatory system, so that they have a high level of confidence in the items that they purchase to put on their family's kitchen table. There must be the highest possible standard and the best possible science behind that law.

As this issue moves forward, improvements can be made as it relates to the quarantine, as it relates to traceability, and, most importantly, as it relates to the implementation of this bill for State and local governments, the State Departments of Agriculture and Health, who, by definition, are delegated much of the responsibility by FDA to implement this legislation. They must have the resources and the authority and the full cooperation of FDA. There have been breakdowns in the past where FDA did not share as much as they should. This bill does much to address that, and can do a bit more.

And in an era where organic farming continues to grow in popularity, we must be sensitive to these ever-changing forms and trends in American agriculture.

With that, I am proud to support the legislation, and I appreciate the leadership of my friend from Illinois and my friend from Michigan.

Mr. DINGELL. If the gentleman will yield to me just briefly, I want to commend the gentleman not just for a fine statement, but also for the long and strong support he has given for this kind of legislation and protection for industry and for the consumers.

I would like to observe that the concerns the gentleman has expressed are very valuable and are included in the legislation, particularly in seeing to it that foreigners now have to meet the same requirement that Americans do.

Americans produce and process safe food. Foreigners do not. This will assure our people that they can rely on Food and Drug to protect them not just from American producers and from American processors, but also from the foreigners, who are slipping in dangerous substances.

I want to commend the gentleman and thank him.

Mr. PUTNAM. I thank the chairman emeritus and the dean of the House.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted at this time to yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Georgia (Mr. SCOTT), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. I thank the chairman for yielding.

I just want to state that under the auspices of my subcommittee, food safety is a jurisdiction that we handle. It is very important as we move forward on this to understand that we have got to make our food supply safe. There is no greater thing we can do for the American people and the people of the world than to give absolute assurance that our food supply is safe.

Now, I come from a State, Georgia, where we had an outbreak from salmonella in which we lost eight lives, eight persons that would be alive today if we had this bill in place, because we would have a process of accessing records that we don't have now.

Before this bill is passed, in order to get records from a manufacturer or food processing plant, we can't get it until the food outbreak occurs. But under this bill, when we are inspecting the plant, we will be able to get access to those records. If this was in place, eight Americans would be alive today.

Mr. Speaker, 76 million Americans suffer from food poisoning from our food supply a year; 5,000 are dying.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Georgia has expired.

Mr. DINGLE. I yield the gentleman 30 seconds more.

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Five thousand are dying. There is no more plain thing we can do.

And I have heard some comments from those who oppose this bill that this bill does nothing, but it does, Mr. Speaker. It provides for us to have inspections at food plants every 6 to 12 months. Do you know how often we are inspecting them now? Once every 10 years. The American people deserve better than that. They deserve for us to have a trace-back system so that we can trace back and get the origins of the outbreak as quickly as possible.

This is a tremendous bill, a tremendous bipartisan effort, and the American people are expecting us to pass it, and pass it overwhelmingly.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I don't have any additional speakers. I reserve my time.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) for purposes of making a unanimous consent request.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this bill.

In recent years, a series of outbreaks of food-borne illnesses have made clear the need to effectively secure our nation's food supply.

From spinach to cookie dough, foods have become contaminated and have threatened the health of the American people, exposing widespread problems with the food safety system in this country. H.R. 2749 will fundamentally change the way we ensure the safety of the foods we eat.

This bipartisan bill will provide the FDA with new powers and the tools it needs to protect the food supply by providing for more frequent inspections of food-processing plants here in the U.S. and by ensuring the safety of foods imported from overseas.

H.R. 2749 will also provide a new focus on the prevention of food-borne illness by putting systems in place that allow us to better track the source of these outbreaks. This legislation is critical to the health and safety of the American people, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, at this time I yield 2 minutes to my distinguished friend, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON), a superb Member of this body and a great friend of mine.

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Included in this bill was the manager's amendment addressing an issue that I raised that Mr. DINGELL has worked long and hard on and helped me figure out a way to address concerns about, lead glazing on ceramic plates on which we eat our food.

This issue first came to my attention with reports in my home State of Utah when a child was sick. After they analyzed the child, they determined the child had lead poisoning. They investigated the home where this child was living and couldn't find any sources of lead.

Ultimately it was discovered that the child's mother had been heating food in the microwave oven. The ceramic bowl or plate she was using wasn't properly glazed or wasn't properly sealed, and lead was leaching out of the plate into the food. Then when she would nurse the baby, the baby would get lead poisoning.

I think we all want to take steps to prevent that type of thing from happening. What we determined is most people don't even realize lead glazing is used on these plates. These plates come in with FDA labels, because the Food and Drug Administration has authority over it, so people who see a label from the Federal Government probably assume it safe.

Included in the manager's amendment is a requirement that there is labeling, just so consumers have the right to know, that it contains a lead-glazed product. If it is properly glazed, it is not necessarily dangerous. But people have the right to know that.

I really commend my friend from Michigan, who has been working on this issue and has been aware of it for a long time. He worked with my office extensively to come up with some way to try to at least make some progress on this issue. It is included in this bill. He is a great legislator, and I am glad he helped me figure that out.

I encourage people to support this bill.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I would appreciate it if the gentleman didn't praise me, and instead let me say good words about him.

He is a valuable member, a valuable member of our committee. He works hard. He is smart and decent and has been great on this issue. We are proud of him.

Mr. SHIMKUS. I continue to reserve, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, at this time it is my privilege to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON), a very distinguished Member of this body, the chairman of the Agriculture Committee in the House and an extremely wise defender of American agriculture and American farmers.

Mr. PETERSON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I first want to commend Chairman Emeritus DINGELL for all of his hard work on this issue, not only during this session of Congress but in many sessions past. We are hopeful that we can move this legislation forward and get additional safeguards in place for food safety in this country.

We also want to commend the other members of the Energy and Commerce Committee on our side of the aisle and on the Republican side of the aisle for their work on this on a bipartisan basis. It is good to see some bipartisan effort happening in the House, and there was some good work done.

We did have some concerns in the Agriculture Committee that we engaged in some discussions and negotiations with Mr. DINGELL and others on the staff of the Energy and Commerce Committee on, and we think we have further improved the bill in terms of how it relates to agriculture. We were able to clarify things in terms of livestock and grain farmers that there was some concern about the language, so that we cleared up some things in terms of performance standards and record keeping.

As the bill came out of Energy and Commerce, there were concerns registered by some of the farm groups. Some of them even indicated they might oppose it. But at this point, because of the changes that have been made, we now have groups that in the past had some concerns, they are now either neutral or supporting this bill. The United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Group, Western Growers, the American Farm Bureau, National Association of Wheat Growers, the Cattlemen Beef Association, Turkey Federation, Chicken Council, Pork Producers, Corn Growers, Soybean Association, Rice Federation, American Food Industry Association, United Egg Producers, the American Sheep Industry, the Wheat Growers and the Barley Growers, are now either supporting the legislation or are neutral on the legislation.

We believe that we have addressed the concerns of agriculture. We believe this is a good bill. I encourage Members to support this bill, and again commend my good friend and colleague and the chairman emeritus, Mr. DINGELL, for the great work he has done, as well as his staff.

Mr. SHIMKUS. I continue to reserve, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I am the only speaker remaining on this side, so if my good friend from Illinois would like to proceed, I will follow him in closing.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume and will just close briefly by saying this is good to see on the floor.

We did take a very difficult issue, one that has been languishing for 21 years, and worked with young Members and new Members, like ADAM PUTNAM, and with the distinguished Chairman Emeritus DINGELL, and got into a room and moved a bill that has the support of almost everybody in the food processing and agriculture community and the marketing of this.

I have sat in numerous hearings, as I said in my opening statement, and every time we would have an oversight investigation hearing there would be an alert of another food-borne illness, and we just knew we couldn't continue down that route.

As my colleague Mr. PUTNAM said, it is going to be helpful to the farmers. It is going to be helpful to the processors when we bring some more security and safety and knowledge that we continue to produce the best food supply in the world. It also will help us with the imported products, and that was a big issue in our debate.

So, with that, this has worked well. We should try this bipartisan method on things like energy and things like health, and maybe we will get there in months to come, I hope, because this is a much better process than us fighting altogether.

With that, again, I thank Chairman Emeritus DINGELL, who really led the way for us to get to where we are today.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1700

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. First, I want to commend my friend and colleague, Mr. SHIMKUS, and I want to express my gratitude to him. I also want to express my gratitude to Chairman WAXMAN, Chairman STUPAK and Chairman PALLONE, the legislative and appropriation and investigative committee chairmen of the Commerce Committee for the outstanding work they did in preparing this legislation. Also Representative DEGETTE and Representative SUTTON.

My colleagues Mr. BARTON, Mr. DEAL and Mr. SHIMKUS on the minority side have worked very well, carefully, thoughtfully with us, and I owe them a debt of thanks and gratitude. Staff Members like Rachel Sher and Eric Plamm have worked hard on this, as has my friend, Virgil Miller. Chairman PETERSON and JIM COSTA of the Agriculture Committee have been wise advisers and helpers in coming to a bill that could be agreed on by the two committees. Representative LEVIN, Chair of the Subcommittee on Trade of the Ways and Means Committee has been extremely important, as has Representative DELAURO, the Chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee. And Jeanne Ireland, a former staff member of this committee, has been of enormous help in the drafting of the legislation.

We had a long list of supporters. The Obama administration; Grocery Manufacturers Association—the people who sell are going to understand that they're being charged a participation fee; the Wine Institute; Wine America; Distilled Spirits Council of the United States; Center for Science in the Public Interest; Consumers Union; Consumers Federation of America; Center for Foodborne Illness Research & Prevention; Food & Water Watch; Government Accountability Project; National Consumers League; Pew Charitable Trusts; and Safe Tables Our Priority are all active supporters of this legislation.

And these agencies which previously had concerns about the legislation have either lifted their opposition, become neutral or actively support H.R. 2749: United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable; Western Growers; American Farm Bureau Federation; National Association of Wheat Growers; National Cattleman's Beef Association; National Turkey Federation; National Chicken Council; National Pork Producers Council; National Corn Growers Association; American Soybean Association; U.S. Rice Federation; American Feed Industry Association; United Egg Producers; and the American Sheep Industry.

We have seen that in the long time since legislation was passed to bring food and drug up to national needs back in 1938, that many changes have occurred that have required significant changes, both in the authority of FDA, in its moneys and its abilities to deal, not just with domestic producing problems, but with problems overseas, from which we are receiving lots of dangerous and unsafe food commodities and food products.

This legislation gives food and drug the authority that it needs, the ability to trace, the ability to hold producers abroad accountable, and it sets up a system where foreigners have to participate in the same responsibilities American producers, manufacturers and growers have to, and it enables Food and Drug, for the first time, to have real authorities to enforce the laws of the United States on food safety to protect Americans against unsafe foods coming in from abroad.

And I would remind my colleagues that Food and Drug has neither the resources at the points of entry, nor do they have the personnel at those places to inspect foods coming in. This changes that situation. It is also true that the legislation does something else of importance to our people, and that is, it sees to it that where misbehavior occurs abroad, those same penalties that would be assessed against Americans are assessed against foreigners. This is an important matter of competition to American producers and manufacturers. It sees to it that they are fairly treated, and that there is no more unfair competition by people who could market unsafe commodities to the detriment of American consumers and American growers, producers and processors.

So the legislation is good. A system of assuring responsibility and traceability is available for the first time. And Food and Drug has the authority to terminate the ability of foreigners to sell in this country for the first time in a way which is consistent with American trade laws and the obligations of American people with regard to the safety of food. So, it is a good piece of legislation, and I would urge my colleagues to support it. I would have them know that this is bipartisan, this is a good piece of legislation. It is legislation which protects American people, which sees to it that Americans will no longer be dying of dangerous foods imported into the United States, and it will see to it that American producers are treated fairly in the world marketplace without jeopardy of violation of our law.

It also will see that Food and Drug has the personnel, the resources that it needs to protect the American people, and it is kind to the budget of the American taxpayers.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 2749, the Food Safety Enhancement Act. This bill makes drastic changes to our nation's food safety laws that will affect every farmer and rancher in the United States. However, Mr.

Speaker, the extent of these changes is unknown, because the full text of this bill was not yet available to Members until the day before the vote.

Our Nation has the safest food supply in the world, Mr. Speaker, and that is because our growers and processors work hard to provide quality products to consumers. While the circumstances surrounding recent food safety violations must be addressed, in nearly every case, these were violations of existing laws and standards. It is imperative that Congress does not rush to use these incidents as an excuse to unnecessarily and dramatically expand federal regulation of our producers and processors.

This is a better bill than the one that came out of the Energy and Commerce Committee. Yet, I am still concerned about the broad authority this legislation gives to the Food and Drug Administration to regulate on-farm practices for our fruit and vegetable growers. If this bill is signed into law, the FDA will for the first time have the explicit authority to regulate the way produce is grown and harvested.

I am also concerned, Mr. Speaker, with the significant financial burden that the new traceability and record-keeping requirement will have on America's small farmers and agriculture processors. This bill would allow FDA to charge huge fines for even minor paperwork violations that could put smaller operations out of business.

Also of note, is the broad quarantine authority that this bill gives to FDA. While I recognize the need to quarantine the source of foodborne illnesses, this bill would allow the FDA to quarantine wide geographic areas where the source may exist. We know that the FDA can make mistakes over the origin of an outbreak, and this provision could cause devastating economic impacts to growers and processors who have done absolutely nothing wrong.

Agriculture is the number one industry in Washington State. Creating jobs and growing our economy is dependent upon supporting our farmers and ranchers—not passing legislation that could put them out of business.

I have heard some of my colleagues say that we can rely on the Senate to address the flaws in this bill. I believe that the House of Representatives owes it to our growers and processors to take the time to do this right, and not rely on the Senate to fix our mistakes.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Food Safety Enhancement Act (H.R. 2749), and to commend the Committees on Agriculture and Energy and Commerce for their hard work in crafting the bill.

According to a 2005 study by the Centers for Disease Control, each year 76 million people (25 percent of the population) become sick, 325,000 are hospitalized and 5,000 die from foodborne illnesses in the United States. In recent years, the United States has experienced many incidents of food contamination, caused by biological and man-made toxins. For example, in 2000, various brands of taco shells were found to be contaminated with genetically modified corn meant only for animal feed. In the fall of 2006, spinach contaminated with E. coli bacteria resulted in more than 200 confirmed illnesses and at least three deaths. In 2007, various products imported from China were found to contain wheat gluten contaminated with the industrial chemical melamine, which killed more than a dozen house pets. And recently, people across the country were infected with Salmonella bacteria from eating peanut products from a processing plant in Georgia. Even contaminated cookie dough has ended up in the food supply.

Therefore I commend my colleagues Chairman Emeritus DINGELL, Chairman WAXMAN, Mr. PALLONE and Mr. STUPAK for their firm and comprehensive response to this torrent of food contamination incidents, and for crafting the bill before us today. In addition, I want to acknowledge my colleague Ms. DELAUNO for her own substantial efforts to improve food safety, and her contributions to this bill. It would make many important improvements to our food safety regulations, including creating an up-to-date registry of all food facilities serving American consumers, requiring foreign and domestic food facilities to have safety plans in place to identify and mitigate hazards, and require high-risk food facilities to be inspected every 12 months, and low-risk facilities to be inspected every 18 months. It also requires the Food and Drug Administration, FDA, to develop a system which would expedite import processing for importers who agree to adhere to enhanced safety and security guidelines, and expands FDA trace-back capabilities in the event of a foodborne illness.

In particular, I want to thank the Committees for responding to many of the concerns raised by the National Sustainable Agriculture Coalition and constituents from my district that the bill would negatively impact small, family-owned, and organic farms. For example, the bill before us today provides an exemption from traceability and registration for direct farmer-to-consumer marketing, an exemption for food, facilities and farms that are already regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and an exemption for grain and hay farmers from full-scale electronic traceability requirements. In all these cases the regulations would be unnecessary and wasteful.

However, a number of the concerns they raised have not been addressed, and I look forward to working with my colleagues in both Chambers to ensure that those matters are addressed as the bill moves through the process. Most importantly, it will be critical to assure that none of the new safety standards weaken the standards under the National Organic Program. In addition, it will be important that we facilitate and enhance the role of conservation and sustainability practices to address food safety issues. And we must ensure that the fee structure in the bill does not disproportionately impact small agricultural producers.

I thank my colleagues again for their leadership and prompt action on this matter, and I urge my colleagues to support this bill, and to work to fine-tune it as it moves through the legislative process.

Mr. DINGELL. I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 691, the previous question is ordered on the bill, as amended.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, I have a motion to recommit at the desk.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. LUCAS. I am opposed to the bill in its current form.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Lucas moves to recommit the bill H.R. 2749 to the Committee on Energy and Commerce with instructions to report the bill back to the House forthwith with the following amendments:

Page 21, lines 3 and 4, strike subparagraph (B) and insert the following:

“(B) shall only be collected and available as follows:

“(i) Fifty percent shall be available to defray the costs of additional safety inspection of food in the United States.

“(ii) Fifty percent shall be available for use under section 137 of the Food Safety Enhancement Act of 2009.

Page 23, line 8, strike “and”.

Page 23, line 11, strike the period and insert “; and”.

Page 23, after line 11, insert the following:

“(F) preemptive purchase of product from facilities as defined in section 415.”.

At the end of subtitle C of title I add the following (and revise the table of contents in section 2 accordingly):

SEC. 137. PREEMPTIVE PURCHASE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—From the fees collected under section 743 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by section 102, the Secretary of Health and Human Services may make a preemptive purchase related to activities by the Government in carrying out any provision of this Act or an amendment made by this Act.

(b) LIMITATION.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the Secretary shall not make any payment under such subsection in excess of the amount of fees available under section 743(e)(2)(B)(ii) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, as added by section 102.

Mr. DINGELL. I reserve a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of order is reserved.

Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oklahoma is recognized for 5 minutes in support of the motion.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of order against the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. DINGELL. Under rule XVI, clause 7, and the language of the rule, it says no motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment. And I'd point out that that is applicable to the questions before us. I would note that the language of the motion does take and separates the receipts that will be gotten from the registration fees, so that 50 percent are available to defray the costs of additional safety inspection of food; but 50 percent shall be available for use under section 137. But the purpose of that is, rather, for the preemptive purchase of product from facilities as defined in section 415. This allows the broadest kind of purchase of food.

The legislation itself allows certain specific actions, none of which involve purchase of food, particularly under such broad circumstances as the motion allows. The bill only allows expenditure of these registration fees for the following purpose: records access, traceability, recall authority, authority to detain, subpoena authority, prohibition or restriction on the movement of bad food. No further authorities for purchase or expenditure of this money are permitted.

This goes well beyond the fundamental purpose of the legislation and, as such, it constitutes a violation of the rules, going beyond that which is the fundamental purpose of the legislation and so constituting a violation of rule XVI, clause 7 of being not germane.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does any other Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, the nature of this bill contemplates a number of different things that try to address and protect the supply of domestic food in this country, food in general, I should say. The bill, the language offered, the motion, refers to using 50 percent of these fees collected under section 137 of the motion, which is referenced on the second page. This is just an additional item to all of the things already outlined in the bill in its present form.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I would observe that the language of the legislation nowhere authorizes purchase of food. Under the number of the legislation appears the language, to amend the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act to improve the safety of food in the global market and for other purposes. And then, down there where you follow, following the words, a bill, and it says, to amend the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act to improve the safety of food in the global market and for other purposes. Nowhere in the legislation, in my reading, have I been able to find the authorization for the purchase of food or the purchase of food to achieve safety.

I would observe that the language of the motion to recommit permits the purchase of the food without restriction, without restraint or limit. It is some of the grandest authority that is given and well beyond any authority which Food and Drug now has or seeks. Food and Drug has no authority in this area whatsoever for the purchase of food. And the purchasing of food is not for the purpose of protecting the American people, of seeing to it that Food and Drug can properly assure the safety of the food or the protection of the American consumers. And the language that is, I think, most particularly descriptive of what the proposal does, it follows line 3 at page 2. It says, the Secretary of Health—and this is, I'm reading at line 6—the Secretary of Health and Human Services may make a preemptive purchase related to activities by the government in carrying out any provisions of this act or amendment made by this act.

□ 1715

That might be good language for the Committee on Agriculture to present to the House, but it is not language that you will find in Food and Drug and none that would be suggested by the commerce committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If no other Member wishes to be heard, the Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman from Michigan makes a point of order that the amendment proposed in the motion to recommit offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma is not germane. The test of germaneness in this situation is the relationship of the amendment proposed in the motion to recommit to the provisions of the bill as a whole.

The bill, as perfected, amends the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to improve the safety of food. It grants the Secretary of Health and Human Services authority to issue mandatory performance standards for reducing hazards and requires the Secretary to conduct risk-based inspections. It also expands the Secretary's access to food safety records and increases the Secretary's ability to oversee the safety of imported food, requiring safety-related documentation for potentially unsafe imported food as a condition of import.

In most pertinent part to the question at hand, the bill provides the Secretary with sundry tools to address an outbreak of food-borne illness. These include a system for the rapid tracing of the origin of food, authority to mandate recalls of contaminated food, and authority to quarantine geographic areas of the United States from which the Secretary reasonably believes contaminated food has originated.

The amendment proposed in the motion to recommit contemplates allowing the Secretary to preemptively purchase food as a matter of food safety, as in the context of section 415 of the Act. The amendment also would make a portion of the proceeds of certain fees contemplated by the bill available only for such preemptive purchases.

The Chair finds that the amendment pursues the same fundamental purpose of the bill by a method that dwells within the range of methods employed by the bill. The Chair therefore holds that the amendment is germane.

Accordingly, the point of order is overruled. The motion is in order.

The gentleman from Michigan may be recognized for 5 minutes in opposition.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, we have before us a bad motion to recommit. With all due respect for its author, we know that the FDA has been chronically starved of resources, particularly in the food area and particularly in its ability to protect the American people.

The amendment offered before us would raid that money and would use it for the purpose of purchasing food. The food is not designated as to how or why it might be purchased. I would point out that this breaks an agreement and an understanding that the committee had in this legislation with regard to the support by the food production industry, especially the parts of the industry that will pay the tax.

The bill only authorizes a modest $500 registration fee for food facilities. The motion to recommit asserts the bill does not require the FDA to spend one additional penny on the inspection of food. This is a serious untruth.
